Let not the Boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercyse thy selfe therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thynge accordyng to it that is wrytten therin.

Imprynted in Southwarke for James Nycolson.

¶ Because that whan thou goest to studye in holy scripture, thou shuldest do it with reuerence, therfore for thyn instruccyō and louynge admonicyon therto, the Reuerende father in God, Nicolas, Bysshoppe of Salisbury hath prescrybed ỳ this prayer folowynge, taken out of the same.

Jacob.1. Prou.2.

O LORDE God almyghtye which longe ago saydest by the mouth of James thyne Apostle: * yf ony of you lacke wysdome, let hym aske it of God which geueth it plenteously to all men, and casteth no man in the teth, and it shalbe geuen hym. Heare my petycyon for this thy promes sake.

Defendour of the Fayth, and vnder God

Churth of Englande.

¶ The ryght & iuſt adminiſtracyon of the lawes that God gaue vnto Moſes and vnto Joſua: the teſtimonye of faythfulnes that God gaue of Dauid: the plenteous abundaunce of wyſedome that God gaue vnto Salomon: the lucky and proſperous age with the multiplicacyon of ſede which God gaue vnto Abraham and Sara his wyfe, be geuen vnto you mooſt gracyous Prynce, with your deareſt iuſt wyfe, and mooſt vertuous Prynceſſe, Quene Jane, Amen.

Caiphas beynge byſſhope of that yeare, lyke a blynde prophet (not vnderſtandynge what he ſayd) prophecyed, that it was better to put CHRIST to death, then ỳ all the people ſhulde peryſh: he meanynge, that CHRIST was an heretike, a deceaſuer of the people, & a deſtroyer of the lawe, & that it was better therfore to put CHRIST to death, then to ſuffer hym for to lyue, & to deceaue the people. &c. where in very dede CHRIST was the true prophete, the true Meſſias, and ỳ onely true Sauyour of the worlde, ſent of his heauenly father to ſuffre the mooſt cruell, mooſt ſhamefull, and mooſt neceſſarye death for our redempcyon: accordynge to the meanynge of the prophecy truely vnderſtande.

Euen after the ſame maner the blynde byſſhoppe of Rome, (that blynde Balaã I ſaye) not vnderſtandynge what he dyd, gaue vnto your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth, onely becauſe your hyghneſſe ſuffred youre byſſhoppes to burne Gods worde the rote of fayth, and to perſecut the louers and mynyſters of the ſame. where in very dede the blynde byſſhoppe (though he knewe not what he dyd) prophecyed, that by the ryghteous adminiſtracyon and cõtynuall diligence of your grace the fayth ſhulde be defended, ỳ Gods worde ỳ mother of fayth, wt the frutes therof, ſhulde haue his fre courſe thorow all Chriſtendom, but ſpecyally in your realme.

Of your hyghneſſe now of your pryncely benignite wyll pardon me to compare theſe two byſſhoppes (I meane byſſhoppe Cayphas and the byſſhoppe of Rome) and theyr prophecyes together, I doute not but we ſhall fynde them agre lyke brethren, though the one be a Jewe & the other a counterfayte Chriſtian. Fyrſt, Cayphas prophecied ỳ it was better to put CHRIST vnto death, then that ỳ people ſhulde peryſh. The byſſhoppe of Rome alſo, not knowynge what he prophecyed, gaue your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth. The trueth of both theſe prophecyes is of ỳ holy gooſt (as was Balaams prophecye) though they that ſpake them, knewe not what they ſayd. The trueth of Caiphas prophecye is, that it was neceſſarie for mans ſaluacyon, that CHRIST by his death ſhuld ouercome death, & redeme vs. And ỳ trueth of our * Balaams prophecye is, that your grace in verye dede ſhulde defende the fayth. yee euen the true fayth of CHRIST, no dreames, no fables, no herreſye, no papiſtrall inuẽcyons, but the vncorrupte fayth of Gods mooſt holy worde, which to ſee forth (prayſed be the goodnes of God, & increaſe your gracyous purpoſe) your hyghnes with your mooſt honorable councel, applyeth all ſtudye and endeuoure.

Theſe two blynd byſſhoppes now agre in ỳ vnderſtãdynge of theyr prophecyes: for Caiphas taketh CHRIST for an heretike. Our Balaã taketh ỳ worde of CHRIST for herefye. Caiphas iudgeth it to be a good dede to put CHRIST to death, that he shulde not deceaue the people. Our Balaam calleth dekendynge of ỹ sayth, the suppressynge, keppynge secrete, and burnynge of the worde of sayth: lest the lyght therof shulde vtter hys darknesse: lest his owne Decretales and Decrees, his owne lawes and constitucyons, his owne statutes and inuencyons shulde come to none effecte: lest his intollerable exactions & vsurpacyons shulde lose theyr strength: lest it shuld be knowen what a theefe and murtherer he is in the cause of CHRIST, and how haynous a trayture to God and man in defraudynge all Christen kynges and prynces of theyr dew obedience: lest we your graces subiectes shulde haue eyes in the worde of God, at the last to spye out his crafty conueyaunce and suglynges: and lest men shulde se, how lore he and his false Apostles haue deceaued al Christendome, specyally your noble realme of Englande.

Thus your grace seyth how brotherly the Jewysh bysshoppe and our Balaam agre together, not onely in myter and outwarde appearaunce: but as the one persecuted the LORDE IESVS in his owne persone, so doth ỹ other persecute his word. and resysteth his holy ordynaunce in the authorite of his anoynted kynges. For so moche now as the worde of God is the onely trueth that dryueth away all lyes, & discloseth al suglynge and deceate, therfore is our Balaam of Rome so loth that the scripture shulde be knowen in the mother tunge: lest yͤ kynges and princes (specyally aboue all other) were exercysed therin, they shulde reclame and chalenge agayne theyr dew authorite, which he falsely hath vsurped so many yeares, & so to rye hym thorter: & lest ỹ people beynge taught by the worde of God, shulde fall from ỹ false fayned obedience of hym and his disguysed Apostles, vnto the true obedience commaunded by Gods owne mouthe: as namely, to obey theyr prynce, to obey father & mother, &c. and not to steppe ouer father and mothers bely to enter in to his paynted religions, as his ypocrites teache: For he knoweth well ynough, that yͤ ỹ cleare Sonne of Gods worde come once to the heate of the daye, it shall dryue awaye all the foule myst of his deuelysh doctrines. Therfore were it more to the mayntenaūce of Antichrystes kyngdome, that the worlde were styll in ignoraunce and blyndnesse, and that the scripture shulde neuer come to lyght. For the scripture (both in the olde testament and in the new) declareth moost abundauntly that the office, authorite & power geuen of God vnto kynges, is in earth aboue all other powers: let them call them selues Popes, Cardinalles, or what so euer they wyll, the worde of God declareth them (yea and commaundeth them vnder payne of dampnacyon) to * be obedient vnto the temporall swearde: As in the olde Testament all the Prophetes, Preestes and Leuites were. And in the new Testament * CHRIST and his Apostles both were obedient them selues, and * taught obedience of all men vnto theyr prynces and temporal rulers: which here vnto vs in this worlde represent the persone of God, and are called * Goddes in the scripture, bycause of the excellency of theyr office. And though ther were no mo authorites but ỹ same, to proue the preeminence, of the temporal swearde: yet by this the scripture declareth playnly, that as ther is nothinge aboue God, so is ther no man aboue the kynge in his realme: but that he only vnder God is * the chefe heade of all the congregacyon and churche of the same.

ps. 81. a

And in token that this is true, ther hath ben of olde antiquite (and is yet vnto this daye) a louynge ceremonye vsed in your realme of Englande, that whan your graces subiectes trade your letters, or begynne to talke or comune of your highnesse, they moue theyr bonettes for a signe and token of reuerence vnto your grace, as to theyr moost soueraigne lorde and heade vnder God: which thynge no man vseth to do to any bysshoppe. Wherby (yͤ our vnderstandynge were not blynded) we myght euydently perceaue, that euen very nature teacheth vs the same, that scripture commaundeth vs: & that lyke as it is agaynst Gods worde that a kynge shulde not be ỹ chefe heade of his people, euen so (I saye) is it agaynst kynde that we shulde knowe any other heade aboue hym vnder God.

And that no preest nor bysshoppe is exempte (nor can be lawfully) from the obedience of his prynce, the scripture is full both of strayte cōmaundementes, & practises

of the holyest men. * Aaron was obedient vnto Moses, and called hym his lorde, though he was his owne brother. * Eleazar and Phineas were vnder the obedience of Iosua. * Nathan the prophet fell downe to the grounde before kynge Dauid, he had his prynce in such reuerence. (He made not the kynge for to kysse his foote as the bysshoppe of Rome maketh Emperours to do.) Notwithstandynge he spared not to * rebuke hym, and that rychte sharply whan he fell from the worde of God to adultery and manslaughter. For he was not afrayed to reproue hym of his synnes, nomore then * Helyas the prophete stode in feare to saye vnto kynge Achab: Is it thou and thy fathers house that trouble Israel, because ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the LORDE, and walke after Baall. And as Iohn Baptiste durst saye vnto kynge Herode: * It is not lawfull for the to take thy brothers wyfe. But to my purpose I passe ouer innumerable mo ensamples both of ye olde Testament and of the new, for feare lest I be to tedious vnto your grace. Summa, in all godly regimentes of olde tyme the kynge and temporall iudge was obeyed of euery man, and was alwaye vnder God the chefe and supreme heade of the whole congregacyon and deposed euen prestes whan he sawe an vrgent cause, as * Salomõ dyd vnto Abiathar. Who coulde then stande agaynst the godly obedience of his prynce (excepte he wolde be at defyaunce with God and all his holy ordynaunces) that were well acquaynted with the holy scripture, which so earnestly commendeth vnto euery one of vs the auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges and temporall rulers? * Therfore doth Moses so straitely forbyd the Israelites to speake so much as an euell worde agaynst the prynce of the people, much lesse then to disobey hym, or to withstande hym. * Doth not Ieremy the prophete and Baruc also exhort the people in captiuite, to praye for the prosperous welfare of the kynge of Babill. and to obeye hym, though he was an infidele? * In the new Testament whan oure saueoure CHRIT (beynge yet free and LORDE of all kynges and princes) shewed his obedience in payeng the trybute to oure ensample, dyd he not a myracle therin put tynge the pece of money in the fyshes mouth (that Peter myght paye the customer therwith) and all to stablyshe the obedience dew vnto princes? * Dyd not Ioseph and Mary the mother of our saueour CHRIT departe from Nazareth vnto Bethlem, so farre from home, to shewe their obedience in payng the taxe to the prynce? And wolde not our Saueoure be borne in the same obedience? * Doth not Paule pronounce hym to resyste God hym selfe, that resysteth ye authorite of his prynce? And to be shorte the Apostle Peter doth not onely stablyshe the obedience vnto princes and temporall rulers: but affirmeth playnly * the kynge (and no bysshoppe) to be the chefe head. Innumerable places more ther be in scripture, which bynde vs to the obedience of our prynce, and declare vnto vs, that no man is nor can be lawfully excepte from the same: but that all the mynisters of Gods worde are vnder the temporall swearde: and princes onely to owe obedience vnto God and his worde.

And where as Antichrist vnto your graces tyme dyd thrust his heade in to the imperiall crowns of your hyghnesse, (as he doth yet with other noble princes mo) that learned he of Nathan the author of pryde, and therin doth he both agaynst the doctrine, & agaynst the ensample of CHRIST: which because his kingdome was not of this worlde, medled with no temporall matters, as it is euydent both by his wordes and practise: Luke.xii. Math.xxvi. Joh.vi. Joh.xviii. where he that hath eyes to se, may se: & he that hath eares to heare, mape heare, ye CHRITES admynistracyon was nothynge temporall, but playne spirituall, as he hymselfe affirmeth & proueth in ye fourth chapter of sayne Luke out of ye prophete Esay: where al bisshoppes & prestes may se, how farre their byndynge and lowsynge extendeth, and where in their office consysteth, namely in preachynge the Gospell &c.

Wherfore (moost gracyous prynce) ther is no tunge I thynke, that can fully expresse and declare the vntollerable iniuryes, which haue ben done vnto God, to all princes and to the communalties of all christen realmes, sence they whiche shulde be onely the mynisters of Gods worde, became lordes of the worlde, and thrust the true and iuste prynces out of theyr rowmes. Whose harte wolde not pytie it (yee euen wt lamentacyon) to remembre but onely the vntollerable wronge done by that Antychrist of Rome vnto your graces moost noble predecessoure kynge John: I passe ouer his pestilent pickynge of Peter pens out of your realme: his stealynge awaye of your money for pardons, benefices and bysshoprykes: his deceauynge of youre subiectes soules with his deuelyshe doctrynes, and sectes of his false religione: his bloudshedynge of so many of your graces people, for bokes of the scripture. Whose harte wolde not be grened (yee and that out of measure) to call to remembraunce, how obstinate and disobedient, how presumptuous and stubburne that Antechrist made the bysshoppes of youre realme agaynst youre graces noble predecessours in tymes past, as it is manyfest in the Cronicles: I trust verely ther be no suche now within Pro.16.c. your realme: yf ther be, let them remembre these wordes of scripture: * Presumptuousnesse goeth before destruccyon, & after a proude stomocke ther followeth a fall.

What is now the cause of all these vntollerable and nomore to be suffred abhominacyons? Truely euen the ignoraunce of the scripture of God. For how had it eis ben possible, that such blyndnes shuld haue come in to ỹ worlde, had not ỹ lyght of Gods worde bene extincte? How coulde men (I saye) haue bene so farre from the true seruice of God, and from the dew obedience of theyr prynce, had not the lawe of God bene clene shut vp, depressed, cast asyde, and put out of remembraunce? As it was afore the tyme of that noble kinge Josias, and as it hath bene also amonge vs vnto your graces tyme: by whose moost ryghteous admynistracyon (thorow ỹ mer
4.Re.22.b 2.Pa.34.c cyfull goodnes of God) it is now foude agayne, * as it was in the dayes of ỹ moost vertuous kynge Josias. And prayed be the father, the sonne, and the holy goost worlde without ende, which so excellently hath endewed youre highnes hert with such feruentnesse to his honoure, and to the welth of youre louynge subiectes, that I maye ryghtfully (by iust occasyons in your persone) compare your highnes vn to that noble and gracyous kynge, the lanterne of lyght amonge prynces, that feruent protectour and defender of the lawes of God: which commaunded straytly (as your grace doth) that the lawe of God shulde be redde and taught vnto all the people: set the prestes to theyr office in the worde of God: destroyed Idolatry & false ydols: put downe all euell costumes and abusyons: set vp the true honoure of God: applyed all his studye and endeuoure to the ryghteous admynistracyon of ỹ moost vncorrupte lawe of God, &c. O what felicite was amonge the people of Jerusalem in his dayes? And what prosperous health both of soule and body folowe ỹ lyke
Jere.44.b mynistracyon in your hyghnesse, we begynne now (prayed be God) to haue experience. * For as false doctryne is the originall cause of all euell plages and destruccyon, so is the true executynge of the lawe of God and the preachynge of the same, the mother of all godly prosperite. The onely worde of God (I saye) is the cause of al felicite, * it bryngeth all goodnes with it, it bryngeth learnynge, it gendreth vnderstandynge, it causeth good workes, it maketh chyldren of obedience, briefely, it teacheth all estates theyr office and dewty. Seynge then that the scripture of God teacheth vs euery thyng sufficiently, both what we ought to do, and what we ought to leue vndone: whom we are bounde to obey, and whom we shulde not obeye: therfore (I saye) it causeth al prosperite, and setteth euery thynge in frame: & where it is taught and knowen, it lyghteneth all darknesses, comforteth all sorye hartes, leaueth no poore man vnhelped, suffreth nothynge amysse vnamended, letteth no prince be disobeied, permytteth no heresye to be preached: but refourmeth all thynges, amendeth
1.Tim.1.b that is amysse, and setteth euery thynge in order. And whye because * it is geuen by the inspiracyon of God, therfore is it euer bryngynge profyte and frute, by teachyng by improuynge, by amendynge and refourmynge all them that wyl receaue it, to make the perfecte and mete vnto al good workes.

Consyderynge now (moost gracyous prynce) the inestimable treasure, frute and prosperite euerlastynge, that God geueth with his worde, and trustynge in his infynite goodnes that he wolde bryngе my symple & rude labour herin to good effecte

therfore as the holy goost moued other men to do the cost herof, so was I boldened in God, to laboure in the same. I gayne, consyderynge your Imperiall maieste not onely to be my naturall souerayne liege lorde and chefe heade of the church of Englonde, but also the true defender and mayntener of Gods lawes, I thought it my dewtye and to belonge vnto my allegiaunce, whan I had translated this Bible, not onely to dedicate this translacyon vnto youre hyghnelle, but wholy to committe it vnto the same: to the intent that yf ony thynge therin be translated amysse (for in many thynges we fayle, euen whā we thynke to be sure) it may stonde in your graces handes, to correcte it, to amende it, to improue it, yee and clene to reiecte it, yf your godly wysedome shal thynke it necessary. And as I do with al humblenes submytte myne vnderstondynge and my poore translacyon vnto the spyrite of trueth in your grace, so make I this protestacyon (hauynge God to recorde in my conscience) that I haue nother wrested nor altered so much as one worde for the mayntenaunce of ony maner of secte: but haue with a cleare conscience purely and faythfully translated this out of fyue sundry interpreters, hauynge onely the manyfest trueth of the scripture before myne eyes: Trustynge in the goodnelle of God, that it shalbe vnto his worshippe quietnes and tranquillite: vnto youre hyghnelle a perfecte stablyshment of all Gods ordinaunces within your graces dominion: a generall comforte to all Christen hartes: and a continuall thankfulnelle both of olde and ponge vnto God, and to youre grace, for beynge our Moses, and for brynge vs out of this olde Egipte from the cruell handes of our spirituall Pharao. For where were ye Ie wes (by ten thousande partes) so much bounde vnto kynge Dauid, for *stubbynge 1. Sa. 17. g of great Goliath and al theyr enemyes, as we are to your grace, for delyueringe vs out of our olde Babylonicall captiuite? For the which delyueraunce and victory I beseke our onely mediatour IESVS CHRIST, to make such meanes for vs vnto his heauenly father, that we neuer be vnthankfull vnto hym nor vnto your grace: but that we euer increase in the feare of hym in obedience vnto your hyghnelle, in loue vnfayned vnto our neyghbours: and in all vertue that cōmeth of God. To whom for the dekendynge of his blessed worde by youre graces moost typhtfull admynistracyon be honoure and thankes, glorye and dominyon, worlde without ende. ☞ AMEN.

Your graces humble subiecte and dayly oratour.

A prologe.

Myles Couerdale vnto the Chrysten reader.

Onsyderynge how excellent knowlege and learnyng an interpreter of scripture ought to haue in the tunges, & ponderyng also myne owne insufficiency therin, and how weake I am to perfourme the office of a translatoure, I was the more loth to medle with this worke. Notwithstandynge whan I consyderyd how great pytie it was that we shulde wante it so longe, and called to my remembraunce the aduersite of them, which were not onely of rype knowlege, but wold also with al theyr hartes haue perfourmed that they beganne, yf they had not had impediment: consyderynge (I saye) that by reasō of theyr aduersite it coulde not so soone haue ben brought to an ende, as oure moost prosperous nacyon wolde fayne haue had it: these & other reasonable cauſes cōsydered, I was the more bolde to take it in hande. And to helpe me herin, I haue had sondrye translacyons, not onely in latyn, but also of the Douche interpreters: whō (because of theyr syngular gyftes and specyall diligence in the Byble) I haue bene the more glad to folowe for the moost parte, accordynge as I was requyred. But to saye the trueth before God, it was nother my labour nor desyre, to haue this worke put in my hande: neuertheleſſe it greued me that other nacyons shulde be more plenteously prouyded for with the scripture in theyr mother tunge, then we: therfore whan I was instauntly requyred, though I coulde not do so well as I wolde, I thought it yet my dewtye to do my best, and that with a good wyll.

Where as some men thynke now that many translacyons make diuision in the fayth & in the people of God, ẏ is not so: for it was neuer better vnto the congregacion of God, then whā euery church almoost had ẏ Byble of a sondry trāslacyō. Amōge the Grekes had not Origen a specyall translacyon? Had not Vulgarius one peculiar, and lykewyse Chrysostome? Beſyde the seuenty interpreters, is ther not the trāslacyon of Aquyla, of Theodotiō, of Symachus, and of sondrye other? I gayne amonge the Latyn men, thou fyndest that euery one almoost vsed a specyall and sondrye translacyon: for in so muche as euery bysshoppe had the knowlege of ẏ tunges, he gaue his diligence to haue the Byble of his owne translacyon. The doctours, as Ireneus, Cyprianus, Tertullian, S. Iherome, S. Augustyne, Hylarius and S. Ambrose vpon dyuerse places of the scripture, reade not the texte all alyke.

Therfore ought it not to be taken as euel, that such men as haue vnderstādyng now in our tyme, exercyse them selues in the tunges, & geue theyr diligence to translate out of one language in to another, yee we ought rather to geue God hye thankes therfore, which thorow his spyrite stereth vp mens myndes, so to exercise thē selues therin. Wolde God it had neuer ben lefte of after ẏ tyme of S. Augustyne, then shulde we neuer haue come in to such blyndnesſe & ignorāunce, in to such errours & delusyons. For as soone as the Byble was cast aſyde, & nomore put in exercyse, then begon euery one of his owne heade to wryte what so euer came in to his brayne and that semed to be good in his owne eyes: and so grewe the darknesſe of mens tradicyons. And this same is ẏ cause ẏ we haue had so many wryters, which seldome made mencyon of ẏ scripture of ẏ Byble: and though they somtyme aleged it, yet was it done so farre out of season and so wyde from the purpose, ẏ a mā may wel perceaue, how that they neuer sawe the originall.

Seynge then that this diligent exercyse of translatyng doth so much good and edifyeth in other languages, why shulde it do euell in oures? Doutles lyke as al nacyons in the diuersite of speches maye knowe our God in the vnyte of fayth, and be one in loue: euen so maye dyuerse translations vnderstande one another, and that in the head articles & grounde of our moost blessed fayth, though they vse sondry wordes. Wherfore me thynke we haue great occasyon to geue thankes vnto God, that hehath opened vnto his churche the gyfte of interpretacyon and of prynteyng, & that ther are now at this tyme so many, which with suche diligẽce and faythfulnes interpꝛete the scꝛyppture to the honoure of God & edifyenge of his people, where as (lyke as whan many are shutyng together) euery one doth his best to be nyest the marke. And though they can not all attayne therto, yet shuteth one nyer then another, and hytteth it better then another, yee one can do it better then an other. Who is nowe then so vnreasonable, so despyteful, oꝛ enuyous, as to abhoꝛre him that doth all his diligence to hytte ỳ pꝛycke, and to shute nyest it, though he mysse and come not nyest the marke? Ought not such one rather to be cõmended, and to be helped foꝛwarde, that he maye exercyse hymselfe the moꝛe therin?

Foꝛ the which cause (accoꝛdynge as I was desyred) I toke the moꝛe vpon me to set foꝛth this specyall translacyon, not as a checker, not as a repꝛouer, oꝛ dispyser of other mens translacyons (foꝛ amonge many as yet I haue founde none without occasyon of greate thankesgeuynge vnto God) but louyngly and faythfully haue I folowed myne interpꝛeters, and that vnder coꝛrecyon. And though I haue tayled onywhere (as ther is nom̃ā but he myssyth in some thynge) loue shall cõsyꝛe all to the best without ony peruerse iudgement. Ther is no man syuynge that can se all thynges, nother hath God geuẽ ony man to knowe euery thynge. One seyth moꝛe clearly then another, one hath moꝛe vnderstõdynge then another, one can vtter a thynge better then another, but no man ought to enuye, oꝛ despyse another. He that can do better then another, shulde not set hym at naught that vnderstondeth lesse: yee he that hath the moꝛe vnderstondynge, ought to remembꝛe that the same gyfte is not his but Gods, and that God hath geuen it him to teach and enfourme the ignoꝛaũt. Yf thou hast knowlege therfoꝛe to iudge where ony faute is made, I doute not but thou wylt helpe to amende it, yf loue be ioyned with thy knowlege. Howbeit wherin so euer I dyd perceaue by my selfe, oꝛ by ỳ infoꝛmacyon of other, that I haue tayled (as it is no wõder) I haue now by ỳ helpe of God ouerloked it better & amẽded it.

Now wyll I exhoꝛte the (who so euer thou be ỳ readest scꝛyppture) yf thou fynde ought therin that thou vnderstondest not, oꝛ ỳ appeareth to be repugnaunt, geue no temerarious noꝛ hastye iudgement therof: but ascꝛybe it to thyne owne ignoraunce, not to the scꝛyppture, thynke that thou vnderstondest it not, oꝛ ỳ it hath some other meanynge, oꝛ that it is happlye ouerlene of ỳ interpꝛeters, oꝛ wronge pꝛynted. Agayne, it shall greatly helpe the to vnderstonde scꝛyppture, yf thou marke not onely what is spoken oꝛ wꝛytten, but of whome, and vnto whome, & what woꝛdes, at what tyme, where, to what intent, with what circũstaunce, cõsyderynge what goeth befoꝛe, and what folowyth after. Foꝛ ther be some thynges which are done & wꝛyttẽ, to the intent that we shulde do lykewyse: as whan Abꝛaham beleued God, is obedient vnto his woꝛde, and defendeth Loth his kynsman from violent wronge. Ther be some thinges also which are wꝛyttẽ, to the intent that we shulde eschue such lyke. As whan Dauid lyeth with Urias wyfe, and causeth him to be slayne. Therfoꝛe (I saye) whan thou readest scꝛyppture, be wyse and circũspecte: and whan thou cõmest to such straunge maners of speakynge and darke sentences, to suche parables and similitudes, to such dꝛeames oꝛ vysions as are hyd frõ thyn vnderstondynge, cõmit thẽ vnto God oꝛ to the gyft of his holy spꝛyte in thẽ that are better learned thẽ thou.

As foꝛ the cõmendacyon of Gods holye scꝛyppture, I wolde sayne magnyfye it as it is woꝛthy, but I am farre vnsufficyẽt therto, & therfoꝛe I thought it better foꝛ me to holde my tunge, then with few woꝛdes to pꝛayse oꝛ commende it: exhoꝛtynge the (mooste deare reader) so to loue it, so to cleue vnto it, and so to folowe it in thy daylye conuersacyon, that other men seynge thy good woꝛkes and the fruites of the holye goost in the, maye pꝛayse the father of heauẽ, and geue his woꝛde a good repoꝛte foꝛ to lyue after the lawe of God, and to leade a vertuous conuersacyon, is ỳ greatest pꝛayse that thou canst geue vnto his doctryne.

But as touchynge the euell repoꝛte and dispꝛayse that the good woꝛde of God hath by the coꝛrupte and euell conuersacyon of some, that dayly heare it & pꝛofesse it outwardly with theyꝛ mouthes, I exhoꝛte the (mooste deare reader) let not that ofetende the nor withdrawe thy mynde from the loue of the treuth, nother mone the to be partaker in lyke vnthankfulnes: but seynge the lighte is come in to the worlde, loue no more the workes of darknes, receaue not ỳ grace of God in vayne. Cal to thy remebraunce how louynge and mercyfull God is vnto the, howe kyndly & fatherly he helpeth the in all trouble, teacheth thyne ignoraũce, healeth ỳ in all thy sycknesse forgeueth the all thy synnes, fedeth the, geueth the drynke, helpeth ỳ out of prison, norysheth the in straunge contrees, careth for the, & seyeth ỳ thou wãte nothyng. Cal this to mynde (I saye) and that earnestly, & cõsyder how thou hast receaued of God all these benefites (ye and many mo then thou cãst declyre) how thou art bounde like wyse to shewe thy selfe vnto thy neghboure as farre as thou canst, to teache hym yf he be ignoraũt, to helpe hym in all his trouble, to heale his sycknes, to forgeue him his offences, and that hartely, to fede hym, to cherysh hym, to care for hym, and to se that he wante nothyng. And on this behalfe I beseke the (thou that hast the ryches of this worlde, and louest God with thy harte) to lyfte vp thyne eyes, & se how great a multitude of poore people renne thorowe euery towne: haue pytye on thyne owne flesh, helpe them with a good harte, and do with thy counsell all that euer thou cãst, that this vnshamefast beggynge maye be put downe, that these pore folkes may be set to laboure, and that such as are not able to get theyr lyuynge, maye be prouyded for. At the leest thou that art of the counsell with such as are in auctorite, geue them some occasyon to cast theyr heades together, and to make prouysyon for the poore. Put them in remebraunce of those noble rytes in other contrees, that by the auctorite of theyr prynces haue so tychely and wel prouyded for theyr poore people, to the greate shame and dishonestye of vs, yf we lykewyse receauynge the worde of God, shewe not such lyke frutes therof. Wolde God ỳ those men (whose office is to mayntayne the comun welth) were as diligent in this cause as they are in other. Let vs be ware by tymes: for after vnthãkfulnesse ther foloweth euer a plage. The mercyfull hande of God be with vs, and defende vs that we be not partakers therof.

Deu. 6. a Go to now (moost deare reader) and set ỳ downe at the LORDES fete & reade his wordes, and (as * Moses teacheth ỳ Iewes) take thẽ in to thyne hart, and let thy talkynge and cõmunicacyon be of the whan thou sytteste in thyne house, or goest by the waye, whan thou lyest downe, and whã thou rysest vp. And aboue all thynges fal thyron thy lyfe, & cõuersacyon accordyng to the doctryne of the holy goost therin, that thou mayest be partaker of ỳ good promyses of God in ỳ Byble, and be heyre of his blessyng in CHRIST. In whom yf thou put thy trust, & be an vnfayned reader or hearer of his worde with thy harte, thou shalt fynde swetnesse therin, & syye wonderous thynges, to thy vnderstondynge, to the auoydynge of all sedityous sectes, to the abhorrynge of thy olde synfull lyfe, and to the stablyshynge of thy godly cõuersacyon.

In the fyrst boke of Moses (called Genesis) thou mayest learne to knowe the almyghtye power of God in creatynge all of naught, his infynite wysedome in ordrynge the same, his righteousnesse in punishynge the vngodly, his loue and fatherly mercy in conforteynge the righteous with his promes. &c.

In the seconde boke (called Exodus) wese the myghtye arme of God, in delyuerynge his people from so greate bondage out of Egypte, and what prouisyon he maketh for them in the wyldernesse, howe he teacheth them with his wholsome worde and how the Tabernacle was made and set vp.

In the thyrde boke (called Leuiticus) is declared what sacrifyces the prestes and Leuites vsed, and what theyr office and mynistracyon was.

In the fourth boke (called Numerus) is declared how the people are nombred and mustred, how the captaynes are chosen after the trybes and kynreds, how they wente forth to the battayll, how they pitched theyr tentes, and how they brake vp.

The fyfth boke (called Deuteronomion) sheweth how that Moses now beynge olde, rehearseth the law of God vnto the people, putteth them in remembraunce agayne of all the wonders and benefytes that God had shewed for them, and exhorteth them earnestly to loue the LORD theyr God, to cleue vnto him, to put their trust in hym, and to herken vnto his voyce.

After the death of Moses doth Iosue bynge the people in to the londe of promes, where God doth wonderous thynges for his people by Iosue, which distribu teth the londe vnto the, vnto euery tribe theyr possessyon. But in theyr wealth they forgat the goodnes of God so that ofte tymes he gaue them ouer in to the handes of theyr enemyes. Neuertheles whan soeuer they called faythfully vpon hym, and cō uerted, he delyuered them agayne, as the boke of Iudges declareth.

In the bokes of the kynges, is described the regiment of good and euell pryn-ces, and how the decaye of all nacyons cōmeth by euell kynges. For in Ieroboam thou seyst what mischefe, what Idolatrye and such lyke abhominacyon foloweth, whan the kynge is a mayntayner of false doctryne, and causeth the people to synne agaynst God, which fallynge awaye frō Gods worde, increaseth so sore amonge the,
that it was the cause of all theyr sorowe and mysery, & the very occasyon why Israel fyrst and then Iuda, were carped away in to captyuite. Agayne, in Iosaphat, in Ez chias and in Iosias thou seyst the nature of a vertuous kynge. He putteth downe the houses of Idolatrye, seyth that his prestes teach nothynge but the law of God, cōmaundeth his lordes to go with the, and to se that they teach the people. In these kynges (I saye) thou seyst the condicyon of a true defender of the fayth, for he spa- 2. Par. 17 b reth nother cost nor labour, to mayntayne the lawes of God, to seke the weith and prosperite of his people, & to rote out the wycked. And where such a pryncē is, thou seyst agayne, how God defendeth hym and his pepole, though he haue neuer so ma ny enemyes. Thus wente it with them in the olde tyme, and euen after the same ma ner goeth it now vnto vs: God be praysed therfore, and graunte vs of his fatherly mer cy, that we be not vnthākful: lest where he now geueth vs a Iosaphat, an Ezechias, yee a very Iosias, he sende vs a Pharao, a Ieroboam, or an Achab.

In the two fyrst bokes of Esdras & in Hester thou seyst the delyueraunce of the people, which though they were but few, yet is it vnto vs all a specyall comforte, for so much as God is not forgetful of his promes, but bryngeth them out of captyuite accordynge as he had tolde them before.

In the boke of Job we learne comforte and pacyence, in that God not onely pu nysheth the wycked, but proueth and tryeth the iust and righteous (howbeit ther is noman innocēt in his sighte) by dyuerse trouble in this lyfe, declarynge there by, that they are not his bastardes, but his deare sonnes, and that he loueth them.

In the Psalmes we learne how to resorte onely vnto God in all oure troubles, to seke helpe at hym, to cal onely vpon hym, to satisfie oure myndes by pacyence, and how we ought in prosperite to be thankfull vnto hym.

The prouerbes and the Preacher of Salomon teach vs wysedome, to knowe
God, oure owne selues, and the worlde: and howe vayne all thynges are, saue onely to cleue vnto God.

As for the doctryne of the Prophetes, what is it els, but an earnest exhortacyon to eschue synne, and to turne vnto God a faythfull promes of the mercy and pardō of God, vnto all them that turne vnto hym, and a threatenynge of his wrath to the vngodly, saynge that here and there they prophecy also manyfestly of CHRIST, of the expulsyon of the Iewes, and callynge of the Heythen.

Thus much thought I to speake of the olde Testament, wherin almyghty God openeth vnto vs his mightye power, his wysedome, his louynge mercy and righteousnesse: for the which cause it ought of no man to be abhorred, despysed, or lyght ly regarded, as though it were an olde scripture that nothynge belonged vnto vs, or that now were to be refused. For it is Gods true scripture and testimony, which Iob. 5. a the LORD IESVS cōmaūdeth the Iewes to search. Who so euer beleueth not the scrip ture, beleueth not CHRIST: and who so refuseth it, refuseth God alsa.

The new Testament or Gospell is a manyfest & clere testimony of CHRIST how God performeth his othe promes made in the olde Testament, how the Olde is de clared and included in the Newe, and the Olde fulfylled and verified in the Newe.

A prologe.

Now where as the mooſt famous interpreters of all geue ſondrye iudgemētes of the texte (for ſo farre as it is done by the ſpirite of knowlege in the holy gooſt) me thynke noman ſhulde be offended therat, for they referre they? doynges in mekenes to the ſpirite of treuth in the congregacyon of God: and ſure I am, that ther cōmeth more knowlege and vnderſtondynge of the ſcrypture by they? ſondrye translacions then by all the gloſes of oure ſophiſticall doctours. For that one interpreteth ſome thynge obſcurely in one place, the ſame translateth another (or els he hymſelfe) more manyfeſtly by a more playne vocable of the ſame meanynge in another place. Be not thou offended therfore (good Reader) though one call a ſcrybe, that another calleth a lawyer: or elders, that another calleth father and mother: or repentaunce, that another calleth penaunce or amendement. For yf thou be not deceaued by mens traditions, thou ſhalt fynde nomore dyuerſite betwene theſe termes, then betwene foure pens and a grote. And this maner haue I vſed in my tranſlacyon, call ynge it in ſome place pennaunce, that in an other place I call repentaunce, and that not onely becauſe the interpreters haue done ſo before me, but that ẏ aduerſaryes of the treuth maye ſe how that we abhorre not this worde pennaunce (as they vntruly report of vs) no more then the interpreters of latyn abhorre pœnitere, whan they reade reſipiſcere. Onely oure hartes deſyre vnto God, is, that his people be not blynded in they? vnderſtōdynge, leſt they beleue pennaunce to be ought ſaue a very repētaunce amendement, or cōuerſyon vnto God, & to be an vnfayned new creature in CHRIST, and to lyue accordynge to his law. For els ſhall they fall in to the olde blaſphemye of CHRISTES bloude, and beleue that they themſelues are able to make ſatiſfaccyon vnto God for they? owne ſynnes, from the whiche errour God of his mercye and plenteous goodnes preſerue all his.

Now the conclude: for ſo much as all the ſcrypture is wrytten for thy doctryne and enſample, it ſhalbe neceſſary for the, to take holde vpon it, whyle it is offred the, pe and with ten hāndes thankfully to receaue it. And though it be not worthely mynyſtred vnto the in this tranſlacyon (by reaſon of my rudnes): yet yf thou be feruent in thy prayer, God ſhall not onely ſende it the in a better ſhape, by the mynyſtration of other that beganne it afore, but ſhall alſo moue the hartes of them, whiche as yet myght not withall, to take it in hande, and to beſtowe the gyfte of they? vnderſtondynge theron, as well in oure language, as other famous interpreters do in other languages. And I praye God, that thorow my poore mynyſtracyon here in, I may geue them that cū vp better, ſome occaſyon ſo to do: exhortyng the (moſt deare reader) in the meane whyle on Gods behalfe, yf thou be a heade, a Iudge, or ruler of ẏ
Ioſu.1.a people, that thou * let not the boke of this lawe departe out thy mouth, but exerciſe thy ſelfe therin both daye and nyght, and be euer readynge in it as longe as thou

Tit.1.b and feede CHRISTES ſhepe with a good harte, and ſpare no labour to do them good,
1.Pet.5.a ſeke not thyſelfe, and beware of fylthy lucre, but * be vnto the flocke an enſample, in
1.Tim.4.a the worde, in conuerſacyon, in loue, in feruentnes of the ſpirite, and be euer readynge,
Tit.2.a exhortynge, and teachynge in Gods worde, that the people of God runne not vnto other doctrynes & leſt thou thy ſelfe (ẏ thou ſhuldeſt teache other) be founde ignorant therin. And rather then thou woldeſt teach the people ony other thynge then Gods worde, take the boke in thyne hande, & reade the wordes euen as they ſtonde therin (for it is no ſhame ſo to do, it is more ſhame to make a lye). This I ſaye for ſuch, as are not yet experte in the ſcrypture, for I reproue no preachynge without the boke as longe as they ſaye the truerly.

To the reader.

yf thou be a man that hast wyfe and chyldren, fyrst loue thy wyfe, accordyng to the ensāple of the loue * wherwith CHRIST loued the cōgregacyon, and remembre that so doynge, thou louest euen thy selfe: yf thou hate her, thou hatest thyne owne flesh: yf thou cherysh her and make much of her, thou cherysshest & makest muche of thy selfe, for she is bone of thy bones, and flesh of thy flesh. And who so euer thou be that hast chyldrē, *bringe them vp in the nurtoure and informacyon of the LORDE. Ephe.6.a And yf thou be ignoraunt, or art otherwyse occupyed laufully, that thou canst not teache them thy selfe, then be euen as diligent to seke a good maister for thy chyldrē, as thou wast to seke a mother to beare them: for there lyeth as greate weyght in ỹ one as in the other, yee better it were for them to be vnborne, then not to feare God, or to be euell brought vp. Which thynge (I meane bryngynge vp well of chyldren) yf it be diligently loked to, it is the vpholdynge of all comun weithes: and the negligence of the same, the very decaye of all realmes.

Fynally, who so euer thou be, take these wordes of scrypture in to thy hart, and be not onely an outwarde hearer, but a doer therafter, and practyse thyselfe therin: that thou mayest fele in thyne hart, the swete promples therof for thy cōsolacyon in all trouble, & for the sure stablyshynge of thy hope in CHRIST & haue euer an eye to ỹ wordes of scrypture, that yf thou be a teacher of other thou mayest be within the boundes of the treuth, or at the leest though thou be but an hearer or reader of another mans doynges, thou mayest yet haue knowlege to iudge al spretes, and be fre from euery errour, to the vtter destruccyon of all sedicyous sectes and straunge doctrynes, that the holye scrypture maye haue fre passage, and be had in reputacyon, to the worshyppe of the auctor therof, which is euen God hymselfe: to whome for his mooste blessed worde be glorye and dominyon now and euer Amē.

IN þ̄ begynnynge God ✱ created heauen and earth, & the earth was voyde and emptye, & darckenes was vpon the depe, & the spyrite of God moued vpon the water.

And God sayde, ✱ let there be lighte, & there was light. And God sawe þ̄ light that it was good. Then God deuyded the light from the darckenes, & called the light, Daye And the darckenes, Night. Then of the euenynge & mornynge was made þ̄ fyrst daye.

And God sayde: let there be a fyrmament betwene the waters, & let it deuyde the waters asunder. Then God made the fyrmament & parted the waters vnder the fyrmament from the waters aboue fyrmament And so it came to passe, and God called the fyrmament heauen. Then of the euenynge & mornynge was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde, ✱ let the waters vnder heauen gather them selues vnto one place, that the drye londe maye appeare. And so it came to passe. And God called þ̄ drye londe Earth, and the gatheringe to gether of waters called he, the Sea: and God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let þ̄ earth bringe forth grene grasse and herbe, that beareth sede, & fruitfull trees, that maye beare fruite, euery one after his kynde, hauynge theyr sede in the selues vpon the earth. And so it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene grasse & herbe, that beareth sede euerpane after his kynde, and trees beringe fruite, & hauynge theyr sede in the selues, euery one after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the euenynge & mornynge was made the thyrde daye.

These are the generacyons of heauen & earth whan they were created, in the tyme whā the LORDE God made heauen & earth: before there was ony twygge vpon earth. and or euer ther grewe ony grene herbe vpon the felde. For the LORDE God had yet sent no rayne vpon the earth, nother was there ony man to tylle the earth. But there 6 arose a myst from the earth, and watred all the lōde. * And ỳ LORD God dyd shape mā
Sap.15.b euē of the moulde of the earth, and brethed
Tob.8.b in to his face the breth of lyfe. And so was man made a lyuynge soule.

The LORDE God also planted a garden of pleasure in Eden, to warde the east, & set man therin whom he had made. And the LORDE God caused to spring out of ỳ earth all maner trees, pleasant to loke vpon, and good to eate: and the * tree of lyfe in the mydest of the garden, and the tre of knowlege of good and euell.

And out of Eden there went a ryuer, to water the garden, and there deuyded it selfe in to foure heade waters. * The fyrst is cal- and led Phison, which renneth about al ỳ londe of Heuyla. And there is founde golde. (and the golde of that countre is precious) & ther is foūde Bedellyon, and the precyous stone Onix. The seconde water is called Gyhon. C which runneth aboute ỳ whole londe of the Moryans. The thyrd water is called Hyddekel. which rūneth toward ỳ east syde of the Assyriās. The fourth water is Euphrates.

And the LORDE God toke man, and set hym in the pleasaunt garden of Eden, to dresse it and to kepe it. * And the LORDE God
God commaunded man, sayenge: Thou shalt eate of all maner trees in the garden: But of the tre of knowlege of good and euell, shalte thou not eate. For loke in

And the LORDE God sayde: It is not good that mā shulde be alone. I will make hym an helpe, & to beare hym company. And whan God the LORDE had made of ꝑ earth all maner beastes of the felde, and all maner foules vnder the heaue, he brought them vnto man, to se what he wold call them. For as mā called all maner of lyuynge soules, so are theyr names. And man gaue names vnto al maner cattel, and vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and vnto all maner beastes of ꝑ felde. But vnto man there was founde no helpe, to beare hym company.

Then the LORDE God caused an harde slepe to fal vpō mā, & he slepte. And he tooke out one of his ribbes, & (in steade therof) fylled ꝑ place vp wt flesh. And * the LORDE God made a woman, of ꝑ ribbe that he toke out of man, & brought her vnto hym. Then sayd man: This is once bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh, she shalbe called woman because she was taken of man. * For this cause shall a man leaue father and mother and cleaue vnto his wyfe, and they two shalbe one flesh. And they were both naked, the man and his wyfe, & were not ashamed.

The.iij. Chapter.

But the * serpent was subtiller then all the beastes of the felde (which the LORDE God had made) and sayde vnto the woman: Ye, hath God sayd in very ꝑ shall not eate of all maner trees in ꝑ garden? Then sayde the woman vnto ꝑ serpēt: We eate of the frute of the trees in the garden: But as for the frute of the tree ꝑ is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: Eate not ye of it, and touche it not, lest ye dye.

Then sayde the serpent vnto the woman: * Tush, ye shall not dye the death. For God doth knowe, that in what day soever ye eate of it, youre eyes shalbe opened, & shalbe as God, and knowe both good and euell. And the woman sawe that the tree was good to eate of, and lusty vnto the eyes, and a pleasaunt tree, & to make wyse, and toke of the frute of it, and ate, and gaue vnto hyr husbande also therof, and he ate. * The were eyes of the both opened, & they perceaued that they were naked, and so wed sowed fygge leaues together, and made them aprons.

And they herde the voyce of the LORDE God, which walked in ꝑ garden in the coole of ꝑ daye. And Adā hyd hym selfe with his wyfe, frō the presence of the LORDE God amonge the trees of ꝑ garden. And ꝑ LORDE God called Adā, and sayd vnto hym: Where art thou? And he sayde: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was afrayed, because I am naked, and therfor I hyd my selfe. And he sayd: Who tolde the, that thou art naked? Hast thou not eaten of the tree, wherof I commaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate?

Then sayde Adā: The woman which thou gauest me (to beare me company) gaue me of the tree, & I ate. And the LORDE God sayde vnto the woman: Wherefor hast thou done this? The woman sayde: * The serpent deceaued me so, that I ate. Then sayd the LORDE God vnto ꝑ serpēt: Because thou hast done this, cursed be thou above al cattel, & above all beastes of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & earth shalt thou eate all ꝑ dayes of thy life. And I will put enemyte betwene the and the woman, * and betwene thy seed & hyr seede. & The same shall treade downe thy heade, and thou shalte treade hym on the hele.

And vnto the woman he sayde: I will encrease thy sorowe, whē thou art with childe with payne shalt thou beare thy children, & thy lust shall pertayne vnto thy husbande and he shall rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayde: For as much as thou hast harkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe and hast eaten of the tree, of ꝑ I commaunded the, sayenge, Thou shalt not eate of it. Cursed be the earth for thy sake. With sorowe shalt thou eate of it ye shall not eate of it, neither shall ye touche it, lest ye dye.

And Adā called his wyfe Heua, because she is the mother of all lyuynge. And the LORDE God made Adam and his wyfe gar mentes of skynnes, and dyd put on the. And the LORD God sayde: Adam is become as it were one of vs, and knoweth good & euel. But now lest he stretch his hande and take also of the tre of lyfe, and eat, and lyue for euer. The the LORDE God put hym out of the garde of Eden, to tyll the earth, where he was taken. And he cast Adam out. And before the garden of Eden he set Cherubes and a naked fyre sweard, to kepe the waye vnto the tre of lyfe.

The.iiij.Chapter.

And Adam lay with Heua his wyfe, whiche cōceaued and bare Cain, and sayde I haue optayned the * man of the LORDE. And she proceaded forth, & bare his brother Abell. And Abell became a shepeherd, but Cain became an husbandma.

And it fortuned after certayne dayes, that Cain brought of the frute of the earth, an offeryng vnto the LORDE. And Abell brought also of the fyrstlynges of his shepe and of the fat of them. * And the LORDE had respecte vnto Abel and to his offeryng: But vnto Cain and his offeryng he loked not. The was Cain exceadyngly wroth, and his countenaunce chaunged. And the LORD sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou angrye & why doth thy countenaunce chaunge? Is it not so? that yf thou do well, thou shalt receaue it, but and yf thou do euell, thy synne lyeth open in the dore? & Shall he the be subdued vnto the? and wilt thou rule hime And Cain talked with Abell his brother.

And it happened, that whan they were in the felde, * Cain arose agaynste Abell his brother, and slewe hym. Then the LORDE sayde vnto Cain: Where is Abell thy brother? He sayde: I can not tell. Am I my brothers keper? And he sayde: What haste thou done? * The voyce of thy brothers bloud cryeth vnto me out of the earth. And now shalt thou be cursed vpon the earth, which hath opened hyr mouth, & receaued thy brothers bloude of thyne hande. Whan thou tyllest the grounde, she shall henceforth not geue hyr power vnto the. * A vagabūde and a renagate shalt thou be vpon the earth. And Cain sayde vnto the LORDE: * my synne is greater, then that it maye be forgeue me. Beholde, thou castest me out this daye frō out of the londe, and from thy sight must I hyde my selfe, and muste be a vagabunde & a renagate vpon the earth and thus shal it go with me: that who so fyndeth me, shall laye me.

But the LORDE sayde thus vnto hym: * Whoso slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged seuētolde. And the LORDE dyd put a marke vpō Cain, that noman which founde hym, shulde kyll hym. So Cain wente out from the face of the LORDE and dwelt in the lōde Nod, vpon the East syde of Eden.

And Cain laye with his wyfe, which cōceaued and bare Henoch. And he buylded a cyte, and called it after the name of his sōne Henoch. And Henoch begat Irad, Irad begat Mahuiael, Mahuiael begat, Mathusael, Mathusael begat Lamech.

And Lamech toke hym two wyues: the one was called Ada, and the other Silla. And Ada bare Jabell, of whome came they that dwelt in tētes and had cattel. And his brothers name was Juball: Of hym came they that occupie harpes and pypes. And Silla she also bare Tubalcain, a worker in all cōnynge poynt of metall & yron. And Tubalcains sister was called Naema.

And Lamech sayd vnto his wyues Ada & Silla: Heare my voyce (ye wyues of Lamech) & herke vnto my wordes: for I haue slayne a mā, and wounded my selfe: (& haue kylled) a ponge man, and gotten my selfe strypes. Cain shalbe auenged seuen tymes: but Lamech seuen and seuentie tymes.

And Adā lay yet wt his wife agayn, and she bare a sonne, and called hym Seth. For God (sayd she) hath appoynted me another sede for Abell, whō Cain slewe. And Seth begat a sonne also, and called hym Enos. At the same tyme beganne men to call vpō

the name of the LORDE.

The.v.Chapter.

A This is the boke of the generacyon of man, in the tyme whā God created man, & made hym after ꝯ similitude of God. Male and female made he the, and blessed them, and called theyr names Man in the tyme whan they were created. * And Adam was an hundreth and thirtye yeare olde and begat a sonne, which was like his owne ymage, and called his name Seth: and lyued therafter eyght hundreth yeare, and begat sonnes and doughters. C Jared was an hundreth & two and fyftye yeare olde, and begat Henoch: & lyued there after eyght hundreth yeare, and begat sonnes & doughters. And his whole age was nyene hundreth and two and syxtie yeare, and so he dyed.

Ecc.44.b Heb.11.a * Henoch was fyue and thre score yeare olde, and begat Mathusalah: & led a godly conuersacyon thre hundreth yeares therafter, and begat sonnes and doughters. And his whole age was thre hundreth and fyue and thre score yeares. * And for so much as he lyued a godly lyfe, God toke hym away, and he was nomore sene. Heb.11.b 4.Re.2.a

Mathusalah was an hundreth and seuē and foure score yeare olde, & begat Lameth and lyued therafter seuen hūdreth and two and foure score yeare, and begat sōnes and doughters. And his whole age was nyene hundreth and nyene and tre score yeares, and so he dyed.

Lameth was an hundreth and two and foure score yeare olde, and begat a sonne, & called him Noe, and sayde: This same shal conforte vs in oure workes, & in the sorowe of oure hondes vpon the earth * which the LORD hath cursed. After this he lyued fyue hundreth and fyue and nyentye yeare, and begat sōnes and doughters. And his whole age was seuen hundreth and seuentye yeares, and so he dyed. Gen. 3.b

Noe was fyue hundreth yeare olde, and begat Sem, Ham, and Japhet.

The.vi. Chapter.

SO whan men beganne to multiplye vpon the earth, and had begotte them sonnes & doughters, the thylderen of God sawe the doughters of me, that they were fayre, and toke vnto them wyues such as they lyked. Then sayde the LORDE: My spyrte shal not alwaye stryue with man, for he is but fleshe also. * I wyll yet geue hym respyte an hundreth and twentye yeares. A
1.Pet.3.b
There were giaūtes also in the worlde at that tyme. For whan the chylderen of God had lyen with the doughters of me, and begotten them chylderē, the same (chylderen) became myghtie in the worlde, and men of renowme. B

But whan the LORDE sawe that the wickednes of mā was increased vpō the earth, and that all the thought and ymaginacyon of theyr harte was but onely euell contynually, * it repented hym that he had made mā vpon the earth, and he sorowed in his hart, and sayd: I wyll destroye mākynde whom I haue made, frō the earth: both man, beest, worme, and foule vnder the heauen: * for it repenteth me that I haue made them. Neuertheles Noe founde grace in the sight of the LORDE. Gen.4.a Eccl.45.a

C This is the generacyon of Noe. * Noe was a righteous and perfect man, and led a godly lyfe in his tyme, and begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, and Japhet. Nowe the whole worlde was corrupte in the syghte of God, and full of vnfeithefe. Then loked God vpon the earth: and lo, it was corrupte (for all fleshe had corrupte his wayes vpon the earth). Gen.6.a

Then sayde God vnto Noe: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is full of mysches before them. And lo, I wyll destroye them with ye earth. Make the an Arke of Pyne tre, and make chābers in it, & pitche it within & without with pitche, & make it after this fashō: The length shal be thre hundreth cubites, the breth fyfty cubites, and the heyght thyrty cubites. A wyndowe shalt thou make aboue a cubite great but ye doze shalt thou set in the myddest inȳ syde of it: And ye Arke shalt thou make with thre loftes one aboue another. For lo, I wil bryngе a floude of water upō the earth, to destroye all flesche (wherin ye breth of life is) vnder the heauen: All that is vpon earth, shall perysshe.

D But with the wyll I make a cōuenaunt & thou shalt go in to the Arcke with thy sonnes, with thy wyfe, and with thy sonnes wyues. And of all creatures what soeuer flesh it be, thou shalt bryngе in to ye Arcke, euen a payre: the male & the female, that they may lyue with the: Of foules after theyr kynde, of beastes after theyr kynde, and of all maner of wormes of ye earth after theyr kynde Of euery one of these shall there a payre go in vnto the, that they maye lyue. And thou shalt take vnto the all maner of meate that may be eaten, and shalt laye it up in store by the, that it maye be meate for the & them. And Noe dyd accordyng to all that God cōmaunded hym.

The.vij.Chapter.

I 2.Pet.2.b And the LORDE sayde vnto Noe * Go in to the Arcke, thou and thy whole house: for the haue I sene righteous before me at this tyme. * Of all cleane beastes take vnto the seuen and seuen, the male & his female. And of the vncleane beastes a payre the male and his female. Lyke wyse of foules vnder the heauen, seuen and seuen, the male and his female, that ther maye be sede left alyue vpon the whole earth. Leuit.11.a

For yet after seuen dayes wyll I sende rayne upō the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes, and I wyll destroye all maner of thynges that I haue made, from of the face of the earth.

And Noe dyd all that the LORDE commaunded hym. B Sixe hundreth yeare olde was he, whan the waterfloude came vpon the earth. * And he went in to the Arcke with his sonnes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues for the waters of the floude. Of cleane beastes and of vncleane, of all fethered foules, and of all that crepeth vpon earth, went in vnto hym to the Arke by pares, a male and a female, as the LORD cōmaūded hym. And whan the seuen dayes were past, the waterfloude came vpon the earth. mat.24.b Luc.17.d

In the sixe hundreth yeare of Noes age, vpon the seuententh daye of the seconde moneth the same daye were al the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened, and there came a rayne vpon the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes.

Upon the selfe same daye wente Noe in to the Arke with Sem, Ham, and Japhet C his sonnes, & with his wyfe, & ye thre wyues of his sonnes, and al maner of beastes after theyr kynde, all maner of cattell after theyr kynde, all maner of creppynge thynges (that crepe vpon the earth) after theyr kynde, and al maner of foules (what so euer coulde flye & what so euer had fethers) after theyr kynde. These wente all vnto Noe in to the Arke by couples, of all flesche in whome was the breth of lyfe. And these were the male & the female of all maner of flesche, & wente in accordinge as God cōmaunded hym. And the LORDE shut (the doze) vpon hym.

* The came the water floud fortye dayes D vpon the earth, and the water increased and Gen.7.b bare vp the Ark, & lyfte it vp ouer the earth Thus the water preuayled, & increased sore vpon the earth, so that the Ark wente vpon the waters. yee the waters preuayled and increased so sore vpon earth, that all the hye mountaynes vnder the whole heauen were couered. Fyftene cubytes hye preuayled the waters ouer the mountaynes, which were couered.

Then all flesh that crept vpon earth perysshed, both foules, cattel, beastes, & al that moued vpon earth, & all men. What so euer had the breth of lyfe vpō ye drye londe, dyed.

* Thus was destroyed all that was vpō Deu.32.b earth, both man & beast, both wormes and foules vnder the heauen: all these were destroyed from the earth. Saue Noe onely remayned, & they that wer wt hym in the Arke Gen.1.b

And the waters preuayled vpon the earth, an hundreth and fyftye dayes.

The.viii.Chapter.

A THen God remembred Noe and all the beastes and al the cattel that were with hym in the Arke & caused a wynde to come vpon the earth: & the waters ceassed, and the fountaynes of the depe & the wyndowes of heauen were stopte, and the rayne of heauen was forbydden, & the waters ranne styl awaye from the earth, and decreased after an hundred and fyftye dayes.

Upon the seuententh daye of the seuenth moneth rested the Arke vpon ꝑ mountaynes of Ararat. And the waters wente awaye & decreased vntyl the tenth moneth: for ꝑ first daye of the tenth moneth, the toppes of the mountaynes appeared.

After foretye dayes Noe opened the wyndowes of the Arke which he hadde made, & sent forth a raué, which flewe out, & came agayne, vntyl the waters were dryed vpon the earth.

Deum tradentem non agayn

B Then sent he forth a doue from hym to wete, whether the waters were falleu vpon the earth. But when the doue coulde fynde no restynge place for hyr fete, she came agayne vnto hym into ꝑ Arke, for the waters were yet vpon the face of all the earth. And he put out his hãde, and toke her to hym into the Arke.

Then abode he yet seuen dayes mo, and sent out the doue agayne out of the Arke: & she returned vnto hym about the euentyde: And beholde, she had broke of a leafe of an olyue tre, and bare it in hyr nebbe. Thẽ perceaued Noe, ꝑ the waters were abated vpõ the earth. Neuertheles he taried yet seuen other dayes, and sent forth the doue, which came nomore to hym agayne.

In the sixte hundreth and one yeare of Noes age, vpõ the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth, the waters were dryed vp vpõ ꝑ earth Then Noe toke of the hatches of the Arke, & sawe that the face of the earth was drye. So vpon the seuẽ & twentyeth daye of ꝑ seconde moneth the whole earth was drye.

C Then spake God vnto Noe & sayde. Go out of the Arke, thou & thy wyfe & thy sõnes, & thy sõnes wyues with ꝑ. As for al ꝑ beastes that are ẽ the, what so euer fleshe it be (both foule and cattell and all maner of wormes that crepe vpon earth) let them go out with the, & be ye occupied vpon the earth, * grow and multiplye vpon the earth. Gen.1.b

So Noe wente out, with his sonnes & with his wife, and with his sonnes wyues. And the beastes also & all ꝑ wormes, & the foules, & all ꝑ crepte vpon the earth, wente out of the Arke, euery one vnto hys lyke.

And Noe buylded an altare vnto ꝑ LORD D and toke of al maner of * cleane beastes and Leuit. 11.
of all maner of cleane foules, & offred burent sacrifices vpon the altare. And the LORDE smelled the swete sauour, & sayd in his hart: I will hence forthe curse the earth nomore for mans sake, * for ꝑ ymaginacyon of mãs Pro. 22.b

The.ix.Chapter.

A ND God blessed Noe and his sonnes, & sayde vnto hym. Increase and multiplye, & fyll the earth: the feare also and drede of you be vpon al beastes of the earth: vpon all foules vnder the heaue, and vpõ all that crepeth on the earth, & al fyshes of the see be geuen in to youre handes. * All Gen.1.b

And God ſayde. This is the token of my couenaunt which I haue made betwene me and you, and all lyuynge creatures amõge you for euermore. My bowe wyll I ſet in the cloudes, and it ſhalbe the token of my cõuenaunt betwene me and the earth: ſo that whan I bringe cloudes vpon the earth, the bowe ſhall appeare in the cloudes: and then wyll I thynke vpon my cõuenaunt betwixte me and you & all lyuing creatures in all maner of fleſh, ſo that from hence forthe there

Therfore ſhall my bowe be in the cloudes, that I maye loke vpon it & remembre the euerlaſtyng cõuenaũt, betwixte God and al lyuynge creatures in all fleſh ẏ is vpõ earth. God ſayd alſo vnto Noe: This is the token of the cõuenaunt, which I haue made betwene me and all fleſh vpon earth.

The ſonnes of Noe which wente out of the Arke, are theſe. Sem, Ham, & Japhet. Is for Ham, he is ẏ father of Canaan. These are Noes thre ſonnes, of whom al londes were ouerſpred.

Soo whan Noe awaked from his wyne, and perceaued what his yonger ſonne had done vnto him: he ſayd, Curſed be Canaan, and a ſeruaũt of ſeruauntes be he vnto his brethren. He ſayd moreouer. Prayſed be the LORDE God of Sem, and Canaan be his ſeruaunt. God increaſe Japhet, and let hym dwel in the tentes of Sem, & Canaan be his ſeruaunt.

And Noe lyued after the floude thre hundreth and fyfty yeare, ſo that his whole age was .ix. hundreth and fyfty yeare, and ſo he dyed.

The. x. Chapter.

THis is the generacyon of ẏ chyldren of Noe. Sem, Ham & Japhet: and they begat chyldre after the floude.

* The chyldren of Japhet 1.par.1.a are theſe. Gomer, Magog, Madai, Jauan, Tubal, Meſech and Thyras. The chyldren of Gomer are theſe. Aſcenas, Riphat & Togarma. The chyldre of Jauan are theſe. Eliſa, Tharſis, Cithim and Dodanim: of theſe are deuyded the Iles of the Heythē in the contre, euery one after his ſpeach, kynred and people.

The chyldren of Ham are theſe: Chus, B Miſraim, Phut and Canaan. The chyldre of Chus are theſe: Seba, Heuila, Sabtha, Regma and Sabtheca.

The chyldren of Regma are theſe: Sheba and Dedam. Chus alſo begat Nemrod, which beganne to be myghtye in the earth, and was a myghtye hunter in the ſight of ẏ LORDE. Ther of cõmeth the prouerbe. This is a myghtye hunter before the LORDE lyke as Nemrod. And the ordenall of his kyngdome was * Babell, Erech, Acad and Chalme in ẏ londe of Synear. Out of that londe came Aſſur and buylded Ninive, & the ſtretes of ẏ cyte, and Calah, & Reſſen betwene Ninive and Calah. * This is a great cyte. Gen.11.a Miſraim begat Ludim, Enamim, Leabim Napthuim, Patruſim and Caſluhim, from whence came the Philiſtynes and Captorim. Canaan alſo begat Sidon his eldeſt ſonne, and Heth, Jebuſi, Emori, Girgoſi, C Hiui, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, Semari and Hamatt. from whence the kynredes of the Canaanites are diſperſed abrode. And the coaſtes of ẏ Canaanites were frõ Sidon forth thorowe Gerar vnto Gaſa, tyll thou cõmeſt vnto Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, Sebo-im, and vnto Laſa. These are the chyldren of Ham in theyr kynredes, tunges, londes, and people. And Sem which is the father of all the chyldre of Eber, and the elder brother of Japhet, begat chyldren alſo. And theſe are his chyldre: Elam, Aſſur, Arphachlad, Lud, & Aram. The chyldre of Aram are these: Uz, Hull, Geth and Mas.

D And Arphachsad begat Sala, and Sa la begat Eber. Eber begat two sonnes: the name of the one was Peleg, because that in his tyme the worlde was deuyded, and his brothers name was Jaketan. And Jaketā begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmaphet, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Dicla, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Heula and Jobab: All these are the children of Jaketan. And their dwellynge was from Mesa, tyll thou come vnto Sephar a mountayne of ỹ east. These are the children of Sem in their generacyons, tunges, londes and people.

This is now the generacyon of the children of Noe in their kynredes and people. Of these were the people vpon earth spred abrode after the floude.

The.xi. Chapter.

A Some brether from the East.

MOreouer al the worlde had one tunge and langage. Now as they went ☞ towarde the east, they founde a plaine in ỹ londe of Synear, & there they dwelt, and sayd one to another: Come on, let vs make brycke and burne it. And they toke brycke for stone, & slyme for mortar, & sayd: Come, let vs buylde a cyte & a tower, whose toppe may reache vnto heauen, ỹ we may make vs a name, afore we be scatred abrod in al londes. Then came the LORDE downe to se the cyte & tower, ỹ the children of men had buylded. And the LORDE sayd: Behold the people is one, and haue one maner of language amōge them all, and this haue they begonne to do, and wyll not leaue of frō all B ỹ they haue purposed to do: Come on, Let vs go downe, and cōfounde their tunge euen there, that one vnderstonde not what a Deut.32.a nother sayeth. * Thus the LORDE scatred them from thence in all londes, so that they lefte of to buylde the cyte. Therfore is it called Babell, because the LORDE confounded there the language of al the worlde, & from thence scatred them abrode in to all londes

1.Par.1.b * These are the generacyons of Sem. Sem was an hundreth yeare olde, & begat Arphachsad two yeare after the floude, and lyued therafter fyue hundreth yeare, and begat sonnes and doughters.

Arphachsad was fyue and thirty yeare olde, and begat Salah, and lyued therafter foure hūdreth and three yeare and begat sonnes and doughters.

C Salah was thirty yeare olde, and begat Eber, and lyued therafter foure hundreth & three yeare, & begat sōnes and doughters.

Eber was foure and thirtie yeare olde & begat Peleg, and lyued therafter foure hūdreth and thirtye yeare, and begat sonnes and doughters.

Peleg was thirty yeare olde, and begat Regu, and lyued therafter two hundreth & nyene yeare, and begat sōnes & doughters.

Regu was two and thirtye yeare olde, and begat Serug, and lyued therafter two hundreth and seuē yeare, and begat sonnes and doughters.

Serug was thirtie yeare olde, & begat Nahor, and lyued therafter two hundreth yeare and begat sonnes and doughters.

Nahor was nyene & twentye yeare olde and begat Tharach, and lyued therafter an hūdreth and nyentene yeare and begat, sonnes and doughters.

Tharach was seuentye yeare olde, and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. D

These are the generacyons of Tharach * Tharach begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. And Haran begat Lot, but Harā dyed before Tharach his father in ỹ londe wher he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. Josu.24.d 1.Par.1.b

Then Abram and Nahor toke them wyues. Abrams wyfe was called * Sarai, & Nahors wyfe * Milca the doughter of Haran which was father of Milca and Isca. But Sarai was baren, and had no childe. Gene.20.b & Gen.22b

* Then toke Tharach Abram his sonne and Lot his sonne Harās sonne, & Sarai his doughter in lawe, his sonne Abrams wyfe and caried them with him from Ur in Chaldea, to go in to the londe of Canaan. And they came to Haran, and dwelt there. And Tharach was two hundreth and fyue yeare olde, and dyed in Haran. Josu.24.a 4.Esr.9.b Judi.5.b

The.xii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayde vnto Abram: * Get the out of thy cōtre, and from thy kynred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a londe whithe I wyll shewe the. And I wyll make of the a myghtye people and wyll blesse the, and make the a great name, yee thou shalt be a very blessynge. Act.7.c

* I wyll blesse them that blesse the, & curse them that curse the, and in the shal al the generacyons of the earth be blessed. Gen.17.b & Ge.18.c Gen.22d Gen.28.b

Then went Abram out as the LORDE commaunded him, and Lot went with him. Fyue and seuenty yeare olde was Abram, whan he went out of Haran. So Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, and Lot his brothers

some with al their goodes which they had

Then brake he vp frõ thence, vnto a moū-

Bethel on the west syde, and Ay on the east to the LORDE and called vpon the name of the LORDE. Afterwarde departed Abrã far ther and toke his iourney southward. But C there came a derth in the londe.

Then wente Abram downe in to Egipt to kepe hym selfe there as a straunger, for the derth was sore in the londe. And whã he Gen.20.d and.26.a was come nye for to entre in to Egipte, he sayd vnto Sarai his wyfe: *Beholde, I knowe that thou art a fayre womã to loke wyll saye: She is his wyfe, and so shall they slaye me, and saue the alyue. Therfore (I praye ꝑ) say thou art my syster, that I may fare the better by reason of the, and that my soule may lyue for thy sake.

Now whan he came in to Egipte, ꝑ Egip-cyans sawe the woman, ꝑ she was very fayre: and Pharaos prynces sawe her also,
and praysed her before hym. Then was she brought in to Pharaos house, and Abram was well intreated for hyr sake: and he had shepe, oxen, and he Asses, seruauntes, may-dens, she Asses and Camels.

Esa.43.a *But the LORDE plaged Pharao & his house with great plages, because of Sarai Abrams wyfe. Thẽ Pharao called Abram vnto hym, and sayd: Why hast thou dealte thus with me? Wherfore toldest thou not me at the fyrst, that she was thy wyfe? Why saydest thou then, that she was thy syster?
wherfore I toke her to my wyfe. And now lo, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye. He gaue his officers also a charge auer hym, to cõueye hym out, and his wyfe
and all that he had.

The.xiij. Chapter.

SO Abram departed out of E- A gipte, with his wyfe, and with all that he had, & Lot with hym also, towarde the south. Abram was very ryche in cattel, syluer and golde. And he went on forth from the south vnto Bethel, vnto ꝑ place where his tente was at the fyrst, betwene Bethel & Ay
euen vnto ꝑ place *where he had made the Gen.12.b
auiter before, and where he called vpon the name of the LORDE. Lot also which wente with him, had shepe, great cattel and tentes
so that ꝑ londe was not able to receaue thẽ, that they myght dwell together: *for ꝑ sub Gen.36.a staunce of they r ryches was so great, ꝑ they coulde not dwell together. And there fell a stryfe betwene the hyrdmen of Abrams cat

Cananites also and the Pherezites dweite

Then sayd Abram vnto Lot: O let ther B

Or yf thou wylt go to the ryghte hande, I

& behelde all the countre roũde about Jor-

*Then Lot chose all the coastes of Jor- C Gen.13.d

And so the one brother departed from the o

And Lot in the cytes of the same coastes, & Gen.19.a pitched his tente towarde Sodome. *But the men of Sodome were wicked, and syn-

Now whan Lot was departed from Abram, the LORDE sayd vnto Abram: Lyft D vp thyne eyes, and loke frõ the place where Gen.28.a thou dwellest, northward, southward, east-

*So Abram remoued his tent, & wente Gen.18.a and dwelt in ꝑ Okegrone of Mãre, which is in Ebron, and buylded ther an auiter vn

The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶ AND it chaunced in the tyme of Amraphell the kinge of Shinear, Arioch the kinge of Ellasar Kedorlaomer the kinge of Elã and Tydeall the kynge of the Heythẽ, That they made warre with Bera the kynge of Sodome, and with Birsa the kynge of Gomorra, and with Sineab the kynge of Adama, and with Semeaber the kynge of Seboim, and with the kynge of Bela, whiche is called Soar. These came all together in to the brode valley, where now the salt see is, fortene yeares were they subiectes vnto kynge Kedorlaomer, and in the thirtẽth yeare they fell from hym. Therfore in the fourtenth yeare came Kedorlaomer, and the kynges that were with hym, & smote the Giauntes in Astaroth Karnaim, and Susim at Ham, and Emim in the felde of Kiriathaim, & the Horites in theyr owne mounte Seir vnto the playne of Pharan, which bordreth vpon the wylderneſſe. And thẽ they turned, and came to ỹ well of iudgment (whiche is Cades) and smote all the countre of the Amalechites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazezon Thamar.

B Then wẽte out the kynge of Sodome, and the kynge of Gomorra, and the kynge of Adama, and the kynge of Seboim, and the kynge of Bela (called Soar) and prepared them selues to fight in the brode valeye with Kedorlaomer the kynge of Elam and with Tideal the kynge of the Heythẽ and with Amraphell the kynge of Shinear, and with Arioch the kyng of Ellasar: foure kynges with fyue, & that brode valley had many fyne pyttes. But the kynge of Sodoma and Gomorra were put to flyght, & fell there, and the residue fled vnto the mountaynes. Thẽ toke they al the goodes of Sodoma and Gomorra, and al theyr vitayles and went theyr waye. They toke Lot also Abrams brothers sonne, and his goodes (for he dwelt at Sodome) and departed.

C Then came there one that was escaped and tolde Abrã the Aleaunt * which dwelt in ỹ Okegroue of Mãre ỹ Amorite, which was ỹ brother of Escoll and Aner for these were confederate with Abram. Gene.13.b

And praysed be God the Hyeste, which hath delyuered thyne enemyes in to thy handes. And Abram gaue hym tythes of all. Heb.7.b

Then sayd the kynge of Sodome vnto Abram: Geue me the soules, and take the goodes vnto thy selfe. But Abram sayd vnto ỹ kynge of Sodome: I lyft vp my hãde vnto the LORDE the moost hye God, possessor of heauen and earth: that I wyll not take of al that is thyne, so much as a threde or a shue lacheth, lest thou shuldest saye: I haue made Abram ryche: Saue onely that which the ponge men haue spent: and ỹ mẽ Aner, Escoll, and Manre, that wente with me let them take theyr parte.

¶ IT happened after these actes, that the worde of the LORDE came vnto Abram in a vysion and sayde: Feare not Abram, I am thy shylde and thy exceadynge greate rewarde. But Abram sayde: LORDE LORDE, what wylt thou geue me? I go childlesse, & the seruaunt of my house (this Eleasar of Damascos) hath a sonne. Sarai Abrams wife bare him no
Esa.66.b & Gen.30.a chyldren, but she had an handmayden an Egipcyan, whose name was Agar, and sayde vnto Abram: Behold: * the LORD hath closed me, that I can not beare. & Go in (I praye the) vnto my mayde: peradventure I shal be multiplyed by her more than by my selfe. And Abram herkened vnto the voyce of Sarai. Then Sarai Abrās wyfe toke Agar her mayde the Egipcyan (after they had dwelt ten yeare in the londe of Canaan) and gaue her vnto her husbande Abram, to be his wyfe. And he wente in vnto Agar. And she conceaued. Now whan she sawe that she had conceaued, she despysed her maystres.

Thē sayde Sarai vnto Abram: I muste suffre wrōg for thy sake. I layde my mayde by the: but now because she seyth, that she hath conceaued, I muste be despysed in her sight: the LORDE be iudge betwene me & thee. And Abram sayde vnto Sarai. Behold, thy mayden is vnder thyne auctoryte: do by her as it pleaseth the.

Now whan Sarai dealt hardly with her, she fled from her. But the angell of the LORDE founde her beside a well of waters in the wyldernesse (euen by the well in the waye to Sur) and sayd vnto her: Agar Sarais mayde, where commest thou? and whether wylt thou go? She sayd: I flye fro my maystres Sarai. And the angell of the LORDE sayd vnto her. Returne to thy maystres agayne and submytte thy selfe vnder her hande.

And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Behold, I wyll so increase thy sede, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the angell of the LORDE sayde further vnto her: * Behold, thou art with childe, and shalt bryng forth a sonne, and shalt call his name Ismael, because the LORDE hath herde thy trouble. He shalbe a wylde man. His hande agaynst euery man, and euery mās hande agaynst hym: and he shall dwell ouer agaynst his brethren.

And she called the name of the LORDE that spake vnto her: Thou art the God that seyst me. For she sayde: Of a suertye I haue sene the backe partes of hym that sawe me. Therfore called she the well: The well of

Then sayde ỹ LORDE vnto Abraham: Wherfore doth Sara laugh, and sayeth: Is this true in dede, that I shal beare, and yet am olde? Shulde ony suche thynge be to harde for the LORDE? About this tyme (yf I lyue) I wyll come to the agayne, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, & sayd: I laughed not, for she was a frayed. But he sayd: It is not so, thou dyddest laughe. Then stode the men vp from thence, and turned them toward Sodome: And Abraham wente with them, to bryngе them on theyr waye.

C Then sayd the LORDE: How can I hyd from Abraham, the thynge that I wyl doe? seynge he shalbe a great and myghtye people, & all the people vpon earth shalbe blessed in hym? For I knowe hym, that he wyl commaunde his chyldré and his housholde after hym, to kepe the waye of the LORDE, and to do after ryght and conscience, that ỹ LORDE maye bryngе vpon Abraham what he hath promysed hym. And the men turned theyr face, and wente towarde Sodome. But Abraham stode styll before the LORDE, and stepte vnto hym, and sayde:

Wylt thou then destroye the ryghteous with ỹ vngodly? Peraduenture ther may be fyfty ryghteous within the cyte: wylt thou destroye those, and not spare the place, for fyfty ryghteous sake that are therin? Shulde not ỹ iudge of all the worlde do accordinge to ryght? And the LORDE sayd: If I fynde fyfty ryghteous at Sodome in the cyte, I wyll spare all the place for theyr sakes.

And he proceded further to speake vnto hym, & sayd: Peraduenture there myght be forty founde therin. And he said: I wyl do no thynge vnto thé for those fortyes sake. Abrahā sayd: Oh let not my LORD be angry, that I speake yet more. Peraduenture there myght be thyrty founde therin. And he said yf I fynde thyrty therin, I wyl do nothing vnto them. And he sayd: O se I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto my LORDE:

Peraduenture there myght be twenty founde therin. He answered: I wyll not destroye them for those twenties sake. And he sayd: O let not my LORDE be angrye, that I speake yet once more: Peraduenture ther myght be ten founde therin. He sayde: I wyll not destroye them for those ten sake.

And the LORDE went his waye, whē he had lefte talkynge with Abraham and Abraham returned vnto his place.

The.xx. Chapter.

A So for Abraham, he departed thence, in to the south countre, and dwelt betwixte Cades and Sur, and was a straunger at Gen.12.c and 26.a Gerar, and sayd of Sara his wyfe: * She is my syster. Then Abimelech the kynge of Gerar sent for her, and caused her be fet awaye.

But God came to Abimelech by nyght
in a dreame, and sayd vnto hym: Beholde, thou art but a dead man, for the womans sake which thou hast take, for she is a mās wyfe. Neuertheles Abimelech had not yet touched her, and sayd: LORDE, wylt thou slaye a ryghteous people? Sayd not he vn to me: she is my syster? yee and sayd not she her self also: he is my brother? With a pure hart and with innocēt handes haue I done
this.

And God sayd vnto hym in a dreame: I D
knowe ꝑ thou dyddest it with a pure harte.
and therfore kepte I the, that thou shuldest not sine agaynst me, nother haue I suffred

let hym praye for the, and thou shalt lyue.
But and yf thou delyuer her not agayne,
be sure, that thou shalt dye the death, and al
that is thyne.

Then Abimelech rose vp by tymes in ꝑ morninge, and called all his seruauntes, ⁊ tolde all these thynges in theyr eares, and ꝑ men were sore afrayed, and Abimelech called Abraham, ⁊ sayd vnto hym: Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs? And what haue I offended the, ꝑ thou shuldest bryng
on me ⁊ on my kyngdome so great a synne?
Thou hast not dealt vō vs, as a man shuld

Abrahā: What sawest thou that thou hast done these thynges.

Abraham sayd: I thought, Peraduen-ture there is no feare of God in thys place,
and they shall slaye my for my wyues sake.
And of trueth she is my syster, for she is my fathers doughter, but not my mothers doughter, and is become my wife. So whā God charged me to wandre out of my fathers house, I sayd vnto her: * Shewe this Gen.12.
kyndnesse vpon me, that where soeuer we come, thou saye of me, ꝑ I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe, and oxen, D seruauntes and maydens, and gaue thē vn to Abraham, and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne, and sayde: Beholde, my lōde stondeth open before the, dwell where it ly-keth the. And vnto Sara he sayd: Beholde
I haue geue thy brother a thousand syluer pens: lo, those shalbe vnto the a couerynge of the eyes, for all that are with the, ⁊ euery
where, and a sure excuse.

As for Abrahā, he prayed vnto God: The God healed Abimelech, ⁊ his wyfe and his maydens, so that they bare childzen. For afore had the LORDE closed al the matrices of Abimelechs house, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

The.xxi.Chapter.

THe LORDE also visited Sara accordynge *as he had promysed: and dealt with her, euen as he had sayd. *And Sara was with chylde, and bare Abrahã a sonne in his olde age, euen in the tyme appointed, lyke as God had spoken vnto him afore. *And Abrahã called his sonne which was borne vnto him (whõ Sara bare him) Isaac, and circumcysed hym the eyght day *lyke as God commaunded hym. An hundzeth yeare olde was Abraham, whan his sonne Isaac was borne vnto hym.

And Sara sayde: God hath prepared a ioye for me, for whosoeuer heareth of it, wil reioyce with me. She sayde moreouer: Who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham, that Sara shuld geue childzen sucke, and beare hym a sonne in his olde age? And the chyld grew, and was weened. And Abrahã made a great feast, in the daye whan Isaac was weened.

And Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egipcyan (whom she had borne vnto Abraham) that he was a mocker, and sayd vnto Abraham: *Cast out this bonde mayden and hir sonne, for this bondmaydens sõne shall not be heyre with my sonne Isaac. This worde displeased Abraham sore, because of his sonne.

Neuertheles God sayd vnto hym: let it not displease the because of the chylde and the handmayden: What soeuer Sara hath sayde vnto the, folowe it *for in Isaac shall the sede be called vnto the. *As for the handemaydens sonne, I wyll make a people of hym also, because he is of thy sede.

Then Abrahã rose vp early in the morynge, and toke bread and a bottell with water, and put it vpon Agars shulders, and gaue her the chylde, and sent her away. Then departed she and wandzed out of the waye in the wyldernesse beside Berseba. Now whan the water in the bottell was out, she layed the chylde vnder a bushe, and went, and sat hyr downe ouer on the other syde a bowe shote of. For she sayd: I can not se the chylde dye. And she set her downe ouer on the other syde, and lyft vp hir voice and wepte.

Then God herde the voice of the chyld, and ỳ angell of God called vnto Agar out of heauen and sayd vnto her: What ayleth the, Agar? Fear not, for God hath herde the voyce of the chylde, where he lyeth. Aryse and take the chylde, and holde hym by the hande: *For I wyl make a great people of hym: * and God opened hyr eyes, that she sawe a well of water.

Then wente she and fylled the bottell with watter, and gaue the chylde drynke. And God was with the chylde, which grew vp, and dwelt in the wyldernesse, & became a connynge archer, and dwelt in the wyldernesse of Pharan, and his mother toke hym a wyfe out of the londe of Egipte.

*At the same tyme talked Abimelech & Phicoll his cheke captayne with Abraham and sayde: God is with the in all that thou doest. Therfore sweare now vnto me by God, ỳ thou wylt not hurt me, nor my chyldzen, nor my chyldzers chyldzen: but ỳ thou shalt shewe vnto me (and to the londe wher in thou art a straunger) the same kyndnesse *that I haue done vnto the.

Then sayde Abraham: I wyll sweare. And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for the *well of water, which Abimelechs seruãtes had taken awaye by violence. Then answered Abimelech: I knewe not who dyd it nother dyddest thou tell me, & I haue not herde of it but this daye.

Then toke Abraham shepe and oxen, & gaue them vnto Abimelech, and they both made a bonde together. And Abraham set seuen lambes by them selues. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Abraham: What meane those seuen lambes, which thou hast set by them selues? He answered: seuen lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they may be wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Therfore is the place called Berseba, because they sware ther both together. And so they made the bonde at Berseba.

Then rose Abimelech and Phichol his cheke captayne, and departed agayne in to the londe of the Philistynes. And Abrahã planted trees at Berseba, and called there vpon the name of the LORDE the euerlastynge God, and was a straunger in ỳ lode of the Philistines a longe season.

The.xxii.Chapter.

AFter these actes God tempted Abraham, * and sayde vnto hym: Abraham. And he answered: I am here. And he sayde: Take thy sonne, thyne onely sonne of thyne, euen Isaac whō thou louest, and go thy waye in to the londe of Moria, and offre hym there for a burntoffe rynge, vpon a mountayne that I shal shew the. Then Abraham stode vp by tymes in ỹ morynge, and sadled his asse, & toke with hym two ponge men, and his sonne Isaac, and dyd clyue wood for the brentofferynge gat hym vp, & went on vnto ỹ place, where of the LORDE had sayd vnto hym.

Upon ỹ thyrde day Abrahā lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the place afarre of, and sayd vnto his ponge men: Tary ye here with the asse: as for me and ỹ chylde, we wyll go yon der: * and whā we haue worshipped, we wyl come to you agayne. And Abraham toke ỹ woode to the brentofferynge, and layed it vpon Isaac his sonne. As for hym selfe, he toke the fyre and a knyfe in his hande, and they wente on both together.

Gen.22.b.

B Then sayd Isaac vnto his father Abraham: My father. Abraham answered: here I am, my sonne. And he sayd: lo, here is fyre and wood, but where is the shepe for ỹ brēt offerynge? Abraham answered: My sonne, God shall prouyde hym a shepe for brentofferynge. And they went both together.

And whan they came to the place which God shewed hym, Abraham buylded there an altare, and layed the wood vpon it, and bande his sōne Isaac, layed hym vpon the altare, aboue vpon the wood, and stretched out his hande, and toke the knyfe, to haue slayne his sonne.

C Then the angell of the LORDE called frō heauen vnto him and sayd: Abraham Abraham. He answered: here am I. He sayd: Lay not thy handes vpon the chylde, and do nothynge vnto hym: * for now I know we that thou feareſt God, & & hast not spared thyne only sonne for my sake. Then Abrahā lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe behynde hym a rāme holden fast by the hornes in the breres, and went and toke the ramme, and offred hym for a brent sacrifyce, in steade of his sonne.

Sara was an hundreth and seuen and twenty yeare olde: so longe lyued she, and dyed in the heade cyte which is called Hebron, in the londe of Canaan. Then went Abraham, * to mourne & wepe for her. Afterwarde he stode vp from his coarse, and talked with the Hethites, & sayd I am a straunger and an indweller amōge you, geue me a possessiō to burye in yō you, that I maye burye my coarse by me.

Then the Hethites answered Abraham, and sayd vnto him: O heare lorde thou art a prynce of God amonge vs: bury thy dead in ỹ best of our sepulcres, ther shal none of vs forbyd the, that thou shuldest not burye thy dead in his sepulcre. D And he talked with them, and sayd: yf it be your wyl that I bury my coarse by me, heare me then, and speake for me to Ephrō the sonne of Soar, that he maye geue me the dubble caue, which he hath in ỹ ende of his felde. For a reasonable moneye let hym geue it me, for a possessiō to burye in amōge you. For Ephrō dwelt amōge the Hethites.

Then answered Ephron the Hethite vnto Abraham, that the Hethites myght hear, before all that wente out and in at the gates of his cyte, and sayd: No my Lorde, but heare me: As for the felde, and the caue also that is therin, I geue it þ: and in the sight of my people I geue it þ, to burye thy dead in.

Then Abraham thanked the people of the lond, and talked with Ephron, that the people of the londe myght heare and sayde: Heare me then.* Receaue of me the money that I geue the for the felde, and so wyll I burye my deade there. *Iud.12.b

Ephron answered Abraham, and sayde vnto hym: Heare me my lorde: The felde is worth foure hundreth sycles of syluer: but what is that betwirte me and the? Burye thy dead. Abraham herkened vnto Ephron and weyed hym the money whiche he had sayde, that the Hethites might heare: namely foure hundreth syluer sycles of curraunt moneye amonge marchauntes.

Thus Ephrons felde (where in the dubble caue is) which lieth ouer before Mamre euen the felde and the caue was made sure for Abrahams owne good, with all þ trees of the felde also rounde aboute, in the sight of the Hethites, and of all that go out and in at the gates of his cyte. Then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the dubble caue of the felde, that lyeth ouer before Mamre (that is: Hebron) in þ lōde of Canaan. So the felde and the caue therin was made sure of the Hethites vnto Abraham, for a possession to burye in.

The.xxiiij.Chapter.

ABraha was olde and well stryken in age, and the LORDE had blessed hym in al thynges. And he sayd vnto his eldest seruaūt of his house, whiche had þ rule of all his goodes:* Laye thyne hāde vnder my thye, that I maye make the sweare by the LORDE the God of heauen and earth *that thou take no wyfe vnto my sonne amōge þ doughters of þ Canaanites, (amōg whome I dwell) but that thou go in to my countre and *to myne owne kynred, and fetche my sonne Isaac a wyfe. *Ge.47.b *Gen.22.a *Deu.7.a *Gen.11.b

The seruaunt sayde: Nay what and the woman wyl not folowe me in to this countre: shall I then cary thy sonne agayne in to þ lōder londe, where thou camest out of? Abraham sayde vnto hym: Beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thither agayne. The LORDE, the God of heauē, which toke me fro my fathers house and from the lōde of my kynred, and that talked with me, and sware also vnto me, and sayde:* Vnto thy sede wyll I geue this londe: Euen he shall sende his angell before þ, that thou mayest bringe my sōne a wyfe from thence. But yf the womā wyll not folowe the, thou art discharged of this oth: onely bringe not my sonne thither agayne. Then the seruaunt layed his hande vnder his master Abrahās thye, and sware the same vnto hym. *Exo.32.b

So the seruaunt toke ten Camels of the camels of his mayster, and departed, & had with him of all maner of goodes of his master, and gat hym vp, & departed vnto Mesopotamia, to the cyte of Nahor. Then let he the camels lye down without before the cyte, beside a wel of water in the euenynge, aboute the tyme that the wemen vsed to go forth and to drawe water, And he sayde: B

O LORDE thou God of my mayster Abraham, mete me to daye, and shewe mercy vnto my mayster Abraham. Lo, I stonde here beside the well of water, and the mens doughters of this cyte wyll come forth to drawe water: Now yf there come a damsel, to whome I saye: bowe downe thy pitcher, and let me drynke, and yf she saye: drynke, & I wyll geue thy camels drynke also: That the same be she, whome thou hast prouyded for thy seruaunt Isaac: and that I maye knowe by the same that thou hast shewed mercy vpon my mayster.

And or euer he had left of speakynge, behold, Rebecca the doughter of Bethuel* (which was the sonne of Milca, that was the wyfe of Nahor Abrahās brother) came forth and bare a pitcher vpon hyr shulder, and she was a very fayre damsell of face, & pet a virgyn, and vnknowen of any man: She wente downe to the well, and fylled hyr pitcher, and came vp agayne. The rāne the seruaunt to mete her, and sayde: Let me drynke a litle water out of thy pitcher. And she sayde: Drynke syr. *Gen.11.b C

And hastely let she down the pitcher in hyr hande, and gaue hym drynke. And wha she had geuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyl drawe for thy camels also, tyll they haue dronke ynough. And she made hast, & poured out the pitcher in to þ trough, & ranne agayne to the well to drawe, & drewe for all his camels. The mā marueyled at her, and held his tunge, tyll he knewe whether the LORDE had prospered his iourney or not.

Now whan the camels had al dronke, he toke a golden earynge of halfe a Sycle weyght, and two bracelettes for hyr hande weyenge ten Sycles of golde and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? tel me. Is ther rowm for vs in thy fathers house to lodge in? She sayde vnto hym: I am the doughter of Bethuell, the sonne of Milca, * whō she bare vnto Nahor. And sayde moreouer vnto hym: We haue plentye of lytter and prouender, and rowme ynough to lodge in.

D Then the mā bowed hym selfe, and thāked the LORDE, and sayd: Praysed be the LORDE, the God of my mayster Abraham, which hath not withdrawē his mercy and his treuth fro my mayster, for the LORDE hath brought me in the waye to my maysters brothers house. And the damsell rāne & tolde all this vnto hyr mothers house. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ranne to the man without by the well syde: and that came by the reason that he sawe the earynges, and the bracelettes vpon his systers handes, and herd the wordes of Rebecca his suster, that she sayde: Thus spake to man vnto me.

And whan he came to the man, beholde, he stode by the camels at the well syde. And he sayd: Com in o thou blessed of the LORDE, werfore stodest thou without? I haue dressed the house, and made rowme for the camels. So he brought the man in to the house: and vnbyrdled the camels, and gaue them lytter and prouender, & water to wash his fete, and the mens that were with him and set meate before hym.

Whome ren de to cu be longeth.

E Neuertheles he sayde: * I wyll not eate tyl I haue fyrst tolde myne earande. They answered: Tell on. He sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and the LORDE hath prospered my mayster rychely, so that he is become greate: and he hath geuen hym shepe and oxen, syluer and golde, seruauntes and maydes, camels and asses: yee & Sara my mayster wyfe hath * borne my mayster a sonne in hyr oldage vnto hym hath he geuen all that he hath.

And my mayster hath take an oth of me and sayde: Thou shalt not take a wyfe for my sonne among the doughters of the Canaūtes in whose londe I dwel, but go thy waye to my fathers house & to myne owne kynred: and there take a wyfe for my sonne. But I sayde vnto my mayster: What and the woman wyll not folowe me? The sayd he vnto me: The LORDE (before whome I walke) shall sende his angell with the, and prosper thy journey, that thou mayest take a wyfe for my sōne of myne owne kynred, and of my fathers house. And so whan thou commest to my kynred, yf they geue her not vnto the, thou shalt be discharged of myne oth.

So I came this daye vnto the well of water, and sayd: O LORD thou God of my mayster Abraham, yf thou haste prospered my iourneye that I go: Beholde, I stonde here by the wel of water: Now yf there come forth a virgyn to drawe water, and I saye vnto her: geue me a lytle water to drynke out of thy pitcher, and she saye vnto me: Drynke thou, and I wyl drawe water for thy camels also: that the same be the womā which the LORDE hath prouyded for my mas sters sonne. Now or euer I had spoke out these wordes in my harte, beholde, Rebecca cōmeth forth with a pitcher vpon hyr shulder, & goeth downe to the well & draweth.

Then sayde I: geue me a drynke. And immediatly she toke downe the pitcher frō hyr shulder, and sayde: drynke, and I wyll geue thy camels drynke also. So I dranke, and she gaue the camels also to drynke. And I axed her, and sayd: Doughter, whose art thou? She answered: I am the doughter of Bethuell the sonne of Nahor, whome Milca bare vnto hym. Then layed I the earynge vpon hyr face, and the bracelettes vpon hyr handes, and bowed my selfe, and thanked the LORDE, and prayed the God of my mayster Abraham, whiche had brought me the ryght way, to take my masters brothers doughter vnto his sonne.

WHā Eſau was foꝛty yeare olde he toke wyues: * Judith the doughter of Beri ꝙ Hethite & Baſmath ꝙ doughter of Elō ꝙ Hethite: both thoſe were diſobedient vnto the ſpꝛete of Iſaac & Rebecca

And it came to paſſe when Iſaac was olde, his eyes waxed dymme of ſyghte, and he called Eſau his greater ſonne, and ſayd vnto hym: My ſonne. He anſwered hym: Here am I. And he ſayde: Beholde, I am olde, and knowe not whā I ſhal dye. Now therfoꝛe take thy geare, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the foꝛth to ꝙ felde, and take me ſome venyſō, and make me meate (ſuch as I loue) and bꝛynge it me herin, that I maye eate, that my ſoule maye bleſſe the befoꝛe I dye.

But Rebecca herde theſe woꝛdes, that Iſaac ſayde vnto his ſonne. And Eſau wente his waye in to the felde, to hunte venyſon, and to bꝛynge it home. Thē ſayd Rebecca vnto Jacob hir ſōne: beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge with Eſau thy B bꝛother, and ſayenge: Bꝛynge me venyſon and make me meate that I maye eate, and bleſſe ꝙ beforꝛe the LORDE, yer I dye. Now therfoꝛe my ſonne heare my voyce, what I cōmaunde the: Go thy waye to the flocke, and fetch me two good kyddes that I may make meate of them foꝛ thy father, ſuch as he loueth: this ſhalt thou bꝛynge in vnto thy father, that he maye eate, that he maye bleſſe the beforꝛe his death.

Neuertheleſſe Jacob ſayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my bꝛother Eſau is roughe, and I am ſmoothe: then myght my father peraduēture fele me, and I ſhulde ſeme vnto hym as though I begyled hym, and ſo bꝛynge a curſe vpon me and not a bleſſynge. Thē ſayde his mother vnto hym: That curſe be vpon me my ſōne folowe thou my voyce, go thy waye & fetch it me. So he wente his waye, and fetched it, and bꝛought it vnto his mother.

Then his mother made meate, accoꝛdynge as his father loued, and toke Eſaus hir eldeꝛ ſonnes coſtly rayment (which ſhe had with her in the houſe) and put thē vpon Jacob hyꝛ yonger ſonne. But the kyd des ſkynnes put ſhe aboute his handes, & where he was ſmooth aboute ꝙ necke: and ſo ſhe put the meate with bꝛead (as ſhe had made it) in hir ſonne Jacobs hande. C

And he bꝛought it vnto his father and ſayde: My father. He anſwered: Here am I who art thou my ſonne? Jacob ſayd: I am Eſau thy fyꝛſt boꝛne ſonne, I haue done as thou ſaydeſt vnto me: Aryſe, ſyt vp, & eate of my venyſō, that thy ſoule maye bleſſe me But Iſaac ſayde vnto his ſonne: My ſōne how haſt thou found it ſo ſoone? He anſwered: The LORDE thy God bꝛought it to my hande.

Then ſayde Iſaac vnto Jacob: Come neare my ſonne, that I maye fele the, whether thou be my ſonne Eſau oꝛ not. So Jacob wente vnto Iſaac his father. And whā he had felt hym, he ſayde: The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Eſau. And he knewe hym not, foꝛ his hā des were rough lyke as the handes of his bꝛother Eſau, And he bleſſed hym.

And he ſayd vnto him: arte thou my ſōne Eſau? He anſwered yee I am. Thē ſayd he: Bꝛynge me here thē to eat of thy venyſō my ſōne, & that my ſoule maye bleſſe ꝙ. Gen.12.a

Now whan Iſaac had made an ende of E bleſſynge, and Jacob was ſcarce gone out from his father Isaac, his brother Esau came from his huntynge, and made meate also, and broughte it vnto his father, and sayde vnto hym. Aryse my father, and eate of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then answered hym Isaac his father: Who art thou? He sayd: I am Esau thy fyrstborne sonne. Then was Isaac exceadynglye amased aboue measure, and sayde: Who? Where is the the hunter that brought me, and I haue eaten of all afore thou camest, and haue blessed hym? And he shalbe blessed styll.

When Esau herde these wordes of his father, he cryed loude, and was exceadyng sory, and sayd vnto his father: O blesse me also my father. But he sayde: Thy brother came with sotiltye, and hath take thy blessynge awaye. Then sayde he: He maye wel be called Jacob, for he hathe vndermyned me now two tymes. My byrth ryght hath he awaye, and beholde, nowe taketh he awaye my blessynge also. And he sayd: Hast thou not kepte one blessynge for me? Isaac answered, & sayde vnto hym: I haue made hym Lorde ouer the, and all hys brethren haue I made his seruauntes. Wyth corne and wyne haue I prouyded hym. What shall I do vnto the my sonne? Esau sayde vnto his father: Haste thou not one blessynge more my father? O blesse me also my father.

THe called Isaac his sonne Ja I cob and ✠ blessed hym, and charged hym, and sayde vnto hym: Take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaan but get the vp, and go in to Mesopotamia vnto ꝑ house of Bethuell thy mothers father, and take the there a wyfe of the doughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And ꝑ almighty God blesse the, and make the fruteful, and multiplye the, (that thou mayest be a multitude of people) and geue the blessyng of Abraham vnto ꝑ, and thy sede with the, that thou mayest possesse the londe, wherin thou art a straunger, * whiche God gaue Gen.

Now whan Esau sawe that Isaac had B

I Then Jacob gat hym vp vpon

and beholde, there was a well

the flockes, and to rolle the stone from the mouth of the wel, & to geue ꝑ shepe drynke, and so they put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren, whēce be ye? They answered: we are of Ha-the sonne of Nahor? They answered: We Gen.43.c. knowe hym well. He sayd: *Is he in good

And lo, there cōmeth his doughter Rachell with the shepe. He sayd: it is yet hye daye, & is not yet tyme to dryue in the cattel: Geue
the cattell to drynke, and go your way, and fede them. They answered: We can not, tyl all the flockes be brought together, and tyl
we rolle the stone from the welles mouth, &
so geue the shepe drynke.

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel B came with hir fathers shepe, for she kept the shepe. Whan Jacob sawe Rachel ꝑ dough ter of Laban his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban his mothers brother, he wente, and rolled the stone from the welles mouthe, & gaue his mothers brother shepe to drynke, and kyssed Rachell, lyfte vp his voyce, and wept, and tolde her, that he was hir fathers brother, and the sonne of Rebec
ca. Then ranne she, and tolde hir father.

Whan Labā herde of Jacob his systers sonne, he ranne to mete hym, and embraced hym, and kyssed hym, & brought hym in to his house. And so he tolde hym al this matter. Then sayd Laban vnto him: Wel, thou art my bone and my flesh. ☞ And he abode Some red was tender eyed, But Rachel was beawty-loued her well, and sayd: I wyl serue the se

Laban answered: It is better that I geue

So Jacob serued seuen yeares for Ra- C

beloued her so well. And Jacob sayde vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shulde lye with her. Thē La ban bad all ꝑ people of that place, & made a mariage. But at euē he toke his doughter

her. And Labā gaue Silpa his mayde vn-

But on the morow, beholde, it was Lea
And he sayd vnto Laban: Why hast thou done this vnto me? Haue not I serued the for Rachel? Why hast thou thē begiled me?
Laban answered: It is not ꝑ maner in our countre, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Holde out this weke, and I wyll geue
the this also, for the seruice that thou shalte do me yet seuen yeares more. Jacob dyd so,
and helde out that weke. Thē gaue he hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe. And Laban gaue Silha his mayden vnto Rachell his doughter to be hir mayden. So he lay with Rachel also, & loued Rachel more thē Lea, and serued hym yet seuen yeares more.

But when the LORDE sawe, that Lea D was nethynge regarded, he made her frute full, & Rachel baren. And Lea conceaued, &

1 Par.2.a bare a sonne, *whom she called Rubē, and sayd: The LORDE hath loked vpon myne aduersite. Now wyl my husbande loue me. And she conceaued agaīne, and bare a sōne and sayd: The LORDE hath herde that I am despysed, and hath geuen me this also, and she called hym Simeon. She conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayd: Now wyl my husbande kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne hym thre sonnes, therfore called she his name Leui. She cōceaued the fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, & sayd: Now wyll I geue thankes vnto the LORDE, therfore called she hym Juda, & left bearynge.

The.xxx.Chapter.

When Rachel sawe that she bare no chyldrē vnto Jacob, she had enuy at hyr syster, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me chyldren also, or els I am but dead. But Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, and said Am I then in Gods steade, which kepeth ỹ frute of thy wombe from the? Neuertheles she sayd: Behold, there is Bilha my maydē lye with her that she maye beare vpon my Gen.16.a lappe, and *that I may be increased by her And so she gaue hym Bilha hir mayden to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilha cōceaued, and bare Jacob a sonne. Then said Rachel: God hath geuē sentence on my side and herde my voyce and geuen my a sonne B therfore called she hym Dan. Bilha Rachels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare a nother sonne vnto Jacob. Then sayd Rachel: God hath turned it with me, and my syster, and I haue gotten the vpperhande. And she called hym Nephtali.

Now whan Lea sawe that she had lefte bearyng, she toke Silpa hir mayde, & gaue her vnto Jacob to wyfe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sōne. Then sayd Lea: This is good lucke, & she called hym Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Then sayd Lea: Wel is me, for the doughters wyll call me blessed, and she called hym Aser.

Ruben wente out in the tyme of the wheat heruest, and founde Mandragoras in the felde, and brought them home vnto his mother Lea. Then sayd Rachell vnto C Lea: Geue me some of thy sonnes Mandragoras. She answered: Hast thou not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husbunde, but wylt take awaye my sōnes Mandragoras also? Rachel sayd: Well, let hym lye with the this nyght for thy sonnes Mandragoras. Now whan Jacob cam home at euen from the felde, Lea went forth to mete hym, & sayd: Thou shalt lye with me, for I haue bought ỹ for my sōnes Mādragoras.

And he slepte with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, and she cōceaued, and bare Jacob the fyfth sonne, and sayd: God hath rewarded me, because I gaue my mayden to my husbande, & she called hym Jsachar. Lea conceaued yet agaīne, and bare Jacob the sixte sōne, and sayd: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll me husbāde dwell wt me agayne, for I haue borne hym sixe sonnes, and she called hym Sabulon. After that she bare a doughter, whome she called *Dina. Gen.

Neuertheles God thought vpon Rachel D & herde her, & made her frutful. Thē she cōceaued, & bare a sōne, & said: God hath take away my rebuke, & she called hym *Joseph Gen. & sayd: God geue me yet another sonne.

Now whan Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayd vnto Laban: *Let me go, & de- Gen. parte in to my place and vnto myne owne lāde: geue me my wyues & my chyldrē, (for the which I haue serued ỹ) that I may go: for thou knowest, what seruice I haue done the. Laban sayd vnto hym: Can I not fynd fauour in thy syght: *I perceaue, that God Gen. hath blessed me for thy sake. Appoint thou the rewarde, that I shall geue the. But he said vnto him: Thou knowest how I haue serued the, & what maner of cattel thou hast vnder me. Thou haddest but lytle afore I came hether, but now is it grown in to a multitude, & the LORDE hath blessed the for C my sake. And now whan shall I loke for myne owne house also? He sayd: what shal I then geue thee?

Jacob sayde: thou shalte geue me nothynge at all, but yf thou wylt do this for me that I saye, then wyll I fede & kepe thy shepe again. I wil go thorow al thy flockes to day, & separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be spotted and partye coloured, and all blacke shepe amonge the lābes. Now loke what shalbe partie coloured & spotted among ꝑ kyddes, the same shalbe my rewarde: so shall my ryghteousnes testifye with me to daye or to morow, whan it cōmeth vnto my rewarde before the, so that what so euer is not spotted and partie coloured amonge the kyddes, and blacke amonge the lambes, let ꝑ be thought with me.

F Then sayd Laban: Beholde, let it be so as thou hast sayd. And the same daye he ꝓuyded out ꝑ speckled and partie coloured gotes, and all the spotted and partie coloured kyddes (where there was ouer whyte vpon them) and all that was blacke amonge the lambes, and put them vnder the hande of his childre, and made rowme of three dayes iourney wyde betwixte hym and Jacob. So Jacob kepte the residue of Labans flocke.

But Jacob toke staues of grene wylles hasel, and of chestnottrees, and pylled whyte strekes in them, and layed the staues that he had pylled, in the drynkynge troughes before ꝑ flocke, which came there to drynke that they shulde conceaue, whan they came to drynke. So the flockes conceaued ouer the staues, and brought forth speckeld, spotted and partye coloured.

G Then Jacob parted the lābes, and put them to the flocke vnto the spotted and all that was blacke in Labans flocke, that put he vnto ꝑ spotted. And he made hym a flock of his owne, which he put not vnto Labās flocke. Neuertheles in the fyrst buckynge tyme of the flockes, he layed ꝑ staues in the drynkynge troughes before the eyes of the flockes, that they shulde conceaue ouer the staues. But in the latter buckynge tyme he layed them not in. So the latter were Labans, but the fyrstlynges were Jacobs. Thus the man became exceadynge ryche: so that he had many shepe, maydens & seruauntes, camels and asses.

The.xxxi. Chapter.

I Heerde also of the wordes of Labans childre, that they sayd Jacob hath brought all our fathers good vnto hymselfe, and of our fathers good hath he gotten these ryches. And Jacob beheld Labās countenaunce, & beholde, it was not toward hym as yesterdaye and yesterdaye.

Gen.32.b And the LORDE sayd vnto hym: * Turne parte agayne to thy fathers lande, & to thy kynrede, I wyl be with the. Then sent Jacob, and bad call Rachel and Lea into ꝑ felde to his flockes: and sayd vnto the: I se youre fathers countenaunce, that it is not toward me lyke as yesterdaye and yesterdaye: but ꝑ God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe, that I haue serued your father with all my power.

And he hath deceaued me, and chaūged my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not suffred hym, to do me harm. For he sayd: The partye coloured shall be thy rewarde, then the whole flocke bare partye coloured. & he sayd: The speckled shalbe thy reward then the whole flocke bare speckled. Thus hath God withdrawē your fathers goodes from hym, and geuen them vnto me. For whan the buckynge tyme came, I lyfte vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, & beholde the rammes lept vpon the flocke that was speckled, spotted, & partye coloured.

And the angell of God sayd vnto me in a dreame: Jacob. And I answered: Here am I. He sayd: lyfte vp thyne eyes, and beholde the rammes leape vpon the speckled, spotted, and partye coloured flocke: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the. I am the God at Bethel * where thou dyddest anoynte the stone, and madest a bowe there vnto me. Get the vp now, and departe out of this londe, and go agayne in to the londe of thy kynred. Gen.28.b 31.b.35.b

C Then answered Rachell, and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: Is for vs, we haue no porcyon nor inheritaunce more in our fathers house, and he hath counted vs as straūgers for he hath solde vs, and spent vp oure wages. Therfore hath God withdrawen oure fathers ryches from hym vnto vs and oure childre. What soeuer now God hath sayd vnto the that do.

So Jacob gat vp, and set his childre and wyues vpon camels, and carryed away all hys catell and all his substaūce that he had gotte, at Mesopotamia, that he myght come vnto Jsaac his father in the londe of Canaan. Laban was gone to * clyppe his flock, and Rachel stal hir fathers ymages. Gen.38.b 1.Re.12.c 2.Re.5.a Thus dyd Jacob steale awaye the harte of Laban the Syrian, in that he tolde him not that he fled. So he fled, and al that was his gat vp, and passed ouer the water, & wente straught towarde the mount Gilead.

D Vpon the thyrde daye it was tolde Labā that Jacob fled. And he toke his brethre vnto hym, and folowed after hym seuen dayes iourney, and ouertoke him vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Labā the Syrian a dreame by nyght, & sayd vnto hym: Beware, that thou speake not to Jacob but good. And Laban drewe nye vnto Jacob. As for Jacob, he had pitched his tent vpon the mount. And Laban with his brethrē pitched his tent also vpon the same mount Gilead.

Then sayd Laban vnto Jacob: What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen awaye my harte, and caryed awaye my doughters as though they had ben taken awaye captyue with the swearde? Wherfore kepest thou that secret, that thou woldest flye, and hast stolē awaye fro me, and toldest my not that I myght haue brought ꝑ on thy waye with myrth, with syngyng with tabrettes, & harpes? & haste not suffred me to kysse my chyldren and doughters? Thou hast done folysshly, & so muche myght I haue made, that I coulde haue done you euel: but your fathers God sayd yesterdaye vnto me: Beware, that thou speake nothynge vnto Jacob but good. And for so much thē as thou woldest neves depart & longedest sore after thy fathers house, why hast thou stolen awaye my goddes?

Jacob answered and sayd vnto Labā: I was afrayed ꝑ thou shuldest haue takē away thy doughters fro me: but loke by whō thou fyndest thy goddes, let the same here dye before our brethren. Seke that thyne is by me, and take it away. (But he knewe not, that Rachel had stolen them.) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent and in to Leas tente, and in to bothe the maydens tentes, and founde nothynge: and out of Leas tente, he went in to Rachels tente. Then toke Rachel the ymages, & layed thē vnder the camels strawe, & sat downe vpō thē. But Laban searched ꝑ hole tent & foūd nothynge. Thē sayd she vnto hir father: Be not angry my lorde, that I can not ryse vp vnto the: for it goeth with me after the maner of wemē. So he sought, and foūde not the ymages.

And Jacob was wroth, & chode with Laban, answered and sayde vnto hym: What haue I trespalled or offended, that thou art so wroth with me? Thou hast searched all my householde stuffe: and what haste thou foūde of thy householde stuffe? Laye it here before my brethrē & thyn, ꝑ they may iudge betwen vs both. Twēty yeare haue I ben wt the: thy shepe & goates haue not ben vnfrutefull, ꝑ rāmes of thy flocke haue I not eatē. Loke what was ✱torne of beastes, I brought it not vnto ꝑ, I was layne to paye it my selfe: thou requyredest it of my honde whether it were stolen fro me by daye or by nyght. On the daye tyme the heat cōsumed me, and the frost on the nyght, and my slepe departed fro myne eyes.

Thus haue I serued twentye yeare in thy house, ✱fourtene yeares for thy doughters, and sixe for thy flocke, and ten tymes hast thou chaunged my reward, & yf ꝑ God of my father, the God of Abrahā, & the feare of Jsaac had not ben on my syde, thou haddest letten me go awaye emptye. But God hath loked vpon myne aduersite & laboure and rebuked the yesterdaye.

Labā answered & sayd: The doughters are my doughters, & ꝑ chyldren are my chyldrē, & the flockes are my flockes, & al ꝑ thou seyst is myne. What can I do this daye vnto these my doughters, or to theyr chyldren whom they haue borne? Now therfore come on, let vs mak a cōuenaūt (I & thou) which may be a wytnesse betwene me & the. Then toke Jacob a stone, & set it vp (for a pyller or marke stone) & sayd vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they toke the stones, & made an heape, & dyd eate vpon the same heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead: (eyther of them after the proprette of his lāguage.)

Thē sayd Labā: ✱This heape be wytnes betwene me & ꝑ this daye (therfore is it called Gilead) & a testimony: for he sayd: The LORDE loke betwen me & the, whā we are departed the one frō the other: yf thou vexe my doughters, or take other wyues vnto them. Ther is noman with vs, but lo, God is the wytnesse betwen me & the. And Labā sayd moreouer vnto Jacob: Behold, this is the heap, & this is the markstone, ꝑ I haue set vp betwixte me & the: the same heape be wytnesse & the same markstone also be wytnesse, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heape and markstone vnto me, to do ony harme. The God of Abrahā, and the God of Nahor, and ꝑ God of theyr fathers, be iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob sware vnto hym by the feare of his father Jsaac. And Jacob offred an offeryng vpon the mount, and called his brethren to eate bred. And whā they had eaten they taryed vpon the mount all nyght. But vpon the morow, Laban rose vp early kyssed his chyldrē and doughters, & blessed them, and departed: and came agayne vnto his place. As for Jacob, he wente on his iourney, & the angels of God met hym. And whan he sawe them, he sayde: It is Gods hoost, & called the same place Mahanaim.

A Gen.24.a

IAcob sent messaungers before hym to his brother Esau * into the londe of Seir of ꝑ felde of Edom, and commaunded thē, and sayd: Say thus vnto my lorde Esau: Thy seruaunt Jacob sendeth the this worde: I haue ben out with Labā, and haue ben hetherto amonge straungers and haue oxen, and asses, shepe, seruaūtes, and maydens, and haue sent forth to shewe it the my lorde, that I myght fynde fauour in thy syght.

The messaūgers came agayne vnto Jacob, and sayd: We came vnto thy brother Esau, and he commeth forth also agaynst the with foure hundreth men. Then was Jacob sore afrayed, & wyst not what waye to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the people that was with hym, and the shepe, & the oxe and the camels in to two droues, and sayd: yf Esau come vpō the one droue and smyte it, the other shall escape.

B Jacob sayd moreouer: O God of my father Abrahā, God of my father Isaac, LORDE, thou that saydest vnto me. * Departe agayne to thyne owne londe and to thy kinred, and I wyll do thy good: I am to lytle for all the mercyes and al the trueth ꝑ thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt (for I hadde nomore but this staffe whan I wente ouer this Iordane, & now am I become two droues) delyuer me from the hande of my brother, from the hande of Esau, for I am afrayed of hym, lest he come and smyte me, ꝑ mother with the chyldren. Thou saydest I wyl do the good, and wyl make thy sede as the sonde of the see, which can not be nombred for multytude.

C And there he taryed that nyght. * & toke of such as came to hande a present vnto his brother Esau, two hūdreth she goates, and twentye he goates, two hūdreth shepe, twētye rammes, and thyrtye mylkynge camels with theyr foales, fortye kyne, ten bullockes twentye she asses with ten foales, & put thē in the handes of his seruaūtes, euery flock by them selues, and sayd vnto them: Go ye forth before me, & put a space betwixte one flocke after the other, and commaūded the fyrst and sayd:

Gen.32.c

Whan my brother Esau meteth the and axeth the: Whose art thou? & whither goest thou? and whose are these that thou dryuest before the? Thou shalt say: They be thy seruaunt Jacobs, which sendeth a present vnto his lorde Esau, and cōmeth behynde vs hym selfe.

Thus commaūded he the seconde also, D and the thyrde, and all them that folowed the flockes, and sayd: Lyke as I haue tolde you, so speake ye vnto Esau, whan ye mete hym, & say vnto hym also: Beholde, thy seruaūt Jacob is behynde vs. For he thought I wyll reconcyle hym with the present that goeth before me, afterwarde wyll I se him my selfe, peraduenture he shall receaue me to grace.

Thus went the present before hym, but he taryed in the tent the same nyght & rose vp in the nyght, & toke his two wyues, and the two maydens and his eleuen sonnes, & went vnto the forde of Jaboc, toke thē and caryed them ouer the water, so that all that he had came ouer, & taried hym selfe alone on this syde.

* Then wrestled there a man with hym vntyll the breake of the daye. And whan he sawe that he myghte not ouercome hym he touched the senowe of his thye, and the senowe of his thye shranke in wrestlynge with him. And he sayd: Let me go, for ꝑ day E breaketh on. But he answered: I wyll not let the go, excepte thou blesse me. He sayd: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayd: * Thou shalt nomore be called Jacob but Israel, for thou hast stryuen with God and with men, and hast preuayled. And Jacob axed hym, and sayd: Tell me, what is thy name? But he sayde: * Why axest thou what my name is? And he blessed hym there. And Jacob called the place Peniel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my soule is recouered. And as he came ouer from Peniel, the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thye. Therfore eate the chyldre of Israel no veyne vpon the senow of the thye vnto this daye, because ꝑ vayne vpon the senowe of Jacobs thye was touched.

IAcob lyfte vp his eyes, & sawe A his brother Esau comming w foure hundreth men and he deuyded his chyldren vnto Lea, vnto Rachell, and to both the maydens and set the maydens with theyr chyldren before, & Lea with hir chyldren after, & Rechel w Joseph hindermost. And he

He answered: They are the chyldren which God hath geuen vnto thy seruaunt. And the maydens came forth with theyr chyldren, & bowed theyr obeysaunce vnto hym.

B Lea came forth also with hir chyldren & kneled vnto hym. Afterward came Joseph & Rachel forth, & kneled vnto him lykewise And he sayd: What meanest thou vñ al that droue? I met? He answered that I myght fynde grace in the syght of my lorde. Esau sayd: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast. Jacob answered: Oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, receaue

1.Pet.15.c and be at one with me. * Take this present in good worth, that I haue brought the, for God hath geuen it me, & I haue ynough of al thynges. So he cōpelled hym to take it.

C And he sayd: Let vs go on and take our iourney, I wyll go in thy company. But he sayd vnto hym: My lorde, thou knowest I haue tender chyldren by me, & small and great cattell also, which are yet but ponge: yf they shulde be dryuen ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wold dye. Let my lorde go on before his seruaunt: I wyll dryue after layre and softly, (therafter as the cattel and the chyldre can go,) tyl I come to my lorde in Seir. Esau sayd: yet wyll I leaue some of my people with the. He answered: What nede is it? Let me but onely fynde grace in the syght of my lorde,

D So Esau departed agayne the same day toward Seir, and Jacob toke his iourney toward Succoth, & buylded hym an house and made tentes for his cattell. Therfore is the place called Succoth.

Gen.28.b * Afterward came Jacob peaceably vn to the cyte of Sichē, which lieth in the lōde of Canaā, after y he was come agayne out of Mesopotamia & pitched before the cyte,

The.xxxiiii.Chapter.

The.xxxiiij.chap.

DIna y doughter of Lea, which
* she bare vnto Jacob, went out to beholde y doughters of the londe. Whā Sichē y sōne of Hemor y Heuite (which was lorde of the londe) sawe her, he toke her, and laye w̄ her, * & forced her, & his hart hāged vpon her, & he loued the damsel, & talked louyngly with her, & spake to his father Hemor: Get me this mayden to wyfe.

And Jacob vnderstode, that Dina his doughter was defyled, and his sōnes were with the cattell in the felde, & Jacob helde his tunge tyl they came. Then Hemor went forth vnto Jacob to comen with hym. In the meane season came Jacobs sōnes from the felde. And whan they herde it, it greued the mē, & they were very wroth, that he had wrought folly in Israel, and lyen with Jacobs doughter: for so was not the vse to do.

B Thē comened Hemor with them, & sayd: My sonne Sichems hart longeth for your doughter. O geue her hym to wyfe: make frendshippe with vs, geue vs your doughters, and take ye our doughters, & dwel w̄ vs, the londe shalbe open vnto you, dwel & occupye, and haue your possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto hir father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you: lohe what ye appoint me, I wil geue it: requyre the dowrye and gyft of me hardely, I wyll geue it accordyng as ye wyl axe, only geue me the damsell to wyfe.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichē and Hemor his father (& spake deceatfully, because they? syster Dina was defyled) and sayd vnto thē: That can we not do, to geue our syster to an vncircumcyled mā, for that were a great shame vnto vs.

C Neuertheles we wyll consent vnto you yf ye wyl be lyke vnto vs, & be circūcyled as many as are males amōge you: thē wyl we geue you our doughters, & take your doughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye wyll not herke vnto vs, to be circumcyled, then wyll we take our dougyter, and go our waye.

Their wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne well, and the ponge man deferred not to do the same, for he hadde lust to Jacobs doughter: and he was holden in honoure w̄ doue all in his fathers house. Then came Hemor ād Sichem his sonne vnder y gate of the cyte, and comuned with y cytezyns of the cyte, & sayde: These men are peaceable with vs, & wyll dwel in the londe & occupye,

Now is the londe brode of both the sydes, we wyl take they⁊ doughters vnto vs, and geue them oure doughters.

But then wyll they consente vnto vs to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circūcyse all the men chyldren amōge vs, lyke as they are circūcysed: they⁊ cattell and goodes, and all that they haue, shalbe ours, yf we consent vnto thē that the maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened vnto Hemo⁊ & Sichem his sonne, as many as went out and in at the gate of his cyte, and circūcysed all the males, and that wente out and in at his cyte. * And vpon the thyrde daye (whā it was pancfull to them) the two sonnes of Jacob Simeon, and Leui: Dinas brethrē toke euery man hys swearde: and wente boldly in to the cyte, * and slewe all the males, and slew Hemo⁊ also and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swearde, & toke they⁊ syster Dina out of Sichems house, and wente their waye. Judit.9.a Gen 49.a

Thē came Jacobs sonnes ouer ꝑ slayne and spoyled the cite (because they had defyled they⁊ syster) and toke they⁊ shepe, oxen, asses, and what soeuer was in the cyte and in the londe, and all maner of goodes: All they⁊ chyldrē and wyues toke they captiue and spoyled all that was in the houses.

And Jacob sayde vnto Simeon, and Leui: ye haue brought it so to passe, that I stynke before the inhabiters of this lande, the Canānites and Pherezites, and I am but a small nombre: yf they gather thē selues now together agaynste me, they shall slaye me, so shall I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Ought they thē deale with our syster as with an whore?

The.xxxv. Chapter.

AND God sayde vnto Jacob: Get ꝑ vp, and go vnto Bethel and dwell there, & make there an altare vnto the God, that appeared vnto ꝑ, * whan thou fleddest from thy brother Esau. Then sayd Jacob vnto his housholde and to all that were with hym: Put away from you the straunge * goddes, that are amonge you, and clense youre selues, and chaunge your clothes, and let vs go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God, which * herde me in the tyme of my trouble and hath bene with me in the waye that I haue gone. Gen. 28.b Gen.31.c Gen.28.b

Then gaue they hym all the straunge goddes that were vnder they⁊ handes, and they⁊ earynges, and he buryed them vnder an Oke that stode beside Sychem and departed. And there came a feare of God vpon the cities that laye rounde aboute, so that they folowed not after ꝑ sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob vnto Lus of the lāde of Canaan (which is called Bethel) and al the people that were with hym, and there he buylded an altare, and * called the place Bethell, because the LORDE appeared vnto hym there, whē he fled from his brother. Then dyed * Debora Rebeccas norse: and was buryed beneth Bethel vnder the Oke and it was called the Oke of lamētacyon. Gen.28.b Gen.24.g

* And God appeared agayne vnto Jacob, after that he was come out of Mesopotamia, and blessed hym, and sayde vnto him. Thou art Jacob, neuertheles * thou shalt nomore be called Jacob, but Israell shall be thy name. And so was he called Israell. Ose.12.a Gen.32.a 2.Ma.15.b

And God sayde vnto hym: * I am the almyghtye God, be fruteful and multiplie, people, & a multitude of people shall come of the, and * kynges shalll come out of thy loynes: and the lande that I gaue vnto Abraham and Isaac wyll I geue vnto the, and wyll geue it vnto thy sede after ꝑ. So God departed frō hym, from ꝑ place where he talked with hym. And Jacob set vp a pilar of stone, in ꝑ place where he talked with hym, and poured drynkofferynges theron, & poured oyle vpon it. And Jacob called ꝑ place where God talked with him Bethel. Gen.17.a Esay.1.a

And he departed from Bethel: & whan he yet was a feld brode from Ephrath, Rachell trauayled, and the byrthe came harde vpon her. But whan she had such payne in trauelynge, the mydwyfe sayde vnto her: * feare not, for thou shalt haue this sonne also. But as hir soule was departyng, that she muste dye she called hym Ben Oni: neuertheles his father called hym Ben Jamin * So Rachell dyed, and was buryed in the waye towarde Ephrath, which now is called Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a piler vpō hir graue, ther is Rachels graue stone vnto this daye. And Israel departed, and pitched his tente beyonde the towre of * Eder. 1.Reg.4.b Gen.48.b Micha.4.b

And it chaūced, that whē Israell dwelt in that londe, Ruben wente * and laye with * Bilha his fathers cōcubine, & that came to Israels eares. Gen.49.d 1.Chro.5.a

borne sonne Symeō, Leui, Juda, Jsachar and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel, were Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan, and Neptha ly. The sōnes of Silpa Leas mayde: Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob whiche were borne vnto hym in Mesopotamia. And he came to his father Jsaac to Māre in to ꝑ heade cyte which is called Hebron, wherin Abrahā and Jsaac were straūgers. And Jsaac was an hundreth & foure score yeare olde, & fell sycke, and dyed, and was gathered vnto his people, whan he was olde, and had lyued ynough: and his sonnes Esau and Jacob buryed hym.

The.xxxvii.Chapter.

JAcob dwelt in the lāde, where in his father was a straūger, namely in the lande of Canaā And these are the generacyōs of Jacob. Joseph was seuentye yeare olde, whan he became a keper of the cattell with his brethren and ꝑ lad was with the chyldren of Bilha and Silpa his fathers wyues, and told theyr father of the euell reporte that was of them. Jsraell loued Joseph more then all his chyldren because he had begotten him in his olde age, and he made hym a cote of many coloures.

Now whan his brethren sawe that his father loued hym more then all his brethre they had euell wyll at hym, and coulde not speake a frēdly worde vnto hym * Joseph also had once a dreame and tolde his brethren therof. The hated they hym the more for he sayde * Heare I praye you what I dreamed. We thought we were byndynge sheues vpon ꝑ felde, and my sheefe arose, and stode vp, and youre sheues roumbe aboute made obeysaunce vnto my sheefe.

Then sayde his brethren vnto hym: Shalt thou be our kynge, ꝙ haue dominiō ouer vs. And they hated hym yet the more because of his dreame, ꝙ his wordes. And he had yet another dreame whiche he tolde his brethren, and sayd: Beholde, I had yet another dreame: We thought that ꝑ Sonne, and ꝑ Moone, and eleuen starres made obeysaunce to me. And when this was tolde his father and his brethren, his father reproued hym, and sayde vnto hym: What maner of dreame is this, that thou hast dreamed: Shall I and thy mother, and thy brethre come and fal before the vpō ꝑ groūde and his brethren had enuye at hym: * But his father marked this sayenge.

Now whan his brethre were gone forth to kepe theyr fathers cattell in Sichē, Jsraell sayde vnto Joseph: Do not thy brethren kepe the cattell in Sichem: Come I wyll sende the vnto them. He answered * Here am I. And he sayde: Go thy wape ꝙ loke whether it be well with thy brethren and with the cattell and bringe me worde agayne how it is. And he sent hym out of ꝑ vallepe of Hebron, to go vnto Sichem.

Then a certayne man founde hym, wādringe out of his waye in the felde, which axed hym, and sayde: Whome seketh thou: He answered: I seke my brethre: tell me I praye the where they kepe. The man sayde they are gone from hence, for I herde them saye: Let vs go vnto Dothan. Then folowed Joseph vnto his brethren, and founde them at Dothan.

Now whan they sawe hym afarre of afore he came at them, they deuyfed to slaye hym and sayde one to another: Lo there cōmeth ꝑ dreamer, * come on, and let vs slepe hym, and caste hym in a pytte, ꝙ saye: a wycked beast hath deuoured hym: then shall it be sene, what his dreames are.

Whā Rubē herde ꝑ, he wolde haue delyuered hym out of theyr hādes, and sayd: * O let vs not slaye a soule. Ruben sayde moreouer vnto them: Shed no bloude, but caste hym in to this pytte that is in the wyldernesse, and laye ye no handes vpon hym. (He wold haue delyuered hym out of theyr handes, that he myght haue brought hym agayne vnto his father.)

Whan Joseph now came to his brethre they stripped hym out of his cote, that party coloured cote, which he had vpon him, and toke hym and caste hym into a pytte. But the same pytte was emptye, and no water in it, and they sat them downe to eate. In ꝑ meane season they lyfte vp theyr eyes, and sawe a cōpany of Jsmaelites comynge frō Gilead, with theyr camels, which bare spyces, balme, and myrre, and were goynge downe in to Egipte.

Then sayde Juda vnto his brethren. What helpeth it vs, that we slepe our brother, and hyde his bloud? Come let vs sell hym vnto the Ismaelites, that oure hãdes be not defyled vpon him, for he is our brother, our flesshe and bloude. And they herkened vnto hym.

And as the Madianites marchaūt men wente by, they drewe Joseph out of the pyt * and solde hym vnto the Ismaelites (for twentye syluer pens) whiche brought hym in to Egypte. Gen.37.b

¶ Now whan Ruben came agayne vnto the pytte, and founde not Joseph there in he rent his clothes and came agayn to his brethren and sayde: The lad is not ponder; whether shall I go? Then toke they Josephs cote and slewe a goate, and dypped his cote in the bloude, and sent awaye that partye coloured cote, and caused it to be brought vnto their father and sayd: This haue we founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coate, or no.

But he knewe it and sayde: It is my sõnes cote, * a wicked beaste hath deuoured hym, a raueninge beast hath raueshed Joseph. And Jacob rente his clothes, and put a sacke cloth aboute his loynes, and mourned for his sonne a lõge season. And all his sonnes and doughters came vnto hym to conforte him. But he wolde not be cõforted and sayde: With sorowe wyll I go downe in to the graue vnto my sonne. And his father wepte for him. * But the Madianites solde hym in Egipte vnto Potiphar Pharaos cheefe marshall. Gen.44.b Psa.104.c

The.xxxviii. Chapter.

IT fortuned at the same tyme, that Juda wente downe from his brethren, and gat hym to a man called Hyra of Odollam. And there Juda sawe a mans doughter of Canaan called Sua, and toke her. And whan he had lyen with her, she conceaued, & bare a sonne, whom she called Er. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne, whome she called Onan. She proceedeth yet further, & bare a sonne, whome she called Sela. And whan she had borne hym, she left of bearynge.

And Juda gaue his fyrst sonne Er a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. But he was wycked before the LORDE, therfore the LORDE slew hym. Then sayde Juda vnto his sonne Onan: Go lye with thy brothers wyfe, and marye thy selfe with her, * that thou mayst rayse vp sede vnto thy brother. But whan Onan knew that the sede shuld not be his owne, when he laye with his brothers wyfe, he let it fal vpon the earth and destroyed it, that he shuld not geue sede vnto his brother. This thynge that he dyd displeased the LORDE sore, & he slewe him also. Deu.25.b

Then sayde Judas vnto Thamar his sonnes wyfe. Remayne a wydowe in thy fathers house, tyll my sonne Sela be growē: for he thought: peraducture he myghte dye also lyke as his brethre. So Thamar went hyr waye, and remayned in hyr fathers house. Now whan many dayes were past the doughter of Sua Judas wyfe dyed. And whā Juda had left mournyng, he went vp vnto Thimnath * to clyppe his shepe with his shrpeherde Hyra of Odollam. Gen.38.c

Then was it tolde Thamar: Beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp vnto Thimnath, to clyppe his shepe. Then put she of hyr wyddowes garmētes that she had vpō her, couered and dysgysed her selfe, and sat her downe without the porte by the waye lyde towarde Thimnath. For she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto hym to wyfe.

Now whan Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whore, for she had couered hir face: and he gat him to hyr in the waye, and sayde: I praye the let me lye with the: for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. She answered: What wylt thou geue me, that thou mayest lye with me? He sayde: I wyll sende the a kydde frō ꝑ flocke. She answered: Geue me a pledge tyll thou sendest it me. He sayde: What pledge wylt thou that I geue the?

She answered: Thy signet, and thy bracelet, and thy staffe that thou haste in thy hande. Then he gaue it her, and laye with her, and she was with chylde of hym. And she gat her vp, and wente hyr way and layed of hyr cloke, and put on hyr wedowes garmentes agayne.

Juda sent the kydde by his shepherde of Odolla, to fetche the pledge agayne frō the woman, and he founde her not. Then ared he the me of the ſame place, and ſayd: Wher is the whore that ſat without in the way? They ānſwered: There hath no whore ben here. And he came agayn vnto Juda, & ſayde: I haue not founde her, moreouer the men of the ſame place ſayd: that there hath no whore bene there. Juda ſayde: Let her take it vnto her, leſt we happly be ſhamed for I haue ſent ỹ kydde, and thou haſt not founde her.

¶ After the monethes it was tolde Juda: Thamar thy doughter in law hath played the whore: and beholde, by whordom is ſhe gotten with chylde. Juda ſayd: Bringe her forth, that ſhe maye be brent. And when ſhe was brought forth, ſhe ſent vnto her father in law, and ſayde: By the man that owneth theſe am I with chyld. And ſhe ſayde: Knowe I pray thou whoſe is thys ſygnet, this bracelet, and thys ſtaffe. Juda knew them and ſayde: She is more righteous then I, for I gaue her not my ſone Sela: But he laye no more with her.

When the tyme came that ſhe ſhulde be delyuered, there were two twyns founde in hyr wombe. And as ſhe was now in trauayling, the one put out his hande. Then the mydwife toke, and bounde a red thred about it, and ſayde: This ſhall come out firſt. But when he pluckte in his hande again, his brother cam forth. And ſhe ſayde: Wherfore is there a breche made for thy ſake? And he was called * Phares. Afterwarde came his brother forth, which had ỹ reed thred about his hande, and he was called Zarah.

JOſeph was brought downe into Egypte, and * Potiphar an Egipcian Pharaos chefe marſhal bought him of the Iſmaelites, that brought hym down. And the LORD was with Joſeph, in ſo much that he became a lucky man, & was in hys maiſters ỹ Egipcians houſe. And his 2.30.b maiſter ſawe * ỹ the LORD was with hym: for whatſoeuer he dyd, the LORD made it to proſpere in his hande: ſo ỹ he founde fauoure in his maiſters ſighte, and was his ſeruaūt. He made him ruler of his houſe, and put al that he had vnder his hande. And from the tyme forth that he had made hym ruler of his houſe and all his goodes, the LORDE bleſſed the Egipcians houſe for Joſephs ſake and there was nothynge but the bleſſynge of the LORDE, in al that he had in the houſe, and in the felde, therfore lefte he all that he had, in Joſeps hande. And medled with nothinge hym ſelfe, ſaue onely the breade that he dyd eate. And Joſeph was fayre of bewyte, and wel fauoured of face.

And it fortuned after theſe actes, that his maiſters wyfe caſt hyr eyen vpon Joſeph, and ſayde: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and ſayde vnto her: Beholde, my maiſter knoweth not what is in the houſe, and all that he hath, that hath he put vnder my hande. And there is no mā ſo greate in the houſe as I, and he hath kepte nothyng fro me, excepte the: for thou art his wyfe. How ſhulde I then do ſo greate euell, and ſynne agaynſt God? But ſhe ſpake ſuche wordes vnto Joſeph dayly. Neuertheles he herkened not vnto her, to ſlepe by her, or to be in hyr company.

¶ It fortuned vpon a tyme, that Joſeph wente in to the houſe to do his buſyneſſe, & there was none of the folkes of the houſe, therby. And ſhe caught hym by his garmēt & ſayde: Slepe with me. But he left ỹ garment in his hāde, & fled, & gat hym out of ỹ houſe.

Now when ſhe ſawe that he had lefte his garment in hyr hande, and fled oute, ſhe called the folkes of the houſe, and ſayde vnto them: Lo, he hath brought vs in the Hebrue, to do vs ſhame. He came in here vnto me, to ſlepe by me: but I cryed with loude voice. And whā he herd that I made a noyſe and cryed, he lefte his garmēt here by me, and fled, and came out.

And ſhe layed by his garment by here, tyll his maiſter came home, and tolde hym euen the ſame wordes, and ſayde: The Hebrue ſeruaūt whome thou broughteſt here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to do me ſhame. But when I made a noyſe and cryed, he lefte his garmēt here by me, and fled out. When his maiſter herde the wordes of his wyfe which ſhe tolde hym, and ſayde: Thus hath the Hebrue ſeruaunt done vnto me, he was very wrothe.

But the LORDE was with hym, and had mercy vpon hym, and caused hym to finde fauoure in the ſyghte of the officer of the priſon, ſo that he committed all the priſoners of the priſon vnto his handes: that whatſoeuer were done, myght be done by hym. * For the officer of the priſon ſawe Gen.39.a that the LORDE was with hym in all that was vnder his handes, and that what ſoeuer he dyd, the LORD made it to come prosperously to passe.

The.xl. Chapter.

AND it fortuned after this that the kyng of Egiptes chefe butlar and the chef baker, offended theyr lorde the kyng of Egipt And Pharao was angry with them, and caused them be put in prison in the chefe marshals house, where Joseph laye prisoner. And the chefe marshall put Joseph vnto them, that he myghte serue them. And so they were in prison for a seasō

And they dreamed, both the butlar and the baker in one night, euery mā his owne dreame, and euery dreame had his interpre tacyon. Now in ỹ mornyng whan Joseph came in vnto them, and sawe that they loked sadly, he ared the and sayd: Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayd: Interpretynge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

Then the chefe butlar tolde Joseph his dreame, and sayde vnto hym: I dreamed ỹ there was a vine before me, which had thre braūches, and it budded, grewe, and bare blossoms, and the grapes therof were ripe. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke (the grapes) and wronge them in to the cuppe, and gaue Pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph sayd: This is the interpretaciō: The thre braunches are thre dayes, and ouer thre dayes shall Pharao take the and put ỹ in thyne office agayne, that thou mayest geue hym the cuppe in his hande after the olde maner, whan thou wast his butlar But whā thou art in thy prosperite, thinke vpon me, & shewe me kyndnesse, that thou mayst certifye Pharao of me, that he maye bynge me out of this house for I was prively carted out of the londe of the Hebrues and here also haue I done nothynge, that they shulde haue put me in this dongeon.

Whan the chefe baker sawe, that the interpretacyon was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed, ỹ I bare thre wyker basketes vpon my heade, and in the vppermoost basket all maner of baken meates vnto Pharao, and the fowles dyd eate out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered and sayde: This is the interpretacyon: The thre basketes are thre dayes and after thre dayes shall Pharao take the, and hange the vpon the galowe, and the fowles shall eate thy flesh from of the.

And vpon the thyrde daye it came to passe, that Pharao made his * byrth daye, and helde a feast vnto all his seruauntes, & toke the chefe butlar, and the chefe baker before all his seruauntes, and restored the chefe butlar to his butlarshippe agayne, so that he reached the cuppe in to Pharaos hāde. As for the chefe baker, he caused hym be hanged lyke as Joseph had interpreted vnto hym. Neuertheles the chefe butlar thought not on Joseph but forgat hym.

The.xli. Chapter.

AND after two yeares Pharao had a dreame, how that he stode by a water syde: and beheld out of the water there came seuen goodly kyne, and fatfleshed, and wente feedynge in the medow. After these he sawe other seuen kyne come out of the water, which were euell fauoured & leane fleshed, and wente by the kyne vpon the water syde: and the euell fauoured leane kyne dyd eate vp the seuen goodly and fat kyne: then Pharao awaked.

And he slepte agayne, & dreamed the seconde tyme. And he sawe that seuē eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ful and good [illegible] he sawe seuen thynne blasted eares com vp: & ỹ seuē thynne eares deuoured ỹ seuen greate, and full eares. Then Pharao awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And whan it was daye, his spirit was troubled, and he sent out, and caused to call all the soothsayers in Egipte and all the wyse men, and tolde them his dreame. But there was none, that coulde tell Pharao the interpretacyon of it.

Then spake the chefe butlar vnto Pharao, & sayde: This day do I remembre my faute. Whā Pharao was angrye with his seruauntes, & put me in prison to the chefe baker in the cefe marshals house, we dreamed both in one nyght: euery man his dreame, hauynge his owne interpretacyon Then was there with vs a yonge man an Hebrue, the chefe marshals seruaunt, vnto whom we tolde it, and he declared our dremes vnto vs, vnto euery mā accordynge to his dreame. And as he declared it vnto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restored vnto myne office, and he was hanged.

Then Pharao sent and called for Joseph & they let him out of the dōgeon. And he let himselfe be shauē, & chaūged his clothes, & came in vnto Pharao. Then sayde Pharao to him: I haue dreamed a dreame, and there is noma ꝑ cã interprete it: But I haue herd tell of the, that whã thou heareſt a dreame, thou declareſt it. Ioſeph anſwered Pharao, and ſayde: God ſhall geue Pharao a proſperous anſwer, yee wel with out me.

C Pharao ſayde vnto Ioſeph: I dreamed that I ſtode by a water ſyde, and beholde, out of the water there came ſeuen kyne, fat fleſhed and goodly, and wente fedynge in the medowe. And after them I ſawe other ſeuẽ kyne come out thynne, euel fauoured, and leenfleſhed. So euell fauoured ſaw I neuer in all the lande of Egypte. And the ſeuen leene and euel fauoured kyne dyd eate vp the ſeuen fyrſte fatte kyne. And whan they had eaten them vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten thẽ, and were as euell fauoured as they were afore. Thẽ I awaked.

And I ſawe agayne in me dreame ſeuẽ eares of corne, growynge vpon one ſtalke, full and good. Afterwarde there ſprõge vp ſeuẽ withred eares, thynne and blaſted, and the ſeuen thynne eares deuoured the ſeuen good eares. And I haue ſhewed it vnto my ſoothſayers, but they can tell me nothynge therof.

D Ioſeph anſwered Pharao: Both Pharaos dreames ar one. god ſheweth Pharao what he wyl do. The ſeuẽ good kyen are ſeuẽ yeares, & the ſeuẽ good eares ar ſeuẽ yeares alſo. It is one dreame. The ſeuen leene and euell fououred kyne, that came vp after them, are ſeuen yeares. And the ſeuen thynne and blaſted eares, ſhalbe ſeuen yeares of derth. This is now ꝑ thynge which I told Pharao, that God ſhewed Pharao what he wyll do.

Beholde, there ſhall come ſeuen yeares with great plenteouſneſſe in the whole lãde of Egipte, & after the ſame, there ſhal come ſeuen yeares of derth ſo that all this plenteouſneſſe ſhalbe forgotẽ in the lande of Egypte, and the derth ſhall conſume the lãde ſo that the plenteouſneſſe ſhall not be perceaued in ꝑ lande, becauſe of the derth that cõmeth therafter, for it ſhalbe very greate. Where as Pharao dreamed ꝑ ſeconde tyme it ſignifyeth that this thynge is ſurely prepared of God, and that God wyll ſhortlye bringe the ſame to paſſe.

E Let Pharao now prouyde for a man of vnderſtondynge and wyſdome, whome he maye ſet ouer the londe of Egipte, & ſe that he ordene officers in the londe and take the fyfth (parte) of the lande of Egipte in the ſeuen pleteous yeares, & gather all the foode that ſhal come of the pleteous yeares, that they maye laye vp corne vnder Pharaos power for ſuſtenaunce in the cyties, & kepe it that there maye be foode foũde prepared for the lande in ꝑ ſeuen dear yeares, which ſhall come vpon the lande of Egypte that the lande be not deſtroyed by honger. The ſayenge pleaſed Pharao well & all his ſeruauntes. And Pharao ſayde vnto his ſeruauntes. How might we fynde ſuch a man in whome is the ſpyrete of God? And ſayde vnto Ioſeph: For ſo much as God hath ſhewed the all this, ther is none of ſuch vnder ſtondynge, and wyſdome as thou.

F * Thou ſhalt be ouer my houſe, and at thy worde ſhall all my people obeye: onely in the kynges ſeate wyll I be more then thou. And he ſayde: Behold, I haue ſet the ouer the whole lande of Egipte. And he toke of his ynge from his hande, and gaue it Ioſeph in his hande, and clothed him with whyte ſylke, and dyd hange a cheane of golde aboute his necke, and made hym ryde vpon the ſeconde chariet: & cauſed it to be proclamed before hym, that men ſhuld bowe their knees vnto him as to hym whome Pharao had ſet ouer the whole lande of Egipte. pſal.104.g Actu.7.b

And Pharao ſayde vnto Ioſeph: I am Pharao: without thy wyl ſhal nomã moue his hande or his fote in all the lande of Egipte: And he called hym ☞ Saph nath Paena and gaue hym a wyfe, euen Aſnath the doughter of Potiphar the preſt of On. So Ioſeph wente out, for to byſet ꝑ lande of Egipte. (And he was thyrtie yeare olde, whan he ſtode before Pharao) And he departed from Pharao, and wẽte thorow all the lande of Egipte. ☞ Saphnath Paena ꝑ is to ſaye An expoũder of ſecrete thynges or a mã to whome ſecretes thinges ar opened

And the londe dyd ſo thoſe ſeuen plenteous yeares: and they gathered al the foode of the ſeuẽ yeares ꝑ were in the lande of Egipt & layed it in ꝑ cities. Loke what foode grew in ꝑ felde roũde about euery cite they put it therin. So Ioſeph layed vp ꝑ corne in ſtoar, and that much aboue meaſure, as the ſonde of the ſee: in ſo much that he lefte of nõbrynge of it: for it could not be nõbred G

* And vnto Ioſeph there were borne two ſonnes (before the derth came) whome Aſnath the doughter of Potiphar preſt of On bare vnto hym. And the fyrſt called he Manaſſes: for God (ſayde he) hath cauſed me to forget all my laboure and all my fathers houſe. The ſeconde called he Ephraim: for God (ſayde he) hath cauſed me Gen.46.f

to growe in the lande of my trouble.

Now whan the seuen plenteous yeares
Actu.7.b were ended in Egipte. * Then beganne the seuen deare yeares to come, wherof Joseph hadde sayde. And there was derth in all landes, but in all the lande of Egypte there was foode. Nowe whan the lande of Egipte beganne to suffre honger also, ỹ people cryed vnto Pharao for bread But Pharao sayd vnto al the Egipcians: Go vnto Joseph, what he sayeth vnto you, that do. So whan there was derth in all ỹ lande, Joseph opened all that was by hym and solde vnto the Egyptians. Thus the derth preuayled in the londe, and all countrees came to Egipte to bye at Joseph: for the derth was myghtye in all landes

The.xlii. Chapter.

A WHā Jacob sawe that ther was much corne in Egipte, he sayd vnto his sōnes: Whygape ye? Beholde, I heare that ther is much corn in Egypt, go downe and bye vs corne, that we maye lyue & not dye. So Josephs ten brethrē wente downe to bye corne in Egypte. As for Ben Jamin Josephs brother, Jacob wolde not let him go wt his brethren, for he sayd: Some myscheefe myghte happen vnto him. So the chyldren of Israell came to bye corne amonge other that came with thē: for ther was derth also in the lāde of Canaan. But Joseph was gouernoure in the lande, and solde corne vnto all ỹ people of the lande.

Now whan his brethren came to hym, they fell downe to the grounde before hym vpō theyr faces, and he sawe thē and knew thē, and helde hymselfe straunge towarde thē, and talked roughly with thē, and sayd vnto thē: Whēce come ye? They sayd: Out of the lande of Canaan to bye vitayle. Neuertheles though he knewe thē, yet knew they not hym. And Joseph thought vpon
Gene.37a the dreames * that he had dreamed of thē and sayde vnto thē: ye are spyes, and are come tose where the londe is open.

B They answered hym: No my lorde, thy seruauntes are come to bye vitayle: we are all one mannes sonnes, we are vnfayned, & thy seruauntes were neuer spyes: He sayd vnto thē: No, but ye are come to se where ỹ lāde is open. They answered hym: We thy seruauntes are twelfe brethrē, the sōnes of one man in the lande of Canaan, & the yongest is wt our father, as for one he is awye.

Joseph sayd vnto them: This is it that I sayd vnto you: spyes are ye: Hereby wyll I proue you: By ỹ lyfe of Pharao ye shall not get hence, excepte your yongest brother come hether. Sende awaye one of you to fetche your brother, but ye shalbe in prison. Thus wyll I trye out youre wordes, whether ye go aboute with treuth or not: for els by the lyfe of Pharao ye are spyes. And he put thē together in warde thre dayes lōge.

C Upon the thyrde daye he sayde vnto thē yf ye wyll lyue, thē do thus, for I feare God yf ye be vnfayned, let one of youre brethren lye bounde in youre prison: but go ye your waye, and carye home the necessarie foode, & bringe me youre yongest brother, so wyll I beleue your wordes, that ye shal not dye and so they dyd.

And they sayde one to another: This hath we deserued againste our brother, in that we sawe the angwyshe of his soule, when he besought vs, & we wold not heare hym therfore cōmeth now this trouble vpon vs. Ruben answered thē and sayde: Tolde not I you the same, whan I sayde: * O synne not agaynst the lad, but ye wold not heare. Now is his bloude requyred. But they knew not that Joseph vnderstode it, for he spake vnto thē by an interpreter. And he turned hym from them, and wepte. Now whā he had turned him to them agayne and talked with them, he toke Symeon amonge thē and bounde him before theyr eyes, and cōmaunded to fyll theyr sackes with corne and to put euery mās money in his sacke, and to geue euery one his expenses by the waye. And so was it done vnto them.

And they laded theyr asses vpon theyr alles, and departed thence. But as one opened his sacke to geue his asse prouender in the inne, he spyed his money in his sacke mouth, and sayde vnto his brethren: My money is restored my agayn, lo, it is in my sacke. Then theyr hartes fayled them, and they were afrayed amonge theselues, and sayd: Wherfore hath God done this to vs.

Now whan they came home to Jacob theyr father in ỹ lāde of Canaan they tolde hym all that happened vnto them, & sayde: The man that is lorde of the lande, spake roughly vnto vs, and toke vs for spyes of the countre. And whā we answered: we are vnfayned, and were nether spyes, but are twelfe brethrē the sonnes of one father: one is awaye, and the yongest is yet this daye with our father in the lāde of Canaan. He sayde: Hereby wyll I marke that ye are vnfained: Leaue one of your brethrē with me, and take foode necessarie for youre houses, and go youre waye, & bringe your yongest brother vnto me: so shall I knowe that ye are no spyes, but vnfayned: then shall I delyuer you youre brother also, and ye maye occupye in the lande.

And whā they opened theyr sackes euery man founde his bōdell of moneye in his sacke. And whā they and theyr father sawe that it was the bōdels of theyr money, they were afrayed.

Then sayde Jacob theyr father: ye haue robbed me of my children, Joseph is awaye, Symeon is awaye, and ye wyll take Ben Jamin awaye: It goeth all ouer me. Ruben answered his father and sayde: yf I bringe him not to the againe, then slaye my two sonnes: delyuer hym in to my hāde I wyll bringe hym againe vnto the: He sayde: my sonne shall not go downe wt you for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. yf ony myshappe shuld happē vnto hym by the way that ye go, ye shuld bringe my gray heere with sorow downe in to ꝑ graue.

The.xliij.Chapter.

But the derth oppressed the lāde And whan al ꝑ vitayles ꝑ they had brought out of Egypte were spente, Jacob theyre father sayde vnto them: Go againe, and bye vs a lytle foode.

Then Juda answered hym and sayde: The man sware vnto vs, and sayd: ye shal not se my face, except youre brother be wt you. yf so be now that thou wilt sende our brother with vs we wyll go downe, and bye the foode. But yf thou wylt not sende hym, we wyll not go downe. For the man sayde vnto vs: ye shal not se my face, except your brother be with you.

Israell sayde: Wherfore haue ye done this euell vnto me: to tell the man, that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The mā enquered so straitely of vs and of oure kynrede, and sayde: Is your father yet a lyue? Haue ye yet a brother? Then tolde we him as he axed vs. How coulde we knowe, that he wolde saye: bringe your brother downe with you? The sayd Juda vnto Israell his father: Let the lad go with me that we may get vs vp and take oure iourney, and lyue and not dye, both we & thou, and our children. I wyll be suertye for hym, of my hāndes shalt thou crepye hym. If I bringe hym not vnto the againe, and set hym before thyne eyes, I wyl beare the blame my lyke longe longe. For yf we had not made this tarienge, we had now bē come againe twyse.

Thē sayde Israel theyr father vnto thē: yf it must nedes be so, then do this: take of the best frutes of the londe in youre sackes and bringe ꝑ man a present: a cruttle balme and hony, and spyces, and myrre, & dates, and almōdes. Take other money with you also, & the money that was brought againe in your sacke mouthes, carye it againe with you, peraduēture it was an ouersight. And take your brother, get you vp, & go againe vnto the man. The almyghtye God geue you mercy in the sighte of the man, that he maye let you haue your other brother, and Ben Jamin. As for me I muste be as one, that is robbed of his children.

So they toke the present, and other money with them, and Ben Jamin: gat them vp, and wente in to Egipte, and stode before Joseph. Then Joseph beheld them with Ben Jamin, and sayd vnto the ruler of his house: Bringe these men, and slaye, & make ready, for they shal dyne with me at noone. And the man dyd as Joseph bad hym, and brought the men into Josephs house.

Whā they were brought into Josephs house, they were afrayed, and sayd: We are brought hither because of the moneye, that came againe in oure sackes at the fyrst, to pyke a quarell with vs, and to laye some thynge to oure charge, and to take vs for bonde seruauntes with our asses.

Therfore came they to the mā, that was ruler of Josephs house, & talked with hym at the dore, & sayde: Syr, we came downe at the first to bye foode and whan we came in the inne, & opened oure sackes, beholde, euery mans money was in his sackmouth with ful weyght: therfore haue we brought it with vs againe, and haue brought other money vp vs also, to bye foode: but we can not tell, who put our money in our sackes.

He sayde be content, feare ye not, youre God, euen that God of youre fathers hath geuen you that treasure in youre sackes, I had your money. And he brought forth Symeon vnto them, and led the into Josephs house, an gaue them waters to washe their fete, and gaue their asses prouender.

And they made ready ꝑ present against Joseph came at noone: for they herde that they shuld dyne there. Now when Joseph went in to ꝑ house they brought him home the present that they had & fel downe to the grounde before hym. But he welcomed the curteously, and sayd: is your father, (ye olde man which ye tolde me of) in good healthe Is he yet alyue? They answered: Thy seruaunt our father is in good health, & is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues, and fell downe before hym.

And he lyft vp his eyes, & sawe his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, & sayd: * Is this your yongest brother, that ye told me of? And he sayd moreouer: God be mercyfull vnto the my sone. And Joseph made haist (* for ye groud of hys harte was kyndled toward his brother) and sought how he myght wepe, and went in to his chamber & wepte there.

And whan he had washed his face, he went out and refrayned hym selfe, & sayde: set bread (on the table.) And they brought vnto hym by hym selfe, and vnto them by them selues, and to the Egipcyās also that dyd eate with them, by the selues. (For the Egipcians dare not eate bread with the Hebrues, that is abhominacyon vnto them.) And they were set ouer agaynst hym, ye fyrst borne accordynge to his fyrst byrth, and the yongest after his youth. They marueyled at it amonge them selues, and there were brought them sundrye meates from his table. But Ben Jamins part was fyue tymes more then the other. And they dronke, and were merry with hym.

The.xliiii. Chapter.

AND Joseph commaunded the ruler of his house, & sayd: Fyll the mēs sackes wyth foode, as much as they maye carye, and put euery mans money in his sacke mouth: and put my syluer cuppe in ye sack mouth of the yongest with the money for the vitayles. He dyd as Joseph had sayd And on the morowe whan it was day, they let the men go with theyr asses.

But whan they were out of the cite, and not come farre, Joseph sayd to the ruler of his house: Vp, and folowe after the men, & whan thou ouertakest them, say vnto them Wherfor haue ye rewarded euel for good? Is not that it, that my lorde drynketh out of? and that he prophecyeth with all? It is euell done of you, that ye haue done.

And whan he had ouertaken thē, he sayd the same wordes vnto them. They answered hym: Wherfore sayeth my lorde suche wordes? God forbyd, that thy seruauntes shulde do ony such thynge? Behold, the money that we founde in our sackes mouths, that brought we vnto ye agayne, out of the lande of Canaan: how shulde we then haue stollen eyther syluer or golde out of thy lordes house? Loke by whom it shalbe founde amonge thy seruauntes, let hym dye: yet & we also wyl be my lordes bondmē. He sayde let it be so, as ye haue spoken. Loke by whō it shalbe founde, let hym be my seruaūt, but ye shalbe harmelesse.

And they made hast and toke euery mā downe his sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke: And he searched and beganne at the greatest vnto the yongest, & the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sack. Thē rent they theyr clothes, and euery mā dyd lade the burthen vpon his asse, & went againe vnto the cyte. And Juda went with his brethre vnto Josephs house (for he was there yet) and they fell before hym vnto the grounde. Joseph sayd vnto them: What maner of dede is this, that ye haue done? Knewe ye not, that such a man as I am, can prophecye?

Juda sayd: What shall we say vnto my lorde? or how shall we speake? and what excuse shall we make? God hath founde out ye wickednes of thy seruauntes. Beholde, we and he, by whom the cuppe is founde, are my lordes seruauntes. But he sayde: God forbyd that I shulde do so. The mā by whō the cuppe is founde, shalbe my seruaūt, but go ye vp in peace vnto your father.

Then stepte Juda vnto hym, and sayde: My lorde: let thy seruaūt speake one word in thyn eares my lorde, be not displeased at thy seruaunt also, for thou art euen as pha rao. My lorde axed his seruauntes & sayde: Haue ye yet a father or brother? Thē answered we: We haue a father, which is olde, & a ponge lad begottē in his age, and his brother is dead, and he is lefte alone of his mother, and his father loueth hym.

Then saydest thou: Brynge hym downe vnto me, and I wyll se hym. But we answered my lorde: The lad can not come fro his father, yf he shulde come from hym, he were but a dead man. Thē saydest thou vnto thy seruauntes: * yf your yongest brother come not hyther with you, ye shall se me face no more. Then went we vp vnto thy seruaūt my father, and told hym my lordes wordes. Then sayde oure father: Go youre wape & bye vs a lytle foode. But we sayde: We can not go downe, except oure yongest brother be with vs, then wyll we go downe: for we darre not loke the man in the face, yf our yongest brother be not with vs. Then ſaid thy ſeruaunt my father vnto vs: ye knowe ꝑ my wyfe bare me two ſonnes, one went out fro me, and I ſayd: *he is torne in peces. If ye take this fro me alſo, and ony miſfortune happe him *then ſhall ye bringe my graye heer with ſorow downe vnto the graue.

If I now come home vnto my father & the lad be not with me (ſeynge his ſoule hãgeth by the ſoule of this) then ſhall it come to paſſe, that yf he ſe not ꝑ lad there, he ſhall dye. So ſhall we thy ſeruaunte bringe the gray heer of thy ſeruaunt our father with ſorowe downe to the graue. *For I thy ſeruaunt became ſuerty for the lad vnto my father, and ſayd: yf I bringe hym not agayn I wyll beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Therfore let thy ſeruaũt byde here in ſtead of the lad, to be my lordes bonde man, & let the lad go vp with his brethre. For how can I go vp vnto my father, yf the lad be not with me? Then ſhulde I ſe the myſery that ſhulde happen vnto my father.

The.xlv. Chapter.

Ihe could not Joſeph refrayne hym ſelfe before all them that ſtode aboute hym: and he commaũded euery mã to go of frõ him, and there ſtode no man by hym, whã Joſeph vttred him ſelfe vnto his brethren. And he wepte loude, ſo that the Egipcians and Pharaos houſholde herde it. And he ſayd vnto his brethren: *I am Joſeph, is my father yet alyue? And his brethren coulde not anſwere hym, they were ſo abaſhed before his face. But he ſayd: Come nye vnto me. And they came nye. And he ſayd: I am Joſeph your brother: *whome ye ſold in to Egipt. And now vexe not your ſelues, and thynke not ꝑ there is ony wrath becauſe ye ſolde my herher, *for God ſent me hyther before you, for your lyues ſake. For theſe ar now two yeares, that the derth hath bene in the londe, and ther are yet fyue yeares behynde, wherin there ſhalbe no plowynge, nor harueſt.

But God ſent my herher before you, that he myght let you remayne vpon earth, and to ſaue your lyues by a great deliuerãce. And now it was not ye then that ſent me hether, but god which hath made me a father vnto Pharao, and lorde ouer all his houſe, and a prince in the whole lande of Egipte. Haſte you therfore, and go vp vnto my father, & ſay vnto hym: Thy ſõne Joſeph ſendeth ꝑ this word: God hath made me lorde in all Egipte, come downe vnto me, tarye not, thou ſhalt dwell in the lande of Goſen, and be with me: thou and thy children, and thy children's children, thy ſmall and great cattell, and al that thou haſt. There wyl I make prouiſiõ for the (for there are yet fyue yeares of derth) that thou peryſhe not with thyne houſe, and all that is thyne. Beholde your eyes, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin ſe, that I myne owne ſelfe ſpeake vnto you by mouth. Shewe my father all my worſhippe in Egipte, & all that ye haue ſene: haſte you, & come downe hether with my father.

And he fell aboute his brother Ben Jamins necke, & wepte, and Ben Jamin wept vpon his neck alſo. And he kyſſed all his brethren, and wepte vpon them. And afterwarde talked his brethren with hym. And this tydynges came vnto Pharaos houſe: Joſephs brethren are come, which pleaſed Pharao well, and all his ſeruaunte.

And Pharao ſpake vnto Joſeph: Saye vnto thy brethren: Do thus, lade your beaſtes, go your waye, and whan ye come in to the lande of Canaan, take your father and youre houſholdes, & come vnto me, I wyll gene you of the goodes in ꝑ londe of Egipte ſo that ye ſhall eate the fatte in the londe. And he commaunded them. Do thus, take you charrettes out of the lande of Egipte for your children and wyues, and bringe your father, and come, and regard not your houſeholde ſtuffe: for the good of al ꝑ londe of Egipte ſhalbe yours.

The children of Iſrael dyd ſo, and Joſeph gaue the charrettes accordyng to Pharaos cõmaundemẽt & expẽſes by ꝑ waye, & gaue the al, vnto euery one a chaunge of rayment, but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue thre hũdreth ſyluer pẽs, & fyue chaunge of rayment. As for his father he ſet hym ten aſſes laden wt goodes out of Egipte, & ten aſſes with corne, & breed & vytayles for his father by the waye. So he ſent away his brethren, & ſayd vnto them: Brepne not by the waye.

Thus they departed out of Egipte, and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde hym, and ſayd: Thy ſonne Joſeph is yet alyue, and is a lorde in all the lande of Egipte. But his hart was ſad, for he beleued them not. Therefore they hym all ꝑ wordes of Joſeph, which he had ſayd vnto them. And when he ſawe the charrettes ꝑ Joſeph had ſent to fetche hym, his ſpyrite reuyued, & he ſayd: Inough, ꝑ my ſonne Joſeph is yet alyue I wyl go, and se hym before I dye.

soules that came with Jacob in to Egipte, which proceaded out of his loynes (beyde
the wyues of his children) are altogether fyue and sixtye soules. And Josephs children which were borne vnto hym in Egipte, were two soules: so that all the soules of ꝑ house of Jacob which came in to Egipte, were se uentye.

And he sent Juda before hym vnto Joseph, to shewe hym the waye to Gosen, and they came in to the londe of Gosē. The Joseph bended his charret fast, and went vp to mete Israel his father vnto Gosen. And whan he sawe hym, he fell aboute his neck, and wepte sore vpon his necke. Then sayd Israel vnto Joseph: Now am I content to dye, for so muche as I haue sene thy face, ꝑ thou art yet alyue.

Joseph sayd vnto his brethren, & to his fathers house: I wyll go vp, and tell Pharao, and saye vnto hym: My brethren & my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are keepers of cattel (for they are men ꝑ deale with cattell: they haue small and great cattell, and all that they haue they brought with them. Now if Pha rao call you, and saye: what is your occupa cyon: then ye shall saye: Thy seruaũtes are men that haue dealt with cattell from our youth vp hetherto, both we & oure fathers,
that ye maye dwell in the londe of Gosen:
for ꝑ Egipciãs abhorre al keepers of cattel.

The.xlvii.Chapter.

Then came Joseph, and told Pharao and sayd: My father and my brethren, their small great cattell, and all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan: and behold, they are in ꝑ lande of Gosen. And he toke fyue of his brethren, and presented them vnto Pharao. Then sayd Pharao vnto his brethren: What is your occupacyon: They answered: Thy ser uaũtes are keepers of cattel, we & our fathers
also. And they sayd moreouer vnto Pharao

We are come to dwel with yon in the lõde, for thy seruaũtes haue no pasture for their cattell, so sore doth the derthe oppresse the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Gosen.

B Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: Thy father and thy brethrẽ are come vnto the: the lãde of Egipte is open before the, let them dwel in ỹ best place of the lande, and se that they dwell euen in the lande of Gosen. And yf thou knowest that there be men of actiuite amonge thẽ, make thẽ rulers of my cattell.

Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and sette hym before Pharao. And Jacob thãked Pharao. But Pharao axed Jacob: How olde art thou e Jacob sayd: The tyme
h. 14. c of my* pylgremage is an hundreth & thir-
i. 113. c tye yeares: lyttel and euel is the tyme of my pylgremage, and attayneth not vnto the tyme of my fathers in their pylgremages. And Jacob thanked Pharao, and wente out from hym.

C So Joseph prepared dwellynges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them a possession in the londe of Egypte, euen in the best place of the lande namely, in ỹ lãde of Raemses, as Pharao cõmaunded. And he made prouysion for his father & brethrẽ, and all his fathers house with bread, euen as ponge chyldren.

There was no bread in al the londe, for the derth was very sore, so that the lãde of Egypte and the lande of Canaan were famished by the reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was foũde in Egypte and Canaan, for the corne that they bought. And he layed vp all the money in Pharaos house.

Now whan money fayled in the lande of Egypte and Canaan, all the Egiptians came vnto Joseph, & sayd: Geue vs bread: Why sufferest thou vs to dye before the, becanse we are without money. Joseph sayd:
D Bringe hyther your cattel, so wyll I geue you for your cattel, seynge ye are without money. Then brought they their cattel vnto Joseph. And he gaue thẽ bread for their horses, shepe, oxen and asses. So he fed thẽ with bread that yeare, for all their cattell.

Whan that yeat was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yeare, and sayde vnto hym: We wyll not hyde it from our Lorde, that not onely the money but all the cattell also is spent vnto our lorde and there is no thynge more left more for oure Lorde, but onely our body & our londe. wherfore suffer not thou both vs to dye before your lorde. Take vs and our lande for bread, that we & our lande maye be bonde vnto Pharao: geue vs sede, that we may lyue and not dye, and that the londe become not a wyldernesse.

gypte for Pharao: for the Egipcyans solde euery man his lãde, because the derth was so mighty vpon them, and so the londe became Pharaos, with the people that went out and in at his cities, from one syde of Egypte vnto ỹ other excepte the prestes lõde that toke he not in: for it was ordeyned of Pharao for the prestes, that they shuld eate that which was appoynted them, which he gaue them: therfore they neded not to sell their londes.

Thẽ sayde Joseph vnto the people: Be F
holde, I haue taken possession of you and youre lande this day for Pharao, Behold, there haue ye sede, sowe the londe, and of ỹ come ye shall geue ỹ fyfth parte vnto Pharao: four partes shalbe youres, to sowe the londe for youre sustenaunce, and for youre houses and chyldren.

They sayd: Let vs lyue, and finde grace before ỹ oure lorde, we wyll gladly be Pharaos seruauntes. So Joseph made there a lawe vnto this daye ouer the Egipcyans londe, to geue Pharao the fyfthe parte, excepte the prestes lõde, which was not bõde vnto Pharao.

So Israel dwelt in Egipte in the lõde G of Gosen, and had it in possession and grew and multiplyed exceadyngly. And Jacob lyued seuẽtene yeare in the londe of Egipte so that his whole age was an hũdreth and seuen and fortye yeares.

Now whã the tyme came that Israell shulde dye, he called Joseph his sonne and sayd vnto hym: yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, * then laye thyne hande vnder Gen. 24. d my thye, that thou shalt shewe mercy and faythfulnesse vpõ me, and not burye me in Egipte, but I wyl lye by my fathers, & thou shalt carye me out of Egipte, & burye me in their buryal. He sayd: I wyll do as thou hast sayde. But he sayde: * Then sweare vn- Gen. 25. d to me. And he swore vnto hym. Then Israell bowed hym selfe towarde the bedheade.

The xlviii. Chapter.

After this it was tolde Joseph: A Beholde, thy father is sicke: & he toke with hym his two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob: Beholde, thy sonne Joseph cõmeth vnto the. And Israell toke a corage vnto hym, & sat

vp vpon the bed, and ſayde vnto Joſeph: The almyghtye God appeared vnto me

Gene.35.b * Rachell dyed by me in the lande of Canaan by the way, whan there was yet but a feldes bred vnto Ephrath: and I buryed her in the waye towarde Ephrath, whiche is now called Bethleem.

And Iſrael loked vpon Joſephs ſönes, and ſayde: What are theſe? Joſeph anſwered: They are my ſonnes, which God hath geuen me here. He ſayde brynge them hyther to me, that I maye bleſſe them. (For Iſraels eyes were heupe for age, and he coulde not well ſe.) And he brought the vn-

C Then Joſeph toke the both, Ephraim in his righte hande, towarde Iſraels lefte hand, and Manaſſes in his lefte hande towarde Iſraels righte hande, and brought them vnto hym. But Iſrael ſtretched out his righte hande, & layed it vpon the heade of Ephraim the yongeſt, and his lefte hāde vpon Manaſſes heade, & dyd ſo wittyngly ter the name of my fathers Abraham and Iſaac, that they may growe and multiplie vpon earth. But whan Joſeph ſawe that D his father layed the righte hande vpon Ephraims heade, it diſpleaſed hym, and he lyfte vp his fathers hāde, to remoue it frō Ephraims heade vnto the heade of Ma-

Now whan the mournyng dayes were ended, Joseph spake vnto Pharaos housholde, and sayde: ꝯ I haue founde fauour in youre syghte, then speake vnto Pharao and saye: My father hath taken an oth of me, and sayde: * Beholde, I dye, burye me Gen.47.g in myne owne graue whiche I dygged foꝛ my selfe in the lande of Canaan, therfoꝛe wyll I now go vp, and burye my father, ꝛ come agayne. The fyrst Chapter.

THese ar the names of the chyldre of Jsrael *that came with Jacob in to Egipte: euery one came in with his houſe, Ruben, Symeō, Leui, Juda, Jſachar, Sabulō, Benjamin, Dan, Nepthtali, Gad and Aſer. Gen.46.b

And of all the ſoules that came out of ẏ loynes of Jacob, there were ſeuentie. Genesis

As for Joſeph he was in Egipte al ready. *Now whan Joſeph was dead, and all his brethren, and all they that lyued at that tyme the chyldren of Jſrael grewe, and increaced, and multiplyed, and became exceadynge myghtye, ſo that the lande was full of them. pſal.105.a Acts.7.c

Then came there a new kynge ouer Egipte, which knewe not ẏnge of Joſeph, & ſayd vnto his people: Beholde, the people of the chyldren of Jſrael are many & myghtyer then we: Vp, let vs deale wyſely with them, that there be not ſo many of them. For yf ther ſhuld ryſe vp ony warre againſt vs, they myght ioyne them ſelues alſo vnto oure enemyes and ouercome vs, and ſo get them out of the londe.

And he ſet workemaſters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burthens. (For they buylded the cyties of Phiton and Raemſes for treaſuries vnto Pharao.) But the more they vexed them, the more they multiplied and grewe,

Therfore had they indignacyon at the chyldren of Jſrael, and the Egipcyans compelled the chyldren of Jſrael without mercy to do ſeruyce, and made theyr lyues bytter vnto them with greuous labour in clay and bryck, and with all maner of bondage in the felde, and with all maner of labour, which they layed vpon the without mercy.

And the kynge of Egipte ſayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebruelwemen, (Of the which one was called Siphra, and ẏ other Hua:) Whan ye helpe the wemen of the Hebrues, and se vpon the stole, that is a sonne, the slaye hym: but yf it be a doughter let her lyue. Neuertheiesse the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egipte cōmaunded them, but let the chyldren lyue.

D Then the kynge of Egipte called ỹ mydwyues, and sayd vnto them: Wherfore do ye this, that ye let the chyldren lyue? The mydwyues answered Pharao: the wemen of the Hebrues are not as the wemen of Egipte, for they are lurdy wemen: or euer the mydwyues come at them, they are delyuered.

Therfore God dealt well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplyed, and became exceadynge myghty. And for so much psal.126.a as ỹ mydwyues feared God, * he made the houses. Then Pharao commaunded al his people and sayde: All the sonnes that are borne, cast in to ỹ water, but let al ỹ doughters lyue.

The.ii. Chapter.

A AND there wente forth a man Exo.6.a * of the house of Leui, and toke Leui.7.c a doughter of Leui. * And the Heb.11.b wyfe cōceaued and bare a sōne. * And whā she sawe that it was a proper chylde, she hyd him thre mōnethes And whan she coulde hyde hym no longer, she toke an Arke of redes, and dawbed it ouer with slyme and pitche, and layed the chylde therin, and set it amonge the redes by the waters brynke. But his syster stode afarre of, to wete what shulde come of hym

And Pharaos doughter came downe 2.Re.17.a * to washe her selfe in ỹ water: and hir mayDuran.c dens walked by the water syde: and whan she sawe the Arke amonge ỹ redes, she sent one of hir maydens, and caused it to be fet. And whan she opened it, she sawe the chyld: and beholde the babe wepte. Then had she pytie vpon it, and sayde: It is one of the Hebrues chyldren.

B Then sayde his syster vnto Pharaos doughter: Shall I go, and call the a nurse of the Hebrues wemē, to nurse the ỹ chylde? Pharaos doughter sayd vnto her: Go thy waye. The mayde went, and called the childes mother. Then sayd Pharaos doughter vnto her: Take this chylde and nurse it for me, I wyll geue the thy rewarde. The woman toke the chylde, and nursed it.

And whan the chylde was growen, she brought it vnto Pharaos doughter and it became hir sonne, and she called hym Moses. For she sayd, I toke hym out of ỹ water.

Upon a tyme whan Moses was grow he went forth vnto his brethrē, & loked vpon they? burthens, and sawe, that an Egipcyan smote one of his brethren the Hebrues. And he loked rounde aboute hym: and whan he sawe that there was noman, he slewe the Egipcyan, and buryed hym in the sonde.

The next daye he went forth also & sawe two men of the Hebrues stryuyng togethē and sayd to the vngodly: Wherfore smytest thou thy neghboure? But he sayde: * Who made the a ruler or iudge ouer vs? Wylt thou slay me also, as thou slewest the Egipcyan? Then was Moses afrayed, and sayd: How is this knowen? And Pharao herde of it, and sought for Moses, to slaye hym. But Moses fled from Pharao, & kept hym in the lande of Madian, and sat hym downe by a welles syde.

The preest of Madian had seuen doughters, which came to drawe water, and fylled the troughes, to geue they? fathers shepe to drynke. Then came the shepherdes, & drone them awaye. But Moses gat hym vp, and helped the, and gaue they? shepe to drynke. And whā they came to Reguel they? father he sayd: How came ye so sone to daye? They sayd: a man of Egipte delyuered vs frō the shepherdes, and drewe vnto vs, and gaue ỹ shepe to drynke. He sayd vnto his doughters. Where is he? Wherfor let ye the man go, that ye called hym not to eat with you?

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. * And he gaue Moses his doughter Zipora, which bare hym a sonne and he * called hym Gerson, for he sayde: I am become a straunger in a straunge lande. And she bare hym yet a sōne, whom he called Eliezer, and sayd: The God of my father is my helper, and hath delyuered me frō Pharaos hande.

But after this in processe of tyme, the kynge of Egipte dyed. And the chyldren of Israel syghed ouer they? labour, and cryed And they? crye ouer they? labour came before God. * And God herde they? cōplaynt and remembred his cōuenaunt * with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And God loked vpon the chyldren of Israel, & God knewe

M OSES kept the shepe * of Jethro his father in lawe preest of Madian, and droue the shepe ouer the backsyde of ỹ wyldernesse, and came to the mountayne of God horeb. * And the angel of the LORD appeared vnto hym in a flamme of fyre out of the bush. And he sawe that the bush brent with fyre, and yet was not cõsumed, and sayd: I wyll go hẽce, & se this great syght, why the bush is not brent.

When the LORDE sawe, that he went his waye to se, God called vnto hym out of the bushe, and sayd: Moses Moses. He answered: Here am I. He sayd: * Come not hyther, put of thy shuesskõ thy fete, for ỳ place wherupon thou stondest, is an holy groũde And he sayd moreouer: * I am the God of thy father, the God of Abrahã, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses couered his face, for he was afrayed to loke vpon God.

And the LORDE sayd: I haue sene the trouble of my people in Egipte * and haue herd theyr crye ouer those that oppresse thẽ. I knowe theyr sorow, and am come down to delyuer thẽ frõ the power of ỳ Egiptyãs and to carye them out of that lande, in to a good and wyde londe, euen in to a lande ỳ floweth with mylke and hony: namely, vnto the place of ỳ Cananites, Hethites, Ammorites, Pherezites, Heuites, and Jebusytes. For so much now as the complaynte of the chyldren of Israel is come before me, & I haue sene theyr oppression wherwith the Egiptians oppresse thẽ: * Go now thy way therfore, I wyll sẽde the vnto Pharao, that thou mayest brynge my people the chyldrẽ of Israel out of Egipte. Moses sayde vnto God: * Who am I, that I shulde go vnto Pharao, and brynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egipte.

He sayd: I wyll be with the, & this shall be the token, that I haue sent the. When thou hast brought my people out of Egipte ye shall serue God vpon this mountayne. Moses sayd vnto God: Beholde, when I come to the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: The God of your fathers hath sẽt me vnto you, and they saye vnto me: What is his name, what shall I saye vnto them? God sayd vnto Moses: * I wylbe what I wylbe. And he sayd: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I wylbe hath sent me vnto you. And God sayd moreouer vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou say vnto the chyldren of Israel: * The LORDE God of your fathers, the God of Abraham the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you, this is my name for euer, and my memoriall from chylde to chyldes chylde. Go thy waye therfore, and gather ỳ elders of Israel together, and saye vnto thẽ The LORDE God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, ỳ God of Jacob hath appeared vnto me, & sayde: I haue vysited you, and sene what is done vnto you in Egipte, and haue sayd: I wyll brynge you out of the trouble of Egipte, in to ỳ lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Ammorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Jebusites: in to a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. And yf they heare thy voyce, thẽ shalt thou and the elders of Israel go in to the kynge of Egipte, and saye vnto hym: The LORDE God of the Hebrues hath called vs. * Let vs go now therfore thre dayes iourney in the wylderneße, that we may do sacrifyce vnto the LORD our God. Exod.5.f

But I knowe that the kynge of Egipt wyl not let you go, but thorowe a myghtye hande. For I wyll stretch out my hande, and smyte Egipte with all maner of wonders whiche I wyll do therin: after that shall he let you go. * And I wyll geue this people fauoure in the syght of the Egipcyans: so that when ye go forth, ye shal not go forth emptye: but euery wyfe shall borowe of hyr neyghbourelle, and of her ỳ sogyourneth in hyr house Jewels of syluer and golde, and rayment: those shall ye put vpon your sonnes and doughters, & spoyle the Egipcyans. Exod.11.g and 12.g

The.iiij. Chapter.

MOses answered, and sayd: Beholde, they shall not beleue me, nor heare my voyce, but shall saye: The LORDE hath not appeared vnto the. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: What is that, that thou hast in thyne hande? He sayd a staffe. He sayd: Cast it frõ the vpon the grounde. And he cast it from him: then was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled from it. But the LORDE sayd vnto hym: Stretch forthe thyne hande, and take it by the tayle. Then stretched he forth his hande, and toke it, & it became a staffe agayne in his hande. Therfore shall they beleue that the LORDE God of theyr fathers, the God of Abrahã, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And ỳ LORD sayd furthermore vnto him: Thrust thyne hande into thy bosome. And he thrust it in to his bosome and toke it out Beholde, then was it leperous lyke snowe.

And he sayd: put it into thy bosome agayne and he put it agayne in to his bosome, and toke it out: behold, thé was it turned agayn

But Moses sayde: My LORDE, sende

D Moses went, and came agayne vnto Iethro his father in lawe, and sayde vnto
hym: Let me go (I praye the) that I maye

in Egipte, and se whether they be yet alyue
Iethro said vnto him: Go thy way i peace.
The LORDE sayd also vnto hym in Madi
an: Go thy waye, turne agayne in to Egipt for the men are dead that sought after thy lyfe. So Moses toke his wyfe, and his son nes, and caryed them vpon an Asse, & went agayne in to the londe of Egipte, and toke
the staffe of God in his hande. And the LOR DE sayd vnto Moses: Whā thou commest agayne into Egipte se that thou do all the wōders (before Pharao) which I haue put in thy hande. * But I wyl harden his hart that he shal not let the people go. And thou shalt saye vnto Pharao: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Israell is my fyrst borne sonne, and I saye vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me: ℣ thou wilt not let him go, * then wyll I slaye thy fyrstborne sonne.
And as he was by the waye in the Inne,
the LORDE met him, and wolde haue slayne
hym. Then toke Sipora * a stone, and cir cumcised the foreskynne of hir sōne, and cast ched his fete, and sayde: A bloudy husbā grome art thou vnto me. Then let he him go. But she said: A bloudy brydegrome, be cause of his circumcision.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Aaron: Go mete Moses in ℣ wyldernesse. And he went and met hym on the mount of God, and kis sed hym. And Moses tolde Aaron all ℣ wor

the tokens that he had charged hym with all. And they wente, and gathered al the el tolde all the wordes, that the LORDE had spoken vnto Moses: and dyd the tokens

before the people, and the people beleued.
And whan they herde that the LORDE vi their trouble, they bowed them selues, and worshipped.

The.v.Chapter.

AFterwarde wente Moses and Aaron, and spake vnto Pha rao: Thus sayeth the LORDE
the God of Israell: let my peo ple go, that they may kepe hy daye vnto me in the wyldernesse. Pharao answered: * What felowe is the LORDE that I must heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the LORDE, nother wyl
I let Israell go.

They sayd the God of the Hebrues hath called vs. Let vs go now therfore thre dayes iourney in the wyldernesse, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE oure God, that ther hap pen not vnto vs pestilence or sweard. Then sayd the kynge of Egipte vnto them: Why make ye the people (thou Moses & Aaron) to leaue their worke? Get you hēce to your laboure. Pharao sayd moreouer: Beholde, the people are to many in the londe, and ye wyll ye byd them ceasse from their labour.

The same daye therfore dyd Pharao

commaũde the worckmasters of the people, and theyr officers, and sayd: ye shall not gather and gene the people ony more strawe, to burne bryke, as yesterdaye & yesterdaye. Let them go and gather them strawe themselues. And the nombre of the bryke whiche they made yesterdaye and yesterdaye, shall ye laye vpon them neuertheles, and mynyshe nothynge therof: for they are ydle. Therfore crye they and saye: We wyll go, and do sacrifyce vnto our God. Let the mẽ be kept downe with labour, that they may haue to do, and not to turne them selfe to false wordes.

Then went the worckmasters of the people and theyr officers out, and spake vnto the people: Thus sayeth Pharao: There shall no strawe be geuẽ you, go yours wayes poure selues, and get you strawe, where ye can fynde it. But of your labour ther shall nothynge be mynyshed. Then were the people scatred in all the lande of Egipte, to gather stubble, that they myght haue strawe.

C And the worckmaysters hasted them forwarde, and sayd: Fulfyll your dayes worke lyke as whan ye had strawe. And the officers of the chyldren of Israell, whom Pharaos worckmaysters had set ouer them, were beaten, and it was sayd vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfylled youre appoynted dayes worke to daye and yesterdaye, lyke as in tymes past.

Then wente the officers of the chyldren of Israel, and complayned vnto Pharao. Wherfore wylt thou deale thus with thy seruauntes? Thy seruauntes haue no strawe geuen them, and yet muste we make the bryke that are appoynted vs. And beholde, thy seruauntes are beaten, & thy people are euell intreated. Pharao sayd ye are ydle, ydle are ye, therfore saye ye: we wyll go, and do sacrifyce vnto the LORDE. Go now your way therfore and worke: ther shall no strawe be geuen you, but the nõbre of bryke shall ye delyuer.

D Then sawe the officers of the chyldren of Israell, that it was not amended, for it was sayd: ye shall mynyshe nothynge of ỹ dayes worke of the bryche. And whan Moses and Aaron wente from Pharao, they came forth to mete them, and sayd vnto the: The LORDE loke vpon you, and iudge it, for ye haue made ỹ fauoure of vs to stynke before Pharao and his seruauntes, & haue geuen them a swearde in theyr handes, to slaye vs.

But Moses came agayne to the LORDE and sayd: LORDE wherfore dealest thou so euell with this people? Wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence the tyme that I went in to Pharao to speake vnto him in thy name he hath dealt euell with this people, & thou hast not delyuered thy people. The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Now shalt thou se what I wyll do vnto Pharao, for thorow a myghtye hande must he let them go + thorowe a myghtye hande muste he dryue them from hym out of his londe. + Exo.14.9

The.vj.Chapter.

AND God spake vnto Moses. I and sayd vnto hym: I am the LORD, and I appeared vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, an almyghtye God: but + my name, LORDE, haue I not shewed vnto them: My couenaunt also haue I made with them, + that I wyll geue the the londe of Canaan, the londe of theyr pylgrymage, wherin they haue ben straungers. Moreouer I haue herde the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel, whõ the Egipcians oppresse with labour, and haue remembred my couenaunt. + Gen.17.8

Therfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israell: I am the LORDE, and wyll bryngе you out from yoke bondes in Egipte, and wyll rydde you from youre labour, & wyll delyuer you thorow a stretched out arme & great iudgementes, and wyll receaue you for my people, and wyl be your God: so that ye shall knowe, that I the LORDE am your God, which bryngе you out from the burthen of Egipte, and wyll bryngе you in to the lande, ouer the whiche I lyfte vp my hande, to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Iacob: the same wyll I geue vnto you for a possession, I the LORDE.

Moses told this vnto the chyldren of Israell. But they herkened not vnto hym, for very anguysh of spyrite, & for sore labource. The spake the LORD vnto Moses, & sayde: Go thy waye and speake vnto Pharao the kynge of Egipte, that he let the chyldren of Israell go out of his londe. Then Moses spake before the LORDE and sayde: Beholde the chyldren of Israel herken not vnto me. How shulde Pharao then heare me + and I am alle of vncircumcised lyppes. + Exo.4.1

Pharao the kynge of Egipte, ỹ they shulde
bringe the chyldren of Israel out of Egipt

THe LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Beholde, I haue made the a God ouer Pharao, and Aaron thy brother shalbe thy prophet. And the Egiptians shall knowe, that I am the LORDE, whan I shall stretch out my hande vpon Egipte, and bringe the chyldren of Israell out from amonge them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the LORDE commaũded them, and Moses was foure score yeare olde, and Aaron thre and foure score yeare olde, whan they spake vnto Pharao. And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses and Aarõ: Whã Pharao sayeth vnto you: Shewe your wonders, the shalt thou say vnto Aaron: Take thy staffe and cast it before Pharao, and it shall come to a serpent.

Then wente Moses and Aaron in vnto Pharao, and dyd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Aaron cast his staffe before Pharao and before his seruauntes, and it turned to a serpent. The Pharao called for the wyse men and sorceres. And the sorceres of Egipt also dyd lykewyse with their sorceries, and euery one cast his staffe before hym, and they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staffe deuoured they staues. Yet Pharaos harte was hardened, and he hearkened not vnto them, euen as the LORDE had sayd.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: The hart of Pharao is hardened he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharao in the morynge, beholde, he shall come vnto the water, mete thou hym vpon the waters brynke, and take thy staffe which turned to a serpent, in thyne hande, and say vnto him: The LORDE God of the Hebrues hath sent me vnto the, and sendeth thy worde. * Let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernesse: but hytherto thou wolt not heare.

Therfore sayeth the LORDE: Herby shalt thou knowe, that I am the LORDE. Beholde, with the staffe that I haue in hande, wyll I smyte the water whiche is in the ryuer, and it shall be turned into bloud: so that the fysshes in the ryuer shal dye, and the ryuer shall stynke, and it shalgreue the Egipcyans to drynke of the water of the ryuer.

D And ꝑ LORDE spake vnto Moses, Say vnto Aarō: Take thy staffe and stretch out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egipte, ouer theyr ryuers, and brokes, and pondes, and ouer al water pooles, that they may be turned to bloude, and ꝑ there may be bloud in all the lande of Egipte, both in the vessels of wood and stone.

77.a *Moses and Aaron dyd as the LORDE commaunded them, and lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the water that was in the ryuer, before Pharao and his seruauntes and all the water in ꝑ ryuer was turned into bloud and the fysshes in ꝑ ryuer dyed, and ꝑ ryuer stanke, so that the Egipcyans coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer, and there was bloude in all the lande of Egipte. And the sorcerers also of Egipte, dyd lykewyse with theyr sorceries. But Pharaos harte was hardened, & he harkened not vnto the 4.b 7.a *lyke as the LORDE had sayd. And Pharao turned hym selfe, and wente home, and set not his harte theron: All the Egipcyās dygged rounde about the ryuer, for water to drynke: for they coulde not drynke of the water out of the ryuer. And this endured seuen dayes longe that the LORDE smote the ryuer.

The.viii. Chapter.

I THe LORDE sayd vnto Moses Go thy waye to Pharao, and speake vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: *Let my people go, that they maye serue me: ꝑ thou wylt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all the borders of the londe with frogges, so that the ryuer shal straule with frogges: these shall clymme vp, and come in to thyne house, in to thy chamber, where thou slepest, vpon thy bed, and into the houses of thy seruaūtes, amōge thy people, in to thyn ouens, and vpō thy dowe: and the frogges shall come vp vpon the, and vpon thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

B *And the LORDE spake vnto Moses: 77.c. 84.b Say vnto Aarō: Stretch forth thyne hōde with thy staffe ouer ꝑ streames, and ryuers and pondes, and let frogges come vpō the lande of Egipte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters in Egipte, and there came vp frogges, so that ꝑ lande of Egipte was couered. The sorcerers also dyd lykewyse with theyr sorceries, and caused frogges to come vpon the lande of Egipte. The called Pharao for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: *Praye the LORDE for me, that he maye take awaye the frogges fro me and fro my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they may do sacrifyce vnto the LORDE. Gen.20.b. 3.Reg.13.b. Esa.9.f and.10.g Ierem.2.f

C Moses sayd: Haue thou the honour before me, and appoynt me, whā I shall praye for the, for thy seruauntes, and for thy people: that the frogges may be dryuen awaye from the and from thy house, and remayne onely in the ryuer. He sayd: to morowe. He sayd: Euen as thou hast sayde, ꝑ thou mayest knowe, that there is none lyke vnto the LORDE oure God: And the frogges shal be taken from the, and from thy house frō thy seruaūtes, and from thy people, and remayne onely in the ryuer.

So Moses and Aaron wente frō Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the LORDE for the appoyntement ouer the frogges, which he had promysed vnto Pharao. And the LORDE dyd as Moses sayde. And the frogges dyed in the houses, in the courtes, & vpon the felde and they gathered them together, here an heape, and there an heape, and the lande stanke of them. But whan Pharao sawe that he had gotten breth, his hart was hardened, and he herkened not vnto them, euen as the LORDE had sayd.

D And the LORDE spake vnto Moses: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch out thy staffe, and smyte the dust vpō the earth, that there may be lyce in the whole londe of Egipte. They dyd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande with his staffe, & smote the dust vpō the earth, and there were lyce vpon men & vpon cattell: All the dust of the londe was turned vnto lyce in all the lande of Egipte.

The sorcerers also assayed lykewyse wt theyr sorceryes ꝑ they myght bryngē forthe lyce, but they could not. And ꝑ lyce were vpon men and cattell. Then sayde the sorcerers vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of god. But Pharaos hart was hardened, & he herkened not vnto them *euen as the LORDE had sayd. Exo.7.d

E And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Get the vp to morowe by tyme, and stonde before Pharao: beholde, he wyll go vnto the water, and speake thou vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: let my people go, ꝑ they

maye serue me: yf not, Behold, I wyll cause cruell wormes (or flyes) to come vpon the,
thy seruauntes, thy people, and thy house,
so that all the Egipcyans houses, & the feld
and what theron is shalbe full of cruel wormes, and ꝑ same daye wyll I separate the Gen.47.a londe of ✱Goshen, wherin my people are, so that no cruell worm shalbe there, that thou mayest know that I am the LORDE in the myddest of the earth. And I wyll set a dely uerauce betwene my people, and thyne. To morowe shall this token come to passe.

And the LORDE dyd so. And there came perlous cruel wormes into Pharaos house in to his seruauntes houses and vpon all ꝑ lande of Egipte: and the lande was marred with noysome wormes.

¶ Then called Pharao for Moses and Aaron, and sayd: Go your waye, and do sacryfyce vnto your God in the lõde. Moses said
It is not mete, that we shulde so do, for so shulde we offer the abhominacyõ of the Eyf we shulde offer the abhominacyon of the

the LORDE our God, ✱ lyke as he hath sayd vnto vs.

Pharao sayde: I wyll let you go, that ye maye do sacrifice vnto the LORDE your God in the wyldernesse (onely that ye go no farther) and praye for me. Moses sayd: Be-holde, whan I am come forth from the, I wyll praye vnto the LORDE, that the cruel wormes maye be taken from Pharao, and from his seruauntes, and from his people,
euen tomorowe: onely deceaue me nomore,
that thou woldest not let ꝑ people go to do sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

And Moses wente out from Pharao,
and prayed vnto the LORDE. And the LOR-DE dyd as Moses sayd, and toke away the cruell wormes from Pharao, from his seruauntes, and from his people, so that ther remayned not one. But Pharao hardened his hart euen then also, and let not the people go.

The.ix.Chapter.

THe LORDE sayd vnto Moses:
Go in to Pharao, and speake vnto hym: Thus sayeth ꝑ LOR DE God of the Hebrues: let my people go, that they may serue
me, yf thou wylt not, but hold them lõger,

thy cattell in the felde, vpon horses, vpon
ses, vpon camels, vpon oxen, vpõ sheep
a very sore pestilence. And the LORDE make a diuision betwene the cattel of ꝑ raelites, and the Egipcyans, so that shall nothynge dye of all that the chy of Israel haue. And the LORDE appoy
a tyme, and sayd: To morow shall the LO DE do this vpon earth.

And the LORDE dyd the same on the row. And there dyed of all maner of of the Egipcyans: but of the cattel of dren of Israel ther dyed not one. And raao sent thyther, and beholde, ther raaos hart was hardened so that he let

Moses and Aaron: Take your handes

it may be dust in all the lande of Egy

And they toke ashes out of ꝑ furnace, stode before Pharao, & Moses sprinkled nes vpon men and vpon cattell, so that sorcerers myght not stonde before raaos hart, so that he harkened not

Then sayd the LORDE vnto

I ordeined the vp for this cause, to

Thou holdest my people yet, & wylt

ded hetherto. And now sende thou, and thy cattell, and all that thou hast in the
for all men and cattell that shalbe fou

the felde, and not brought in to the houses, yf the hayle fall vpon them, they shall dye.

Now who so feared the worde of the LORD amonge Pharaos seruauntes, caused his seruauntes and cattel to flye in to the houses: but loke whose hartes regarded not the worde of the LORDE left they? seruaũtes and cattell in the felde.

C Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Stretch out thy hand towarde heaue that it maye hayle vpon all the lande of Egypt vpon men, vpon cattell, and vpon all herbes of the felde in ꝑ lande of Egypte. * So Moses stretched out his stak towarde heauen, and the LORDE caused it to thonder, and hayle, so that the fyre rãne a longe vpon the earth.

Thus the LORDE hayled, and rayned vpon the londe of Egypt, so that the hayle and fyre wente so horribly together, as neuer was in the londe of Egipte, senee the tyme that ther were people therin. And the F hayle smote the whole lande of Egypte all ꝑ was vpon the felde, both mẽ & cattel, and smote all the herbes vpõ the felde, & brake all ꝑ trees vpõ the felde, saue only in ꝑ lãde of Gosen, where the chyldrẽ of Israel were there it hayled not. Then sent Pharao and called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: * Now haue I synned, the LORDE is righteous, but I and my people are vngodly. Pet pray ye vnto the LORDE that the thonder, and hayle of God maye ceasse, thẽ wyl I let you go, that ye shall tary here no longer. Moses sayde vnto hym: When I am come out of the cyte, I wyll stretche out myne hande vnto the LORDE, so shall ꝑ thonder ceasse, & there shalbe nomore hayle that thou mayst knowe, that ꝑ earth is the LORDES. But I know that both thou and thy seruaũtes feare not yet the LORDE God G Thus the flare and the barly were smytte: for the barlye was shot vp, and ꝑ flare was bouled: but the wheat and the rye were not smytten, for they were late sowen.

So Moses wente from Pharao out of the cyte, and stretched out his handes vnto the LORDE. And the thonder and the hayle ceassed, and the rayne dropped not vpõ the earth. But when Pharao saw that ꝑ rayne and thonder and hayle ceassed, he synned agayne, and hardened his hart: he and his seruauntes. So Pharaos hart was hardened, that he let not the chyldren of Israell go, euen as the LORD had sayd by Moses.

The.x. Chapter.

AND the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Go in vnto Pharao, for I haue hardened his harte, and the hartes of his seruauntes, that I might do these tokens amonge them, & that thou myghtest shewe it in the eares of thy childrẽ, and of thy childers childrẽ, what I haue done in Egipte: and how I haue shewed my tokens amõge them, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORDE.

So Moses and Aaron wente in vnto Pharao, and spake vnto hym: Thus sayth the LORDE God of the Hebrues: How lõge refusest thou to submytte thy selfe vnto me to * let my people go, that they maye serue me: yf thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, to morow wyl I cause gresshoppers to come vpon all places, that they maye couer ꝑ lande, so that the lande cã not be sene and they shall eate vp that is lefte you, and was delyuered frõ the hayle: and shall eate B vp all youre grene trees vpon the felde, and shall fyll thy house, all thy seruauntes houses, and al the Egipcyans houses: such as thy father and thy fathers father haue not sene, sẽce the tyme they were vpõ earth vnto this daye. And he turned hym, & went out from Pharao. Then sayd Pharaos seruauntes vnto hym: How longe shall we be snared after this maner? Let the men go, that they may serue the LORDE their God. Knowest thou not yet, that Egipt is destroyed? Moses & Aaron were brought agayn vnto Pharao, which sayde vnto them: Go your way, and serue the LORDE your God. But who are they ꝑ shal go? Moses sayde: We wyll go with ounge, and olde, with sõnes and doughters, with shepe and oxẽ, for we haue a feast of the LORDE. He sayde vnto thẽ: Let it be so, the LORDE be with you. Shulde I let you go and youre chyldren also? loke that ye haue not some myschefe in hande. Not so, but go ye that are men, & serue the LORDE, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out from Pharao.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: D Stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypte, for the * gresshoppers, that they maye come vpõ the lande of Egipte & eate vp all the herbes in the lande, with all that escaped the hayle. Moses stretched out his staffe ouer the lande of Egipte, and ꝑ LORDE brought an east wynde in to the lande all that daye and all that nyght, and in the mornynge the east wynde brought the gresshoppers. And they came ouer the whole land of Egipte, & lyghted in all places of Egipte, so exceadyng many, þ before tyme there were neuer such, nother shalbe herafter: for they couered the lãd, & made it dark And they dyd eate vp all the herbes in the lande, and all the frutes vpõ þ trees which remayned from þ hayle, and left no grene thynge behynde in the trees, and herbes vpon the felde in all the lande of Egypte.

Exo.9.b and.9.f

C Then Pharao called for Moses, and Aaron in all the hayst, and sayd: * I haue sinned against þ LORD your God, & against you: forgeue me my synne thys once also, & praye þ LORD your God, that he maye take away fro me this death onely. And he wẽt out frõ Pharao, & prayed vnto þ LORD Then the LORDE turned a maruaylous stronge west wynde, and toke vp the grashoppers, and cast them in to þ reed see, so þ there was not one lefte in all the quarters of Egipt. But þ LORD hardened Pharaos hart, þ he let not the chyldren of Israel go.

The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Stretche out thyne hande toward heauen, þ it be so darke in the lande of Egypte, þ it maye be felt. And Moses stretched out hys hande towarde heauen, * then was there a thicke darknesse in all the lande of Egypte thre dayes, so þ in thre dayes no man sawe another, nor rose vp frõ þ place where he was. But wyth þ chyldren of Israel there was lyght in theyr dwellynges. Then Pharao called for Moses, and sayde: Go your way and serue þ LORD: onely leaue your shepe and your oxen here: let your chyldren go wyth you also. Moses sayde: Thou must geue vs offerynges, and brentofferynges, þ we maye do sacrifyce vnto þ LORD our God. Our cattell shall go wyth vs, & ther shall not one hoofe be lefte behynde: for we must take therof for þ seruyce of þ LORDE our God. Moreouer we knowe not where wythall we shall serue þ LORD, tyll we come thyther. But þ LORD hardened Pharaos harte, þ he wold not let them go. And Pharao sayde vnto hym: Get the hence fro me & beware, þ thou come nomore in my sight. For loke what daye so euer thou commest in my sight, thou shalt dye. Moses answered: Euen as thou hast sayde, I wyll come nomore in thy syght.

The.xi. Chapter.

AND þ LORD sayd vnto Moses I wyll yet bryng a plage vpõ Pharao, and Egypte: after þ shall he let you go from hence & shall not onely let all go, but also dryue you hence. Therfore saye vnto you vnto the people, that euery mã borow of his neyghboure, and euery womã of her neyghbouresse, * iewels of syluer & golde, for the LORDE shal geue the people fauour in the sight of the Egipcyans. And Moses was a very greate man in the lande of Egypte, in the sighte of Pharaos seruantes, and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayde: Thus sayeth þ LORDE: At mydnyght wyll I go out of the myddes of Egipte, and all þ fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte shall dye: From Pharaos fyrst sonne (that sytteth vpon his seate) vnto the fyrst sonne of the mayde seruaunt which is behynde the mill: and all the fyrst borne amonge the cattell: and there shalbe a great crye in all the lande of Egypte, such as neuer was, nor shalbe. But amonge all þ chyldren of Israell there shall not a dogge moue the with his tunge, fro men vnto cattell: that ye maye knowe, how that the LORDE hath put a difference betwixte Egypte and Israell. Then shall all these thy seruaũtes come downe vnto me, and fal at my feet, & saye: Get the out, thou and all thy people that are vnder þ. After that wyll I depart. And he wente from Pharao with a wrothfull displeasure. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Pharao herkeneth not vnto you, that many wonders may be done in þ lande of Egypte. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders before Pharao: But þ LORDE hardened his harte, that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lãde.

The.xii. Chapter.

THE LORDE sayde vnto Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypte: This moneth shalbe vnto you the fyrst moneth, and ye shal begynne the monethes of the yeare. Speake ye vnto all the congregacyõ of Israell & saye: Vpõ the tenth daye of this moneth let euery one take a * lãbe (or a kyd) wher a housholder is, to euery house a lambe. But yf the housholde be to fewe for a lambe, then let hym and his neyghboure that is nerte vnto his house, take it accordynge to ỹ nombre of the soules, and coũte to the lambe, what euery man maye eate. But it shalbe a lambe without blemyshe, a male, and of a yeare olde. Frõ amonge the lãbes and goates shall ye take it. * And ye shal kepe it vnto ỹ fourteth daye of the moneth. And euery man of the congregacyon of Israel shal slaye it aboute the euenynge * And they shall take of his bloude, & strake it on both the sydeposstes of the doore, and on the vpperdoore post of ỹ house, that they eate it in. And so shall they eate flesh ỹ same nyght, rosted at the fyre, and vnleuended bread, and shal eate it with sowre sauce. Ye shall not eate it rawe, nor sodden with water, but onely rosted at the fyre, his heade with his fete and pertenaunce. And ye shal leaue nothynge of it ouer vntyll the morynge: but yf ony thynge be lefte ouer vntyl the morynge, ye shal burne it with fyre.

On this maner shal ye eate it: ye shalbe gyrded aboute youre loynes, & haue youre shues vpon youre fete, and staues in your handes, and ye shall eate it with hayst: for it is the LORDES Passeouer. * For in the same nyght wyll I go thorow the lande of Egipte, and smyte all the fyrstborne in the lande of Egypte, frõ men vnto cattell, and vpon all the goddes of Egypte wyll I do execucyon, euen I the LORDE * And the bloude shalbe youre token, vpon the houses wherin ye are: that whan I se the bloud I maye passe ouer, and the plage happen not vnto you, to destroye you, whã I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall ye haue for a remẽbraunce, and ye shal kepe it holy for a feast vnto the LORD, ye & al your posterityes for a perpetuall costume. * Seuẽ dayes shall ye eate vnleuended bread, namely, vpon ỹ fyrste daye shall ye leaue of with leuended bread in youre houses. Who so euer eateth leuended breade frõ the fyrst daye vnto the seuenth, that soule shalbe roted out from Israell. The fyrste daye shalbe called holy amonge you, and the seuenth also. No maner of worke shall ye do therin, saue what belongeth to the meate for al maner of soules, that only maye ye do for you. And kepe you to the leuended breade.

For euen vpon that same daye wyll I bringe your armyes out of the lande of Egypte therfore shall ye and all your posterytes kepe this day for a perpetual costume * Upon the fourtenth daye of the fyrste moneth, at euen shall ye eate vnleuended bread vnto the one and twentyeth daye of the moneth, at euen: so that there be no leuended breade founde in your houses seuẽ dayes. For who so euer eateth leuẽded bread, that soule shalbe roted out from the cõgregacyõ of Israel, whether it be a straũger, or borne in the lãde. Therfore eate no leuẽded bread in all youre dwellynges.

And Moses called all the elders of Israell and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euery housholde a shepe and kylle Passeouer vnto the LORD: & take a bunch of ysope, and dyppe it in the bloude in the balen, and strake it vpon the vpperpost & vpon the two syde postes, and none of you go out at the doore of his house vntyl ỹ morynge, for the LORDE wyll go aboute and plage the Egipcyans. And whan he seyth the bloude vpon the vpperpost, and vpon the two sidepostes, he wyl passe ouer by the doore, and not suffre the destroyer to com by youre houses to plage. Therfore kepe this costume for the and thy chyldren for euer.

And whan ye be come in to the lande ỹ the LORD shal geue you, (as he hath sayd) then kepe this seruice: * And whan youre chyldren saye vnto you: What seruyce is this, that ye haue? ye shal saye: It is the sacrifyce of the LORDES Passeouer, whi che passed ouer by the chyldren of Israell in Egypte, whan he plaged the Egipcyãs, and saued our houses. Then the people bowed themselfes, and worshypped. And the chyldren of Israell wente and dyd as ỹ LORDE had cõmaunded Moses and Aaron.

* And at mydnyght the LORDE smote al the fyrstborne in the lande of Egypte: from Pharaos fyrste sonne (whiche sat vpon his seate) vntyll the fyrste sonne of the presoner that was in the preson, and all the fyrstborne of the cattell. Then Pharao arose ỹ same nyght, and all his seruauntes, and all the Egypcyãs, and there was a great crye in Egypte: for there was no house wherin there was not one dead.

And he called for Moses and Aaron in the nyght and sayde: * Get you vp, and departe out fro my people, ye and ỹ chyldren of Israel: Go youre waye & serue the LORDE, as ye haue sayde, and take youre shepe and your oxen with you * as ye haue sayd, and departe, and bielle me also. And the Egypcyans were fearre vpon the people, to driue them hastely out of the land, for they sayde we are all but deade.

One maner of law be vnto him that is borne in the lande, and vnto the straũger that dwelleth amonge you. And al the chyldren of Israel dyd as the LORDE cõmaũded Moses and Aarõ. So vpon one day ỳ LORD brought the chyldren of Israell out of the londe of Egipte with they? armyes.

The.xiij.Chap.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayd: * Sanctyfye vnto me euery fyrste borne that breaketh all maner of matrice amonge the childzen of Israel both of men and cattell: for they are myne. Then sayd Moses vnto ỳ people: Thynke vpon this daye, in the whiche ye are gone out of Egipte from the house of bondage, how that the LORDE brought you out from thẽce with a myghtye hande. Therfore shall ye eate no * sowre dowe. This daye are ye gone out, euen in the moneth Abib.

* Now whan the LORDE hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Heuites & Iebusites, which he * sware vnto thy fathers to geue the (euen a lande that floweth with milke and hony) thẽ shalt thou kepe this seruyce in this moneth: Seuen dayes shalt thou eate vnleuended bread, and vpon the seuẽth daye is the LORDES feast: therfore shalt thou eate vnleuended bread seuen dayes that there be no sowre dow, nor sowred bread sene in all thy quarters.

And thou shalt tel thy sonne at the same tyme, and saye: Because of that which the LORDE dyd for me, whan I departed out of Egypte. Therfore shall it be a sygne vnto the in thyne hande and a token of remembraunce before thyne eyes, that the law of the LORDE may be in thy mouth, how that the LORDE brought thy out of Egypte with a myghty hande: Therfore kepe this maner yearly in his tyme.

Whan the LORDE now hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananites (as he hath swore vnto the and thy fathers) hath geuen it the, thẽ shalt thou sanctifye vnto the LORDE all that breaketh the matrice and fyrst borne amonge thy cattell, that as is male. The fyrstborne of the asse shalt thou bye out wt a shepe: but yf thou redeme it not, then breake his necke. All the fyrstborne of men amonge thy chyldren shalt thou redeme.

And whan thy chylde axeth the to morowe or to morowe: What is this? Thou shalt saye vnto hym: The LORDE brought vs out of Egypte from the house of bondage with a myghtye hande: for whan Pharao was loth to let vs go, the LORDE slewe all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, both the fyrst borne of men vnto the fyrst borne of the cattell: therfore offer I vnto the LORDE all that breaketh ỳ matrice, beyng a male, and the fyrstborne of my chyldré I

And this shalbe a sygne vnto the in thyne hande, and a token to thynke vpon before thyne eyes, how that the LORDE brought vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande.

D Now whan Pharao had let the people go, God led them not the waye through the londe of the Philistines, whiche was the nerre: for he thought: The people myght repent, whan they se warre, and so turne in a gayne in to Egipte. Therfore led he the people aboute, euen the waye thorow the wyldernesse by the reed see. And the childzen of Israell wente harnessed out of the londe of Egypte. And Moses toke Josephs bones with hym, * for he toke an oth of ỹ childzē

The.xiiij.Chapter.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: Speake to the childzen of Israell & byd them that they turne aboute, and pitch theyr tentes before 33.b the balley of Hyzoth, * betwirte Migdol & and the see towarde Baall Sephon, and there pitch the tentes right ouer by the see. For Pharao shall saye of the childzē of Israell: They can not tell how to get out of ỹ lande, the wyldernesse hath shutte them in. And I wyll harden his harte, that he shall folowe after them, and I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharao, and vpon all his power. And the Egipcians shall knowe, that I am the LORDE. And they dyd so.

B And whan it was tolde the kynge of Egypte, that the people fled, his harte & his seruaūtes were turned agaynst the people, and sayd: Why haue we done this, that we haue let Israel go, that they shuld not serue vs. And he bouńde his charrettes fast & toke his people with hym, and toke sixe hūdzeth chosen charrettes, and the other charrettes besyde that were in Egypte, and the captaynes ouer all his: for the LORDE hardened ỹ harte of Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the childzen of Israell. And the childzen of Israell wente out with an hye hande.

And the Egipcians folowed after them C and ouertoke the (where they had pitched by the see) with horses and charettes, and horsmen, and with his power, in the valley of Hyzath towarde Baall Sephon. * And Ioc. 24.8
whan Pharao came nye them, the childzen of Israell lyft vp theyr eyes, and beholde, the Egipcians wente behynde them, & they were sore afrayed, and cryed vnto ỹ LORD.

And sayde vnto Moses: Were there no graues in Egipte, that thou hast brought vs awaye to dye in the wyldernesse? Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast caryed vs out of Egypte? Is not this it, that we sayd vnto the in Egypte? Leaue of, and let vs serue the Egypcyans: for it were better for vs to serue the Egipcyans, then to dye in the wyldernesse? Moses sayd vnto ỹ people: * Feare you not stonde styll 2.par. 20.f

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wherfore cryest thou vnto me? Speake vnto the childzen of Israell, that they go forwarde. D
* But lyft thou vp thy staf, and stretch out Exo.14.b
thyne hande ouer the see, and parte it asunder, that the childzen of Israel maye go in thorowe the myddest of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I wyll harden the hart of the Egypcians, that they shall folowe after you. Thus wyll I get me honoure vpō Pharao, and vpon all his power, vpō his charrettes, and horsmen: and the Egipcians shall knowe that I am the LORDE, whā I haue gotten me honoure vpō Pharao, vpon his charrettes, and vpō his horsmen.

* Then the angel of God that wente before ỹ armyes of Israell, remoued and gat hym behynde them: and the cloudy pyler remoued also from before them, and stode behynde them, and came betwixe the armies of the Egipcians and the armyes of Israell. It was a darcke cloude, & gaue light that nyght so that all the nyght longe these and they coulde not come together. psal.104.b

*And now whā ꝑ morning watch cam, ꝑ LORD loked vpō the armyes of ꝑ Egyptians out of the piler of fyre & the cloude, and troubled theyr armyes, and smote the wheles from theyr charrettes, and ouerthrewe them with a storme. Then sayde the Egipcians: * Let vs flye from Israel, the LORD fyghteth for them agaynst the Egipcyans.

Deu.32.c

¶ But the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thyne hande ouer the see, that the water maye come agayne vpon the Egipcians, vpō theyr charrettes, & horsmen. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the see, and the see came agayne before day in his course and strength, and the Egipcians fled agaynst it. * Thus the LORD ouerthrewe the in the myddest of the see, so that the water came agayn, and couered ꝑ charrettes and horsmen, and all Pharaos power which folowed after them in to the see,

* Thus the LORDE delyuered Israell in that daye from the hand of the Egipcians. And they sawe the Egipcias dead vpon ꝑ see syde, and the greate hand that the LORDE had shewed vpon the Egipcyans. And the people feared the LORDE, and beleued hym, and his seruaunt Moses.

The.xv.Chapter.

¶ Then longe Moses and ꝑ chyldren of Israel this longe vnto the LORDE, and sayde.

* I wyll synge vnto the LORDE, for he hath done gloriously horse & charret hath he ouerthrowen in the see.

* The LORDE is my strengthe, and my songe, and is become my saluacyon.

This is my God, I wyl magnifye him, he is my fathers God, I wyll exalte him.

The LORDE is the righte man of warre, LORD is his name. The charrettes of Pharao and his power, hath he cast in to ꝑ see.

His chosen captaynes are drowned in the reed see, the depe hath couered the, they sanke to the grounde as a stone.

Thy ryght hāde (O LORD) is glorious in power: thy ryghte hande (O LORD) hath smytten the enemyes.

And in thy great glory thou hast destroyed thyne aduersaries: thou sentest out thy wrath, & it consumed the euen as stobble.

In the breth of thy wrath the waters gathered together, the floudes went vpon an heape. The depes plomped together in the myddest of the see.

The enemye thoughte: I wyll follow vpon them, and ouertake the, and deuide the spoyle, and coole my mynde vpon them. I wyll drawe my sweardе, & my hande shall destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy wynde, the see couered the, and they sanke downe as lead in the myghtye waters.

LORDE, who is lyke vnto the among ꝑ goddes? Who is so glorious in holynes, fearefull, laudable: and dooynge wonders.

Whan thou stretchedest out thy ryghte hande, the earth swalowed them vp.

Thou of thy very mercy hast led thy people, whome thou hast delyuered, and in thy strength thou hast brought the, vnto thy dwellynge of thy Sanctuary.

Whan the nacyons herde this they were greged, sorowe came vpon the Philistyns.

Then were the prynces of Edom astonyed tremblynge came vpon the myghtye of Moab, all the indwellers of Canaan were astonyed and fayntharted.

Let feare and drede fall vpon them, for the arowe thy greate arme that they may be styll as a stone, tyll thy people (O LORDE) be gone thorow, tyll thy people which thou hast gotten, be gone thorowe.

Bringe them in, and plante them in the mountayne of thyn enheritaunce, in the place that thou hast made for the to dwellynge: euen to thy temple (O LORDE) which thy handes haue prepared.

The LORDE shalbe kynge

and euer. For Pharao wente in to the see with horses, and charrettes, and horsmen, and the LORDE made the see fall agayne vpon them.

But the chyldre of Israel went dyre thorow the myddes of the see.

And Miriam the prophetisse, Aarō sister, toke a tymbrel in hir hande, and all the wemē folowed out after her with tymbrels in a daunse And Miriam sange before thē: *O let vs synge vnto ỹ LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, mā and horse hath he ouerthrowen in the see.

*Moses caused the chyldren of Israell to departe out from the reed see, vnto ỹ wyldernesse of Sur, and they went thre dayes in the wyldernesse, that they founde no water. Then came they to Marath, but they coulde not dryncke the water for bytternesse, for it was bytter. Therfore was it called Marath, (that is bytternesse.) Then ỹ people murmured agaynst Moses, and sayde: what shall we dryncke? And Moses cryed vnto the LORDE, *which shewed hym a tre, this he put in the water, then was it swete.

There he made them a statute, & a lawe and tempted them, and sayd: *yf thou wylt herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, & do that which is ryght in his syght, and geue eare vnto his commaundemētes, and kepe all his statutes, then wyll I laye vpon the none of the syckenesses, ỹ I layed vpon Egipte, for I am the LORDE thy surgione.

The.xvi.Chapter.

AND they came vnto *Elim, where there were twelfe welles of water, and seuēty palme trees, & then they pitched by the water syde. From Elim they toke theyr iourney, and the whole congregacyon of the chyldrē of Israel cam in to the wyldernesse of Sin, (whiche lyeth betwene Elim and Sinai) vpō the fyfteth daye of the seconde moneth, after that they were departed out of the londe of Egipte. And the whole multitude of the chyldren of Israel *murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wyldernesse, and sayd vnto them: Wolde God we had dyed in the londe of Egipte by the hande of the LORDE, whā we sat by the fleshe pottes, & had bread ynough to eat: for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernesse to cause this whole multytude to dye for honger.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Beholde, *I wyll rayne you bread frō heuen, and let the people go out, and gather daply, what they neds, that I maye proue whether they walke in my lawe or not. But vpon the fyrte daye they shall prepare them selues, that they maye bryng in twyse as much as they gather daply. Exp.16.b psal.77.d. Ioh.6.b

Moses and Aaron sayd vnto all ỹ chyldren of Israel: At euen ye shall knowe that the LORDE hath brought you out of ỹ lande of Egipte, and in the mornynge shall ye se the glorye of the LORDE: for he hath herd your grudgynges agaynst the LORDE. For what are we that ye grudge agaynst vs? B

Moses sayde moreouer: *At euen shall the LORDE geue you flesshe to eate, and in the mornynge bread ynoughe: because the LORDE hath herde your grudgynges, that ye haue grudged agaynst hym. For what are we? your murmurynge is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multytude of the chyldren of Israel: Come forth before the LORDE, for he hath herd youre murmurynges. Num.11.b

And whyle Aaron spake thus vnto the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell, they turned them towarde the wyldernesse: and beholde, the glorye of the LORDE appeared in a cloude, and the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: I haue herde the murmurynge of the chyldren of Israel. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue flesshe to eate, & in the mornynge shal ye be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE your God. C

*And at euen the quayles came vp, and couered the tentes: and in the morning the dewe laye rounde about the tentes. And whan the dewe was falle, beholde ther laye a thynge in the wyldernesse, thynne, & small, as the horfrost vpon the grounde. Num.11.f

for they wist not what it was. But Moses sayd vnto them: It is the bread that ỹ LORDE hath geuen you to eate. This is it that the LORDE hath commaũded: Euery one gather for hym selfe as much as he eateth, & take a Gomor for euery heade, accordyng to the nombre of the soules in his tente.

And the chyldren of Israell dyd so, and gathered some more, some lesse. But whan it was measured out with the Gomor, he ỹ gathered much had not the more: * and he 2.Cor.8.b that gathered lytle, wanted nothynge, but euery one gathered for hymselfe, as muche as he dyd eate. And Moses sayd vnto the: Let noman leaue ought therof vntyl ỹ mornynge. But they herkened not vnto Moses And some left of it vntyll the mornynge. Then ware it full of wormes and stanke. And Moses was angrye at them.

And euery mornynge they gathered for them selues, as much as euery one dyd eat: but as soone as it was whote of the Sõne, it melted awaye. And vpon the sixte daye they gathered twise as muche of bread, two Gomors for one. And all the rulers of the congregacyon came in and tolde Moses.

And he sayd vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath sayd: To morowe is ỹ Sabbath of the holy rest of the LORDE: loke what ye wyll bake, that bake: and what ye wyl seeth, that seeth: and that remayneth ouer, let it remayne, that it maye be kepte vntyl ỹ morynge. And they let it remayne tyll the morowe, as Moses commaunded. Then stanke it not, nother was there ony worme therin. Then sayd Moses: Eat that to daye, for to daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE: to daye shall ye fynde none in the felde Sixe dayes shall ye gather it, but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath, wherin there shall be none.

But vpon the seuenth daye ther wente out some of the people to gather, and foũde nothynge. Then sayd the LORDE vnto Mo Exo.20.b ses: * How longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundementes and lawes? Beholde, the LORDE hath geuen you the Sabbath, ther fore vpon the sixte day he geueth you bread for two dayes, therfore let euery man nowe byde at home, & nomã go forth of his place vpon the seuenth daye.

So the people rested vpon the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it Mã Nu.11.b and * it was lyke Coriãder sede, and whyte and had a taist lyke sinneis with hony.

And Moses sayd: This is it that ỹ LORDE hath commaunded: Fyll a Gomor ther-

of to be kepte for your posterities, that they maye se ỹ bread, wherwith I fed you, whe I brought you out of the lande of Egipte. And moses sayd vnto Aarõ: Take a * cruse and put a Gomor full of Man therin, and laye it vp before the LORDE, to be kepte for youre posterities, as the LORDE commaunded Moses, So Aarõ layed it vp there for a testimonye to be kepte.

* And the chyldren of Israel dyd eate Man forthe peares, tyll they came vnto a lande, where people dwelt, euen vntyll they came to the borders of the lande of Canaan dyd they eate Man. A Gomor is the tenth parte of an Epha.

The.xvii.Chapter.

And ỹ whole multitude of the chyldren of Israell wente on they? tourneys out of the wyl dernesse of Sin (as the LORD commaunded them) and pitched * in Raphidim. The had the people no water to drynke. And they chode with Moses, and sayd: Geue vs water, that we may drynke. Moses sayd vnto the: Why chyde ye with me? wherfore tempte ye the LORDE? But whan the people thyrsted there for water, they murmured agaynst Moses, & sayd: * Wherfore haste thou caused vs to come out of Egipte, to let vs, our chyldren, & our cattell dye for hunger?

Moses cryed vnto the LORD, and sayd: What shall I do with this people? They are almoost ready to stone me. The LORDE sayd vnto him: Go before the people, & take some of the elders of Israel with the, & take in thyn hãde thy staffe, wherwith thou smytest the water, and go thy waye: Beholde, * I wyll stonde there before the vpõ a rocke in Horeb, there shalt thou smyte the rocke, so shall ther water runne out, that the people maye drynke. Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel. * Then was that place called Massa, Meriba, because of the chydyng of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the LORDE, and sayd: Is the LORDE amonge vs, or not?

Then came Amalecke, and fought & gaynst Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayd vnto Josua: Chose vs out men, & go out, and fyght agaynst Amalech, to morowe wyll I stonde vpon the toppe of the hyll, I haue the staffe of God in my hãde. And Josua dyd as Moses bad hym, and fought agaynst Amalecke. Moses, and Aaron, and Hur wente vp to ỹ toppe of the hyll. * And whan Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the victory: but when he let downe his hande Amaleck had the victorye.

But Moses handes were heuy, therfore

And whan Iethro the preste in called Gerson, for he sayd: I am become a

was called Eliasar, for he sayd: The God

Now whā Iethro Moses father in lawe

he had pitched his tent, he sent worde vnto Moses: I Iethro thy father in lawe am to mete hym, and dyd obeysaunce vnto hym and kyssed hym. And whā they had saluted eche other, they went in to the tent.

Then Moses told his father in lawe al B is this, that thou doest with the people?

Wherfore sittest thou alone, and al the peo

hym: The people come to me, and are coun betwixte euery one and his neighbour, and shewe them the statutes of God, and his

And Moses tolde the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Beholde I wyl come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may hear my wordes which I speake vnto the, and beleue thy forener. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto ꝑ LORD

The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, & sanctifie them to day and to morowe, that they may washe theyr clothes and be ready agaynst ꝑ thyrde daye: for vpon the thyrde daye shall the LORDE come downe vpon Sinai before all the people.

And set markes rounde about the people, and say vnto them: Beware, that ye go not vp in to the mount, nor touche the borders of it * For who soeuer toucheth ꝑ moūt shall dye the death. Ther shall no hande touche it, but he shall eyther be stoned, or shot thorowe: whether it be beast or man, it shall not lyue. Whan ꝑ horne bloweth, the shall they come vp vnto the mount.

Moses went downe from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them. And they washed theyr clothes. And he sayd vnto them: Be ready agaynst the thyrde daye, and noman come at his wyfe.

Now whan the thyrd daye came (and it was early) it beganne to thonder and lyghten, and ther was a thycke cloude vpon the mount, and a noyse of a trompet exceadyng myghtye. And the people that were in the tentes, were afrayed. * And Moses brought the people out of the tentes to mete with God, and they stode vnder the mount.

But al moūt Sinai smoked, because the LORD came downe vpon it with fyre. And the smoke therof went vp as the smoke of a fornace, so that the whole mount was exceadynge terrible. And ꝑ noyse of the trompet went out: and was myghtye. Moses spake, and God answered him loude. And whan the LORDE was come downe vpon the mount Sinai, euen vpon the toppe of the mount, he called Moses vp vnto the toppe of ꝑ mount. And Moses went vp.

Then sayd the LORDE vnto him: Go downe, & charge ꝑ people, that they break not vnto the LORDE to se hym, and fall not of them perysshe. The rulers also that come nye vnto the LORDE, shall sanctifie them selues, lest the LORDE smyte them. And Moses sayd vnto the LORDE: The people can not come vp vpon mount Sinai, for thou hast charged vs, & sayde: Set markes about the mount, and sanctifie it.

* The LORDE sayd vnto him: Go thy waye, get the downe. Thou and Aaron

And Moses sayd vnto the people: Be not afrayed. For god is come to proue you, and that his feare may be before your eyes, ꝑ ye synne not.

And the people stode afarre of. But Moses gat hym in to the darcke cloude, wherin God was. And the LORD spake vnto hym: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene, that I haue talked w you from heauen: therfore shall ye make no thynge with me: goddes of syluer and gold shall ye not make you.

Make me an altare of earth, wherupon thou mayest offer thy brentofferynges, and thankofferynges, thy shepe and thyne oxen For loke in what place soeuer I make the remembraunce of my name, there will I come vnto the and bielle the.

And vpon euery curteyne thou shalt make fyftye loupes vpon the edges of them, that they may be coupled together by the edges. And fyftye buttons of brasse shalt thou make, and put the buttons in to the loupes, that the tent may be coupled together, and be one couerynge.

As for the remnaūt of the curtaynes of the tent, thou shalt let the halfe parte hāge ouer behynde the tent, vpon both the sydes a cubyte longe, that the residue maye be vpon the sydes of the Tabernacle, and couer it vpon both the sydes.

¶ Beside this couerynge thou shalt make a couerynge of reed skynnes of rammes. And aboue this a couering of doo skynnes

¶ * Thou shalt make bordes also for the habitacyon, of fyxre tre, which shall stonde: one borde shalbe ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. Two fete shall one borde haue, that the one maye be set by the other.

Thus shalt thou make al the bordes for the Tabernacle: Twentye of them shall stonde towarde the south, which shall haue fortye sokettes of syluer vnder them, two sokettes vnder euery bord for his two fete.

Lykewyse vpon the other syde toward the north there shall stande twentye bordes also, and forty sokettes of syluer, two sokettes vnder euery borde.

But behynde the habitacyon towarde the west thou shalt make sixe bordes, & two bordes mo for the two corners of the habitacyon, that euery one of them both maye be coupled from vnder by with his corner borde, and aboue vpon the heade to the first ryng euen together with a clampe: so that there be eyght bordes with theyr syluer sokettes, wherof there shalbe sixtene, two vnder euery borde.

And thou shalt make barres of fyxre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes vpon the other syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes behynde the Tabernacle warde the west. And the barres shalt thou shut thorow the myddest of the bordes, and fasten altogether from the one corner to the other. And thou shalt ouerlaye the bordes with golde, and make theyr rynges of golde, that the barres maye be put therin. And the barres shalte thou ouerlaye with golde, and so shalt thou set vp the Tabernacle accordynge to the fashiō as thou hast sene vpon the mount.

And thou shalt make a vayle of palow sylke, scarlet purple, & whyte twyned sylke. And Cherubyns shalte thou make therin of brodered worke, and shalt hange it vp vpon foure pylers of fyxre tre which are ouerlayed with golde, haupnge knoppes of golde, and foure sokettes of syluer. And the vayle shalt thou fasten with buttons, and set the Arke of witnesse within the vayle, that it maye be vnto you a difference betwene the holy and the moost holy.

And thou shalt set the Mercyseate vpon the Arke of witnes in the moost holy. And set the table without the vayle and the candelsticke ouer against the table vpon the southside of the Tabernacle, that the table maye stande on the northside.

And in the dore of the Tabernacle thou shalt make an hangynge, of palow sylke, purple, scarlet, & whyte twyned sylke. And for ꝑ same hangynge thou shalt make fyue pylers of fyxre tre ouerlayed with golde, with knoppes of golde. And thou shalte cast fyue sokettes of brasse for them.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

A And thou shalt make an altare of fyne tre, fyue cubytes lõge and brode, that it may be foure square, and thre cubytes hye: thou shalt make hornes vpon the foure corners of it, and shalt ouerlaye it with brasse. Make ashpannes, shouels, basens, fleshokes, colepänes. All the apparell therof shalte thou make of brasse. Thou shalte make a gredyron also lyke a nette of brasse, & foure brasen rynges vpon the foure corners of it: from vnder vp aboute the altare shalt thou make it, so that ỹ gredyron reache vnto the myddest of ỹ altare. Thou shalt make staues also for the altare, of fyne tre, ouerlayed with brasse, and shalte put the staues in the rynges, that ỹ staues may be on both the sydes of the altare, to beare it with all. And holowe with bordes shalte thou make it, lyke as it is shewed the in the mount.

B And to the hybitacyon thou shalt make a courte, an hangynge of whyte twyned sylke: vpon the one syde an. c. cubytes lõge towarde the south, and. xx. pylers vpon. xx. brasen sokettes, and ỹ knoppes with their whoopes of siluer. Lykewyse vpon ỹ north syde thers shalbe an hangynge of an. c. cubytes longe, twentye pylers vpon twenty brasen sokettes, and theyr knoppes with theyr whoopes of syluer.

But vpõ the west syde the bredth of the court shall haue an hangynge of fyftye cubites longe, and ten pylers vpon the ten sokettes. Upõ the east syde also shall ỹ bredth of the courte haue fyftye cubytes, so that the hanginge haue vpõ one syde fyftene cubytes, and thre pylers vpon thre sokettes. And vpon the other syde fyftene cubytes also, and thre pylers vpõ thre sokettes.

C And in the courte gate there shalbe an hangynge twẽtye cubytes brode of palowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke wrought with nedle worke, & foure pylers vpõ theyr four sokettes. Al ỹ pylers roũde aboute ỹ courte shall haue syluer whoopes and syluer knoppes, and sokettes of brasse. And the length of the courte shalbe an hundreth cubytes, the bredth fyftye cubytes, the heyght fyue cubytes, of whyt twyned sylke and the sokettes therof shalbe of brasse. All the vesselles also of the habitacyon to all maner seruyce, and all the nayles of it, and all the nayles of the courte shalbe of brasse.

4.a * Cõmaunde the chyldrẽ of Israel, that they bryng vnto the moost cleare and pure oyle oyue beatẽ, to geue lyght, that it may alwaye be put in the lampes in the Tabernacle of witnesse, without the vayle, that hangeth before the witnesse. And Aaron & his sonnes shal dresse it frõ the euenyng vn tyll ỹ mornyng before the LORD. This shal be vnto you a perpetual costume for youre posteritties amonge the chyldren of Israel.

The.xxviii. Chapter.

A And thou shalt take vnto the Aarõ thy brother and his sonnes from amonge the chyldrẽ of Israell, that he may be my prest: namely Aaron and his sonnes Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar: and thou shalt make holy clothes for Aarõ thy brother, honorable and glorious, and shalt speake vnto all thẽ that are wyse of harte whom I haue fylled with ỹ spyrete of wysedome, that they make garmẽtes to Aaron for his consecracyon, that he maye be my preste.

These are the garmentes whiche they shall make: a brestlappe, an ouerbody cote, a tunicle, an albe, a myter & a girdel. Thus shall they make holy garmẽtes for thy brother Aaron and his sonnes, that he may be my prest. They shall take therto golde, palow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

B The ouerbody cote shall they make of golde, palowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke of brodered worke, ỹ it maye be fastened together vpon both the sydes by ỹ edges therof. And his gyrdell vpon it shalbe of the same workmanshippe & stuffe euen of golde, palow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. And thou shalte take two Onix stones, and graue in them the names of the chyldren of Israell. Sixe names vpon the one stone, and ỹ sixe other names vpon the other stone, accordynge to the order of theyr age. This shalt thou do by the stonegrauers that graue signettes, so that the stones with the names of ỹ chyldren of Israell be set rounde aboute with golde: and thou shalt put thẽ vpon the two shulders of ỹ ouerbody cote, that they may be stones of remẽbraunce for the chyldrẽ of Israell that Aaron maye beare theyr names vpon both the shulders before ỹ LORDE for remẽbraunce. C

Thou shalt make hokes of golde also, and two wrethẽ cheynes of pure golde, and shalt fasten them vnto the hokes.

The brestlappe of iudgement shalte thou make of brodered worke, euẽ after the ouerbody cote: of gold, palow sylke, scarlet purple, & whyte twyned sylke. Four square shall it be and dubble, an handebredth lõge and an handbredth brode. And thou shalt fyll it with foure rowes full of stones. Let the fyrst rowe be a Sardis, a Topas, and a Smaragde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, and a Diamonde. The thirde: a Ligurious, an Achate, and an Ametiste. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis. In golde shall they be set in all the rowes, and shall stonde accordynge to the twolue names of the chyldren of Israell, grauē of the stone grauers, euerypne with his name accordynge to the twolue trybes.

D And vpõ the brestlap thou shalte make wrethen cheynes by ỹ corners of pure gold, and two golde rynges, so that thou fasten the same two rynges vnto two edges of ỹ brestlappe, & put the two wrethen cheynes of golde in the same two rynges, ỹ are in ỹ two edges of the brestlappe. But ỹ two endes of the two wrethen cheynes shalt thou fastē in the two hokes vpon the ouerbody cote one ouer agaynst another,

And thou shalt make two other rynges of golde, and fastē thē vnto ỹ the other two edges of ỹ brestlap, namely to the borders therof, wherwith it may hange on ỹ inside vpon the ouerbody cote. And yet shalte thou make two rynges of golde, and fastē thē vpon the two edges beneth to the ouer body cote vpõ ỹ outside, one ouer agaynst another where the ouerbody cote toyneth E together. And the brestlap shalbe fastened by his rynges vnto the rynges of ỹ ouerbody cote wt a palow lace that it may lye close vpõ the ouerbody cote, and that ỹ brestlap be not lowsed from the ouerbody cote.

Thus shall Aaron beare ỹ name of the chyldren of Israell in the brestlappe of iudgement vpon his harte, whā he goeth into the sanctuary, for a remēbraunce before the LORDE alwaye. And in the brestlap of iudgement thou shalt put * light and perfectenesse, that they maye be vpon Aarons hart Deu. 33. b whan he goeth in before the LORDE & that he may bare ỹ iudgemēt of ỹ chyldrē of Israel vpõ his hart before the LORDE alway.

Thou shalt make the tunicle also to the ouerbody cote all of palow sylke & aboue in the myddest ther shalbe an hole, and a bõde folden together rõude aboute the hole, that F it rente not. And beneth vpon the hemme thou shalt make pomgranates of palowe sylke, scarlet, purple rounde aboute, and belles of golde betwirte the same rounde aboute that there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate: a golden bel and a pomgranate, rounde aboute the hemme of the same tunycle. * And Aaron shal haue it vpõ him whan he ministreth, that the sounde therof maye be herde whā he goeth out and in at the Sanctuary before ỹ LORDE ỹ he dye not.

Thou shalt make a forheade plate also of pure golde, and graue therin (after the workmanshyppe of the stone grauer:) the holynesse of the LORDE, and with a palow lace shalt thou fastent it vnto the forefront of the myter vpon Aarons forheade, that Aaron maye so beare the synne of the holy thynges, which ỹ chyldrē of Israel halowe in all theyr gyftes and sanctuary. And it shalbe alway vpõ his forhead that he may reconcyle them before the LORDE.

Thou shalt make an albe also of whyte sylke, and a myter of whyte sylke & a girdle of nedle worke.

And for Aarõs sonnes thou shalt make cotes, girdles, and bonettes, honorable and glorious, and shalt put them vpon thy brother Aaron & his sõnes, and shalt anoynte them, and fyll theyr handes, and consecrate thē, that they may be my prestes. And thou shalt make them linen breches, to couer the flesh of theyr preuttyes, from the loynes vnto the thyes. And Aaron & his sonnes shall haue them on, whan they go in the Tabernacle of witnesse, or go vnto ỹ aulcare to ministre in the Holy, that they beare not their synne, and dye. This shalbe a perpetuall statume for hym and his sede after hym.

The.xxix.Chapter.

THis is it also, that thou shalt do vnto them, that they may be consecrated prestes vnto me. * Take a ponge bullocke and two rãmes without blemysshe, vnleuended breade and vnleuended cakes mixte with oyle, and wafers of swete bread tempered with oyle: Of wheat floure shalt thou make them al, and put thē in a maūde and bynge them in the maunde with ỹ bullocke and two rammes.

And thou shalte bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and washe thē with water & put the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the albe and ỹ tunycle, ỹ ouerbody cote and ỹ breslappe to the ouerbody cote, and shalt gyrde him on the outside vpon the ouerbody cote and set the myter vpon his heade, and the holy crowne vpon the miter: and shalt take the anoyntynge oyle, and poure it vpõ his heade, and anoynte hym.

B Thou shalt bringe forth his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and gyrde both Iaron and them with gyrdels, and set bonettes vpon theyr heades, that they may haue the prestlhode for a perpetual costume.

And thou shalt fyll the handes of Iaron and his sonnes, and bringe forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of wytnesse.

3.a * And Iaron & his sonnes shall laye theyr handes vpon the head of the bullocke, and thou shalt slaye the bullocke before the LORDE, at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare with thy finger, and poure all ỹ other bloude vpon the botome of the altare.

3.b * And thou shalt take all the fat that couereth the bowels and the nette vpon the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fat that is aboute them, and burne thē vpon the altare. But the bullockes flesshe, skynne, and donge, shalt thou burne with fyre without the hoste: for it is a synofferynge.

C The one ramme shalt thou take also, & Iaron with his sonnes shall laye theyr handes vpon his heade. Then shalte thou slaye hym, & take of his bloude, & sprenkle it vpon the altare rounde about. But the rāme shalt thou deuyde in peces, and washe his bowels, and his legges, and laye them vpon the peces and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vppon the altare: for it is a burntofferynge, and a swete sauoure of the sacrifice vnto the LORD.

9.b * As for the other rāme, thou shat take hym, and Iaron with his sonnes shall laye theyr handes vpon his heade, & thou shalte slaye hym, and take of his bloude, and put it vpon the tippe of the ryght eare of Iarō and his sōnes, and vpon the thōbe of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the great too of theyr ryghte fete, and thou shalte sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, and shalte take of the bloude vpon the altare and the anoyntynge oyle, and sprenkle it vpon Iaron and his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes and theyr vestimentes. So shal he and his clothes, his sōnes and theyr clothes be consecrated.

D * Then shalte thou take the fatte of the ramme, the rompe, and the fatte that couereth the bowels, the nette vpon the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fatte that is aboute them, and the ryght shulder (for it is a rāme of consecracyon) and a symnel of bread, and an oyled cake, and a wafer out of the maunde of the vnleuended bread * that stondeth before the LORDE, and Exo.29.c put all in to the handes of Iaron and his sonnes, and waue it vnto the LORDE. The take it out of theyr handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a buntofferynge, to be a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. For it is the LORDES sacrifice.

E * And thou shalte take the breste of the ramme of Iarons consecracyon, and shalte Leui.8.f waue it before the LORDE, that shalbe his parte. And thus shalte thou halowe the Wauebrest and the Heaueshulder (that are waued and heaued) of the ramme of the consecracyon of Iaron and his sonnes: And it shalbe a perpetuall costume for Iaron and his sonnes of the chyldre of Israel: for it is an Heaueofferynge, and the Heaueofferynge shalbe the LORDES dewtye of the chyldren of Israell, in theyr peaceofferynges and Heaueofferynges whiche they do vnto the LORDE.

And the holy garmentes of Iaron shall his sonnes haue after hym that they maye be anoynted therin, and that theyr handes maye be fylled. * Loke which of his sonnes Nu.20.b shalbe prest in his stead, ỹ same shal put thē on seuē dayes, ỹ he may go in to ỹ Tabernacle of wytnesse, to mynistre in ỹ Sāctuary.

F * But the ramme of consecracyon shalt Leui.8.g thou take and seeth his flesshe in an holy place. And Iaron with his sonnes shall eat the flesshe of the same ramme with the bread in the maunde, at ỹ dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. For ther is an attonemēt made therwith, to fyll theyr hādes, that they may be consecrated. A straunger shall not eate therof, for it is holy.

But yf ony of the flesshe of the consecracyon, and of the bread remayne vntyll the mornynge, thou shalt burne it with fyre, & not let it be eaten, for it is holy. And thus shalt thou do with Iaron & his sonnes all that I haue cōmaunded the. Seuen dayes shalt thou fyll theyr handes, and offer a bullocke dayly for a synofferyng because of thē that shalbe reconcyled. And thou shalte halowe the altare, whan thou reconcylest it: & shalt anoynte it, that it maye be consecrated Seuen dayes shalt thou reconcyle ỹ altare and consecrate it, that it maye be an altare of the mooste holy. Who so wyll touch the altare, must be consecrated.

G * And this shalt thou do with the altare: Nu.28.a Two lambes of one peare olde shalte thou 1.par.17.a offer euery daye vpon it: the one lambe in the mornyng, and the other at euen. And to one lābe a tenth deal of wheat flour medled with the fourth parte of an Hin of beaten oyle, and ꝑ fourth parte of an Hin of wyne for a drynkofferynge. With the other lābe at euen shalt thou do lyke as with the meat offerynge and drynkofferynge in the mornynge, for a swete sauoure of sacrifice vnto the LORDE. This is the dayly burntofferynge amonge your posterities, at the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse before ꝑ LORDE, * where I wyll protest vnto you, and talke with the. There wyll I protest vnto the chyldren of Israel, and be sanctified in my glory, and wyl halowe the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, & consecrate Aaron and his sonnes, to be my prestes. * And I wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, and wyll be their God so that they shall knowe, how that I am the LORDE their God, which brought them out of the lande of Egipte, that I myght dwel amonge the, euen I the LORDE their God.

The.xxx.Chapter.

THou shalt make also an incese altare to burne incense, of fyrre tre, a cubyte longe and brode, euen foure squayred, and two cubytes hye with his hornes, & shalt ouerlaye it with pure golde, the rofe and the walles of it rounde about, and the hornes therof, and a crowne of golde shalte thou make rounde aboute it, and two gold ringes on ether syde vnder ꝑ crowne, that there maye be staues put therin, to beare it with all.

The staues shalt thou make of fyrre tre also, and ouerlaye them with golde: & shalt set it before ꝑ vayle, that hāgeth before the arcke of wytnesse, and before the mercyseat that is vpon the wytnesse, from whence I wyll protest vnto the. And Aaron shall burne swete incēse theron euery mornynge whan he dresseth the lampes. In lyke maner whan he lyghteth the lampes at euen, he shall burne suche incense also. This shal be the dayly incēse before the LORD amōge your posterities.

* Ye shall put no straunge incense therin and offer no burntofferynge, nor meatofferynge, nother drynkofferyng theron. * And vpon the hornes of it shal Aaron reconcyle once in a peare, with the bloude of synnofferynge, which they shall offer that are reconcyled. This shalbe done amōge your posterities for this is the moost holy vnto the LORDE.

Leui.10.a Leui.16.g & Heb.9.a

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: * Whan thou nombrest the heades of the chyldren of Israel, then shall euery one geue vnto the LORDE the reconcylyng of his soule, that there happen not a plage vnto them, whan they are nombred. Euery one that is tolde in the nombre, shall geue halfe a sycle, after the sycle of the sanctuary: * one sycle is worth twentye Geras. This halfe sycle shalbe the LORDES Heaueofferynge. Who so is in the nombre from twentye yeare and aboue, shall geue this Heaueofferynge vnto the LORDE. The ryche shal not geue more, and the poore shall not geue lesse in the halfe sycle whiche is geuen vnto the LORDE to be an Heaueofferynge for the reconcylynge of their soules.

And this money of reconcylynge shalte thou take of the chyldre of Israel, and put it to the Gods seruyce of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be a remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel before ꝑ LORDE, that he maye let hym selfe be reconcyled ouer their soules.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: * Thou shalte make a brasen lauer also with a fote of brasse to washe, and shalte set it betwixte the Tabernacle of witnesse and the altare, and put water therin, that Aaron and his sonnes maye wasshe their handes and fete therout, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or to the altare, to mynyster vnto the LORDE with offerynge incense, that they dye not. This shalbe a perpetuall costume for hym and his sede amonge their posteritties.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: * Take vnto the spyces of the best fyue hundreth sycles of myrre and of cynnamom halfe so much, euen two hundreth and fyfty, and of calamus two hundreth & fyfty, & of casia fyue hundreth (after the sycle of the sanctuary) and an Hin of oyle olyue, and make an holy anoyntynge oyle, after the crafte of the apotecary.

And therwith shalte thou anoynte the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the Arke of wytnesse, the table with all his apparell, the candelsticke with his apparell, the altare of incense, the altare of burntofferynges with all his apparell, and the lauer with his fote: and thus shalt thou consecrate them, that they maye be moost holy: for who so wyll touche them must be consecrated. Thou shalte anoynte Aaron and his sonnes and consecrate them to be my prestes.

And thou shalt spake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: This oyle shalbe an holy oyntment vnto me amonge your posterities: It shal not be powred vpō mans body, nother shalt thou make ony such lyke vnto it, for it is holy: therfore shall it be holy vnto you. Who so maketh ony such lyke or geueth a straunger therof, the same shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Take vnto the spyces: balme, stacte, galbā, & pure frankēcense, of one as much as of another, and make incense therof (after the crafte of ỹ apotecary) myngled together, that it may be pure and holy. And thou shalt beate it to poulder, and shalt put of ỹ same before the witnesse in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, frō whence I wyll proteste vnto the. This shal be moost holy vnto you. And such incense shal ye not make you: but it shalbe holy vnto ỹ for ỹ LORDE. Who so maketh suche to incese therwith, shalbe roted out frō amōge his people.

The.xxxi. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: * I haue called by name Bezaleel the sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur, of ỹ tribe, of Juda * & haue fylled him wt the spyrete of God, with wysedome & vnderstandynge and knowlege, and to worke with all maner of cōnynge worke, in golde syluer, brasse, to graue stones connyngly, & to set them, to carue well in tymber, and to make al maner worke. All that I haue commaunded the shal they make.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: * Kepe my Sabbath for it is a token betwene me and you, and your posterities, that ye maye knowe, how that I am ỹ LORDE which halloweth you: therfor kepe my Sabbath, for it shalbe holy vnto you. * Who so vnhalloweth it, shal dye ỹ death: For who so doth ony worke therin, shalbe roted out from amonge his people. Thus the LORDE repented of the euell, whiche he sayd he wolde do vnto his people.
Exo.24.c and.31.b Deu.9.b *Moses turned hym, and went downe from ꝑ mount, and in his hande he had the two tables of witnesse, which were written vpō both the sydes, and were Gods worke, and the wrytynge was the wrytynge of God therin. Now whā Iosua herde ꝑ noyse of the people, as they shouted, he sayd vnto Moses: This is a noyse of warre in ꝑ hoost He answered: It is not a noise of thē ꝑ haue ꝑ victory, & of thē that haue ꝑ worse, but I heare a noyse of syngynge at a daunse.

What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them.
Aaron sayde: Let not the wrath of my lorde ware fearce: thou knowest, that the is a wycked people. They sayd vnto me: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this mā Moses, that brought vs out of the lande of Egipt. I sayd vnto them: Who so hath gold let hym plucke it of, and geue it me: and I dyd cast it in the fyre, therof cam this calfe.
Now whā Moses sawe, that the people was naked (for Aaron, whā he set them vp, made them naked to theyr shame) he went vnto the gate of the hoost, and sayd: Who so belongeth vnto the LORDE, let him come hyther vnto me. Then all the chyldren of Leui gathered them selues vnto hym, & he sayd vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israell: * Euery man put his swearde by his syde, and go thorow in, and out from one gate to another in the hoost, and slaye euery man his brother, frende, & neyghboure.
The chyldren of Leui dyd, as Moses sayd vnto them. And there fel of the people thre thousande men. Thē sayd Moses: Consecrate your handes this day vnto the LORDE, euery man vpon his sonne & brother, ꝑ the prayse may be geuē ouer you this day.
On the morowe Moses sayd vnto ꝑ people: ye haue done a great synne. Now I wyll go vp vnto the LORDE, yf peadventure I maye make an attonement for your synnes.

The.xxxv.Chapter.

AND Moses gathered al the congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel together, and sayde vnto them: This is it that the LORDE hath cōmaūded you to do.

And Moses sayde vnto the whole congregacyon of the childzen of Israell: This
.xxv.a is it, that the LORD hath cōmaunded: * Geue from amonge you Heaueofferynges vn to the LORDE, so that euery one bryng the stones, and stones to be set in the ouerbody cote, and for the brestlappe.

B And who so is wyse of harte amōge you let hym come, and make what the LORDE, hath cōmaunded: namely, the habitacyon
with the tent and couertynge therof, the ryn
ges, bordes, barres, pylers and sokettes:
The Arke with tye staues therof, the Mer
cyeate and the bayle: the table with his sta
ues and all his apparell: and the shewbread:
The candelstycke of light and his apparel,
and his lāpes, and the oyle for the lyghtes:
The altare of incense with his staues: The anoyntynge oyle & spyces for incense: The hangynge before the Tabernacle doze: The alter of burntofferynges with his brasen gredyron, staues and all his apparell: The lauer with his fote: The hangynges of the courte, with the pylers and sokettes therof, and the hangynge of the courte doze: The nayles of the habitacion and of the courte with theyr coardes: The ministrynge garmentes for the seruyce in the Holy, the holy bestimentes of Aaron the preest with the bestimētes of his sonnes for the preestes office.

C Then went all the congregacyon of the childzen of Israell out from Moses, and euery one brought the gyfte of his harte: & all the they wolde of fre wyll, the same brought they for an Heaueofferynge vnto the LORD
for the worke of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and for all the seruyce therof, & for the holy bestimentes. Both men and wemen the were of a wyllynge hart, brought bracelettes, eatewels of golde: Euery man also brought golde for Maueofferynges vnto the LORDE.

And who soeuer founde by hym yalowe
sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, goates heere, reed skynnes of rāmes, and doo skyn nes, brought it. And who so euer did heaue vp syluer, and brasse, brought it for the Heaueofferynge vnto the LORDE. And who so euer founde Fyre tre by him, brought it for al maner of worke of the Gods seruyce.
And such wemē as were wyse harted, spāne
with theyr hādes, and brought theyr spōne worke of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke. And suche wemen as had hye vnderstōdynge in wysedome, spanne goa-

As for the prynces, they broughte Onir D stones, and set stones, for the ouerbody cote,
and for the brestlappe, and spyces, and oyle
for the lyghtes, and for the anoyntynge oyle, and for swete incense. Thus the chyldre of Israell brought fre wyllynge offrynges, both men & wemen, for all maner of worke that the LORDE had cōmaūded by Moses to be made.

And Moses sayde vnto the chyldzen of Israel: Beholde, the LORDE hath called by name Bezaleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur of the tribe of Juda, and hath fylled him with the spyrete of God that he may haue wysedome, vnderstondynge, & know-

nyngly in golde, syluer and brasse, to graue
precyous stones and to set them, to carue
in wood: to make all maner of connynge workes, and hath geuen instructyon in his

B Then came al the wyse men ẏ wrought in the worke of the Sanctuary, euery one from his worke that he made, and sayd vnto Moses: The people bryngeth to muche, more then nede is for the worke of this seruyce, which the LORD hath cõmaunded to make. Then commaunded Moses that it shulde be proclamed thorow out the hoost: No man brynge more to ẏ Heaueofferynge of the Sanctuarye. Then were the people forbydden to bynge: for there was stuffe ynough for all maner of worke, that was to be made, and to muche.

Exo.26.a * So all the wyse harted men amonge them that wrought in the worke of the Habitacyon, made ten curtaynes of white twyned sylke, palow sylke, scarlet, purple, with Cherubins of brodered worke. The length of one curtayne was eyght and twentye cubites, and the bredth foure cubytes, & were all of one measure: and he coupled the curtaynes fyue & fyue together one to ẏ other.

C And made palow loupes a longe by the edge of euery curtayne, where they shulde be coupled together: fyftye loupes vpõ euery curtayne, wherby one myght be coupled to another, and made fyftene buttons of golde, and with the buttons he coupled the curtaynes together ẏ one to the other, that it myght be one couerynge.

Exo.26.b * And he made xi. curtaynes of goates heer (for the tent ouer the Habitacyon) of thyrty cubites lõge & four cubites brode, al of one measure, & coupled fyue together by thẽ selues, & fyue by thẽ selues, & made fyftye loupes a lõg by ẏ edge of euery curtayn, wher by they might be coupled together, & made fyftye buttons of brasse, to couple the tent together withall. And made ouer the tente a couerynge of reed skynnes of rãmes, and ouer that a couerynge of Dooskynnes.

D * And made stõdynge bordes for the Exo.26.c Habitacyon, of Fyrre tre, euery one ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode, & two fete vnto euery one wherby one might be ioyned to another: so that on the south syde there stode twenty of the same bordes: & he made forftye syluer sokettes there vnder, vnder euery borde two sokettes for his two fete. In lyke maner for the other syde of the Habitacyon towarde the north, he made twenty bordes also with forftye syluer sokettes, vnto euery borde two sokettes: But behynde the Habitacyon vpon ẏ west syde, he made sixe bordes, and two other for the corners of the Habitacyõ behynde, that eyther of them both myght be ioyned with his corner borde from vnder vp, and aboue vpon the heade to come together vnto a clãpe so that there were eyght bordes, and sixtene sokettes of syluer, vnder euery one two sokettes.

And he made barres of Fyrre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the Habitacion, and fyue vpon the other, & fyue behynde towarde the west: and made the barres to shut thorow the bordes, from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the bordes with golde. But theyr rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlayde the barres with golde.

And made Cherubyns vpon the hangynge with brodered worke, of palow sylke scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke. And made for the same, foure pylers of Fyrre tre and ouerlayed them with golde, and theyr knoppes of golde, and cast four sokettes of syluer for them.

And made an hangynge in the Tabernacle dore, of palow sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke, of nedle worke, & fyue pilers therto with theyr knoppes (and ouerlayed theyr knoppes and whoopes with golde) and fyue sokettes of brasse therto.

And made staues of fyrre tre, and ouerlayed thẽ with golde and put thẽ in the rynges alonge by the sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall.

And he made the Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and an halfe longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode, and made two Cherubyns of fyne beaten golde vpon the two endes of the Mercyseat: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpõ the other ende & the Cherubyns spred out theyr wynges aboue an hye, and couered the Mercyseate therwith: and theyr faces stode one ouer agaynste the other, and loked vnto the Mercyseate.

And for it he cast foure golde rynges, and putte them in the foure corners by the fete, harde by the whoope, that the staues myghte be therin to beare the table withall: and made the staues of fyrretre, and ouerlayed them with golde, to beare the table withall. And the vessels vpon the table made he also of fyne gold: the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes, to poure in and out withall.

Upõ the candelstycke it selfe were foure cuppes with knoppes & floures, vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. The knoppes and braunches therof proceaded out of it, and were al one pece of fyne beaten golde. And and he made the seuen lampes with theyre snoffers and outquenchers of pure golde. And the hangynge in the courte gate made he with nedle worke, of yalowe sylke scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned silke, twẽtye cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes hye, after the measure of ꝑ hangynges of ꝑ courte foure pylers also therto, and four sokettes of brasse, and theyr knoppes of syluer, and theyr heades ouerlayed, & theyr whoopes of syluer. And all the nayles of the Habitacyon and of the courte rounde aboute were of brasse.

This is now the summe of the Habitacyon of witnesse (which was counted at the cõmaundement of Moses to the Gods seruyce of ꝑ Leuites vnder the hãde of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preste) whiche Bezaleel the soune of Uri, the sonne of Hur of the tribe of Juda made, all as the LORDE cõmaũded Moses. And with hym Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer to worke nedle worke, with yalowe sylke, scarlet purple, & whyte sylke.

All the golde that was wrought in all this worke of ꝑ Sanctuary (which was geuen vnto the Maueoffe rynge) is nyne &

twentye hundreth weyght: seuen hundreth
D and thyrtye Sycles, after the Sycle of the Exo.38.b Sanctuary. * The syluer that came of the congregacyon, was fyue score hundreth weyght, a thousande, seuen hundreth, fyue and seuentye Sycles, after the Sycle of ꝑ sanctuarye: so many heades, so many halfe Sycles after the Sycle of the sanctuarye,
of all that were nombred from twenty yeare
olde and aboue, euen sixe hundreth thousande, thre thousande, fyue hundreth & fyfty.

Of the fyue score hundreth weyght of syl
uer, were cast the sokettes of the sanctuary:
and the sokettes of the vayle, an hundreth so kettes of the fyue score hundreth weyght, an hundreth weyght to euery soket. Of the thou sande, seuen hundreth and fyue and seuentye

(& their heades ouerlayed) & theyr whopes.

As for the Waueofferynge of brasse it was seuentye hundreth weyght, two thousande and foure hundreth Sycles: Wher-of were made the sokettes in the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyron therto, and all the vessels of ꝑ altare, and ꝑ sokettes of the courte rounde aboute, and the sokettes of the courte gate, all the nayles of the Habitacyon, and all the nayles of the courte rounde aboute.

The.xxxix.Chapter.

Exo.28.c OF the yalowe sylke, scarlet, and purple, they made Aarons my nistrynge vestimẽtes, to do ser uyce in the Sanctuary, as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses.

And he made the ouerbody cote, of golde
yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twy
ned sylke, and bette the golde into thynne plates, and cut it in to wyers, that it might be wrought amonge the yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte sylke, and made it so, ꝑ
the ouerbody cote came together by ꝑ ende on both ꝑ sydes. And his gyrdell was of the same crafte and worke: euen of golde,
yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twy
ned sylke, as the LORD cõmaunded Moses.

And they wrought two Onix stones, set it rounde aboute with gold, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the chyldren of Israell: and fastened them vpon the shul
ders of the ouerbody cote, that they myght be stones of remẽbraunce vnto the chyldren of Israell, as the LORD cõmaũded Moses.

And they made the brestlap after the crafte of ꝑ worke of ꝑ ouerbody cote: of golde,
yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twy
ned sylke, so that it was foure squayre and dubble, an hãdbredth longe and brode, and fylled it with four rowes of stones. * The fyrst row was: a Sardis, a Topas, a Smararagde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, a Diamonde. The thirde: a Ligurius, an Achate, and an Amatist. The fourth: a Tur-cas, an Onix, and a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with golde in all the rowes. And ꝑ stones stode after the twolue names of the chyldren of Israel, grauen by the stone grauuer, euery one with his name, accordyng to the twolue trybes.

And vpõ the brestlappe they made wre-
then cheynes of pure gold, and two holes of golde, and two golde rynges, and fasten-ned the two rynges vpon two edges of the brestlap: and the two wrethen cheynes put they in ꝑ two rynges vpõ the corners of the brestlappe. But the two endes of ꝑ wreth cheynes put they to ꝑ two holes, and fasned them vpon the corners of the ouerbody cote, one ouer against another.

And they made two other ringes of gold,
and fastened them to the other two corners of the brestlap by ꝑ edge of it, that it might hange vpon the outsyde of the ouerbody cote. And they made yet two other golde rynges, whiche they put beneth vpon the two cornes of the ouerbody cote, one ouer agaynst another where the ouerbody cote ioyneth together, that the brestlap myght
be fastened by his rynges vnto the ryngs of ꝑ ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, and it myght sye close vpon the ouerbody cote,
and not be lowsed from the ouerbody cote,
as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses.

And he made the tunycle vnto the ouerbody cote, wrought all of yalow sylke, and the hole therof aboue in the myddest, as bonde folden together rounde aboute the hole, that it ſhuld not rent. And beneth vpō the hemme of it, they made pōgranates of palow ſylke, ſcarlet, purple, and whyte twyned ſylke, & they made belles of pure gold, which they put betwixte the pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the hemme of the tunicle, a bell and a pomgranate, a bel, and a pomgranate rounde aboute, to do ſeruyce in, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes.

And they made albes alſo wrought of whyte ſylke, for Aaron and his ſonnes, and the miter of whyte ſylke, and the goodly bonnettes of whyte ſylke, and brecches of twyned whyte lyné & the gyrdle of nedle worke euen of whyte twyned ſylke, palowe ſylke, ſcarlet, purple, as the LORDE comaunded Moſes.

They made þ forheade plate alſo to the holy crowne, of pure golde, and wrote ther in with grauen worde: the holynes of the LORDE, and feſtened a palowe lace theron, to tye it vnto the myter aboue, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

Thus the whole worke of the Habitacyō of þ Tabernacle of witneſſe, was fynished. And the chyldren of Iſrael dyd all that the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes, and broughte the Habitacion vnto Moſes: the Tabernacle and all the apparel therof, the buttons, bordes, barres, pilers, ſokettes, þ couerynge of reed ſkynnes of rammes, the couerynge of dooſkynnes, and the vayle, the Arke of witneſſe with the ſtaues therof. The Mercyſeate, the table and all his apparell, and the ſhewbreade the cādelſtycke, with the lāpes prepared, and all his apparel, and oyle for the lightes, the golden altare, þ anoyntyng oyle & incenſe, the hangynge in the Tabernacle dore, the braſen altar, and his braſen gredyron wh his ſtaues, & al his apparel, the lauer with his foote, the hangynges of the courte with the pylers and ſokettes therof, the hangynge in the courtgate with his pylers and nayles, and all the ordinaūce for the ſeruyce of the Habitacyō of the Tabernacle of witneſſe, the ministrynge veſtimentes of Aaron þ prieſt, to do ſeruyce uyce in the sanctuarye and the garmentes of his sonnes that they myghte execute the prestes office. Accordynge to all that ỹ LORDE cõmaũded Moses euen so dyd the chyldre of Israel in all this seruice, and Moses sawe all the worke, that they dyd it euen as the LORD had commaunded, and he blessed them.

The.xl.Chapter.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: In the fyrst day of ỹ first moneth shalt thou set vp the Habitacyon of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and shalte put the Arke of witnes therin, and hange the vayle before the Arke. And thou shalte bynge in the table, and garnysh it, & bryng in the candelsticke, and put the lãpes theron. And the golden altare of incense shalte thou set before the Arke of witnesse, & hãge vp the hangynge in the dore of the Habitacyon. But the altare of burntofferynges shalt thou set before the dore of the Habitacyon of the Tabernacle of witnesse: and the lauer betwixte the Tabernacle of witnesse and ỹ altare, and put water therin, and set the court rounde aboute, and hange vp the hangynge in the courtgate.

And thou shalt take ỹ anoyntyng oyle, and anoynte the Habitacyon and al that is therin, * and shalt consecrate it, and all the apparell therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferynges and all his vessels, and cõsecrate it, that it maye be mooste holy. The lauer also and his fote shalt thou anoynte & cõsecrate

* And thou shalt bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and wash thẽ with water, and put the holy vestimentes vpon Aaron and anoynte hym, and cõsecrate hym, that he may be my prest. And thou shalt bynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and anoynte them, as thou hast anoynted theyr father, that they maye be my prestes. And this anoyntyng shall they haue for an euerlastynge prestlhode amõge theyr posterities

* And Moses dyd all as the LORDE commaunded hym.

* Thus was the Tabernacle set vp in the seconde yeare vpon the fyrst day of the fyrst moneth. And whan Moses reared it vp, he fastened the sokettes and the bordes and barres, and set vp the pylers, and spred out the tente ouer the Habitacyon, and put the couerynge of the tent aboue an hye, as the LORDE cõmaũded hym. And he toke ỹ witnesse, and layed it in ỹ Arke, and put the staues in the Arke, and set the Mercyseate aboue vpon ỹ Arke, and brought the Arke in to the Habitacyon, and hãged the vayle before the Arke of witnesse, as the LORDE commaunded hym.

And he sett the table in the Tabernacle of witnesse, in the corners of the Habitacyon vpon the northsyde without the vayle, and prepared bread theron before the LORDE * as the LORDE commaunded hym.

And he set in the candelsticke also ouer agaynst the table, in the corner of the Habitacyon vpon the southsyde, and put the lampes theron before the LORDE, as ỹ LORDE cõmaunded hym. And the golden altare set he in also before ỹ vayle, and brent swete incense theron, as the LORDE cõmaunded hym. And hanged vp the hãgynge in the Tabernacle dore. As for the altare of burntofferynges, he set it before the dore of the Habitacyon of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and offered burntofferynges and meate offerynges theron, as the LORD cõmaunded hym.

* And the Lauer set he betwixte the Tabernacle of witnesse and the altare, and put water therin to wash withall. And Moses, Aarõ, and his sonnes washed theyr hãdes and fete therin: for they ought to wash them whan they go in to the Tabernacle of witnesse, or whan they wente vnto the altare, as the LORDE cõmaunded hym.

And he set vp the courte rounde about the Habitacyon and the altare, and hanged vp the hangynge in the courte gate: thus Moses fynyshed the whole worke.

* Then a cloude couered the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the Habitacyon. And Moses could not go in to the Tabernacle of witnesse, whyle the cloude abode theron and the glorye of LORDE fylled the habitacyon.

And whan the cloude remoued from the Habitaciõ, thẽ wente the chyldre of Israel forth, as oft as they toke their iourney. But yf ỹ cloude remoued not, then toke not they their iourney, tyl the daye that it remoued. For in the daye tyme was the cloude of the LORDE vpon the Habitacyon, and in the nyght season was fyre therin in the sight of all the house of Israell, in all theyr iourneyes.

AND the LORDE cal- A led Moses * & spake Exo.19.8.
vnto hym out of the Tabernacle of wyt nesse, & sayd: Speak vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: Who soeuer a mongst you wyll brynge an offrynge vnto the LORDE, let hym brynge it of the cattell, euen of the oxen, and of the shepe.

If he wyll brynge a burntoffrynge of the oxen (or great cattell) then let hym offer a male without blemyshe, before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to reconcyle hymselfe before the LORDE, * let hym laye Exo.29.4. Leui.3.8
his hande vpon the heade of the burntoffe rynge, then shall he be reconcyled, so ỹ God shalbe mercyfull vnto hym.

And he shall kyll the yonge oxe before B
the LORDE: and the prestes Aarons sonnes shall brynge the bloude, and sprynkle it rounde about vpon the altare that is be fore the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the skynne shalbe flayne frõ of ỹ burnt offrynge, and it shalbe hewen in peces. And the sõnes of Aaron the prest shal make a fyre vpõ the altare, and laye wood about theron and the peces, the heade, and the fat shall they laye vpon the wood that lyeth vp pon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels and legges shalbe washen with water, and the preste shall burne altogether vpon the altare for a burntsacrifice: this is an of frynge of a swete sauour vnto the LORDE.

C yf he wyll offre a burnt sacrifyce of the small cattell, that is, of the lambes or goates, then let him offre a male without a blemyshe. And he shall kyll it before the LORD euen at the corner of the altare on the north syde before the LORDE. And (the prestes) Aarons sonnes shall sprenkle his bloude roūd about vpon the altare, and it shalbe hewen in peces. And the prest shall laye them with the heade and the fat, vpon the woode that lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But ỹ bowels and the legges shalbe washē with water. And the prest shall offre it altogether, & burne it vpon the altare for a burntsacrifice This in an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D But yf he wyll offer a burntsacryce of ỹ foules vnto the LORDE, thén let hym offer it of the turtel doues or of the ponge pygiōs. And the prest shall bryng it vnto the altare and wrynge the necke of it a sunder, that it may be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it runne out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the fethers shalbe cast vpon the heape of ashes besyde the altare towarde the east, and he shall deuyde the wynges of it, but not breake them cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, euen vpon the woode that lyeth vpon the fyre, for a burntsacrifice. This is an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

The.ii.Chapter.

A When a soule wyll offer a meatofferynge vnto the LORDE, thē shall it be of fyne floure and he shall poure oyle vpon it, & put frankēcense theron, & so bringe it vnto Aarons sonnes the prestes. Then shall one of thē take his handfull of ỹ same floure and oyle, with all the frankencense, & burn it for a remembraunce vpon ỹ altare. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. * As for the remnaunt of the meatofferynge, it shalbe Aarons and his sōnes. This shalbe the mooste holy of the offerynge of the LORDE.

Leui.6.d and.9.f Num.15.a

Leui.10.d.

B But yf he wyll bryng a meatofferynge of that which is baken in the ouen, then let hym take swete cakes of wheate, mixte with oyle, and vnleuended wafers anoynted with oyle. Neuertheles yf thy meatofferynge be ony thynge of that which is fryed in ỹ pāne then shall it be of fyne swete floure mixte with oyle. And thou shalt cut it in peces, & poure oyle theron: so is it a meatofferynge. But yf thy meatofferynge be ought bryded on the gredyron, then shalte thou make it of fyne floure with oyle. And the meatofferynge ỹ thou wylt make of suche thynges for ỹ LORDE, shalte thou bryng vnto ỹ prest, which shall bryng it vnto the altare, & shal heue vp the same meatofferyng for a remembraūce and burne it vpon the altare. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe ỹ mooste holy of the offerynges of the LORDE.

All the meatofferynges that ye wyll offre vnto the LORDE, shall ye make without leuen. For ther shall no leuen nor hony be burnt for an offrynge vnto the LORDE. But for the offerynge of the fyrstelynges shal ye offer them vnto the LORDE. Neuertheles they shall come vpon no altare for a swete sauoure.

Al thy meatofferynges shalt thou salte. And thy meatofferynge shall neuer be without out the salt of the cōuenaūt of thy God: but in all thy offerynges shalt thou offre salt.

But yf thou wylt offer a meatofferynge of the fyrst frutes vnto the LORDE, thē shalt thou drye that which is grene by the fyre, & beat it small, and so offre the meatofferynge of thy fyrst frutes. And thou shalte put oyle vpon it, and laye frankencense theron, so is it a meatofferynge. And then shall the prest beate it, and burne of ỹ oyle with al ỹ frankencense for a remembraunce. This is an offerynge vnto the LORDE.

The.iii.Chapter.

But yf his offerynge be a thankofferynge of great cattel (whether it be ore or cowe) then shall he offre such as is without blemyshe before the LORDE, & shal laye his hande vpon the heade of it, and slo it before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the prestes Aarons sonnes, shall sprenkle ỹ bloude rounde about vpon the altare, and shal offre of the thankofferynge vnto the LORDE: namely, all the fatte that is within, and the two kidneys with ỹ fatte that is theron vpō the loynes, and the nette on the leuer vpō the kydneys also. And Aarons sonnes shall burne it vpon the altare for a burntofferynge, euen vpon the woode that lyeth on the fyre. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

yf his thankofferynge be of smal cattel, whether it be male or female, it shalbe with out blemyshe: yf it be a lambe, then shall bynge it before the LORDE and shall laye his hande vpon the heade of it, and slaye it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shall sprenkle his bloud rounde aboute vpon the altare, and so offre of the thankofferynge vnto the LORDE: namely, ꝑ fat of it, all the rompe with the backe, and the fatte that couereth the bowels, with all the fat that is within, and the two kydneys with the fat that is theron vpon the loines, and the nette on the leuer vpon the kidneys also. And the preest shall burne it vpō the altare, for the meat of the offerynge vnto the LORDE.

C But yf his offerynge be a goate, & bryngeth it before ꝑ LORDE, he shall lay his hāde vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before ꝑ Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shall sprenkle the bloude rounde about vpon the altare, and shall offre therof a sacrifice vnto the LORDE: namely, the fat that couereth the bowels, and all the fat that is within the two kydneys, with the fat that is theron vpon the loynes, and the nette on the leuer vpon the kydneys. And the preest shall burne it vpon the altare, for the meat of the sacrifice to a swete sauoure.

7.a *All the fatte is the LORDES. Let this be a perpetuall lawe amonge your posterities in all your dwellynges, that ye eate no fatte, *nor bloude.

The.iiij. Chapter.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye: Whā a soule synneth throwe ignorauce in ony commaundemēt of the LORDE, which he ought not to do: As namely, yf a preest which is anoynted, synne, that he make the people do amysse, he shall bynge for the synne that he hath done, a yonge bullocke without blemyshe vnto the LORDE for a synofferynge.

9.b *And the bullocke shall he bynge to ꝑ dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before ꝑ LORDE, and laye his hāde vpon his head, & kyll hym before the LORDE. *And the preest that is anoynted, shal take of his bloud, & bynge

B it vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall dyppe his fynger in to the bloude, and sprynkle therwith seuē tymes before ꝑ LORDE, towarde the vayle of the Holy. And he shall put of the same bloude vpon the hornes of the altare of incense, ꝑ stōdeth before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & all ꝑ bloude of the bullocke shall he poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferynges, that stondeth at the entrynge in of ꝑ Tabernacle of wytnesse. And all the fat of synofferynge shall he Heaue vp: namely the fatte that couereth the bowels, and al ꝑ fat that is within the two kydneys, with ꝑ fat that is theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneys also (lyke as he Heaueth it from the ore in the thankofferynge) and shall burne it vpon the altare of burntofferynges. *But the skynne of ꝑ bul C locke, and all the flesshe, wyth the heade, and legges, and the bowels, and the donge, shal he carye altogether out of the hoost, in to a cleane place, wher the ashes are poured out and shal burne it vpon the wood with fyre. Exo.29.b. Nu.19.a

*Whan the whole cōgregacyon of Israel synneth throwe ignorauce, & the dede be hydde from theyr eyes, so that they do ought agaynst ony of the commaūdemēts of the LORDE, which they shulde not do, & come afterward to the knowlege of ꝑ synne ꝑ they haue done, they shal bynge a yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and set hym before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the Elders of the congregacyon shall laye theyr handes vpon his heade before ꝑ LORDE, and kyll ꝑ bullocke before the LORDE. And the preest that is anoynted, shall D bryng of ꝑ bullockes bloude in to ꝑ Tabernacle of wytnes, and dippe therin with his fynger, and sprenkle therwith seuen tymes before the LORDE, euen before the vayle of the Holy. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the altare, that stōdeth before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: and all the other bloud shall he poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntoffetynges, that stondeth before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. But al his fat shal he Heaue vp, and burne it vpon the altare: and shall do with this bullocke, as he dyd with the bullocke of the synofferyng: Thus the preest shall make an attonement for the, & it shalbe forgeuen them. And that bullock shall he bynge without the hoost, & burne hym, as he brent the fyrste bullocke. This shalbe the synofferyng of the cōgregacion.

Whan a prynce synneth, & doth agaīst E
the commaundemēt of the LORDE his God that he ought not to do, and offendeth ignorauntly, and commeth to the knowlege of his synne that he hath done, he shal bynge for his offerynge an hegoate without blemyth, & laye his hāde vpō the goates head, and slaye hym in the place where the burnt offrynges are slayne before the LORDE. Let this be his synofferynge. Then shal ꝑ preest take of the bloude of the synofferynge with his fynger, and put it vpon ꝯ hornes of the altare of burnt offerynges, and poure the other bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferynges. But all the fatte of it shall he burne vpon the altare, lyke as the fatte of the thankofferynge. And so the preest shall make an attonemēt for his synne, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

¶ Whan a soule of the comune people synneth ignorauntly, doynge ony thynge agaynst the cōmaundement of the LORDE that he ought not to do, and so offendeth, & commeth to the knowlege of the synne that he hath done, he shal brynge for his offryng a she goate without blemyshe for the synne that he hath done, and shall laye his hande vpon the heade of the synofferynge, & slaye it in the place of the burntofferynges. And the preeste shall take of the bloude with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare of burntofferynges, & poure al ꝯ bloud vpō ꝯ bottome of ꝯ altare. But al ꝯ fat of it shal he take awaye, lyke as he taketh away the fat of the thākofferynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. And so shal the preest make an attonement for hym, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

G But yf he brynge a lambe for a synofferynge, then let hym brynge a female without blemyshe, and laye his hande vpon the heade of the synofferynge, and kyll it for a synofferynge, and the place wher the burnt offerynges are slayne. And the preeste shall take of the bloude with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare of burntofferynges, and poure all the bloude vpō the botome of the altare. But all the fatte therof shall he take from it, lyke as he dyd the fat of the lambe of the thākofferynges, and shal burne it vpon ꝯ altare for ꝯ LORDES sacrifice. And so ꝯ preest shall make an attonement for the synne that he hath done, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

The.v.Chapter.

A Leui.24.c. When a soule synneth, ꝯ he hear a cursyng, and is wytnesse therof, or hath sene it, or knowen it & telleth it not, he is gylty of a trespace. * Or whā a soule toucheth ony vncleane thinge, whether it be carīō of an vncleane beast or cattel, or worme & was not aware of it, he is vnclene, & hath offended. Or whā he toucheth an vncleane man (what vnclennesse so euer a man is defyled withall) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde commeth to ꝯ knowlege therof, the same hath offended. Or whan a soule sweareth, so that he pronounce with his mouth to do euel or good (what soeuer it be that a man pronounceth with an oth) & was not aware of it, & afterward cōmeth to the knowlege therof, he hath offēded in one of these.

Now whan it so is, that he hath offended in one of these, & is informed therof, what he hath synned, he shall brynge vnto the LORD for his trespace of this his synne ꝯ he hath done a femal from the flocke, eyther an ewe or a she goate for a synofferynge: so shal the preeste make an attonement for hym concernynge his synne. * But yf he be not able to brynge a shepe, then let hym brynge vnto ꝯ LORDE for his offence ꝯ he hath done, two turtel doues, or two ponge pygions: one for a synofferyng, the other for a burntofferyng and brynge them to the preeste. Which shall make the fyrst a synofferyng, & fyrst wryng the necke of it, so that he plucke it not clene of, and sprynckle with the bloude vpon the sydes of the altare, and let the residue of the bloude blede out vpon the botome of the altare: This is the synofferynge. As for the other, he shall make it a burntofferyng, after the maner therof. And thus shall the preest make an attonement for hym concernynge the synne that he hath done, & it shalbe forgeuen hym. But yf he be not able to bryng two turtell doues or two ponge pigeons, thē let hym brynge for his offerynge for his synne, a tenth deal of an Epha of fyne flour for a synofferynge. But he shall put no oyle theron, nor lay frankēcense vpon it, for it is a synofferynge. And he shall brynge it vnto the preest, & the preest shall take his hande full of it for a remembrauce, and burne it vpon the altare for an offeryng vnto the LORDE. This is a synofferynge. And so shal ꝯ preest make an attonement for hym, concernynge his synne that he hath done, & it shalbe forgeuen hym. And the remnaunt shalbe ꝯ preestes, lyke a meatofferynge.

Exod.22.b Leui.22.c. And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, and sayd: If a soule trespace, so that he ignorauntly offendeth in ony thynge that is halowed vnto the LORDE, he shal brynge his trespaceofferynge vnto the LORDE, a ramme from the flocke without blemyshe, worth two Sycles of syluer, * after the Sycle of the Sanctuary, for a trespace offerynge: and loke what he hath offended in the halowed thynge, he shall make restitucyon, and geue the fyfth parte more ther-

And he shal delyuer it vnto the preest, which shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme of the trespaceofferynge, & it shalbe forgeuen hym.

Whan a soule synneth, and doth ought agaynst ony commaundement of the LORDE, that he shulde not do, and is informed therof, þ he hath trespassed, & is gylty of þ synne. And he shall bringe from the flocke a ramme without blemysh (that is worth a trespaceofferyng) vnto the preest, which shal make an attonement for hym concernynge his ignorannce which he dyd, and was not aware and it shalbe forgeuen hym. This is the trespaceofferynge, because he trespassed agaynst the LORDE.

¶ And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Whan a soule synneth, and trespasseth agaynst the LORDE, so that he denyeth vnto his neyghboure that whiche he gaue hym to kepe, or þ was put vnder his hande or that he hath violently taken awaye, or got ten vnryghteously, or founde that was lost, and denyeth it with a false oth, what soeuer it be, wherin a man synneth agaynst his
v.s.a. neyghboure. * Now whan it commeth so to passe, that he synneth after this maner, and trespasseth, he shal restore agayne þ he toke violently awaye, or gat wrongously, or that was geuē hym to kepe, or þ he hath found, or what soeuer it be about þ which he hath swome falsely he shal restore it agayne hole altogether, and geue the fyfth parte more therto, euen to hym þ it belonged vnto, the same day þ he geueth his trespaceofferyng. But for his trespasse he shall bringe for the LORDE (euen vnto the preste) a ramme frō the flocke without blemyshe, that is worth a trespaceofferynge. Then shall the preste make an attonement for hym before þ LORDE, & all that he hath synned in, shalbe forgeuen hym.

The.vi.Chapter.

¶ AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, & saye: This is the lawe of the burntofferyng. * The burntofferyng vj.a. shall burne vpon the altare all nyght vntyl the morynge. But the fyre of þ altare only shall burne therin. And the preest shall put on his lynē * albe, & his linē breches vpō his flesshe, & shall take vp the ashes that the fyre b.a. of þ burntofferyng vpō þ altare hath made, and shal poure them besyde the altare. The shall he put of of his rayment, and put on other rayment and cary out the ashes without the hoost, in to a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shall burne & neuer go out. The preest shall kyndle woode therin euery morynge, and dresse the burnt ofterynge vpon it, and burne the fat of the thankofferynges therin. The fyre shal euer burne vpon the altare, and neuer go out. B

And this is þ lawe of the * meatofferyng, Exo.xx.d
Leui.ij.a which Aarons sonnes shall offer before the LORDE vpon the altare. One of them shall heaue his hāde ful of fyne floure of þ meat ofterynge, and of the oyle, and all the frankencense that lyeth vpon the meatofferyng, and shall burne it vpon þ altare for a swete sauoure a remembraunce vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt, Aaron and his sōnes shall eate it, and vnleuended shall they eate it in the holy place, namely, in the courte of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. With leuen shalt they not bake their portyon, which I haue geue them of my ofterynges, it shalbe vnto them moost holy, as the synofferynge and trespaceofferyng. All the males amōge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it. Let this be a perpetuall lawe for youre posterities in the sacrifices of the LORDE. No man shall touch it, excepte he be consecrated.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, C and sayd: This shalbe the ofterynge of Aaron and of his sonnes, which they shal offer vnto the LORDE in the day of their anoyntynge. The tenth parte of an Epha of fyne floure for a meatofferynge dayly, the one halfe parte in the morynge, the other halfe parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shalt thou make it, and bringe it fryed, and in peces shalt thou offer it for þ swete sauoure of the LORDE. And the preest which amonge his sonnes shalbe anoynted in his stede shall do this. This is a perpetuall dewtye vnto the LORDE. It shalbe burnt altogether: for all the meatofferynges of the preest shalbe cōsumed with the fyre, and not be eate.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and D sayd: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, & saye: This is þ lawe of the synofferynge: In þ place where thou slayest the burntofferynge shalt thou slaye the synofferynge also before the LORD. This is moost holy. * The preest Exo.xxix.b that offereth the synofferynge, shall eat it in the holy place, in the courte of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shall touch the flesh therof excepte he be halowed. And yf ony garmente be sprenkled with the bloude of it, it shalbe washen in the holy place.
And * the earthen potte that it is sodden Leui.vj.a

and.15.b in shalbe broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shalbe scoured, and rensed with water. All the males amonge the prestes shall eat therof, for it is moost holy. Notwithstondynge all the synofferinge, whose blonde is brought in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse to make an attonement, shall not be eaten, but burnt with fyre.

The.vii. Chapter.

¶ And this is the lawe of the trespaceofferynge, and it shalbe moost holy. In the place wher the burntofferynge is slayne, shall the trespaceofferynge be slayne also, and ther shall of his blonde be sprynkled rounde aboute vpon the altare. And all his fatte shalbe offered: the rompe and the fatte that couereth the bowels, the two kydneys wt the fat that is theron vpō the lopnes, and the net on the leuer vpō the kydneys also. And the preste shall burne it vpon the altare for an offerynge vnto the LORDE. This is a trespaceofferynge.

All the males amonge the prestes shall eat it in the holy place, for it is moost holy: euen as the synofferynge, so shall the trespaceofferynge be also, they shall both haue one lawe, and it shalbe the prestes, that reconcyleth therwith. Loke which preste offereth ony mans burntofferynge, ꝑ skynne of the same burntofferynge that he hath offered shalbe his. And euery meatofferyng that is baken in the ouen, rosted vpon the gredyron or fryed in the pāne, shalbe the prestes that offereth it. And euery meatofferynge that is myngled with oyle, or dry shall belonge vnto al Aarons sonnes vnto one as wel as vnto anothes.

pſal.115.a that is offered vnto the LORDE. * If they wyll offer a sacrifice of thankesgeuyng, thē shal they offer vnleuended cakes mengled wt oyle, & swete wafers straked ouer wt oyle, & fryed cakes of fyne floure myngled wt oyle. This offerynge also shall they bryngē vpō a take of leuended bread, to the thankofferynge of his healthofferynge: and of them all he shall offer one for an heaueofferynge vnto the LORDE. And it shalbe the prestes, that sprenkleth the blonde of the healthofferynge. And the flesh of the thankofferyng in his healthofferynges, shalbe eate ꝑ same daye that it is offered, & there shall nothyng be lefte ouer vntyll the morynge.

And whether it be a vowe, or a free wyll
Leui.19.b offerynge, * it shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offered: yf ought be lefte ouer vntyll the morynge, yet may it be eaten. But loke what remayneth vnto the thyrde daye of the flesshe that is offered, it shalbe burnt with fyre. And yf ony man vpon the thyrde daye eate of the offered flesshe of his thankofferynge, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Nether shall it be rekened vnto him, but it shalbe refused. And loke which soule eateth therof, the same is gylty of a mysdede.

And ꝑ flesshe that toucheth ony vncleanthynge shall not be eaten, but burnt with fyre. But whosoeuer is cleane of body, shall eat of the flesshe: and the soule that eateth of the flesshe of the thankofferynge which belongeth vnto the LORDE, his vnclennes is vpon hym, and he shalbe roted out from amonge the people.

And whā a soule toucheth ony vncleanthynge, whether it be an vncleane man, or beest, or ony other abhominacyō that is, and eateth of the flesshe of ꝑ burntofferynge, that belongeth vnto the LORDE, the same shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: * ye shall eate no fat of oxen, lambes, and goates: neuertheles the fat of it that dyeth alone, and of suche as is torne of wylde beastes, that may be occupyed to all maner of vses, but ye shall not eat it.

For whosoeuer eateth ꝑ fat of the beest that is geuen vnto the LORDE for an offerynge, ꝑ same soule shalbe roted out frō his people. Moreouer, * ye shal eate no blonde, nether of cattell, nor of foules where so euer ye dwell. What soeuer soule eateth ony blond, ꝑ same shalbe roted out frō ꝑ people.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayd: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: Who so wyll offre his thankofferynge vnto the LORDE the same shall also bryngē withal, ꝑ belongeth vnto ꝑ thankofferynge for the LORDE. But he shal bryng it with his hāde for the offrynge of the LORDE: namely the fat vpon the breste shall he bryngē, with ꝑ brest, to be a Wauedoffrynge before the LORDE. And the preste shal burne the fat vpon the altare and the brest shall Aarons and his sonnes.

And the ryghte shulder shall they geue vnto the preste for a gyfte of their thankofferynges. And loke which of Aarons sonnes offereth ꝑ blonde of ꝑ thankofferynges, and fat, the same shal haue the ryght shulder for his parte. * For the Wauebrest and heaue shulder haue I taken of ꝑ chyldren of Israell, and of theyr thankofferynges and haue geue them vnto Aaron the preest, vnto his sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron and of his sonnes, of the offerynges of the LORDE, in the day whā Moses presented them to be prestes vnto the LORDE what tyme as the LORDE cōmaunded (in the daye whan he anoynted thē) to be geuen thē of the chyldren of Israell for a perpetual dewtye and to al theyr posteritye. And this is ꝑ law of the burntofferynge, of the meatofferynge, of the synneofferynge, of the trespasse offerynge of the offerynge of consecracyon, and of the thankofferynges, which the LORDE cōmaunded Moses vpon mount Sinai, in the daye whan he gaue hym in cōmaundement vnto the chyldren of Israell, to offere theyr offerynges vnto LORDE in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

The.viii. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take Aarō and his sonnes with hym, * and theyr vestimentes and the anoyntyng oyle, * and a bullock for a synofferynge, two rāmes, & a maunde with vnleuended breade and call the whole congregacyon together, before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. Moses dyd as the LORDE cōmaunded hym, and gathered the congregacyon together vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse: and sayd vnto the: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.

And he toke Aaron and his sonnes, and washed them with water, and put the albe vpon hym, and gyrded hym with ꝑ gyrdel, and put vpon hym the palow tunicle, & put the outerbody cote vpō hym, and gyrde him vpon the outerbody cote, and put ꝑ brestlap theron, and in the brestlappe light and perfectnesse. And set the miter vpon his heade. And vpō the myter euē aboue his forheade put he a plate of golde on the holy crowne as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke the * anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacyon, and all that was therin, and consecrated it & sprenkled therwith seuen times vpon the altare, and anoynted the altare with al his vessels the lauer with his fote, that it myght be cōsecrated: * and powred ꝑ anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heade, & anoynted hym, that he myght be consecrated.

And he brought Aarōs sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrde them with the gyrdle, and put bonettes vpō theyr heades as the LORDE cōmaunded hym. C

And he caused to bryng a bullocke for a synofferynge. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their hādes vpon his heade, and thē was he slayne. And Moses toke of ꝑ bloud, and putte it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute with his fynger, and purgyed the altare and powred the bloude vpō the botome of the altare, and consecrated it that he myght reconcyle it. And toke all the fat vpō the bowels, the nette vpon ꝑ leuer, and the two kydneys with the fat theron, & burned it vpon the altare. But the bullock with his, skynne, flesh, and dōge, burned he with fyre without the hoost, * as the LORDE commaunded hym. Exo. 29.a

And he brought a ramme for a burntofferynge. And Aaron with his sonnes layed theyr handss vpon his heade, and thē was he slayne. And Moses sprenkled of ꝑ bloud vpon the altare rounde aboute, hewed the rāme in peces, & burnt ꝑ heade, ꝑ peces, and the fat. And washed ꝑ bowels & the legges with water, & so burnt the whole rāme vpō the altare. This was a burntofferynge for a swete sauoure, euē a sacrifyce vnto the LORDE, * as the LORDE cōmaunded hym. Exo. 29.c

He brought also the other ramme of the offerynge of the consecracyon. And Aaron with his sonnes layed theyr handes vpon his heade, and then was it slayne. And Moses toke of his bloude, and put vpō ꝑ typpe of Aarons ryght eare and vpon the thōbe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of his right foote.

And he brought Aarōs sonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the typpe of the ryghte eare of them, and vpon the thōbes of their righte handes, and vpon the greate toes of theyr ryght fete, and powred the residue of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute. E

* And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the net vpon the leuer, the two kydneys with the fat theron, and the ryghte shulder. And out of the maunde of vnleuended bread before the LORDE, he toke an vnleuended cake and a cake of oyled breade, and a wafer, & layed them vpon the fat, and vpon the right shulder, and put all together vpon the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waued it for a Waueofferynge before the LORDE. Exo. 29.d

And afterwarde toke he al agayne fro theyr hōdes, and burned thē on the altare, F

tare, euen vpon the burntofferinge: for it is an offerynge of consecracyon for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifyce vnto the LORDE.

Exo.29.c * And Moses toke the brest, and waued it a Waueofferynge before the LORDE of the ramme of the offerynge of cõsecracyon, the same was Moses parte, as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses. And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, and of the bloude vpon ỹ altare, and sprẽkled it vpon Aaron and his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes & vpon their vestimẽtes, and so consecrated Aaron and his vestimẽtes, his sonnes and theyr vestimentes with hym.

8 And he sayd vnto Aaron and his sõnes: Seeth the flesh before ỹ dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse and there eate it, and the breade in the maunde of the consecracyon offerynges, as it is commaunded me, and sayde: Aaron & his sonnes shall eate it. As for that which remayneth of the flesshe and breade, ye shall burne it with fyre. And in seuen dayes shall ye not departe frõ the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, vntyll ỹ day that ỹ dayes of your cõsecracyõ offerynges be at ende: for seuen dayes must youre handes be cõsecrated, as it is com to passe this daye: The LORD hath cõmaunded to do it, that ye myghte be reconcyled. And ye shall tary before the Tabernacle of witnesse day and nyght seuẽ dayes lõge, and shall kepe the watch of the LORDE, that ye dye not, for thus am I cõmaũded. And Aaron with his sonnes dyd all, that the LORDE commaunded by Moses.

The.ix.Chapter.

1 AND vpon the eyght daye Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the Elders in Israel and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vnto the a yonge calfe for a synneofferynge, and a ramme for a burntofferyng, both without blemish and bringe them before the LORDE and speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye: Take an hegoate for a synneofferynge, and a calfe, and shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemysh for a burntofferynge: and an ore, and a ramme for a thankofferynge, that we maye offre before the LORDE: and meatofferynge myngled with oyle. For to daye shall the LORDE appeare vnto you.

8 And they toke what Moses commaunded before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse: and the whole cõgregacyon came nye and stode before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE commaunded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glorye of the LORDE, appeare vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto the altare, and * offer thy synneofferynge and thy burntofferynge, and make an attonement for the and for the people. Then offer the peoples offerynge, and reconcyle them also, as the LORDE hath cõmaunded.

* Aaron wente vnto ỹ altare, and slewe the calfe for his synneofferynge, and his sonnes brought the bloude vnto hym. And he dypte his fynger in the bloude, and put vpon the hornes of the altare, and powred the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. As for the fat and the kydneys and the rybbe vpon the leuer of the synneofferyng, he burnt them vpon the altare, as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses. The flesshe also and the hyde burnt he with fyre without the host.

Afterwarde he slew the burntofferynge. And Aarons sonnes brought the bloude vnto hym, and he sprenkled it roũde about vpon the altare. And they brought him the burntofferyng in peces and the heade: and he burnt it vpon the altare. And he washed the bowels and the legges, and burnt them aboue vpõ the burntofferynge on ỹ altare.

* Then brought he the offerynge of the people, and toke the goate, that was the synneofferynge of the people, and slewe it, and made a synneofferynge therof, as of the first. And he brought the burntofferyng, and dyd as the law is: * and brought the meateofferynge and toke his handfull and burnt it vpon the altare, besyde the burntofferynge of the morynge.

Afterwarde slewe he the ore and the ramme for the thãkofferinge of the people. And his sonnes brought hym the bloude, which he sprenkled vpon the altare rounde about. But the fat of the ore and of the ramme, the rompe, and ỹ fat that couereth the bowels, and the kydneys, and the rybbe vpon the leuer, all such fat layed they vpon the brest, and burnt the fat vpon the altare. * But the brest and the right shulder waued Aaron for a Waueofferynge before the LORDE, as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses.

And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the worke of the synneofferynge, burntofferynge, and thankofferyng. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of witnesse. And whan they came out agayne they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE vnto all the people.

9.a Foꝛ there came * a fyꝛe from the LORDE,
9.b and it conſumed the burntofferynge and the fat vpon the altare. Whan all the people ſawe that, they retoyſed, and fell vpon theyꝛ faces.

The.x.Chapter.

AND the ſonnes of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, toke ether of them his cẽſoure, and put fyꝛe therin, and layed the incẽſe vpon it, and bꝛoughte ſtraunge fyꝛe befoꝛe the LORDE, * which he cõmaunded them not. Then wente there out a fyꝛe from the LORDE, and conſumed thẽ ſo that they dyed befoꝛe the LORD. Thẽ ſayde Moſes vnto Aaron: This is it, that the LORDE ſayde: I wyll be ſanctifyed vpon them that come nye me, and befoꝛe all the people wyl I be glozifyed. And Aaron helde his peace.

Moſes called Miſaell and Elzaphan ꝓ ſonnes of Uſiell Aarons vncle, and ſayde vnto them: Go to, and cary youre bꝛethꝛen out of the Sanctuarye, without the hooſt. And they wente, and caryed them foꝛth in theyꝛ albes without the hooſte, as Moſes ſayde.

Then ſayde Moſes vnto Aaron and to his ſõnes Eleazar and Ithamar: * ye ſhall not vncouer youre heades, noꝛ rente youre clothes, that ye dye not, and ꝓ wꝛath come vpon the whole congregacyon: Let youre bꝛethꝛen of the whole houſe of Iſraell be wepe this burnynge, whiche the LORDE hath done. As foꝛ you, ye ſhall not go out frõ the doꝛe of the Tabernacle of witneſſe, leſt ye dye: foꝛ the anoyntynge oyle of the LORDE is vpon you. And they dyd as Moſes ſayde.

The LORDE ſpake vnto Aaron, & ſayd:
10.9 * Thou and thy ſonnes with ꝓ ſhal dꝛynke no wyne noꝛ ſtronge dꝛynke, whã ye go in to the Tabernacle of witneſſe: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all youre poſterities: that ye maye haue knowlege to diſcerne, what is holy and vnholye, what is cleane & vncleane: and that ye may teache the chyldꝛen of Iſrael all the lawes whtch the LORDE hath ſpokẽ vnto you bp Moſes.

* And Moſes ſayde vnto Aaron, and D
vnto Eleazar, and Ithamar his ſõnes that Leui.2.a were left: Take the remnaunt of the meatofferynge in the ſacrifyces of the LORDE & eate it without leuẽ beſyde the altare, foꝛ it is mooſt holy, euẽ in ꝓ holy place ſhalye eat it. Foꝛ it is thy dewtye & thy ſõnes dewty in ꝓ ſacrifyces of the LORD: foꝛ thus am I commaũded. But the Wauebꝛeſt and the Heaueſhulder ſhalt thou eate, and thy ſonnes, & thy doughters with the in a cleane place. Foꝛ this dewtye is geuen vnto the and thy chyldꝛen in the thãkofferynges of the chyldꝛẽ of Iſraell. Foꝛ ꝓ Heaueſhulder and the Wauebꝛeſt to the offerynges of ꝓ fat, ſhalbe bꝛought in, that they maye be waued foꝛ a Waueofferynge befoꝛe the LORDE. Ther foꝛe is it thyne and thy chyldꝛens foꝛ a perpetuall dewtye, as the LORDE cõmaunded.

ſynneofferynge, and founde it burnt. And he was angrye at Eleazar & Ithamar the ſonnes of Aarõ, which were left alyue, and ſayde: Wherfoꝛe haue ye not eaten the ſynofferynge in the holy place? foꝛ it is mooſte holy, & he hath geuen it you, that ye might beare the ſynne of the cõgregacion to make agrement foꝛ them befoꝛe the LORDE. Beholde, ꝓ bloud of it came not in to the Sanctuary: ye ſhuld haue eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was commaunded.

Aaron ſayde vnto Moſes: Behold, this daye haue they offered theyꝛ ſynofferynge and theyꝛ burntofferynge befoꝛe the LORD. And it is chaunched me after this maner. And ſhulde I eate of the ſynneofferynge to daye, and be mery befoꝛe the LORDE? Whã Moſes herde that, he was content.

The.xi. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked vnto Moſes and Aarõ & ſayd: Speake vnto the chyldꝛen of Iſraell, & ſaye: Theſe are * the beaſtes which ye ſhall eate amonge all the beaſtes vpon earth: What ſoeuer hath hoſe, and deuydeth it in to two clawes, and chewed cud amonge the beaſtes, that ſhall ye eate. But loke what cheweth cud & hath hoſe, and deuyded it not, as the Camell, the ſame is vncleane vnto you, and ye ſhall not eate it. The conyes chwe cud, but they deuyde not the hoke in to two clawes therfore they are vncleane vnto you. The hare cheweth cud also, but deuydeth not ỹ hoke in to two clawes, therfore he is vncleane vnto you. And the Swyne deuydeth the hoke in B two clawes, but cheweth not the cud, therfore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shall ye not eate, nor touch theyr carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: What soeuer hath fynnes and scales in the waters, sees, and ryuers, that shal ye eate. But what soeuer hath not fynnes and scales in the sees, and ryuers, amonge all that moue in the waters, of all that lyue in the waters, it shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you, so that ye eate not of theyr flesh, & that ye abhorre theyr carcases. For all that haue not fynnes and scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.

And these shall ye abhorre amonge the C foules, so that ye eate them not: The Aegle the Gosshauke, the Cormoraunte, the Vultur, the Kyte, and al his kynde, and all Rauens with theyr kynd: the Estrich, ỹ Night crow, the Cocow, the Sparowhauke with his kynde, ỹ litle Oule, the Storke, ỹ great Oule, the Backe, the Pellicane, ỹ Swäne, the Pye, the Heron, the Jaye wt his kynde, the Lapwyng, and ỹ Swalowe. And what soeuer crepeth amonge ỹ foules, and goeth vpon foure fete, shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you. yet these shall ye eate of the foules that crepe and go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue no knyes aboue vpon ỹ legges, to hoppe withall vpon earth. Of these maye ye eate, as there is the Arbe with his
D kynde, and ỹ Selaä with his kynde, and ỹ Hargoll with his kynde, and the Hagab wt his kynde. But what so euer els hath foure fete amõge the foules, it shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you, and ye shall take it for vncleane. * Who so euer toucheth the carcase Leui.5.a Agge.2.b of such shalbe vncleane vntyll the eue, and whosoeuer beareth ỹ carcase of ony of these shall wash his clothes, and shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

Therfore euery beast that hath an hoke, and deuydeth it not in to two clawes and cheweth not cud, shalbe vnclean vnto you. Whosoeuer toucheth such, shalbe vnclean. And what soeuer goeth vpõ hãdes amõge the beastes that goeth vpon foure fete, shal be vnclean vnto you. Whosoeuer toucheth the carcases of the, shalbe vncleane vntyll eue. And he that beareth theyr carcase, shall wash hys clothes, and be vnclean vntyl the euen: For such are vncleane vnto you.

These shalbe vncleane vnto you also amonge the beastes that crepe vpon earth: ỹ Weesell, the Mouse, ỹ Tode, euery one in his kynde, the Hedgehogge, the Stellio, the Lacerte, the Snale, and the Mol, these are vncleane vnto you, amonge al ỹ crepe. Who so euer toucheth the dead carcase of them shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And what so euer ony such dead carcase falleth vpon it shalbe vncleane, whatsoeuer vessell of wood it be, or rayment, or skinne, or bagge. And euery vessell that ony thynge is occupied withall, shalbe put in the water, and is vncleane vntyll the euen, and then shall it be cleane. * All maner of earthen vessell that ony such carcase falleth into, it shal al be vncleane that there in is, and ye shall breake it. All meate whiche is eaten that ony such water commeth in to, is vncleane: and al maner of drynke that is dronken in al maner of such vessel, is vncleane. And what so euer ony such carcase falleth vpon, it shalbe vncleane, whether it be ouen or kettell, so shall it be broken, for it is vncleane, and shalbe vncleane vnto you. Nuertheles the foũtaynes welles, and pittes of water are cleane. But who so euer toucheth theyr carcases is vncleane.

And tough the dead carcase of ony such fell vpon the sede ỹ is sowen, yet is it clean. But whan there is water powred vpon the sede, & afterward ony such dead carcase falleth therõ, thẽ shal it be vncleane vnto you.

Whan a beaste dyeth that ye may eate, he that toucheth the dead carcase therof is vncleane vntyll the euen. Who so eateth of ony such carcase, shall washe his clothes and be vncleane vntyl the euen. Lykewyse he that beareth ony such carcase shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntyl the euen.

What so euer crepeth vpon earth, shall be an abhominacyon vnto you, and shall not be eaten. And what so euer crepeth vpon the bely, or all that goeth vpon foure and mo fete, amonge all that crepeth vpon earth, shall ye not eate, for it shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you. Make not youre soules abhominable, and defyle you not in them, & stayne youre selues: for I am the LORD youre God. Therfore shall ye * sanctify youre selues, that ye may be holy, for I am holy. And ye shall not defyle youre selues on ony maner of creppynge beaste that creepeth vpon earth: for I am the LORD, that broughte you out of the lande of Egypte that I myght be youre God: therfore shall ye be holy, for I am holy.

This is the lawe ouer the beastes & foules, and al maner of soules of creppynge beastes in the waters, and all maner of soules that crepe vpon earth: that ye maye knowe to discerne what is vncleane & cleane, and what maner of beastes are to be eaten, and which are not to be eaten.

The.xii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto ꝑ chyldren of Israell, and saye: Whan a womā hath cōceaued and beareth a man chylde, she shalbe vncleane seuē dayes, so longe as she suffereth hir dysease, * and in the eyght day 17.b. shal the flesh of his forskynne be cut away. And she shall byde at home thre and thyrty dayes in the bloude of his purifyenge: she shall touch no holy thynge, nor come in the Sāctuary, tyll the dayes of hyr purifyenge be out. But yf she beare a maydechylde, then shall she be vncleane two wekes, so longe as she suffereth hyr disease, and fyre and thre score dayes shall she byde at home in ꝑ bloude of hyr purifyenge.

B * And whan the dayes of hyr purifyeng are out, for the sonne or for the doughter, she shall bynge a lambe of one yeare olde for a burntofferynge, and a ponge pygeon or a turtill doue for a synneofferynge to the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse vnto the preest, which shall offer it before the LORDE, and make an attonemēt for her, and so shal she be clensed from hyr bloudy yssue. This is the law for her that beareth a man chyld or maydechylde.

* But yf she be not able to bryng a shepe, then let her take two turtyll doues, or two ponge pygeons, the one for a burntofferynge, the other for a synneofferynge, then shall the preest make an attonement for her, so that she shalbe cleane.

The.xiii. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aarō, and sayde: Whā there ryseth vp ony thynge in the skynne of a mās flesh, whether it be a scabbe, or a glysterynge whyte (as though there be a leprosye in ꝑ skynne of this flesh) he shalbe brought vnto Aaron the preest, or to one of his sōnes amonge ꝑ prestes. And whā the preest seyth the plage vpon the skynne of the flesh, & that the heeres are turned to whyte, and it seme depet in that place thē the other skynne of his flesshe, then is it surely a leprosy, therfor shall the preest loke vpon hym, and iudge hym vncleane.

But whan there is ony whyte plecke in the skynne of his flesh, & yet seme no deper then the other skynne of the flesshe, and the heeres be not turned to white, thē the preste shall shut hym vp seuen dayes, and on the seuenth daye loke vpon hym: yf the plage seme vnto him as afore and hath fret no deper in the skynne, then shall the preest shute hym vp yet seuen dayes moo. And whan he loketh on him agayne vpon ꝑ seuenth day, and fyndeth, that the plage be darkysh, and hath frette no deper in ꝑ skynne, then shall he iudge hym cleane, for it is but a skyrfe & he shall washe his clothes, and then is he cleane.

But whan the scabbe fretteth farther in B the skynne (after that he is sene of the preest, and iudged cleane) and he be now sene of ꝑ preest agayne: whan the preest seyth thē that ꝑ scabbe hath fret farther in the skynne, he shall iudge hym vncleane, for it is surely a leprosye.

Whan a plage of leprosy is vpon a mā he shalbe brought vnto the preste. Whā he seyth and fyndeth, that there is whyte rysen vp in the skynne, and the heer turned vnto whyte, and there be raw flesh in the sore, thē is it surely an olde leprosy in the skynne of his flesh, therfore shall the preest iudge hym vncleane, and not shut him vp, for he is vncleane already.

But whan the leprosy breaketh out in ꝑ skynne, and couereth the whole skynne, frō the heade vnto the fote, all that the preest cā se. So whan the preest loketh vpon it & fyndeth that the leprosy hath couered all the flesh, he shal iudge hym cleane, for so much as it is turned all in to whyte vpon hym, for he is cleane.

Notwithstondynge yf there be raw flesh C there, in the daye whā he is loked vpon, thē is he vncleane. And whā the preest seyth the rawe flesh, he shall iudge hym vncleane, for he is vncleane, and it is surely a leprosye. But yf the rawe flesshe chaūge agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then shal he come vn to the preest. And whan the preest loketh vpō hym, and fyndeth, that the plage is turned to whyte, he shall iudge hym cleane, for he is cleane.

Whan there is a byle in ꝑ skynne of ony mans flesshe, and healeth agayne, and after ward i ỹ same place ther arise vp ony white thyng or a glisteryng white sō what reedish he shalbe sene of ỹ preest. So whan the preest seyth ỹ it appeareth to be lower thē ỹ other skynne, and the heere turned to whyte, thē shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosye broken out of the byle.

But yf the preste se and fynde that ỹ heeres are not whyte, and it not lower thē ỹ other skynne, & is darkysh, he shall shut him vp seuen dayes. ¶ yf it hath frette farther in the skynne, thē shal he iudge hym vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosye. But yf the glysterynge whyte abyde styll, and fret no farther, then is it but a pynte of the byle, &
the preest shall iudge hym cleane.

Whan the skynne of ony mans flesh is hurte with fyre, and the pynte of the burnynge is reedysh or whyte, and the preest lo-keth vpon hym, and fyndeth the heere turned to whyte vpō the marke of ỹ burnyng,
and it appeare deper thē the other skynne,
then is there surely a leprosye broke out of the pynte of the burnynge: therfore shall ỹ preest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a plage of leprosye. But yf the preest se & fynde, that the heere vpon the pynte of the burnynge is not turned vnto whyte, and is no lower then the other skynne, and is darkysh also:
he shall shutte hym vp seuen dayes.

And vpon the seuenth daye he shal loke
vpō hi: yf it hath fret farther in the skynne then shall he iudge hym vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf it stonde styll vpon the marke of the burnynge, and fret no farther in the skynne and is darkyshe, then is it a sore in the marke of the burnynge, and the preest shal iudge hym cleane, for it is but the pynt of the burnynge.

C Whan a man or woman is skynye vppon the heade or beerd, and the preest seyth
the marke, and fyndeth that it appeareth deper then the other skynne, and the heere be there goldē and thynne, thē shall he iudge hym vncleane: for it is a skynfe of leprosye of the heade or of the beerde. But yf the preest se that the skynfe appear no deper thē
the skynne, and that ỹ heer is not of a pale coloure: he shall shut hym vp seuen dayes.
And vpon the seuēth daye, whan he loketh & fyndeth, that ỹ skynfe hath frette no farther, and there be no goldē heere there, and that the skynfe appeare no deper then the other skynne, then let him be shauen: but so that he shaue not of the scabbe, and ỹ preest shall shut hym vp yet seuen dayes mo. And vpon the seuenth daye whā he loketh, and fyndeth that the skynfe hath frette no farther in the skynne, and that it appeareth no deper then the other skynne, then shall the preest iudge hi cleane. And he shal wash his clothes, for he is cleane. But yf he shall frette farther in the skynne (after that he is iudged cleane) and the preste loketh, & fyndeth, that the scabbe hath frette farther in the skynne, thē shall he seke nomore for yelden heeres, for he is vncleane. Neuertheles yf he se that the scabbe stondeth styll, & that pale heeres are there rysen vp, then is the scabbe whole, & he is cleane, therfore shall the preste iudge hym to be cleane.

Whan there is ony glysterynge whyte
vpon the skynne of the flesh of a mā or woman, and the preest seyth there, that the gly-sterynge whyte vanysheth: then is it but a whyte scabbe rysen vp in the skynne, and he is cleane.

Whan the heeres fall out of the heade of a man or woman, so that he is balde, the same is cleane. yf they fall out of his foheade thē is hys foreheade bald and cleane.
But yf there be a whyte reedysh sore in the balde heade, or balde forehead, thē is there a leprosye rysen vp in the balde heade or balde foreheade: therfore shall the preest loke vpon hym. And whan he fyndeth the whyte reedishe sore rysen vp in his balde heade or balde foreheade, then shall the skynne of the flesh be as leprous, therfore is he a leprous man and vncleane, because of the same sore vpon his heade.

Who so now is leprous, his clothes
shalbe rent, and the heade bare, and the lyp-pes muffled, and shal in ony wyse be called vncleane. * And as longe as the sore is vppon hym, he shalbe vncleane, dwell alone,
and haue his dwellyng without the host.

Whan the plage of leprosy is in a cloth
whether it be wollē or lynnen, in the warpe or wefte, whether it be lynnen or wollen,
in a skynne, or in ony maner thynge that is made of skynne. And whā the plage is pale or reedyshe in the cloth or skynne, either in the warpe or wefte, or in ony maner thynge that is made of skynne, the same is surely a plage of leprosy, therfore shal the preest loke vpon it. And whan he seyth the plage, he shall shut it vp seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he seyth that the plage hath fret farther in the cloth, in the warpe or wefte, in a skinne, or in ony maner thynge
that is made of skynne, thē is it a ferstynge plage of leprosye and is vncleane: The cloth shall be burnt, eyther warpe or whether it be wolle or lynen, or ony thynge made of skynne, wherin is ony suche plage. For it is a plage of lepprosye, & shalbe burnt with fyre.

H But yf the preest se that ꝑ plage hath fret no farther in the cloth, eyther in the warpe or weft, or ony thynge made of skynne, the shall he commaunde to washe the thynge ꝑ the plage is in, and shall shut it vp other seuen dayes. And whan the preest seyth (after that the plage is wasshen) that the plage is not chaunged before his eyes, and hath fret no farther also, yet is it vncleane, and shall be burnt with fyre: for it is depe fretten inward, and hath made skyrkes. Neuertheles whan the preest seyth that the pynt is vanyshed after the washynge of it: than shall he rent it out of the cloth, and of the skynne, out of the warpe, or weft. But yf it appear ony more in the cloth (eyther in the warpe, or in the weft) or ony maner thyng made of skynne, then is it a warynge plage: and with fyre shall it be burnt that ony such plage is in. As for the cloth, eyther warpe or weft, or ony maner thynge made of skynne that is wasshen, and the plage be departed from it it shalbe wasshen once agayne, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer the plage of lepprosye in clothes, whether they be wolle or lynen (eyther in the warpe or in the weft) and in ony maner of thynge made of skynne, to iudge them cleane or vncleane.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

I And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: This is the lawe ouer the leper, whan he shalbe clensed. * He shall come vnto the preest, and ꝑ preest shall go out of the hoost, and loke how ꝑ plage of lepprosye is healed vpon the leper. And he shall commaunde hym that is to be clensed to take two lyuynge byrdes, whiche are cleane, and Ceder woode and purple woll, and yssope: and shal cõmaunde the one byrd to be kylled in an earthen vessell ouer sprynginge water. And he shal take the lyuynge byrde with the Ceder wood, the purple wol and yssope, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde vpon the springynge water, and sprenkle it seuen tymes vpon hym that must be clensed from the lepprosye. And so clense hym, and let the lyuynge byrd flye at lybertye in to the felde.

B But he that is clensed, shal wash his clothes, and shaue of all his heere, & bath hym selfe with water, so is he cleane. Afterward let hym go in to the hoost, yet shall he tarye without his tent seuen dayes. And vpon ꝑ seuenth daye shall he shaue of all the heere vpon his heade, vpon his berde, vpon his browes, so that all the heere be shauen of, & he shall wash his clothes and bath his flesh in water, then is he cleane.

And vpon the eyght daye shall he take two lambes without blemyshe, and a shepe of a yeare olde, without blemyshe, & thre tenth deales of fyne floure for meatofferynge, myngled with oyle, & a logge of oyle. Then shal the preest present hym that is clensed & these thynges before the LORDE, before ꝑ doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & shal take ꝑ one lãbe, & offre it for a trespasse offerynge, with ꝑ logge of oyle, & shal waue the before ꝑ LORD, & afterwarde slaye ꝑ lãbe, where the synofferyng and burntofferyng are slayne, namely, in the holy place. For as the synofferynge, so is the trespasseofferynge the preestes also, for it is mooste holy.

C And the preest shall take of the bloude of the trespasseofferynge, and put it vpon the typpe of ꝑ ryght eare of hym that is clẽsed, & vpon ꝑ thombe of his ryghthand, & vpon the great too of his ryght foote. Afterward shall he take of the oyle out of the logge, & poure it in to his owne lefte hande, & dyppe his ryght fynger in the oyle that is in his lefte hande, and sprenkle the oyle with his fynger seuẽ tymes before the LORDE. As for the remnaũt of the oyle in his hande, he shal put it vpon ꝑ typpe of the ryght eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote, euẽ aboue vpõ ꝑ bloud of ꝑ tres passe offerynge. But the remnaũt of ꝑ oyle in his hande, shall he poure vpon the heade of hym ꝑ is clẽsed, & make an attonemẽt for hym before the LORDE. And he shall make the synofferynge, and reconcyle hym that is clensed, because of his vncleannesse. And afterwarde shall he slaye the burntofferynge, and shall offre it vpon the altare with the meatofferynge, and make an attonemẽt for hym, and then is he cleane.

D * But yf he be poore, & getteth not so much vp his hãde, the let hym take one lambe for a trespasse offerynge to waue it, to make an attonement for hym, & a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtyll doues, or two ponge pygeons whiche he is able to gette with his hande, let the one be a synofferynge, the other a burntofferynge: and let hym bryngе them vpon the

Leuit.5.b and.12.b

eyght daye of his clenſynge vnto the prieſt
before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe before the LORDE.

Then ſhall the prieſt take the lambe for ꝑ ſynofferynge, and the logge of oyle, & ſhall waue them all before the LORDE and ſlaye
the lambe of the treſpaſſe offerynge: & take
of the bloude of the ſame treſpalleofferyng,
and put it vpon the typpe of the eyght eare
of hym that is clenſed, and vpō the thombe
of his eyght hande, & vpō ꝑ great tooof hys eyght foote, & poure of ꝑ oyle in to hys own lefte hande, & with his eyght fynger ſprẏkle
the oyle that is in his lefte hande, ſeuen tỹmes before the LORDE.

E As for the remnaunt of the oyle in his hande, he ſhall put it vpon the typpe of the eyght eare of hym that is clenſed, and vpon
the thombe of his eyght hande, and vpon ꝑ great too of his right foote, euen aboue vp pon the bloude of ꝑ treſpaſſe offeryng. The other oyle in his hāde ſhall he poure vpon
the head of hym that is clenſed, to make an attonement for hym before the LORDE. And afterwarde of the one of the turtyl doues or ponge pygeons (accordynge as his handes are able to get) he ſhall make a ſynofferyng, of the other a burntofferynge, with ꝑ meatofferynge: and ſo ſhall the prieſt make an at tonement for hym that is clenſed before the LORDE.

Let this be the lawe for the leper, which is not able with his hande to get that, that belongeth vnto his clenſynge.

I And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes &
Aaron, and ſayd: Whan ye are come in to ꝑ lande of Canaan, which I geue you to poſ ſeſſe, and yf there happen a plage of lepꝛoſy in ony houſe of your poſſeſſion, then ſhal he that oweth the houſe, come and tell the prieſt and ſaye: Me thynke there is as it were a plage of lepꝛoſy in my houſe. Then ſhal the prieſt commaunde to rydde al thynge out of the houſe or euer ꝑ prieſt go in to ſe ꝑ plage, leſt all that is in the houſe be made vncleane. Afterwarde ſhall the prieſt go in, to ſe the plage.

Now whan he loketh, and fyndeth, that ther be holowe ſtrakes, palowe or redyſh in the walles of the houſe, and they ſeme to be lower then the wall beſyde, then ſhall he go out at the doore of the houſe, and ſhutte vp the houſe for ſeuen dayes. And vpon the ſeuenth daye whan he commeth, & ſeyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the walles of the houſe, then ſhall he commaunde to breake out the ſtones wherin the plage is,
and to caſt the in a foule place without the cyte, & the houſe to be ſcraped within rouaboute, and the duſt that is ſcraped of, to be poured without ꝑ cyte in an vncleane plac and to take other ſtones, and put them in place of ꝑ other, and to take other playſter, and playſter the houſe.

Whan the plage than cōmeth agayne,
and breaketh forth in ꝑ houſe, after that the ſtones are broken out, the playſter ſcraped of, and the houſe playſtred of the new, then ſhall the prieſt go in: and whan he ſeyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the houſe, then is there ſurely a frettynge lepꝛoſy in the houſe, and it is vncleane: therfore ſhall
the houſe be broken downe, both the ſtones,
and the tymber and al the duſt of the houſe,
and ſhalbe caryed out of the cyte in to an vncleane place. And who ſo goeth in to the houſe, whyle it is ſhut vp, is vncleane vn-tyl the euen. And he that lyeth therin, or eteth therin, ſhall waſh his clothes.

But yf the prieſt ſe (whā he goeth in) that this plage hath fret no farther in the houſe, after that the houſe is new playſtred, then ſhall he iudge it to be cleane, for the plage is healed. And to & ſynofferynge for ꝑ houſe, he ſhall take two byrdes, ceder wood, & pur ple woll, and Iſope, and ſlaye ꝑ one byrde
in an earthen veſſell vpon ſpryngynge water, and ſhall take the ceder wood, the pur ple woll, the Iſope, and the lyuynge byrde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the ſlayn
byrde vpon the ſpryngyng water, & ſprẏkle
the houſe withall ſeuen tymes: and ſo ſhall he purifie the houſe with the bloude of the byrde, with the ſpryngynge water, with the lyuynge byrde, with the ceder woode, with the Iſope, and with the purple woll. And the lyuynge byrde ſhall he let flye at libertie out of the towne in to the felde, and make an attonement for the houſe, and then ſhall cleane.

This is the lawe ouer al maner plage
of lepꝛoſy and ſkyrfe, ouer the lepꝛoſy of ga thes and of houſes, ouer ſores, ſcabbes, and glyſterynge whyte, that it maye be knowē whan ony thynge is vncleane or cleane.
This is the lawe of lepꝛoſye.

from out of his flesh, the same is vncleane: but thē is he vncleane by the reason of this yssue, whan his flesshe is fretten of the issue or wounde. Euery bedde wheron he lyeth, and what soeuer he sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane.

And he that toucheth his bed shal wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euen.

And he that sytteth where he satte, shal wash his clothes, and bath hym selfe with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euē. Who so toucheth his flesh, shal wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. Whan he spytteth vpon hym that is cleane, the same shall wash his clothes, and bath hym selfe with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euen.

B And the saddell and what soeuer he rydeth vppon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth ony thynge that hath ben vnder hym, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so beareth ony suche, shall washe his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen. And whō so euer he toucheth, & wassheth not his hādes fyrst, the same shal wash his clothes, & bath hymselfe with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euen. * Whan he toucheth an earthē vessell, it shalbe broken: but the treen vessel shalbe rensed with water. And whan he is cleane of his yssue, he shall nombre seuen dayes, after ỳ he is made clean, & wash his clothes, and bath him selfe with springyng water, then is he cleane. And vpō the eyght daye shall he take two turtyll doues or two ponge pigyons, and bynge them before the LORDE before the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shall make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for hym before ỳ LORDE, as concernynge his issue.

C Whan a mans sede departeth from him in slepe, the same shall bathe all his flesshe with water, and be vncleane vntyl ỳ euen. And all clothes, and euery stynne that is stayned with suche sede, shall he wash with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euē. A woman, by whom such one lyeth, shal bath hir selfe with water, and be vncleane vntyl the euen.

Whan a woman hath the bloudy yssue of hir flesh, she shal be put aparte. vii. dayes in to a sundry place. Who so euer toucheth her, shalbe vncleane vntyl the euen. And al that she lyeth vpō (as longe as she is put apart) shalbe vncleane. And that she sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth hir bed, shall wash his clothes, & bath hymselfe & water, & be vncleane vntyl euen. And who so euer toucheth ony maner thing that she hath sytten vpon shal wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

D * And yf a mā lye wt her (whyle she is put aparte) he shalbe vncleane seuen dayes, and the bed that he laye vpon, shalbe vncleane. Leui.15.c

* But whan a woman hath hir bloudy issue a lōge season, not onely at ỳ tyme of hyr natural course, but also out of ỳ tyme of hir natural course, then shal she be vncleanne so lōge as she hath the issue: euē as she is at ỳ tyme whan she is put aparte, so shal she be vncleane here also. Mat.9.c What soeuer she lyeth vpon al ỳ tyme of hir issue, shalbe as hir bed whā she is put aparte. And al ỳ she sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane, as is hir vncleanesse, whan she is put aparte. Whosoeuer toucheth ony of them, shalbe vncleane, and shall wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

But yf she be cleane of hir issue, then shal E she nombre seuen dayes, afterward shal she be cleane: and vpon the eyght daye shal she take two turteldoues, or two ponge pigyōs & bynge them vnto the prest before ỳ doze of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the prest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for her before the LORDE as cōcernynge the yssue of hir vncleannesse.

Thus shall ye se that the chyldren of Israel kepe them selues from theyr vncleānesse that they dye not in theyr vncleannesse whā they defyle my habytacyō, which is amōge you.

This is the lawe ouer hym that hath a runnynge sore, and hym whose sede departeth frō hym in slepe, so that he is vncleane therof. And ouer her ỳ hath hir bloudy issue and who soeuer hath a runnynge sore, whether it be man or woman, and whan a man lyeth with her that is vncleane.

The.xvi.Chapter.

AND ỳ LORD spake vnto Moses (after ỳ Aarons two sōnes were dead * whan they offred before the LORDE) and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron thy brother, ỳ he go not at al tymes in to the inner mer Sāctuary, wtin ỳ vaile before ỳ Mercy Leui.10.a

seate, which is vpon the Arcke, that he dye not: *for I wyll appeare in a cloude vpon the Mercyseate. But here withall shall he go in, euen with a yonge bullocke for a syn offerynge, and with a ramme for a burntof ferynge, and shall put on the holy lynnen albe, & haue lynnen breches vpon his flesshe and gyrde hym with a lynnen gyrdell, and haue the lynnen myter vpon his head.

Exo.40.f. 3.Reg.8.b

B For these are the holy garmētes: and he shall bath his flesh with water, and put thē on: and of the congregacyon of the chyldrē of Israell shall he take two hegoates for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burntof ferynge.

Hebr.9.b And Aarō shall brynge the bullocke his owne synofferynge, *& make an attonement for hymselfe and his house, and afterwarde shall he take the two goates, & present them before the LORDE, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: the lotte of the one goate for the LORDE, and the other for the fre goate. And the goate that the LORDES lot fell vpon, shall he offre for a synof ferynge. But the goate, that the fre goates lot fell vpon, shall he present alyue before the LORDE, to make an attonement for hym, & to let the fre goate go in to the wildernesse. And so shall he brynge the bullocke of his synofferynge, and make an attonement for hym, & his housholde, and shall kyll hym.

C And he shall take a censor full of coales from the altare that stondeth before the LORDE, and his handfull of beaten incense, and brynge them in within the vayle and put the incense vpon the fyre before the LORDE, that the cloude of the incense maye couer the Mercyseate, which is vpon the wytnesse, that he dye not. *And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and sprenkle it with his fynger towarde the Mercyseat on the forsyde. Seuen tymes shall he sprenkle of the bloude thus with his fynger before the Mercyseat. Then shall he kyll the goate which is the peoples synofferynge, & brynge in of his bloud within the vayle & shall do with his bloude as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, & sprenkle therwith also on the forsyde toward the Mercyseate, and so shall he reconcyle the Sanctuary frō the vnclennesse of the chyldrē of Israell, & from theyr trespasses in all theyr synnes. Thus shal he do vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse, which is the habitacyō with them amonge theyr vnclennesses.

D No man shalbe in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whan he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, vntyll he go out: and so shall he make an attonemēt for hym selfe and his house, and for the whole congregacyon of Israell. And whā he goeth forth vnto the altare that stondeth before the LORDE, he shall reconcyle it, and shall take of the bullockes bloud, and of the goates bloud, and put it vpō the hornes of the altare rounde about. And with his fynger shall he sprenkle of the bloude theron seuen tymes, & halowe it, and consecrate it from the vnclennesse of the chyldren of Israel.

And whan he hath made an ende of reconcylynge the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & the altare, he shal bryng the lyuynge goate.

Then shall Aaron laye both his hande vpon the heade of hym, and confesse ouer hym all the mysdedes of the chyldren of Israel, and al theyr trespasses in theyr synnes, and shal laye them vpon the heade of the goate, and by some man that is at hande, shall let hym runne in to the wyldernesse that the goate maye so beare all theyr mysdedes vpon hym in to the wyldernesse, and he shall leaue hym in the wyldernesse.

And Aaron shall go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the lynnē clothes which he put on whan he went in to the Sanctuary, and shall leaue them there, and bath his flesh with water in the holy place, & put on his owne rayment.

And he shall go forth, & make his burnt offerynge, and the burntofferynge of the people, and make an attonemēt both for hym selfe, and for the people, and burne the fat of the synofferynge vpon the altare. But he that caryeth out the fre goate, shall wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and then come in to the hoost.

*The bullocke of the synofferynge, and the goate of the synofferynge (whose bloud was brought in the Sanctuary to make attonement) shalbe caryed out of the hoost, & brent with fyre, both theyr synnes, fleshe and dounge. And he that burneth them, shall wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with water, and then come in to the hoost.

*And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe for you: Vpon the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth shal ye humble your soules, and do no worke, whether it be one of your owne, or a straūger amōge you. For in that daye is your attonement made, that ye may be clensed from all youre synnes before the LORDE: therfore shall it be a fre Sabbath vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules

Let this be a perpetuall lawe.

But the prest that is anoynted, & whose hande was fylled to be prest in his fathers steade, shall make this attonement, & shall put on the lynnen clothes, namely the holy vestiments, so shall he reconcyle the holye Sanctuary, & the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altare, and the prestes, and al ỹ people of the congregacyon. * This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto you, that ye recõcyle the chyldren of Israel frõ all theyr synnes once a yeare. And Moses dyd, as the LORDE commaunded hym.

The.xvii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, & to all the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them. This is it that the LORDE hath commaunded: What so euer he be of ỹ house of Israell that kylleth an ore or lambe, or goat in the hoost, or out of the hoost, and bryngeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be brought vnto the LORDE for an offerynge before the Habitacyon of the LORDE, ỹ same shalbe gylty of bloud, as though he had shed bloude: and such a man shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

Therfore shall the chyldren of Israell bynge theyr offerynges (that they wyll offre vpon the wyde felde) before the LORDE, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, vnto the prest, & there offer theyr thankofferynges vnto the LORDE. And the preste shall sprenkle the bloude vpõ the altare of the LORDE before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE & they shall offer theyr offerynges nomore vnto deuels with whom they go a whorynge. This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto them amõge theyr posteritties.

Therfore shalt thou saye vnto them: What man soeuer he be of the house of Israel, or a straunger also that is amõge you, which offreth a burntofferyng or ony other offerynge, and bryngeth it not before ỹ dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse to offre it vnto the LORDE, he shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

* And what man soeuer it be (eyther of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) ỹ eateth ony manet of bloude, agaynst hym wyll I set my face, and wyll rote hym out from amõge his people: for the soule of the body is in the bloude, & I haue geuen it you for the altare, ỹ your soules may be reconcyled therwith: For the bloude that is in the soule maketh attonement. Therfore haue I sayd vnto the chyldren of Israell: No soule amõge you shall eate bloude: no, nor ony straũger that dwelleth amõge you.

And what man soeuer it be amonge you (whether he be of the house of Israell, or a straunger amõge you) that at the huntynge taketh a beast or foule which may be eaten, he shall poure out ỹ bloude of the same, & couer it wt earth: for al flesh lyueth in ỹ bloud

And I haue sayd vnto the chyldrẽ of Israel: * ye shall eate the bloud of no body: for the lyfe of al fleshe is in his bloude. Who so euer eateth it, shalbe roted out. And whatso euer soule eateth that which dyed alone, or that was torne of wyld beastes (whether he be one of youre selues or a straunger) the same shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water and be vncleane vntyll the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wash not his clothes, nor bath hym selfe, the shall he beare his synne.

AND ỹ LORD talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto ỹ chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: I am the LORD your God, ye shall not do after the workes of the lande of Egipte, wherin ye dwelt: nother after the doynges of the lãde of Canaan, in to the which I wyll bynge you, ye shal not walke after theyr costumes * but after my lawes shal ye do, and my statutes shall ye kepe, that ye may walke therin: for I am the LORDE your God. Therfore shal ye kepe my statutes and my lawes * For the mã that doeth the same shall lyue therin, for I am the LORDE.

Ro.10.a

No man shall come at his nerr kynswoman, to vncouer hyr pryuitie: for I am the LORDE.

* Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuite of thy father and of thy mother. It is thy mother, therfore shalte thou not vncouer hyr pryuitie.

Gene.19.g Exo.21.a

* Thou shalte not vncouer the pryuite of thy fathers wyfe, for it is thy fathers pryuitie.

Deu.22.b and.27.c 1.Cor.5.a

* Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuite of thy syster, which is the doughter of thy father or of thy mother whether she be borne at home or without.

Deu.27.a. 2.Re.23.b.

Thou shalt not vncouer ỹ pryuitie of thy

B Thou shalte not vncouer the pryuite of thy fathers wiues doughter, which is borne vnto hym, and is thy syster.

Leui.20.c. * Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuite of thy fathers syster, for it is thy fathers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuitie of thy mothers suster, for it is thy mothers next kynswoman.

Thou shalte not vncouer the pryuitie of thy fathers brother, to take his wyfe for she is thyne awnte.

Gene.38.b Deu.27.c. * Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuite of thy doughter in lawe, for she is thy sonnes wyfe, therfore shalt thou not vncouer hyr pryuitie.

Leui.20.c Mat.14.a * Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuitie of thy brothers wyfe, for it is thy brothers pryuite.

Thou shalt not vncouer the pryuitie of thy wyfe and of hir doughter also, nother shalt thou take hyr sonnes doughter or hyr doughters doughter, to vncouer theyr pryuities, for they are theyr nexte kynswemen. And it is wyckednesse.

C Gene.29.c * Thou shalte not take a wyfe and hyr syster also, to vncouer hir pryuite, whyle she is yet alyue.

Rom.1.b Leui.20.b. * Thou shalt not lye with mankynd as with womankynde, for that is abhominacyon.

Deu 27.c. * Thou shalt lye with no maner of beast to defile thy selfe therwith. And no woman shall haue to do with a beast: for it is abhominacyon.

D Ye shall defyle youre selues in none of these thynges. For the Heythen (whome I wyll cast out before you) haue stayned them selues in all these, and the londe is defyled therthorow. And theyr wyckednesse wyll I vysyte vpon them, so ỹ the londe shal spewe out the indwellers therof. Therfore kepe ye my statutes and lawes, and do not one of these abhominacyons, nother one of youre owne selues, nor the straunger amonge you (for all suche abhominacyons haue ỹ people of this lãde done which were before you and haue defyled the lande) that the lande spewe not you out also, whan ye haue defyled it, as it spewed out the Heythen, that were there before you. For who soeuer committe these abhominacyons, the same soules shalbe roted out from amõge theyr people. Therfore kepe ye my statutes, that ye do not after the abhominable costumes, which were before you, that ye be not defyled therwith: For I am the LORDE youre God.

The.xix.Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked vnto Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: * Ye shalbe holy, for I am holy, euen the LORDE your God. Euery one feare his father and his mother, and my holy dayes: for I am the LORDE your God. Ye shall not turne your selues vnto idols, nether ye shal make you no Goddes of metall: for I am ỹ LORDE your God.

And whan ye will offer thãkesoffrynges vnto the LORDE, then shall ye offer them, that he maye be mercyfull vnto you, and ye shall eate them the same daye that ye offer them and on the morow: what soeuer is lefte on the thyrde daye, shalbe burnt with fyre. But yf ony man eate therof vpon the thyrde daye, then is he vnholy, and shall not be accepted, and ỹ same eater shall beare his synne, because he hath vnhalowed the sanctuary of the LORDE: & such a soule shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

* Whan thou reapest thy lande, thou shalt not reape down the vttermost borders of it rounde about, nor gather it all together vp. Euen so lyke wyse thou shalt not pluck thy vnyarde cleane also, nor gather vp the grapes ỹ are fallen downe, but shalt leaue them for the poore and straũgers: for I am the LORDE your God.

My statutes shall ye kepe, that thou * let not thy cattell gendre with beastes of another kynde: nother sowe thy felde wt myngled sede. * And let no garment come vpõ the, that is mixte with wollen and lynnen.

* Whan a man lyeth with a woman & hath to do with her, whiche is a bonde womã & hath bẽ medled withal of another mã, but not lowsed out, nor hath optayned fredome, it shalbe punished, but they shall not suffre death, because she was not fre. But he shall bringe for his trespalle vnto ỹ LORDE (euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse) a rãme for a trespalleoffrynge and the preest shall make an attonement for hym with the trespaceoffrynge before the LORDE, cõcernynge the synne that he hath done: * so shall God be mercyful vnto hym as cõcernynge his syn which he hath done.

What tyme as ye come in to the londe, and plante all maner trees, whereof men eate, ye shal circumcyse the foreskynne of the same with theyr frutes: three yeares shall ye holde them for vncircumcysed, for that ye eate them not: but in the fourth yeare shall all theyr frutes be holy and praysed vnto ỹ LORDE. And I wyll set my face agaynst that man, and wyll rote hym out frõ amonge his people, because he hath geuen of his sede vnto Moloch, & defyled my Sanctuary, and vnhalowed my holy name. And though ỹ people of the lõde loke thorow the fyngers vpon that man whiche hath geue of his sede vnto Moloch, so that they put hym not to death, yet wyll I sette my face agaynste the same man, & agaynst his generacyon. Exo. 21.b Deu. 27.c Mat. 15.a * Whosoeuer curseth his father or his mother, shall dye ye death, his bloud be vpō hym, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

Deu. 22.c * He that breaketh wedlocke with ony mans wyfe, shall dye the death (both the aduouterer and the aduouteresse) because he hath brokē wedlocke with his neighbours wyfe.

Leui. 18.a Deu. 27.c 1. Cor. 5.c * yf ony man lye wt his fathers wyfe so ye he discouer his fathers preuite, they shall both dye ye death: theyr bloude be vpō thē.

Leui. 18.b * yf ony man lye with his doughter in lawe, they shall dye both of them, for they haue wrought abhominacyon: theyr bloud be vpon them.

Leui. 18.c Rom. 1.D * yf ony man lye with the mankynde, as with womankynde they haue wrought abhominacyō, and shal both dye the death: theyr bloude be vpon them.

Leui. 18.b * yf ony man take a wyfe, and hyr mother therto, ye same hath wrought wickednesse: he shalbe burnt with fyre, and so shall they also, that there be no wickednesse amonge you.

Leuit. 18.c Deu. 27.a * If ony mā lye with a beast, he shal dye the death, and the beast shalbe slayne.

If a woman medle with a beast, so that she haue to do with it, thou shalt put her to death and the beast also, they shall dye the death: theyr bloude be vpon them.

C If ony man take his syster, his fathers doughter or his mothers doughter, and se hyr preuyte, & she agayne se his secretes, it is a wycked thynge. They shalbe roted out of the sight of theyr people. For he hath vncouered hys systers preuyte, he shall beare his synne.

Leui. 15.b and. 18.c * If a man lye wt a woman in the tyme of hyr sycknesse: and vncouer hyr secretes, and open vp hir fontayne, and she vncouer the foūtayne of hyr bloude, they shall both be roted out from amonge theyr people.

Leui. 18.b * Thou shalt not vncouer ye preuytye of thy mothers sister, and of thy fathers sister, for such one hath vncouered his nerte kynswoman, and they shall beare theyr synne.

If ony man lye with his vncles wyfe, the same hath vncouered ye preuitye of his vncle: they shall beare theyr synne, without chyldren shall they dye.

Leui. 18.b mat. 24.a * If ony man take his brothers wyfe, that is an vncleane thyng, they shalbe without chyldrē, because he hath vncouered his brothers secretes.

So kepe now all my statutes and my lawes, and do them, that the lōde whyche I bynge you to dwell therin, spew you not out. And walke not ye in the statutes of the Heythen, which I shall cast out before you. * For all such thynges haue they done, and I haue abhorred them.

But I saye vnto you: ye shall possesse theyr londe. For I wyll geue you to enherytaunce a lōde, that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the LORDE youre God, which haue separated you from the nacyons. Ye also shulde seperate the cleane beastes from the vncleane, and ye vncleane fowles from the cleane: and not defyle your soules vpon beastes, vpon foules, and vpon all that crepeth on the groūde: * which I haue seperated vnto you, that they shulde be vncleane. Therfore shall ye be holy vnto me, for I the LORDE am holy, which haue separated you from the nacyons, that ye shulde be myne.

* If a man or womā be a soothsayer or expounder of tokens, the same shal dye the death, they shalbe stoned, theyr bloude be vpon them.

The.xxi.Chapter.

AND the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the prestes the sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them: * A prest shall not defyle hym selfe vpon no soule of his people, but vpon his nerte kynne that is longeth vnto hym: as vpon his mother, vpon his father, vpon his sonne, vpon his doughter, vpon his brother, and vpon his syster, which is yet a virgyn, and hath no womans wyfe (which belōgeth vnto hym) vpon her maye he defyle hymselfe. Moreouer he shal not defyle hym selfe vpon the ruler in his people, to vnhalowe hymselfe.

* He shall make no crowne alla in his heade, nor shaue of his bearde, nor shal they cut out ony markes in their flesh. They shalbe holy vnto theyr God, and vnhalowe the name of theyr God: for they offre the sacrifyce of the LORDE, the bread of theyr God, therfore shall they be holy.

* They shal take no whore, nor one that is defyled, or that is awaye from hyr husbande, for he is holy vnto his God: therfore shall he sanctifye hymselfe, for he offereth the bread of thy God, he shalbe holy vnto the, for I am holy, euen the LORDE that sanctifyeth you.

If a prestes doughter fal to whoryng, shalbe burnt with fyre, for she hath shamed hyr father. He that is hye prest amonge his brethren, vpon whose heade ꝑ anoyntynge oyle is powred, and his hande fylled (that he mighte be arayed with the vestimentes) shall not vncouer his heade, nor cut his clothes, and shall come at no dead, * and shall defyle himselfe, nother vpon father, nor mother. He shall not go out of the Sanctuary, that he vnhalowe not ꝑ Sanctuary of his God, For the crowne of the anoyntyge oyle of his God is vpō hym, for I am the LORD

C * A virgyn shall he take to wyfe, but no wedow, nor deuorsed, nor defyled, nor whor but a virgyn of his owne people shall he take to wyfe, that he vnhalowe not his sede amonge his people. For I am the LORDE, which sanctifye hym.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron, and saye. If there be a blemyshe vpon ony of thy sede in your generacyons, ꝑ same shall not preasse to offre the breade of his God: * For whoso euer hath a blemyshe vpon hym, shall not come neare, whether he be blynde, lame, wan euell fauoured nose, with ony myshapē membre, or that hath a broken fote, or hāde or is croke backed, or hath ony blemyshe in the eye, or is gyped, or is skyrye, or scaulde or hath his stones broken.

D Who so euer now of the sede of Aaron the prest hath ony blemysh vpon hym shall not come nye to offere the sacrifyce of the LORDE. For he hath a deformyte. Therfore shall he not preasse vnto the breade of his God, to offre it. Notwithstondynge he shal eate of the bread of his God, both of the holy & of the moost holye: but he shall not go into the vayle, nor come nye the altare (for so much as he hath a blemyshe vpon hym) that he vnhalow not my Sāctuary. For I am the LORDE that sanctifyeth them. And Moses spake this vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and to all the chyldren of Israell.

The.xxii. Chapter.

I AND the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron, & his sonnes, that they absteyne frō the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israell, which they haue halowed vnto me, & that they vnhalow not my holy name: for I am the LORDE. Saye now to thē, and they? posteritye: Who so euer he be of youre sede that commeth nye vnto thē holy thynges, which the chyldren of Israell halowe vnto the LORDE, and so defyleth hym selfe vpon that same, his soule shall perysh before my face: for I am the LORDE.

Whosoeuer of the sede of Aaron is a leper, or hath * a runnynge yssue, shall not eate of the holy thynges, tyll he be clensed. Leui. 15. a
Who so toucheth ony vncleane thynge, or whose sede departeth from him by night or whoso toucheth ony worme ꝑ is vncleane vnto hym, or a man that is vncleane vnto hym, and what so euer defyleth hym, loke what soule toucheth ony such, is vncleane vntyll the euen, and shall not eate of the holy thynges, but shall fyrste bath his flesshe with water. And whan the Sonne is gone downe, and he cleane, thē maye he eate ther of, for it is his foode. * Loke what dyeth Exo. 22. b

B A straunger shall not eate of the holy thynges, nor an housholdegest of ꝑ prestes nor an hyred seruaunt. But yf the prest bye a soule for hys money, the same maye eate therof. And loke who is borne in his house maye eate of his bread also. Neuertheles yf ꝑ prestes doughter be a straūgers wyfe, she shal not eate of the Heaueofferynges of holyneſſe. But yf she be a wedowe, or deuorced, or haue no sede, and cōmeth agayne to hyr fathers house as afore (whan she was yet a mayden in hyr fathers house) thē shal she eate of hyr fathers breade. But no straūger shall eate therof.

Who so els eateth of the halowed thynges vnwyttyngly, shall put the fyfte parte there vnto, and geue it vnto the prest with the halowed thynge, that they vnhalowe not the halowed thynges of the chyldrē of Israell, which they Heaue vp vnto the LORDE, lest they lade them selues with myssdoynge and trespalle, whan they eate their halowed thynges, for I am the LORD whiche halowe them.

C And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes and to all the chyldren of Israell: * What Deu. 15. d

And whoso wyll offre a thankofferynge vnto the LORDE to separate out a vowe, or of fre wyll, oren or shepe: it shalbe without blemyshe, that it maye be accepted. It shall haue no deformyte. yf it be blynde, or broken, or wounded, or haue a wen, or skrupe, or scabbed, they shall offre none suche vnto the LORDE nor put an offerynge of ony such vpon the altare of the LORDE.

An ore or shepe that hath mysshapen membres, or no rompe, mayst thou offre of a fre wyll: but to a vowe it maye not be accepted. Thou shalt offre also vnto the LORDE nothynge that is bruised, or broken, or rent, or cutt out, and ye shall do no such in youre londe. Moreouer ye shall offre no bread vnto youre God of a straungers hande: for it is marred of hym, & he hath deformite, therfore shall it not be accepted vnto you.

D And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Whan an ore, or lambe, or goate is brought forth, it shalbe seuen dayes with ỳ dame, and vpon the eyght daye, and therafter it maye be offered vnto the LORDE, then is it accepted. Whether it be ore, or lãbe it shall not be slayne wt his ponge in one day.

But whan ye wyll offre a thãkofferynge vnto the LORD that it maye be accepted, ye shall eate it the same daye, & kepe nothyng ouer vntyll ỳ morynge: for I am the LORDE. Therfore kepe now my cõmaundements, and do them: for I am the LORDE, that ye vnhalow not my holy name, and that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israell. For I am he ỳ halowe you euẽ the LORD, which brought you out of the lõde of Egypte, that I might be your God, euẽ I the LORDE.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the chyldren of Israell, & saye vnto thẽ: * Whã ye come in to the lãde that I shall geue you, & reape downe your haruest, ye shall brynge a sheke of the fyrst frutes of your haruest vnto ỳ preest, thẽ shal the sheke be waued before the LORD, that ye maye be accepted: but this shal the preest do the nexte daye after the Sabbath. And the same daye that youre sheke is waued, shall ye offre a burntofferynge vnto the LORDE of a lãbe which is without blemish & of one yeare olde, wt the meatofferynge, two tenth deale of fyne floure mengled wt oyle, for an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto ỳ LORDE and the drynkofferynge also euẽ the fourth parte of an Hin of wyne.

* And ye shall eate nother bread, nor akes, nor kormẽtye (of new corne) tyll ỳ same day that ye brynge an offerynge vnto your God. This shalbe a lawe vnto youre posterityes, where so euer ye dwell.

And out of all your dwellinges shal ye offre, namely, two Wauecakes of two tenth deales of fyne floure ymbaked, and baken for the fyrst frutes vnto the LORD. * And wt your breade ye shall brynge seuen lãbes of one yeare olde without blemysh, and a ponge bullocke, & two rãmes: this shalbe ỳ LORDES burntofferynge, meatofferynge, and drynkofferynge. This is a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the LORDE.

Moreouer ye shal offre an hegoate for a synneofferyng, and two lãbes of a yeare olde for a thãkofferynge. And ỳ preest shall waue it vpon the breade of the fyrst frutes before the LORDE with the two lãbes. And they shalbe holy vnto the LORDE, and shalbe the preestes. And this day shall ye proclame, for it shalbe called holy amonge you, no lyple worke shall ye do therin, an euerlastynge lawe shall it be amonge youre posterites where so euer ye dwell.

But yf ye wyll not herken vnto me for all this, then wyll I make it yet ſeuẽ tymes more, to punyſh you for your ſynnes, that I may breake the pryde of your ſtrength, and wyll make your heauen lyke yron, & youre earth as braſſe: and youre trauayle and la-

If ye walke yet againſt me, and wyl not your hye waye ſhall become waſte.

But yf ye wyll not yet be reformed here

then wyl I walke contrarye vnto you alſo, and wyll punyſhe you yet ſeuen tymes for your ſynnes. And I wyll bryngе vpon you a ſwearde of vengeaũce, which ſhall auẽge my Teſtament. And though ye gather you together in to your cyties, yet wyll I ſende
the peſtilence amonge you, and wyll deli-

for I wyl deſtroye your prouyſyõ of bread, ſo that ten wemen ſhall bake your bread in then wyll I alſo walke contrarye vnto you in wrathfull diſpleaſure, and wyll punyſhe

you ſeuen folde becauſe of your ſynnes, ſo that ye ſhall eate the fleſhe of your ſonnes

your Idols, & my ſoule ſhall abhorre you.
And youre cyties wyll I make waſte, and Thus wyll I make the lande deſolate, ſo that youre enempes ſhall dwell therin, &

make it waſte: but you wyl I ſcatter amõg

Then ſhal the lande reioyce in hir ſab-

in the enempes lande. yee then ſhal ꝑ lande longe as it lyeth waſte, becauſe it could not therin.

And as for them that remayne of you, I wyll make them fayntharted in the landes of they r enempes, ſo that a ſhakyng leafe ſhall chace them. And they ſhall flye from as though a ſwearde perſecuted them, and ſhall fall one vpon another (as it were before the ſwearde) and noman yet perſecuſtande your enempes, & ſhall perych amõg

the Heythe, and the lande of your enempes ſhall eate you vp.
And they that are left of you, ſhall pyne
awaye in they r myſdede, euen in ꝑ enempes

And they ſhall make at tonement for they̓ myſdedes, becauſe they deſpyſed my lawes, and they̓ ſoules refu ſed my ſtatutes. Moreouer I haue not ſo refuſed them, that they ſhulde be in the ene myes lande: nether haue I ſo vtterly abhor red thē, that I wold bryngе thē to nought, and breake my conuenaunt with them: for I am the LORDE they̓ God. These are the ordynaūces, ſtatutes and lawes, which ỹ LORDE made betwixte hym and the chyldren of Iſrael vpon mouⁿt Si nai, by the hande of Moſes.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

1 AND the LORDE talked with Moſes, and ſayd: Speake to the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay vnto them: If ony man make a ſpecyal vowe vnto ỹ LORDE, ſo that he pryce a ſoule, then ſhall this be ỹ valuacyon: A man of twenty yeare olde vn to the thre ſcore yeare, ſhalt thou ſet at fyfty ſyluer Sycles, after the ſycle of the Sanc tuary: But a woman at thyrty Sycles. yf
5 it be fyue yeare olde vnto twēty yeare, thou ſhalt ſet it at twētye Sycles, whā it is a mā chylde: but a woman, at ten ſycles.* yf it be
6 a moneth olde vnto fyue yeare, thou ſhalte ſet it at fyue ſycles of ſyluer, whā it is a mā chylde: but a woman at thre ſyluer ſycles.
7 yf he be thre ſcore yeare olde and aboue thē ſhalte thou ſet hym at fyftyne ſycles whā it is a man, a womā at ten ſycles. yf he be to poore ſo to be ſet, then let hym preſent hym ſelfe to the preſt, and ỹ preſt ſhal value him.
8 Neuertheleſſe he ſhal value him, accordyng as the hande of hym that vowed, is able to get. But yf it be a beaſt, that maye be of-

fred vnto the LORDE all that is offered vnto the LORDE of ſuch, is holy: it ſhall not be altered nor chaunged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. yf ony man chaun geth it, one beaſt for another, then ſhal they both be holy vnto the LORDE. But yf the beaſt be vncleane which may not be offred vnto ỹ LORDE, then ſhall it be ſet before the preſt, and the preſt ſhall value it, whether it be good or bad, and it ſhall ſtonde at ỹ pre ſtes valuynge. But yf ony man wyll bye it out, he ſhall geue the fyfth parte more, to ỹ it was ſet at.

When ony man ſanctifieth his houſe vn to the LORDE for the ſanctuary, the preſt ſhall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the preſt valueth it, ſo ſhal it ſtonde. But yf he that ſanctified it, wyll redeme it, he ſhall geue the fyfth parte of ſyluer therto, aboue that it was ſet at: So ſhall it be his.

C yf ony mā halowe a pece of lande of his herytage vnto the LORDE, it ſhalbe ſet ac cordynge to that it beareth. yf it beare an Homer of barley, it ſhalbe valued at fyfty ſycles of ſiluer. But yf he halow his lāde im mediatly from the peare of Jubilye forth, then ſhall it be ſet accordynge to the value therof. yf he haue halowed it after the yeare of Jubilye, then ſhall the preſt reken it, ac cordynge to the yeares that remayne vnto the yeare of Jubilye, and therafter ſhall he ſet it the lower.

But yf he that ſanctified the landē wyll redeme it agayne, then ſhall he geue ỹ fyfth parte of ſyluer therto, aboue that it was ſet at: ſo ſhall it be his. yf he wyll not lowſe it out, but ſelleth it vnto another, then ſhall he redeme it nomore: but the ſame lande whan it goeth out fre in the yeare of Jubilye, ſhal be holy vnto the LORDE, as a dedicated felde and ſhalbe the prieſtes inheritaunce.

D If ony man halowe vnto the LORDE a feld, which he hath brought, and is not his inheritaunce, then ſhall the preſt reken it, what it is worth vnto the yeare of Jubilye, and the ſame daye ſhall he geue the pryce that it is ſette at, vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuarye. But in the yeare of Ju bilye it ſhall returne vnto hym that bought it, that it maye be his inheritaunce in the lande. All maner of pryſynge ſhall be made accordynge to the Sycle of the Sanc tuary.* One Sycle maketh.xx. Gerās. Gen.30.b

* And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, saynge: Bzynge hether the tryde of Leui, and set them before Aaron the prest, that they maye serue hym, and wayte vpon him & vpon þ whole cõgregacyon before þ Tabernacle of witnesse, and exercise the seruice of the Habitacyon, and kepe al the appointment of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and wayte vpon the chyldren of Israell, to minister in the seruyce of the Habitacyon.

And thou shalt geue the Leuites vnto Aaron and his sonnes for a gyfte, vnto euery one his owne, from amõge the chyldren of Israell. As for Aarõ & his sõnes, thou shalt appoynt thẽ to wayt on theyr prestes office. * yf another prease therto, he shall dye.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde. * Beholde, I haue take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israell, for all the fyrst borne that open the matrix amõge the chyldren of Israell, so that the Leuites shalbe myne. * For the fyrstborne are myne sence þ tyme that I smote all þ fyrstborne in þ londe of Egypt, whan I sanctified vnto me al þ fyrstborn in Israel, from man vnto cattell, þ they shalbe myne, I the LORDE.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Sinai, and sayde: Nomber the childre of Leui after their fathers houses & kynredes, all that are males of a moneth olde and aboue.

So Moses nombred them accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, as he had commaunded. * And these were the chyldren of Leui with their names: Gerson, Kahath, Merari. The names of the chyldren of Gerson in theyr kynreds, were: Libni & Simei.

The childre of Kahath in their kynreds were, Amram, Jezehar, Hebrõ, and Vzsiel.

The chyldren of Merari in their kynredes, were Maheli and Musi. These are the kynreds of Leui after their fathers house.

These are the kynredes of Gerson: the Libnites and Semeites, the summe of all founde in nomber, seuen thousande fyue hündreth, of al that were males of a moneth olde and aboue. And the same kynredes of the Gersonites shall pitch behynde the Habitacyon on the westsyde. Let Eliasaph the sonne of Lael be theyr ruler. And they shall wayte vpon the Tabernacle of witnesse, þ habitaclõ, & of þ tẽt, & couerynge of it, and þ hãgynge in the dore of þ Tabernacle of witnesse, the hangynge about the court, and the hangynge in the court dore, that (court) goeth aboute the habitacle

These are the kynreds of Kahath: The Amremites, the Jezeharites, ꝑ Hebronites and Vsielites, all that were males of a moneth olde and aboue, in nombre eyght thousande and fyre hundreth, waytynge vpon the Tabernacle of the Sanctuarye & ſhall pitche on the southſyde of the Habitacyon: Let Elisaphan the ſonne of Vsiell be their ruler. And they ſhall kepe the Arke, the table, the candelſtycke, the altare and all the veſſels of the Sanctuarye, to do ſeruyce in, and the vayle, and all that belongeth to the ſeruyce therof. But the cheke of all ꝑ rulers of the Leuites, ſhalbe Eleasar the ſonne of Aaron the prieſt, ouer them that are appointed to kepe the watche of the Sanctuary.

These are the kynreds of Merari: the Mahelites and Muſytes, whiche were in nombre fyre thouſande, and two hundreth all that were males of a moneth olde and aboue: Let Zuriell the ſonne of Abihail be their ruler, and they ſhall pitche vpon the North ſyde of the Habitacyon. And their office ſhalbe to kepe the bordes, and barres and pylers, and ſokettes of the Habitacion and all the apparel therof and that ſeruyth therto: the pylers alſo aboute the courte wt the ſokettes, and nayles and coardes.

But before the Habitacyon and before the Tabernacle on the Eaſt ſyde ſhall Moſes and Aaron and his ſonnes pitche, that they maye wayte vpon the Sanctuary, and the chyldre of Iſrael. * ꝑ ony other prieſte therto, he ſhall dye.

* All the Leuites in the ſumme, whome Moſes and Aaron, nombred after their kynreds, accordynge to the worde of the LORD all that were males of a moneth olde and aboue, were two and twentye thouſande.

And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Nombre all the fyrſtborne, that are males amonge the chyldren of Iſrael, of a moneth olde & aboue, and take the nombre of their names. * And the Leuites ſhalt thou take out vnto me the LORD, for all the fyrſtborne of the chyldre of Iſrael: And the cattel of the Leuites for all the fyrſtborne amonge the cattell of the chyldren of Iſrael. And Moſes nombred all the fyrſtborne of the chyldren of Iſrael, as the LORDE cõmaunded hym. And in the nombre of the names of all the fyrſtborne, ꝑ were males of a moneth olde and aboue, in their ſume, there were founde two and twentye thouſande, two hundreth and thre and ſeuentye.

And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, and ſayde: Take the Leuites for all the fyrſtborne amonge the chyldren of Iſrael: and the cattell of the Leuites, for their cattell, that the Leuites may be myne the LORDES. * But the redẽpcyon money of the two hũdreth thre and ſeuẽtye that remayne of the fyrſtborne of the chyldren of Iſrael, aboue the nombre of the Leuites, ſhalte thou take euen fyue Sycles of euery heade, after the Sycle of the Sanctuarye * (one Sycle is worth twentye Geras) and the money that remayneth ouer their nombre, ſhalt thou geue vnto Aaron and his ſonnes. Num. 18.d Leui. 27.d Exo. 45.b

Then toke Moſes the redempcyon money (that remayned ouer aboue the nõbre of the Leuites) from the fyrſte borne of the chyldren of Iſrael, euen a thouſande, thre hundreth and fyue and thre ſcore Sycles, after the Sycle of the Sanctuarye, & gaue it vnto Aaron and his ſonnes, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE as the LORDE cõmaunded Moſes.

The.iiij. Chapter.

AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarõ, and ſayde: Take the ſumme of ꝑ chyldren of Kahath from amonge the chyldre of Leui, after their kynreds & fathers houſes * from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyll fyftye yeare, all that are mete for the warre, that they maye do the worke in the Tabernacle of witneſſe. This ſhalbe the office of the chyldre of Kahath in the Tabernacle of witneſſe, which is moſt holy. 1 1.par.24.b

* Whan the hooſt breaketh vp, Aaron and his ſonnes ſhall go in, and take downe the vayle, & couer the Arke of witneſſe therwith, and laye the couerynge of doo ſkynnes vpõ it, and ſprede a whole palowe cloth aboue & theron, & put his ſtaues therin. And vpon the ſhewe table they ſhall ſprede a palowe clothe alſo, and ſet theron the dyſhes, ſpones, flatpeces and pottes to powre out and in, and the daylie breade ſhall lye vpon it, and they ſhall ſprede a purple cloth there ouer, and couer it with a couerynge of doo ſkynnes, and put the ſtaues of it therin. Exo.30.b

And they ſhall take a palowe cloth, and couer the candelſtycke of lyghte therewith, and his lampes, with his ſnoffers and out quenchers, and all the oyle veſſels that belõge to the ſeruyce, and aboute all this ſhal they put a couerynge of doo ſkynnes, and put it vpon the ſtaues.

So ſhal they ſprede a purple cloth ouer

All the vessels that they occuppe in the Sanctuary, shall they take, and put a palowe cloth therouer, and couer thē with a couerynge of dooskynnes, and put them vpō staues. And the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: ye shall not destroye the tribe of the kynred of ꝑ Kahathites amōge the Leuites, but this shall ye do with them that they maye lyue & not dye, yf they touch the moost holy. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and appoynte euery one vnto his office and charge. But they shall not go in presumptuously to loke vpon the Sanctuary, lest they dye. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron and sayde: Take the summe of the chyldȝē of Gerson also, after Num. 8. b

Accordynge vnto ꝑ worde of and of his sonnes, shall all the office of chyldȝen of Gerson be done, what so they shall beare and occuppe. And ꝑ se, ꝑ they wayte vpō all they charge. shalbe the office of the kynred of the dȝen of the Gersonites in the Taberna of witnesse. And they waytynge shalbe der the hande of Ithamar, the sonne of ton the prest.

And vnto euery one ye appoynte his porcyon of charge to vpon the apparell. Let this be the office the kynred of ꝑ chyldȝen of Merari, al they shal do in the Tabernacle of witnesse vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne Aaron the prest.

And Moses and Aaron with ꝑ nes of the congregacyon, nombred the dȝen of the Kahathites, accordyng to kynreds and houses of they fathers, thyrtye yeare and aboue vntyll fyftye, ꝑ were mete for the warre to haue an in ꝑ Tabernacle of witnesse. And ꝑ was, two thousande, seuen hundreth, fyftye. This is the summe of the kynr the Kahathithes, (whiche all had serui the Tabernacle of witnesse) whom Mo and Aaron nōbred, accordynge to the wo of the LORDE by Moses.

The chyldȝen of Gerson were nōbr also in they kynredes and fathers house from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyll fyf all ꝑ were mete for the warre, to haue an fice in the Tabernacle of witnesse, and summe was two thousande, fyue hundr and thyrtie. This is the summe of the kyn red of the chyldȝē of Gerson, which all had to do in the Tabernacle of witnesse, whom Moses and Aaron nombred accordyng to the worde of the LORDE.

The chyldȝen of Merari were nombr also accordynge to they kynredes and fa thers houses, from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyl fyftye, all that were mete for ꝑ to haue an office in ꝑ tabernacle of witnesse and the summe was thre thousande, & two hundreth. This is the summe of ꝑ kynred of the childre of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordynge to the worde of the LORD by Moses.

The summe of all the Leuites, whome Moses and Aaron with the captaynes of Israel tolde, after theyr kynreds & fathers houses, from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyll fyftye, all that wente in, to do euery one his office, and to beare the burthen in the Tabernacle of witnesse, was eyght thousande, fyue hundreth and foure score, which were nõbred accordynge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses, euery one in his office and charge, as ꝑ LORDE cõmaunded Moses.

The.v.Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Cõmaunde the childre of Israel that they put out of the hoost * al the lepers and all that haue yssues, & that are defyled vpon the dead, bothe men and women shall they put out of the hoost, that they defyle not theyr tẽtes, wherin I dwell amonge them. And the childzen of Israell dyd so, and put thẽ out of the hoaste, as the LORDE had sayde vnto Moses.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childzen of Israel and saye vnto them: Whã a man or womã doth a synne to ony body, & offendeth there with agaynst the LORD, thẽ hath that soule a trespasse vpon it. * And they shall knowlege theyr synne, that they haue done, and shall make amendes for theyr trespasse, euẽ with the whole summe, and put the fyfthe parte more therto, and geue it vnto hym agaynst whom they haue trespassed. But yf ther be noman to make the amendes vnto for ꝑ offence that he hath trespassed against hym, then shall the reconcylynge be made vnto the LORD for the prest, beyde ꝑ rãme of the attonement, wherwith he shalbe reconcyled.

Lykewyse all the heaueofferynges of al that ꝑ childzen of Israell halowe vnto the LORDE, and offre vnto the prest, shalbe his. And whoso halloweth ony thynge, it shalbe his. And whoso geueth the prest ony thyng it shalbe his also.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the childzen of Israell, and saye vnto them: Whã ony mans wyfe goeth aside, and trespasseth agaynst hym, and ony man lye with her fleshlye, and the thynge be yet hyd from his eyes, and is not come to light that she is defyled, and he can brynge no witnesse against her (for she was not taken therin) and the spzete of Gelousy kyndleth him, so that he is gelous ouer his wyfe: whether she be vncleane or not vncleane, thẽ shal he bzynge her vnto the prest and bzynge an offerynge for her, euen, the tenth parte of an Epha of barly meele, and shall powre no oyle theron, nor put frankẽcense vpon it: for it is an offerynge of gelousye, and an offerynge of remẽbzaunce, that remembzeth synne.

Then shall the prest bzynge her, and set her before the LORDE, and take of the * holy water in an earthen vessell, and put of ꝑ dust that is on the floore of the habitacion in to the water. And he shall set the wyfe before the LORDE, and vncouer hir head, and the offerynge of remẽbzaunce whiche is an offerynge of gelousye, shall he laye vpõ hir handes. And the prest shal haue in his hãde bytter curlynge water, and shall conjure ꝑ wyfe, and saye vnto her: yf noman haue lyẽ with the, and thou haste not gone aside frõ thy husbande, to defyle thy selfe, then shall not these bytter curlynge waters hurte the. But yf thou hast gone aside from thy husbande, so that thou arte defyled, and some other man hath lyen with ꝑ beside thy husbande, then shall the prest conjure the wyfe with this curse, & shall saye vnto her: The LORDE set the to a curse and conjuracyon amonge thy people, so that the LORD make thy thye rotte, and thy wombe to berst. So go this curled water in to thy body, that thy wombe berste, and thy thye rotte. And ꝑ wyfe shall saye Amen Amen.

So the preste shall wryte this curse in a byll, and washe it out with the water, and shall geue the wyfe of the bytter curlynge waters to dzynke. And whan the curlynge water is gone in her, so that it is bytter vnto her then shall the prest take the gelousye offerynge out of the wyues hande, and waue it for a meatofferynge before the LORDE and offre it vpon the altare: namely he shal take an handefull of the meatofferynge for hyr remẽbzaunce, and burne it vpon the altare, and then geue the wyfe the water to dzynke. And whan she hath dzõken the water, yf she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynst hyr husbande then shall ꝑ curlynge water go in to her, and be so bytter, that hir wombe shall berste, and hir thye shall rotte and the wyfe shalbe a curse amonge hir peo ple. But yf the same wyfe be not defyled, but is cleane: then shall it do her no harme, so that she maye be with chylde.

This is the law of gelousy, whā a wyfe goeth aside from hir husbande and is defyled: Or whan the spyrete of gelousye kynd leth a man, so ỹ he is gelous ouer his wyfe that he bryngе her before the LORDE, and that the prest do al with her accordynge vn to his law. And the man shalbe gyltelesse of the synne, but the wyfe shall beare hir mysdede.

The.vi. Chapter.

AND the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto ỹ chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them. Whā a man or womā separate them selues, to bowe a bowe of abstinēce vnto ỹ LORDE, he shal Moreouer he shall eate nothynge that is made of the vyne tre, frō the wyne cornels vnto the hull.

As longe as the bowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasoure come vpon his heade, tyll the tyme be out which he abstayneth vnto the LORD, for he is holy. And he shal let the heere of his heade grow, and stonde bare openly. All the tyme ouer that he abstayneth vnto the LORDE shall he go to no dead. Nother shal he defyle hym selfe at the death of his father, of his mother, of his brother or of his syster. For ỹ abstinence of his God is vpō his heade, and the whole tyme of his abstynence shall he be holy vnto the LORDE.

B And yf it chaunce ony man to dye sodēly before him, then shall the heade of his abstinēce be defyled. Therfore shall he Num.12.b * shaue his heade in the daye of his clensynge, that is vpon the seuēth day: and vpon the eight daye shall he bryngе two turtyll doues, or two yōge pigeons vnto the prest before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the prest shall make the one a synnofferyng, & ỹ other a burntofferynge, and make an attonemēt for hym, because he defyled hymselfe vpon the deade, and so shall he halowe his heade the same daye, that he may holde out the tyme of his abstinence vnto the LORDE and he shall bryngе a lambe of a yeare olde for a tresp alleofferynge. But ỹ dayes afore shall be but lost, because his abstinēce was defyled.

This is the law of the abstayner. Whā the tyme of his abstinence is out, he shall bryngе before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And he shall bryngе his offerynge vnto the LORDE, euen an helelambe a peare olde without blemyshe for a burntofferynge, and a shelambe of a peare olde without blemysh for a synneofferynge, and a ramme without blemyshe for a thākofferynge, and a maunde with vnleuended cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, & swete wafers anoynted with oyle, with meatofferynges and drynkofferynges.

And the preste shall bryngе it before the LORDE, and shall make his synneofferynge and his burntofferynge, and ỹ ramme he make a thākofferynge vnto the LORDE with the maunde of the vnleuended breed. His meatofferynge & drynkofferynge shall he make also. And he shall shaue the heade of the abstayners abstinēce before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, & shall take the headeheere of his abstinence, and put it vpon the fyre that is vnder the thākofferynge.

And the sodden shulder of the ramme shall he take, and an vnleuended cake out of the maunde, and a swete wafer, and laye them vpon the hādes of the abstayner: (after he hath shauen of his abstinence). And he shall waue them before the LORDE. That is holy for the prest with the wauē breest and heaue shulder. After that maye the abstayner drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the abstayner which boweth his offerynge vnto the LORDE for his abstinence, besyde that, which his hāde can get. As he hath vowed, so shall he do accordynge to the lawe of his abstinence.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes and saye: Thus shall ye saye vnto the children of Israell, whan ye blesse them.

* The LORDE blesse the, and kepe the. The LORDE make his face to shyne vpon the, and be mercifull vnto the.

The LORDE lyft his countenaunce vpon the, and geue the peace.

For they shall put my name, vpon the children of Israell, that I maye blesse them.

*And whan Moses wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that he myght be commened withall, he herde ꝑ voyce speakynge vnto hym from the Mercyseat, which was vpon the Arcke of witnesse betwixt the two Cherubins, from thence was he commoned withall.

The.viii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to Aaron, and saye vnto hym: *Whan thou settest vp the lãpes, thou shalt set them so that they maye all seuen geue light aboue vpon the candelsticke. And Aaron dyd so, and set the lampes vpon the candelsticke, as ꝑ LORDE commaũded Moses. The worke of the candelsticke was of beaten golde, both the shafte and floures therof: accordynge to the vysyon that the LORDE had shewed Moses, euen so made he the candelsticke.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and sayd: Take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and clense them. But thus shalt thou do with the, that thou mayst clense them. Thou shalt sprenkle purifienge water vpon them, and let a rasure go ouer they? whole body, and washe they? clothes, and then are they cleane. Then shall they take a ponge bullocke, and his meatoffe rynge of fyne floure myngled with oyle. And another põge bullocke shalt thou take for a synoffrynge.

And thou shalte brynge the Leuites before the Tabernacle of wytnes, and gather together the whole cõgregacyon of the chyldren of Israel, and brynge the Leuites before the LORDE. And the chyldren of Israel shall laye they? handes vpon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue ꝑ Leuites before the LORDE for the chyldren of Israell, that they maye mynister in the seruyce of the LORDE.

And the Leuites shall laye they? hãdes vpon the heades of the bullockes, and the one shalbe made a synoffrynge, the other a burntoffeeringe vnto the LORDE, to make an attonement for the Leuites. And thou shalt set the Leuites before Aaron and his sonnes, and waue them before the LORDE ✠ so shalt thou separate them from the chyldren of Israel, that they may be myne. The shall they go in, that they may do seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Thus shalte thou clense them, ✠ waue them: for they are my gyfte of the chyldren of Israel. *And I haue taken them vnto me, for all that openeth the matrix, namely for the fyrstborne of all the chyldren of Israel. Num.3.b.

*For euery fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israell is myne, both of me and cattell, sence the tyme that I smote al the fyrstborne in the lande of Egipte, and sanctified them vnto my self, and tolde the Leuites for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and gaue them for a gifte vnto Aaron and his sonnes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde do the seruyce of the chyldren of Israell in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to make attonement for the chyldren of Israell, ꝑ ther be not a plage amonge the chyldren of Israell, ꝑ they wyll come nye the Sanctuarye. Exo.13.a Luc.2.b

And Moses with Aaron and the whole congregacyon of the children of Israel, dyd with the Leuites all as the LORDE hath commaunded Moses. And they purified the Leuites, and washed they? clothes. And Aaron waued them before the LORDE, and made attonement for them, that they myght be cleane.

After that wente they in, to do they? office in the Tabernacle of wytnesse before Aaron and his sonnes: As the LORDE cõmaunded Moses concernynge the Leuites euen so dyd they with them. D

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, ✠ sayd: This is it that belongeth vnto the Leuites: *From fyue and twenty yeare and a boue shall they go in to the office of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. *But frõ fyfty yeare forth they shall ceasse from waytynge of the seruyce therof, and shall mynister nomore, but shall appoynte they? brethren to wayte and to serue in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: but the office shall not they execute. Thus shalt thou do with the Leuites in they? sernices, that euery one maye wayte vpon his owne charge. Nu.4.a. 1.Reg.1.d.

and sayd: *Let the chyldren of Israel kepe Easter in his season, euen vpon ỹ fourtenth daye of this moneth at euen, in his season shall they kepe it, accordynge to all statutes and lawes therof. And Moses spake to the chyldre of Israel ỹ they shuld kepe Easter. And they kept Easter vpon the fourtenth daye of the fyrst moneth at euen in the wyldernesse of Sinay. Accordynge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

Then were ther certayne mē defyled of a deadman, so that they couldē not kepe Easter vpon that daye: these came before Moses and Aaron the same daye, and sayd vnto hym: We ar defyled of a deadmā: wherfore shuld we be despysed, that we must not bringe our gyftes in his season amonge ỹ chyldren of Israel: Moses sayd vnto them: Stonde styll, I wyll heare what ỹ LORDE comnaundeth you.

was set vp, a cloud couered it vpon the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and at euen ther was a symilitude of fyre vpon the Habitacyon vntyll the morynge. So came it to passe alwaye that the cloude couered it by daye, and ỹ similitude of fyre by nyght. And whā the cloude was taken vp from the Habytacyon, then the chyldren of Israell went on they iourney. And loke in what place the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israell pitched they tentes. Accordynge to ỹ worde of the LORDE toke the chyldrē of Israel they iourney, and accordinge to his worde pitched they they tentes. So longe as the cloude abode vpon ỹ Habitacyon, they kept styll. And whan the cloude tarped many dayes vpon the Habytacyon the chyldren of Israel wayted vpon the LORDE, and went not on they iourney.

And whan it chaūced that the cloude abode vpō the Habitacyō ony space of dayes then pitched they accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, and after the worde of ỹ LORDE went they on they iourney. Whan the cloude was there from the euenynge vntyll the morynge, and so was taken vp, anone went they on they iourney: and whether it was taken vp by daye and by nyght they iourneyed. But whan it tarped vpon ỹ Habitacyon two dayes, or a moneth or a longer season, then laye the chyldren of Israel and iourneied not, and so whā it was taken vp they went on they iourney. For accordynge to the mouth of the LORDE they laye, and after the mouth of the LORDE they iourneyed, so that they kepte the LORDES watch, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The.x.Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayd: Make the * trompettes of beaten syluer that thou mayest blowe them, and call the cōgregacyon together, and whan the hoost shall breake vp. When they blowe with both, then shall the whole congregacyon gather them selues together vnto the before the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Whā they blowe but with one, then the captaynes the rulers ouer the thousandes in Israel shal gather themselues together vnto the. Whan ye trompe, then the hoostes that lye on the East syde, shall breake vp. And whan ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoostes that lye on the south syde, shall breake vp. For ye shal trōpe, whā they shall take they iourneys. *But whan the congregacyon is to be gathered together, ye shall blowe & not trōpe. This blowynge with the trompettes shall the sonnes of Aaron do. And it shalbe your lawe for euer amonge your posterities.

Whan ye go to battayll in your lande gainst your enemies that vexed you, ye shall trompe with the trompettes, that ye may be remembred before the LORDE your God and delyuered from your enemyes.

Lykewyse whā ye are mery, and in your feast dayes, and in your new moneths, ye shall blowe with the trompettes ouer your burntsacrifices and thankofferynges, that it maye be a remembraūce vnto you before your God. I am the LORDE your God.

Upon the twentye daye in the secōde moneth of the seconde yeare, arose the cloude from the Habitacyon of witnesse. * And the childzen of Israell went on theyr iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sinai, & ỹ cloude abode in the wyldernesse of Paran. Fyrst brake vp (accordynge to the worde of ỹ LORDE by Moses) namely, the bāner of ỹ hoost of Juda went forth fyrst with theyr armies * and ouer theyr hoost was Nahassō ỹ sōne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of ỹ tribe of the childzen of Issachar was Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of ỹ trybe of the childzen of Sabulon was Eliab the sonne of Elon. * And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the childzen of Gerson, and Merari bare the Habitacyon.

C After that went the banner of the hoost of Rubē with theyr armyes, and ouer theyr hoost was Elizur the sōne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childzē of Simeon was Selumiel the sonne of Surisadai. And Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childzen of Gad. Then wente the Kahathites forewarde also and bare the Sanctuary, & caused the Habitacyon be set vp agaynst they came.

After that went the banner of the hoost of the childzen of Ephraim with theyr armyes, and ouer theyr hoost was Elisama ỹ sonne of Amihud. And Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur ouer ỹ hoost of the trybe of the childzen of Manasse. And Abidan ỹ sonne Gedeoni ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childzen of Ben Jamin.

After that wente the banner of the hoost of the childzen of Dan with theyr armyes, (and so were al the hoostes vp) and Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai was ouer theyr hoost. And Pagiel the sonne of Ochzan, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childzen of Asser. And Ahira the sonne of Enan, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childzē of Nephthali. Thus the childzen of Israel wente forth with theyr armyes.

And Moses spake vnto his brother in lawe, Hobab the sonne of * Reguel of Madian: We go vnto the place, of ỹ which the LORDE sayd: I wyll geue it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we wyll do the best with the, for the LORDE hath promysed good vnto Israel. But he answered: I wyll not go with you, but wyl go in to myne owne lande vnto my kynrede. He sayd: Oh nay, leaue vs not: for thou knowest wher is best for vs to pitche in the wyldernesse, and thou shalt be our eye. And yf thou goest wt vs, loke what good the LORDE doth vnto vs, the same wyll we do vnto the. So they departed from the mount of the LORDE thre dayes iourney, and the Arcke of ỹ LORDES conuenaunt wente before them those thre dayes iourney, to shewe them where they shulde rest. And the cloude of the LORDE was ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they wente out of the tentes.

And whan the arcke wente forth, Moses sayd: * Aryse LORDE, let thyne enemyes be scatered, and let them that hate the, flye before the. And whā it rested, he sayd: Come agayn O LORDE vnto the multitude of the thousandes of Israel.

The.xi. Chapter.

A AND * whan the people wared vnpacyent, it displeased sore ỹ eares of the LORD. And whan the LORDE herde it, his wrath ware whote, and the fyre of the LORDE burnt amonge them, so that it cōsumed the vttermoost of the hoost. Then cryed the people vnto Moses. And Moses prayed vnto the LORDE. So the fyre quenched. And the place was called Tabera, because the fyre of ỹ LORDE burnt amonge them.

Then the comune sorte of people that was amonge them, fell a lustynge, and sat and wepte with the childzen of Israel, and sayd: Who wyll geue vs flesshe to eate. We remembre the fysshe, that we dyd eate in Egipte for nought, and coucumbers, melons lekes, ontons, and garlicke: But now is our soule dryed awaye, oure eyes se nothynge then the Manna.

* The Manna was lyke Coriandersede and to loke vpon, lyke Bedellion. And the people rāne here and there, and gathered it and groūde it in mylles, & bet it in mozters, & baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it, and it had a tayst lyke an oyle cake. And whan ꝑ dew fell vpō the tentes in the night, the Māna fell therwith.

Now whan Moses herde ꝑ people wepe amōge theyr kyndres, euery one in his tent doze, then the wzath of the LORDE warred erceadynge whote. And it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the LORDE: ℭ Why vexest thou thy seruaunte And why fynde not I fauoure in thy syght, that thou layest the burthē of al this people vpō me? Haue I then conceaued all this people, oz begotten them, that thou shuldest say vnto me: carye them in thyne armes (as a nurse beareth a chylde) vnto the londe, that thou hast swozne vnto theyr fathers? Wher shal I get flesh, to geue all this people? They wepe bekoz me, & saye: Geue vs flesshe, that we may eate. I am not able to beare al this people alone, foz it is to heuy for me. And yf thou wylt deale thus with me: O kyl me then, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght, that I se not my wzetchednesse.

ℳ And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Gather vnto me * seuenty men amonge the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest ꝑ they

The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: * The LORDES hande shoztened then? But now shalt thou se, whether my wozdes shalbe fulfylled in dede, oz no.

And Moses went out, and tolde the people the wozde of the LORDE, and gathered the seuentye men amōge the eldest of ꝑ people, and set them rounde about the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spzete that was vpon hym, and put it vpon the seuenty Elders. And whan the spzete rested vpon them, they pzophecied, and ceased not.

But in the hoost there remayned yet two men, of whom the one was called Eldad, the other Medad, and the spzete rested vpō them. Foz they were wzitten vp also, and yet were they not gone out vnto the Tabernacle, & they pzophecied in the hoost. Then ranne there a lad, and tolde Moses, and sayde: Eldad and Medad pzopheryе in the hoost. Then answered Josua the sonne of Nun, Moses seruaūt (whō he had chosen) & sayde: * My lozd Moses, forbydde thē. But Moses sayd vnto hym: Art thou gelous fo my sake? * wolde God, that all the people of the LORDE coulde pzopheryе, and that ꝑ LORDE wolde geue them his spzete. So Moses and the Elders of Israell gat them into the hoost.

* Then wente out the wynde from the LORDE, & caused quayles to come from the see, and scatred them ouer the hoost for a dayes iourney, there a dayes iourney rounde about the hoost, two cubytes hye aboue the earth. Then the people stode vp all ꝑ day and all that nyght, and all the nexte day, and gathered quayles: and he that gathered least, gathered ten Homers: and they spred them rounde aboute the hoost.

* But whyle the flesshe was yet betwene theyr teth, oznever it was vp, ꝑ wrath of the LORDE wared whote amonge the people, * and slewe them with an exceadynge great slaughter. Therfoze is the same place called the graues of lust, because the lustenous people were buryed there. * From the lustgraues toke ꝑ people theyr iourney to Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

* Then came the LORDE downe in the cloudy pyller, & stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriã, & they both wente out. And he sayde: Heare my wordes: yf ony man be a prophet of the LORD, vnto hym wyll I shewe my selfe in a vision, or wyll speake vnto him in a dreame But not so wt my seruaũt Moses, * which is faithful in all my house. & Mouth to mouth speake I vnto hym, & he seyth ꝑ LORD in his fashion, not thorow darke wordes or lyknesses: Wherfore were ye not afrayed then to speake agaynste my seruaunt Moses? And the wrath of the LORDE waxed whot ouer them, and he turned hym away, and the cloude also departed from the Tabernacle. * And beholde, then was Miriã become leperous, as it were snow. And Aaron turned hym vnto Miriã, and sawe that she was leporous, and sayde vnto Moses: Oh my LORDE, put not the synne vpõ vs, which we haue folyshly cõmytted and synned, that she be not as one that commeth deade out of his mothers wombe: It hath eaten vp halfe hir flesshe already.

But Moses cryed vnto the LORDE, and sayde: Oh God heale her. The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: yf hir father had spytte in hir face, shuld she not be ashamed seuẽ dayes? * Let her be shut out of ꝑ hoost seuẽ dayes, after that let her be receaued agayne. So Miriam was shutte out of the hoost seuen dayes, and the people wente no farther tyll Miriã was receaued agayne. * Afterward departed the people from Hazeroth, & pitched in the wyldernesse of Paran.

The.xiii. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: * Sende forth men to spye out the londe of Canaan, (which I wyll geue vnto the chyldren of Israell) of euery tribe of their fathers a man, and let them all be such as are captaynes amõg them. As for Hosea the sõne of Nun. Moses called hym Josua.

Now whan Moses sente them forth to B spye out the londe of Canaan he sayd vnto them: Go vp southward, and get you vp to the mountaynes, and loke vpon the londe how it is: and ꝑ people therin, whether they be stronge or weake, fewe or many: & what maner of londe it is that they dwel in, whether it be good or bad: and what maner of cities they be that they dwell in, whether they be fẽced with walles, or not: and what maner of lõde it is, whether it be fat or lean & whether there be trees therin, or not. Be of a good corage and bringe of the frutes of the londe. It was euen aboute the time that grapes are fyrst ripe.

They wente vp, and spyed the londe, frõ ꝑ wildernes of Zin, vntyl Rehob, as mẽ go vnto Hemath. They wente also vp toward the south, and came vnto Hebrõ wher Ahiman was, and Sesai, and Thalmai, the chyldren of Enacke (Hebron was buylded seuen yeare before Zoan in Egipte).

And they came vnto the ryuer of Escoll C and * there they cut downe a cluster of gra- Deu. 1.b.
pes, and caused two to beare it vpõ a staffe, pomgranates also, and figges. The place is called the ryuer of Escoll, because of the cluster of grapes which the chyldren of Israell cut downe there.

And whan they had spyed out the lond, they turned bake agayne after forty dayes, and wente and came to Moses and Aaron and to the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell in to the wylderneſſe of Paran, euen vnto Cades, and brought them worde agayne, and to the whole congregacyon, how it stode, and let them se the frute of the londe, and tolde them, and sayd: We came in to the londe, whether ye sente vs, wher it floweth with mylke and hony, and this is ẏ frute therof: saynge that stronge people dwel therin, and the cityes are exceadynge stronge and greate. And we saw the chyldren of Enacke there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, and Jebuseres, and Ammorites dwell vpon the mountaynes: but the Cananites dwell by the see, and aboute Jordane.

Howbeit Caleb stylled the people that was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto them. Let vs go vp, and conquere the londe, for we are able to ouercome it. But the men ẏ wente vp with hym, sayde: * We are not able to go vp agaynste the people, for they are to stronge for vs. And of the lande that they had searched, they brought vp an euell reporte amonge the chyldren of Israell, and sayde: The lõde that we haue gone thorow to spye out, eateth vp the indwellers therof: and all the people that we sawe therin, are men of greate stature. We sawe gyauntes there also, yee gyauntes as the chyldren of Enacke: & we semed in our syght as the grashoppers, & so dyd we in their syght.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

Then the whole congregacyon toke on, and cryed, and the people wepte that nyght. And all the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aarõ and the whole congregacyon sayde vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the londe of Egypte, or that we myghte dye yet in this wylderneſſe. Wherfore bryngeth the LORD vs in to this londe, that oure wyues shulde fall thorow the swearde, and oure chyldren be a praye: Is it not better, ẏ we go agayn in to Egipt: And they sayd one to another: Let vs make a captayne, & go into Egypte agayne.

Exo.16.a Num.14.a psal.105.a

But Moses and Aaron fell vpon theyr faces before the whole cõgregacyon of the multitude of the chyldren of Israell. * And

Gen.46.b Exo.24.f

Josua the sonne of Nun, & Caleb the sonne of Jephune (whiche also had spyed out the londe) rente theyr clothes, and spake to the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell: The londe that we haue walked through and rowe to spye it out, is a very good londe. If the LORDE haue luste vnto vs, he shall brynge vs in to the same lõde, & geue vs it, whiche is a londe that floweth with mylke and hony. But in ony wyse rebell not ye agaynst the LORD, and * feare not the people of this londe, for we wyll eate them vp as bread. Theyr defence is departed from them, * but the LORDE is with vs, be not afrayed of them.

And all the people bad stone them with stones. Then appeared ẏ glory of the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witnesse vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: How longe shall this people blaspheme me? And how longe wyll they beleue me, for all ẏ tokens that I haue shewed amonge them? * I wyll smyte them with pestilence and destroye them, and wyll make of the greater and myghtier people then this is.

* But Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Then shal the Egipcyans heare it (for thou by thy power haste thou brought this people from amonge them) so shal it be tolde the inhabiters of this lõde also, which haue herde that thou O LORDE art amonge this people, that thou art sene face to face, and that * thy cloude stondeth ouer thẽ, & that thou goest before them in the cloudy pyller on the daye tyme, and in the fyrye pyller on ẏ nyght season, yf thou shuldest now slaye this people as one man, then the Heythen that haue herde so good reporte of the, shulde saye: * The LORDE was not able to bryng this people into ẏ lande, that he sware vnto them, therfore hath he slayne thẽ in ẏ wildernesse.

So let the power of the LORDE now be greate, accordynge as thou haste spoke and sayde: The LORDE is of longe sufferaunce and of great mercy, and forgeueth synne, treſpaſſe, and leaueth no man innocent, and visiteth the mysdede of the fathers vpon the chyldren in to the thyrde and fourth generacyõ. O be gracyous now vnto the synne of this people accordynge to thy great mercy, lyke as thou haste forborne this people also, euer from Egipte vnto this place. And the LORDE sayde: I haue forgeuen as thou haste sayde. But as truely as I lyue, all the worlde shalbe full of my glorye. * For of all the men that haue

my glorye and my tokens, whiche I dyd
in Egipte and in the wylderneſſe, and 4 tēted me now ten tymes, and haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there ſhall not one ſey londe that I ſware vnto their fathers: nother ſhall ony of them that haue blaphemed me ſe it. * But my ſeruaunt Caleb, be cauſe ther is another maner ſpyrete vñ him
and becauſe he hath folowed me, hym wyll
I bringe in to ỹ londe, which he hath gone thorow, and his ſede ſhall conquere it, and the Amalechites alſo, and the Cananites, that dwell in the lowe coūtrees. Tomorow turne you, and get you in the wyldernelſe,
in the waye towarde the reed ſee.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarō, and ſayd: How longe ſhall this euell multitude murmure agaynſte me? For I haue herde the murmurynge of the chyldrē of Iſrael, that they haue murmured againſt
me. Tel them therfore: * as truly as I lyue (ſayeth the LORDE) I wyl do vnto you, euē
as ye haue ſpoken in myne eares, your car caſes ſhall lye in this wyldernelſe. And all ye that were * nōbred from twentye yeare
and aboue, which haue murmured againſt me ſhall not come in to the londe (concernynge the which I lyfte vp my hande, that I wolde let you dwell therin) ſaue Caleb ỹ ſōne of Jephune, & Joſua the ſōne of Nun.

* your chyldrē, of whom ye ſayd: They ſhalbe a ſpoyle, them wyll I bringe in, ſo that they ſhall knowe the londe, whiche ye haue refuſed. But ye with youre carcaſes ſhall lye in this wyldernelſe: and your chyl dren ſhall wander in this wyldernelſe forty yeares, and beare your whordom, tyll your carcaſes be waſted in the wyldernelſe, accordynge to the nombre of the forty day
es, wherin ye ſpyed out the londe. * A daye
for a yeare, ſo ỹ forty yeares ye ſhall beare youre meſdede, that ye maye knowe what it is, whan I withdrawe my hande, euen I the LORDE haue ſayde it, and wyll do it in dede vnto all this euell cōgregacyon, that haue lift vp theſelues agaynſt me: In this wyldernelſe ſhall they be conſumed, & there ſhall they dye.

* So there dyed and were plaged before the LORDE all the men, whome Moſes ſent to ſpye out the lōde, and came agayne, and made the whole cōgregacyon to murmur againſt it, becauſe they brought vp a myſ-reporte of the londe ỹ it was euell. But Jo ſua the ſonne of Nun, and Caleb the ſonne of Jephune were left alyue, of the men that wente to ſpye out the londe. And Moſes ſpake theſe wordes vnto all the children of Iſrael. Thē toke the people great ſorowe.

And they aroſe early in the morynge, & I wente vp to ỹ toppe of the mountayne, and ſayde: * Lo, here are we, and wyll go vp to Deut. 1. f.
the place, wherof the LORDE hath ſayde: for we haue ſynned. But Moſes ſayde: Wher fore go ye on this maner beyonde the word of the LORDE? It ſhall not proſpere vñ you, go not vp (for the LORD is not among you)
that ye be not ſlayne before your enemyes.
For the Amalechites and Cananites are there before you, and ye ſhall fall thorow ỹ ſwearde, becauſe ye haue turned youre ſelues from the LORDE, and the LORDE ſhall not be with you.

But they were blynded to go vp to the toppe of the mountayne: neuertheleſſe the Arke of the LORDES cōuenaūt, and Moſes came not out of the hooſt. Thē came down the Amalechites and Cananites, whiche dwelt vpon that mountayn, and ſmote thē
and hewed them, euen vnto Horma.

The.xv. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Mo I ſes, and ſayde: Speake to the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay vn to them: When ye come in to the londe of youre dwellynge which I ſhall geue you, and wyll do ſacri-fyce vnto the LORDE, whether it be a burnt offerynge, or an offeryng for a ſpecyal vow
or a free wyll offerynge, or your feaſtofferyn
ges, that ye maye make a ſwete ſauoure vn
to the LORDE, of oxen or of ſhepe.

* He that wyll offre now his gyfte vnto Leuit. 2. a.
the LORDE, ſhall bringe for the meatoffe- and. 6. b.
rynge a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle of the fourth part of an Hin, and wyne for ỹ drynkofferynge the fourth part of an Hin alſo to ỹ burntofferynge, or ony other offeryng, whā a lambe is offred. But whan there is a ramme offered, thou ſhalte
make the meatofferynge two tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle, of ỹ third parte of an Hin, and the thirde parte of an Hin of wyne alſo for a drynkofferyng: this ſhalt thou offre for a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE. But yf thou wylt offre an oxe for a B burntofferynge, or for a ſpecyall vowe offe
rynge, or for a thankofferynge vnto ỹ LOR-DE, thou ſhalte bringe to the oxe, the meatofferynge, euē thre tenth deales of fyne flour myngled with halfe an Hin of oyle, & halfe an Hin of wyne for a drinkofferynge. This is an offerynge of a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE. Thus shalt thou do with an oxe, with a rãme, with a lãbe, and with a goate. Accordynge as the nõbre of the offerynges is, therafter shall the nõbre of the meatofferynges and drynkofferynges be also.

He that is one of youre selues, shall do this, that he may offre a sacrifyce of a swete sauoure vnto the LORD. And yf there dwell a straunger with you, or is amonge youre kynsfolkes, and wyll do an offerynge vnto the LORD for a swete sauour, the same shall do as ye do. Let there be one statute for the whole congregacion, both vnto you and to the straungers. A perpetuall statute shal it be vnto youre posterityes, that the straũger be euẽ as ye before the LORD. One law, and one ordinaunce shalbe vnto you and to the straunger that dwelleth with you.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake to the chyldrẽ of Israel, and
Exo. 23.c. Deut.8.c. saye vnto them: * Whan ye come in to the londe, into the whiche I shall bringe you, so that ye eate the bread of the lande, ye shal heaue vp an Heaueofferynge vnto the LORDE, namely, a cake of ỹ fyrstlynges of your dowe shall ye geue for an Heaueofferynge:
Leui.23.b. * As the Heaueofferynge of the barne, euẽ so shall ye geue ỹ fyrstlynges of your dowe also vnto the LORD, for an Heaueofferynge amonge youre posteritys.

Leui.4.c. se ony of these cõmaundementes, which the LORDE hath commaunded you by Moses, and all that the LORDE hath commaunded you by Moses (from the daye that the LORDE began to commaunde for your posterities) and the congregacyon do ought ignorauntly: then shal the whole congregacyon offere a yonge bullocke from amonge the greate cattell to a burntofferynge, for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE, with his meatofferynge and drynkofferynge as the maner is, and an hegoate for a synneofferynge. And so shall the prest make an attonement for the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell, and it shalbe forgeuen them: for it is an ignorauce. And they shall bringe these theyr gyftes for an offerynge vnto the LORDE and theyr synneofferynge before the LORDE for theyr ignorauce, and it shalbe forgeuen the whole congregacion of the chyldren of Israell, and the straũger that dwelleth amonge you, for so much as all the people is in such ignorauce.
Leuit.4.d. * yf one soule synne thorow ignorauce, the same shall bringe a shegoate of a peare olde for a synofferynge. And the prest shall make an attonement for such an ignorant soule with the synneofferynge for the ignorauce before the LORDE, that he may reconcyle hym, and it shalbe one law (that ye shall do for the ignorauce) both vnto hym that is borne amonge the chyldren of Israell, and to the straunger that dwelleth amonge you.

* But yf a soule do ought presumptuously, whether he be one of youre selues or a straunger, he hath despysed the LORDE, the same shalbe voted out from amonge his people: because he hath despised the worde of the LORDE, and hath left his cõmaundement vndone: that soule shal vtterly perish, his synne shalbe vpon hym.

Now whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man gatherynge styckes vpon the Sabbath day. And they that founde hym gatherynge stykes, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron, and before the whole cõgregacyon. * And they put him in prison, for it was not declared what shulde be done vnto hym. Then the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: The man shall dye the death, the whole cõgregacyon shall stone hym without the hoost. Then the whole cõgregacion brought hym out of the hoost and stoned hym that he dyed, as the LORDE cõmaunded Moses.

* And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the chyldren of Israell, and bid them vnto them that they make them gardes vpon the quarters of their garmentes in all youre posterities and put vpon the gardes vpon the quarters. And the gardes shall serue you, that ye may loke vpon thẽ and remẽbre all the commandementes of the LORDE, and do them, and ye order not your selues after ỹ imaginacyon of youre owne harte, nor go a whorynge after youre owne eyes. Therfore shall ye remembre and do all my cõmaundementes, and be holy vnto youre God. I am the LORDE youre God which brought you out the londe of Egypte to be youre God, Euē I the LORDE youre God.

The.xvi.Chapter.

AND * Corah the sonne of Jezehar the sonne of Kahath the sonne of Leui, with Dathan & Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben, stode vp agaynst Moses, with certayne men amonge the childrē of Israell, two hundreth and fyftye captaynes of the cōgregacyon, councelers, and famous men. And they gathered themselues agaynst Moses and Aaron and sayde vnto them: ye make to much a do, * for all the congregacyon is holy euery one, and the LORDE is amonge them: Why lyft ye youre selues vp then aboue the congregacyn of the LORDE?

When Moses herde that, he fell vpon his face, and sayde vnto Corah, and to all his company: To morowe shal the LORDE shew who is his, and who is holy to come vnto hym. Whome so euer he choseth, the same shall come vnto hym. This do: Take the censers, thou Corah and all thy cōpany and do fyre therin, and put incense theron to morow before the LORDE: then whome so euer ꝑ LORD choseth ꝑ same shalbe holy. ye make to much a do, ye chyldrē of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Heare ye chyldrē of Leui, is it not ynough vnto you, * that the God of Israell hath separated you from the multitude of Israell that ye shulde come nye hym, to do the seruyce of ꝑ dwellynge place of the LORDE, and stonde before the people to mynister vnto thē? He hath cauled the and thy brethren the chyldren of Leui wt the, to come nye vnto hym: and now ye seke the prestehode also. Thou & all thy cōpany cōspyre agaynst the LORDE. What is Aaron that ye shulde murmure agaynst hym?

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab. But they sayde We wyll not come vp. Is it to lytle that thou hast brought vs out of the lande of Egypte (that floweth with mylke and hony) to kyl vs in the wylderneſſe, but thou must raygne ouer vs also? How goodly, and wel hast thou brought vs in to a lōde, ꝑ floweth with mylke and hony, and geue vs feldes and vinyardes in possessiō? Wilt thou put out * these mēs eyes? We wyl not come vp. Nu.17.d

Then was Moses very wroth, & sayde vnto the LORDE: Turne the not vnto their meatofferynges. I haue no taken so much as an asse from them, nother haue I hurte ony of thē. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Tomorow be thou and all thy cōpany before the LORDE, thou, and they, and Aaron. And take euery one his censer, and put incense therin, and come before the LORDE euery one with his censer (that is two hundreth and fyftye cēsers) and both thou and Aaron take eyther his censer.

And euery one toke his censer, and put fyre therin, and layed incēse theron & came before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered the whole congregacyon agaynst them before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse.

But the glorye of the LORDE? appeared before ꝑ whole cōgregacyon. And ꝑ LORD spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Seperate youre selues from this congregacyon, that I may shortly consume thē. And they fell vpō their faces, and sayde: O God thou God of the spyrites of all flesshe, yf one man haue synned, wylt thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregacyon? And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Come vp frō the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram.

And Moses stode vp, & wente vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the Elders of Israel folowed hym, and he spake to the cōgregacyon, and sayde: Departe from the tētes of these vngodly men and touche nothynge that is theirs, that ye perysshe not in ony of their synnes. And they gat them vp frō the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram But Dathā and Abirā came out, and stode in the dore of their tētes, with their wyues, and sonnes, and chyldren.

And Moses sayd: Here by shal ye know that the LORDE hath sent me, to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of myne owne harte. yf these men dye the comune death of all men: or be vysited as all men are vysited then hath not the LORDE sent me. But yf ꝑ LORD make a new thyng and the earth open hir mouth, and swalow them with al that they haue, so that they go downe quycke in to hell, then shall ye know that these men haue blasphemed the LORD.

C * And whan he had spoken out all these Deu.11.a wordes, the grounde cloue asunder vnder Nu.26.b them, and the earth opened hir mouth, and psal.105.b swalowed them, with their houses, and all
Eccl.45.e the men that were with Corah, and al their substaunce, and they wente downe quycke in to the hell, with all that they had.

And the earth closed vpō them, and so they perished frō amonge the cōgregacion. And all Israel that were aboute them, fled at the crye of them, for they sayde: That the earth swalowe not vs also. Moreouer the fyre came out from the LORDE, and consumed the two hundreth and fyftye men, that offered the incense.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest, that he take vp the cesers out of the burnynge, & scatter the fyre here and there. (For the censers of these synners are halowed thorow their soules) ꝑ they maye be beaten in to thynne plates, and fastened vpon the altare. For they are offered before the LORDE, and halowed: and they shalbe a token vnto the chyldren of Israell.

F And Eleazar the preest toke the brasen cesers which they that were burnt had offred, and bet them to plates, to fasten them vpon the altare for a remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel that no straūger (and he that is not of the sede of Aarō) come nye to offre incense before the LORDE, that it happen not vnto hym as vnto Corah and his companye, accordynge as the LORDE sayde vnto hym by Moses.

On the nexte morow murmured ꝑ whol congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell agaynst Moses and Aaron, and sayde: ye haue slayne the people of the LORDE. And whan the congregacyon was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they turned thē towarde the Tabernacle of witnesse. And beholde, then the cloude couered the Tabernacle, and the glory of the LORD appeared And Moses and Aaron wente in before the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and sayde: Get you out
G of this cōgregacyon, I wyl shortly cōsume them. And they fell vpon they̓r faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take the censer and put fyre therin from of the altare, and laye incense theron, and go soone to the cōgregacyon, and make an attonement for thē. For the wrath is gone out frō the LORDE, and the plage is begonne amonge the people.

And Aaron dyd as Moses sayde, and ranne in the myddest amonge the congregacyon. And beholde, the plage was begonne. And he burnt incense and made an attonement for the people, * and stode betwene the dead and the lyuyng, and the plage ceassed. But there were fourtene thousande and seuen hūdreth dead in the plage, besyde them that dyed aboute ꝑ busynesse of Corah. And Aaron came agayne vnto Moses vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the plage ceassed.

The.xvii.Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and take of thē twolue staues, of euery captayne of his fathers house one, and wryte euery mans name vpon his staffe. But Aarons name shalt thou wryte vpon the staffe of Leui. For euery heed of they̓r fathers house shall haue a staffe. And laye them in the Tabernacle of witnesse before the witnesse, where I testifye vnto you. And loke whō I shall chose, his staffe shall flowrysh, that I maye stynt the grudgynge of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and all they̓r captaynes gaue him twolue staues, euery captayne a staffe after the house of they̓r fathers. And Aarons staffe was amōge they̓r staues also. And Moses layed the staues before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witnesse.

On the morowe whan Moses went in to the Tabernacle of witnesse, beholde, * Aarons rodde of the house of Leui was sprong forth, and brought forth blossoms, and bare almondes. And Moses brought forth all the staues frō the LORDE before all the chyldren of Israell that they myghte se it. And they toke euery man his staffe.

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Bere Aarons staffe agayne before the witnesse, that it maye be kepte for a token to the chyldren of rebellyon, that they̓r murmuringe maye ceasse fro me, lest they dye.

Moses dyd as the LORDE cōmaunded him. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses: Beholde, we cōsume and are destroyed, and perysh. Who so nye the dwellynge place of the LORDE, he dyeth. Shall we then vtterly consume awaye?

The.xviii.Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayd vnto Aaron: Thou and thy sones, and thy fathers house with the shalt beare the mysdede of the Sanctuary: and thou and thy sones with the shalt beare þ mysdede of your preest hode. * But thy brethren of the trybe of Leui thy father, shall come nye the, and be ioyned vnto the, that they may mynystre vnto the. * But thou and thy sonnes with the, shall ministre before the Tabernacle of witnesse. And they shal wayte vpon thy seruice and vpon the seruyce of the whole Tabernacle. But nye vnto the vessels of þ sanctuary, and to the altare shall they not come that both ye and they dye not: howbeit they shalbe ioyned vnto the, to wayte vpon the mynistracyō in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in all the seruyce of the Tabernacle. And ther shall no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therfore wayte now vpon the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and vpon the seruyce of the altare, that ther come no more wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel. For lo, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites frō among the chyldren of Israell, to be your gyfte, for a presente vnto the LORDE, to do the seruice in þ Tabernacle of witnesse. As for the and thy sonnes with the, ye shall wayte vpō your preestes office, that ye maye mynistre in all maner busynes of the altare, and within the vayle: for your preestes office geue I vnto you for a gyfte to do seruyce, & a straunger come nye, he shall dye.

* And the LORDE sayd vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuen the my Heaueofferynges: And all that the chyldren of Israel halowe, haue I geuen vnto the, and to thy sōnes for a perpetuall dewty. This shalt thou haue of the moost holy thynges that they offer. All their gyftes with all their meatofferynges, & w all their synnofferynges, & with all their trespassofferynges, that they geue me, the same shalbe moost holy vnto the & thy sonnes. In the moost holy place shalte thou eat it. All that are males shall eat ther of: for it shalbe holy vnto the.

* The Heaueofferynge of their gyftes in all the Waueofferynges of the chyldren of Israell, haue I geuen vnto the also, and to thy sōnes, and to thy doughters for a perpetuall dewtye. Who so is cleane in thy house, shall eate therof. All the fat of þ oyle, and all the fatte of thy wyne and corne of their firstlinges, that they geue vnto þ LORDE haue I geuen vnto þ. The first frutes of all þ is in their londe, which they bringe vnto the LORDE, shal be thyne: who soeuer is clean in thyne house, shal eate therof.

All dampned thynges in Israell shall be thyne. * Al that breaketh the matrix amōg all flesh which they bringe vnto the LORDE, whether it be man or beaste, shalbe thyne. But so that thou cause the first borne of mā to be redemed, and that thou cause the first borne of vncleane beastes to be redemed also. (They shal redeme it whā it is a moneth olde, and shall geue it lowse for mony, Eue for fyue sycles, after þ sycle of þ Sanctuary, * which Sycle is worth twenty Geras.)

But the firste frutes of an ore, or lambe, or goate shalt thou not cause to be redimed for they are holy. Their bloude shalt thou sprenkle vpon the altare, & their fat shalte thou burne for an offrynge of swete sauour vnto the LORDE. Their flesh shalbe thyne, lyke as the waue breest & the right shulder is thyne also. Al þ Heaueofferynges þ the chyldre of Israel halowe vnto þ LORD, haue I geue vnto þ, & to thy sōnes, & to thy doughters with the for a perpetuall dewty. This shalbe a salted cōuenaūt for euer before the LORDE, vnto the and thy sede with the.

And þ LORDE sayd vnto Aarō. * Thou shalte inheret nothynge in their londe, nor haue ony portyō amōge them: for I am thy portyō, & thyne enheritaūce amonge þ chyldre of Israel. Unto þ chyldre of Leui haue I geue all þ tythes in Israel to inheritaūce for þ seruice whiche they do vnto me in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, þ frō henceforth þ chyldren of Israel come not nye the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to lade the selues w̄ sinne and to dye: But the Leuites shall do the seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & shall beare their synne for a perpetuall lawe amonge your posterities. * And they shal inherite none inheritaūce amōge the chyldre of Israel. For þ tithes of þ childre of Israel which they Heaue vnto þ LORD, haue I geuen vnto þ Leuites for an heritage. Therfore haue I sayd vnto the, þ they shall inherit no inheritaūce amōg þ chyldre of Israel

And the LORDE talked w̄ Moses, & sayd: Speake to the Leuites, & saye vnto them: Whan ye take of the chyldren of Israel the tythes, þ I haue geuen you of the for your inheritaūce ye shal take an Heaueofferynge of the same vnto the LORDE, euen þ tenth of the tythe. And the same your Heaueoffryng shall ye reken, as though ye gaue corne out of ỹ barne, & fuinesse out of the wynepresse.

Thus shall ye geue an Heaueoffrynge vnto the LORDE of al your tythes, which ye take of the chyldren of Israel, that ye maye geue the same Heaueoffrynge of the LORDE, vnto Aaron the prest. And all that ye geue of the tythes, and halowe vnto ỹ LORDE for a gyfte, ỹ same shalbe his of the best And saye thou vnto them: Whan ye thus Heaue vp ỹ fat therof, it shalbe reckened vnto the Leuites as ỹ increase of ỹ wynpresse. And ye maye eate it in all places, ye, & your chyldren: for it is your rewarde for your seruice in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & ye shal not lade synne vpon you in the same, whan ye Heaue the fat therof, and vnhalowe not the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel, and ye shall not dye.

The.xix. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aarō, and sayd: This costume shalbe a lawe, whiche the LORDE hath commaunded, and sayd: Speake vnto ỹ chyldren of Israel, that they bynge vnto ỹ a reed cowe without spot, wherin is no blemyshe, and vpon whome ther came neuer yocke: and ye shall geue her vnto Eleasar the Heb. 8. b prest, * which shall bynge her without the hoost, and cause her to be slayn there before hym.

And Eleasar the prest shall take of hir bloude with his fynger, and sprenkle it seuē tymes straycht towarde the doore of the Exo. 29. b Leui. 4. c Tabernacle of wytnesse, * and cause the cow to be burnt before hym, both hir skynne & hir flesshe, and hir bloude also with hir donge. And the prest shall take ceder wood, and yssope, and purple woll, and cast it vpon the cow as she burneth, and he shall washe his clothes, and bath his body with water, and then go into the hoost, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

And he that burnt her, shal wash his clothes also with water, and bath his body in water, and be vncleane vntyll the euē. And Heb. 9. b one that is cleane, shall gather vp ỹ * ashes of the cow, and poure them without ỹ hoost in a clean place, that they may be kept there for sprenklynge water to the congregation of the chyldren of Israel. For it is a synnoffrynge. And he that gathered vp the asshes of the cowe, shall washe his clothes, be vncleane vntyll the euen, This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto the chyldren of Israell and to the straungers that dwell amonge you.

* Who so now toucheth a dead [body] shalbe vncleane seuen dayes: the same [shall] purifie hymselfe herewith, on the thyrd [day] and on the seuenth day: and then shall he be cleane. And yf he purifie not hymself on the thyrde daye, and on the seuenth daye, [he] shall he not be cleane. But whan any [man] toucheth a dead persone, and wyll not [purifie] hymselfe: he defyleth ỹ dwellynge of the LORDE, and the same soule shalbe rooted out of Israel, because ỹ sprekling water is not sprekled vpō him: & he is vncleane, as long as he letteth not hymself be pourged therwith.

This is ỹ lawe. Whā a man dyeth in a tente, whosoeuer goeth in to ỹ tent, & all [that] is in ỹ tent shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And euery open vessel that hath no lyd [or] tynge, is vncleane. And whosoeuer toucheth one that is slayne with the sworde vpon the felde, or ony other dead, or a mans bone, or a graue, the same is vncleane seuen dayes.

So now for the vncleane persone, [they] shal take of the asshes of this burnt [offe]ryng & put spryngyng water therein into a vessell, and a cleane man shall take hyssop, and dyppe it in the water, and sprekle it vpon the tente, and vpon all the vessels, and all the soules that are therin. And [he] so vpō hym, that hath touched a dead bone, or a slayne persone, or a dead body, or a graue.

And he that is cleane, shall sprenkle the vncleane, the thyrd daye, and the seuenth daye, and purifie hym on the seuenth day. And he shall washe his clothes, & bath himselfe with water, & so at euē he shalbe cleane.

But he that is vncleane, and wyll not purifie hym selfe, ỹ same soule shalbe rooted out of the congregacyon. For he hath defiled the Sanctuary of the LORDE, and is not sprenkled with sprenklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetuall law vnto them. And he that sprekleth ỹ sprenklyng water, shall washe his clothes also. And who soeuer toucheth ỹ sprekled water, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

* And what soeuer he toucheth, shalbe vncleane: & loke what soule he toucheth, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen.

The.xx. Chapter.

AND the chyldren of Israel [came] with the whole congregacyon [into] the wyldernesse of Sin * in the [first] moneth: & the people [abode]

Cades. And there dyed Miriam, and was buryed there. And the congregacyon hadde no water, and they gathered them selues to gether agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the people chode with Moses, and sayd: Wold God that we had perysshed * whan our bre-

And wherfor haue ye brought vs out of Egipt in to this place where men can not sowe, where are nother figges, nor vynes, nor pomgranates, and where ther is no water to drynke.

And Moses & Aaron went from ꝓ congregacyō vnto the dore of ꝓ Tabernacle of wytnes, & fell vpon theyr faces. And ꝓ glorye of the LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde:
* Take the staffe, and gather the congregacyon together, thou and thy brother Aaron and speake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes and it shal geue water. And thus shalt thou prouyde water out of ꝓ rocke, and geue the congregacyon drynke, and theyr cattel also.

Then toke Moses the staffe before the LORDE, as he commaunded hym, and Moses and Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke, and sayd vnto them: Heare ye rebellyons: Shal we pro

But the LORDE sayde vnto Moses & Aaron: * Because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me before the chyldre of Israel, ye shall not bringe this cōgregacion into ꝓ lande ꝓ I shal geue the. * This is ꝓ water of stryfe, where ꝓ chyldren of Israel stroue wyth the LORDE, and he was sanctifyed vpon them.

* And Moses sent messaungers from Cades vnto the kynge of the Edomites: This wordes sendeth thy * brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trauayle ꝓ happened vnto vs, how that our fathers wente downe in to Egipte, * & how we haue dwelt in Egipte a longe tyme, and how the Egipcyans dealt euell with vs and our fathers. And we cryed vnto the LORDE whiche herde our voyce and sent his angell, & hath brought vs out of Egipte: And beholde, we are at Cades in the cyte without the borders of thy londe. * O let vs go thorow thy lande, we will not go thorow the feldes nor vynyardes, nor drynke the water out of the fountaynes. We will go the hygh strete, & turne nother to the ryghte hande nor to the lefte, tyll we be come past the borders of thy centre.

* But the Edomite answered hym: Exo.35.a Deut.1.b Thou shalte not go by me, or I will come agaynste the with the swearde. The chyldren of Israell sayd vnto hym: * We will Deut.2.a go the comune hye waye, and yf we or oure cattell drynke of thy water, we will pay for it: we will do nothynge, but passe thorowe on foote onely. But he sayd: Thou shalte not go thorowe. And the Edomites came out agaynst them with a myghtye people and a stronge hand. Thus the Edomites denyed to graunt Israell passage thorowe the borders of the lande. And Israel turned awaye from them.

And the chyldren of Israell brake vp D

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron at moūt Hor harde vpon the coastes of the lande of the Edomites, and sayde: Let Aaron be gathered vnto his people: for he shal not come vnto the lande that I haue geuen vnto the chyldren of Israel, because ye were disobedient vnto my mouth at the water of stryfe. Take Aaron and Eleasar and his sonne, and bringe them vp vnto moūt Hor, * and Exo.29.d stryppe Aaron out of his vestimētes, and put thē vpon Eleasar and hys sonne, and there shall Aaron be gathered vnto hys people, and dye.

Then dyd Moses as the LORDE commaunded hym, & they wente vp vnto moūt Hor in the syght of the whole congregacyō And Moses toke Aarons clothes, and put them vpon Eleasar his sonne. * And Aaron Deu.10.b and.32.g

Num.33.a * And the chyldren of Iſrael departed, & pitched in Oboth. And from Oboth they went on, and pitched in Iguim by Abarim in the wyldernesſe ouer agaynſt Moab, on the Eaſt ſyde. From thence departed they, and pitched by the ryuer of Zared. From thence departed they, and pitched on this ſyde Arnō, which is in the wyldernesſe, and commeth out of the coaſtes of the Ammorites. For Arnon is the border betwixt Moab and the Ammorites. Wherfore it is ſpo-

And from thence they came to the well. This is the well, wherof the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes: Gather the people together, I wyll geue them water. Then ſange Iſrael this ſonge, and they ſange one after another ouer the well: This is the well, that the prynces digged: the nobles amonge the people haue dygged it thorow the teacher and theyr ſtaues.

And from this wyldernesſe they came vnto Mathana, and from Mathana vnto Nahaliel, and from Nahaliel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth vnto the valley that lyeth in the felde of Moab at the toppe of Pisga, and turneth towarde the wyldernesſe.

And Iſrael ſent meſſaungers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Ammorites, and cauſed to ſaye vnto hym: * Let me go thorow thy lāde, we wyl not turne in to þ feldes nor in to the vnyardes, nother wyll we drynke the water of the welles, the kynges ſtreate wyl we go, tyll we be paſt the borders of thy countre.

* Howbeit Sihon wolde not geue the chyldren of Iſrael licence to go thorow the coaſtes of his lāde, but gathered all his people together, and went out agaynſt Iſrael in the wyldernesſe. And whā he came to Jheza, he fought agaynſt Iſrael. * Neuertheleſſe Iſrael ſmote hym with the edge of the ſwearde, and conquered his lande from Arnon vntyll Jabock, and vntyll the childre of Ammon. * For the borders of the children of Ammon were ſtronge. So Iſrael toke theſe cyties and dwelt in all the cyties of the Ammorites, namely at Heſbon, and in all townes belongyng therto. For Heſbon the cyte was Sihons the kynge of the Ammorites, and he had foughten before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his lande from hym vntyll Arnon.

Wherfore it is ſayd in the prouerbes: Come vnto Heſbon, let vs buylde, and prepare the cyte of Sihon. For there is a fyre gone out of Heſbō, and a flamme from the cyte of Sihon, which hath conſumed Ar in the Moabites, and the cytezyns of the hyes of Arnō. Wo vnto the Moabites: thou people of Camos art vndone. His ſonnes are put to flyght, and his doughters brought into captyue vnto Sihon the kynge of the Ammorites. Theyr glory is come to nought from Heſbon vnto Dibon: wayſted are they vnto Nopha, whiche reacheth vnto Medeba. Thus dwelte Iſrael in the lande of the Ammorites.

And Moses sent out spyes vnto Jahesar, and they toke the townes belongynge thertō, and conquered the Ammorites that were therin. * And they turned, and wente vp the waye toward Basan. Then Og the kynge of Basan went out agaynst them w all his people to fyght in Edrei. And ỹ LOR DE sayd vnto Moses: Feare hym not, for I haue genen him with his lande and people in to thy hande, and thou shalt do with him
as thou diddest with Sihon the kyng of ỹ Ammorites, which dwelt in Hesbon. And they smote hym, and his sonnes, and al his people (so that ther remayned none) and cō quered the lande. Afterward went the chyldren of Israel, & pitched in the felde of Moab beyonde Jordane by Jericho.

The.xxii. Chapter.

AND * whan Balac the sonne of Ziphor saw all that Israel had done vnto the Ammorites and that the Moabites were sore a frayed of the people (that was so great,) & that the Moabites stode in feare of the chyldren of Israell, he sayd vnto the elders of the Madianites: Now shall this people lycke vp all that is about vs, euē as an ore lycketh vp the grasse in the felde.
(And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kyng of the Moabites at that tyme.)

* And he sent out messaūgers vnto Ba laam the sōne of Beor, which was an inter preter, (the same dwelte by the water of the lande of the chyldrē of his people) that they shulde call hym, and he caused to saye vnto
hym: Beholde ther is come out of Egipte,
a people, which coūereth the face of ỹ earth,
and lyeth ouer agaynst me. Come now ther fore, and curse me this people, for they are to myghty for me, ỹ peraduēture I myght
be able to smyte them, & to dryue them out of the lāde. For I wote, ỹ whō thou blessest he is blessed: and whom thou cursest he is cursed.

And the elders of the Moabites wente
out with ỹ elders of ỹ Madianites, & had therwarde of the soythsayeng in theyr han des, and they came vnto Balaam, and told hym the wordes of Balac. And he sayd vnto them: Taryе here al nyght, and I wyll
bynge you worde agayne, euen as the LOR DE shall saye vnto me. So ỹ princes of the Moabites abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam, and said:
What men are these, which are with the?
Balaam sayd vnto God: Balac the sōne of Ziphor the kynge of ỹ Moabites hath sent vnto me: Behold, ther is a people come out of Egipt, and coūereth the face of the earth:
Come now therfore, and curse me them, ỹ peraduenture I may be able to fyght with them, and to dryue them out. But God said vnto Balaam: Go not with them, and curse not that people, for they are blessed.

Then rose Balaam vp in the morynng C and sayd vnto the prynces of Balac: Get you vnto your lande, for the LORDE wyl
not suffre me to go with you.

And the prynces of the Moabites gat them vp, came to Balac, and said: Balaam refuseth to come with vs. Then sent Balac yet a greater cōpany of prynces, and more honorable thē they. Whā they came to Balaam, they tolde hym: Balaac the sonne of Ziphor sendeth the this worde: Oh refuse not to come vnto me, for I wyll promote ỹ
vnto hye honoure, and wyl do what soeuer thou sayest vnto me. Come I praye ỹ, curse me this people.

Balaam answered, and sayd vnto ỹ ser
uauntes of Balac: * yf Balac wolde geue Nu.24.c
me his house full of syluer and golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde the worde of the LORDE my God, to do lytle or great. Neuer theles tary ye here this nyght, that I may wete, what the LORDE wyll saye more vnto me. Then came God to Balaam by nyght, and sayd vnto hym: yf the men are come to cal the, get the vp then, & go with them: but what I shall say vnto ỹ, that shalt thou do.

Then rose Balaam vp in the morynge, D and sadled his asse, and wente with the prin ces of the Moabites. But ỹ wrath of God warde whote, bycause he wente. And the an gell of the LORDE stode in the waye, to withstande hym. But he rode vpon his asse and two seruauntes with hym. And the asse saw ỹ angell of the LORDE standynge in ỹ waye and his sweard drawen in his hande.
And the asse turned asyde out of the waye,
and went into the felde. But Balaā smote

her, that she shulde go in the waye.

Then stode the angell of the LORDE in the path by ỹ vynyardes, where ther wer walles on both the sydes. And whā the asse sawe the angell of the LORDE, she wrenched vnto the wall, & thrust Balaams foote vnto the wall. And he smote her agayne.

Then wente the angell of the LORDE farther, and stode in a narowe place, wher ther was no waye to turne, neyther to the ryght hande, nor to the lefte. And whan ỹ asse sawe the angell of the LORDE, she fell downe vnder Balaam. Thē was Balaams wrath furious, and smote the asse with a staffe.

C Then opened the LORDE the mouth of the asse, and she sayd vnto Balaam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smyttē me now thre tymes? Balaam sayd vnto the asse: Because thou hast moked me. Oh that I had a swearde now in my hande, I wold kyl the. The asse sayd vnto Balaam: Am I not thyne asse, which thou hast rydden vpō in thy tyme vnto this daye? Was I euer wonte to do so vnto the? He sayd: No.

Then opened the LORDE the eyes of Balaam, that he sawe the angell of ỹ LORDE stondynge in the waye, and a drawen sweard in hys hande. And he enclyned hym selfe, and bowed downe with his face. And the angell of the LORDE sayd vnto hym: Wherfore hast thou smyttē thyne asse now thre tymes? Beholde, I am come out to resyste the, for thy waye is frowarde, and contrarye vnto me. And the asse sawe me, and auoided fro me thre tymes: or els yf she had not turned aside fro me, I had slaine the, & saued the asse alyue.

F Then sayde Balaam vnto the angell of the LORDE: I haue synned, for I wyste not that thou stodeste in the waye agaynste me. And now yf it displease the, I wyl turne agayne. The angell of the LORDE sayd vnto him: Go with ỹ mē: but thou shalt speake nothynge els, then ỹ I shall saye vnto the. So Balaam wente forth with the prynces of Balac. Whan Balac herde that Balaā came, he went out to mete hym (in the cyte of the Moabites that lyeth in the coast of Arnon, which is on the vttemost border) & sayd vnto him: Dyd not I sende for ỹ to cal the? Wherfore camest not thou then vnto me? Thynkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? Balaam answered hym: Lo, I am come vnto ỹ. * But how can I say ony thynge els, thē that God putteth in my mouth, that I must speake?

Num 23.c So Balaā went with Balac, and they came vnto the cyte on the vttemoste borders of his lande. And Balac slewe oxen & shepe and sent for Balaam, and for the prynces that were with hym.

The.xxiij. Chapter.

AND in ỹ morynge, Balac tooke Balaam, and they wente vp to the hye place of Baal, that from thence he myght se vnto the vttermost parte of the people.

And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: Buylde me here seuen altares, and prouyde me here seuen bullockes, and seuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayd. And both Balac and Balaam offred, on euery altare a bullocke & a ramme. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: Stande thou by thy burntofferynge, I wyl go, yf haply the LORDE wyll mete me, & shewe me, that I may tell the, what soeuer he shewyth me. And he went his waye as he sayd.

And the LORDE met Balaam. And Balaam sayd vnto hym: Seuen altares haue I prepared, and offered on euery altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORDE put ỹ worde in Balaams mouth, and sayd: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on thys wyse. And whā he came agayne vnto him, behold, he stode by his burntofferyng, and all the prynces of the Moabites.

Then toke he vp his parable, and sayde: * Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath caused to fet me out of Syria from the mountaynes towarde the east, (and sayd): Come, curse me Jacob, Come, defye my Israel. How shall I curse hym, whom God curseth not? How shall I defye hym, whom ỹ LORDE defyeth not? For from the toppe of ỹ stony rockes I se hym, and from the hylles I beholde hym. Beholde the people shall dwell by them selues, and shall not be reckened amonge the Heythen. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of ỹ fourth parte of Israel? My soule dye the death of the ryghteous, and my ende be as the ende of these.

Thē sayd Balac vnto Balaam: What doest thou vnto me? I caused to fet the to curse myne enemyes, & beholde, thou hast blessed thē. He answered & sayd: * Must I not kepe & speake ỹ, which the LORD putteth to my mouth? Balac sayd vnto hym: Come with me yet vnto another place: from whence thou mayest se ỹ vttermost parte of them, but not se them all, and curse me them thens.

And he toke hym vp to a fre place, vnto the toppe of Pisga, and builded seuen altares, and offered on euery altare a bullocke and a ramme. And he sayde vnto Balaac: Stonde so by the burntofferyng, whyle I go yonder. And the LORDE met Balaam and put the worde in his mouth, and sayd: Go agayne vnto Balaac, and saye on this wyse. And whan he came to hym agayne, beholde, he stode by his burntofferynge w the prynces of the Moabites. And Balack sayd vnto him: What hath the LORD sayd?

The sayde Balac vnto Balaam: Thou shalt nother curse hym nor blesse hym. Balaam answered, & sayde vnto Balac: Haue I not tolde the: All that the LORD speaketh that must I do? Balac sayde vnto him: Oh come I wyl brynge the to another place, yf it maye happly please God, that thou mayest curse the there. And he brought hym vp to the toppe of mount Peor, that boweth to warde the wyldernesse.

And Balaam sayde vnto Balac. Buyld me here seuen altares, and prouyde me seue bullockes and seuen rames. Balac dyd as Balaam sayde, and offred on euery altare a bullocke, and a ramme.

And an hegoate foꝛ a synneofferynge, besyde the daylye burntofferynge with his meatofferynge and his dꝛynkofferynge. On the fyfth daye nyne bullockes, two rammes, fourtene lambes of a yeare olde without blemysh, with their meatofferynges and dꝛynkofferynges to the bullockes, to the rammes, and to the lambes in their nombꝛe accoꝛdynge to the maner. And an hegoate foꝛ a synneofferynge besyde the daylye burntofferynge with his meatofferynge and his dꝛynkofferynge.

On the sixte daye, eyght bullockes, two rammes, fourtene lambes of a yeare olde without blemysh, with their meatofferynges and dꝛynkofferynges to the bullockes, to the rammes, and to the lambes in nombre accordynge to the maner. And an hegoate for a synofferynge, beside the dayly burntofferynge with his meatofferyng and his drynkofferynge.

On the seuenth daye, seuen bullockes, two rammes, fourtene lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe, with theyr meatofferynges and drynkofferynges to the bullockes, to the rammes, & to the lambes in their nombre accordynge to the maner. And an hegoate for a synofferyng, beside the dayly burntofferynge with his meatofferyng and his drynkofferynge.

On the eyght daye shall ye gather ye people together. No seruyle worke shall ye do therin. And ye shall offre a burntofferynge for a sacrifice of a swete sauour vnto ye LORDE. 1 bullocke, a ramme, seuen lambes of a yeare olde without blemyshe, with theyr meatofferynges and drynkofferynges to the bullocke to the ramme, and to the lambes in theyr nombre accordynge to the maner. And an hegoate for a synofferynge, beside the dayly burntofferynge with his meatofferynge and his drynkofferynge.

These thynges shall ye do vnto ye LORDE in your feastes, beside that ye bowe and vowe of a free wyll for burntofferynges, meatofferynges, drynkofferynges and thankofferynges. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israell all that the LORDE commaunded hym.

The.xxx. Chapter.

AND Moses spake vnto the rulers of the tribe of the chyldren of Israell and sayde: This is it that the LORDE hath commaunded. * yf ony man make a bowe vnto the LORDE, or sweare an oth, so that he bynde his soule, he shall not breake his worde, but he shall do all that is proceaded out of his mouth.

yf a damsell make a bowe vnto the LORDE, and bynd herselfe, whyle she is in hir fathers house, and vnmaried, & hir bowe or bonde that she maketh ouer hir soule, cometh to hir fathers eares, and he holde his peace therto: then all hir bowes and bondes that she hath bounde herselfe withall ouer hir soule, shall stande in effect. But yf hir father forbyd her ye same daye ye he heareth it, then shall no bowe nor bonde that she hath bounde herselfe withall ouer hir soule, be of value. And the LORDE shalbe mercyfull vnto her, for so much as hir father forbad her.

yf she haue an husbande, & hath a bowe vpon her, or yf she haue letten go out of hir lyppes a bonde ouer hir soule and hir husbande heare it, and holdeth his peace therat, the same daye that he heareth it: then hir bowe and bonde wherwith she had bounde herselfe ouer hir soule, shal stonde in effect. But yf hir husband forbyd her the same day that he heareth it: then is the bowe lowse ye she hath vpon her, and the bonde also that she hath letten go out of hir lippes ouer hir soule, and the LORDE shall be gracyous vnto her.

The bowe of a wydowe, and of her that is deuorced, all that she byndeth her selfe withall ouer hir soule, shall stande in effecte vpon her.

yf she bowe in hir husbandes house, or bynde hirselfe with an oth ouer hir soule, & hir husbande hear it, and holde his peace therto, and forbyddeth it not: then shall al ye same bowe, and all that she hath bounde hir selfe withall ouer hir soule, stonde in effect. But yf hir husbande wyll disanul it, ye same daye that he heareth it: then is it of no value ye is proceaded out of hir lyppes, which she hath bowed or bounde ouer hir soule: for hir husbande hath made it lowse & the LORDE shalbe gracyous vnto her. And all bowes and othes that bynd to humble ye soule maye hir husbande stablyshe or breake. Thus yf he hold his peace therto from one daye to another, then stablysheth he all hir bowes and bondes, that she hath vpon her because he helde his peace, the same daye ye he herde them. But yf he dissanulle them after that he hath herde them, the shal he take awaye hir mysdede.

These are the statutes that the LORDE commaunded Moses betwene a man & his wyfe, and betwene the father & his doughter, whyle she is yet a damsell in his fathers house.

The.xxxi. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayd: * Auenge ye chyldren of Israel of the Madianites, that thou mayst afterward be gathered vnto thy people. Num.25

Then spake Moses vnto the people, & sayd Harnesse some men among you to ye warre agaynst the Madianites (that they may auenge the LORDE vpon ye Madianites) out of euery tribe a thousande, that out of euery tribe of Israell ye maye sende some to ye battayl. And the chyldren of Israel toke the wemen of the Madianites presoners, and theyr chyldren: all theyr cattell, all theyr substaūce, and al theyr goodes spoyled they, & all theyr cyties of theyr dwellynges & castels burnt they with fyre. And they toke all the spoyles, and all that they coulde catch, mē and cattel, and brought them vnto Moses and to Eleasar the prest, and to the congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel (namely ꝑ presoners, and the cattell that were taken, and the good ꝑ was spoyled) in to the hoost in the felde of ꝑ Moabites, which lyeth besyde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

And Eleasar ꝑ prest sayd vnto ꝑ captay
D nes of the hoost, ꝑ went out to the battayll: This is the statute of ꝑ lawe, which ꝑ LORDE cōmaunded Moses: golde, syluer, brasse yron, tynne, & leed, and al ꝑ suffreth the fyre, shall ye cause to go thorowe the fyre, & clense it, that it maye be purified with the spryng lynge water. As for all such as suffreth not the fyre ye shall cause it to go thorowe ꝑ water, and shall washe youre clothes vpon the seuenth daye, and then shall ye be clean. After that shall ye come in to the hoost.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayd: * Take the sūme of the spoyle of that are taken, both of the wemen & of cattell, thou & Eleasar the prest, & the chefe fathers of the congregacyon, & geue the halfe vnto those ꝑ toke the warre vpō thē, & bryng out to the battayll, & the other halfe to ꝑ congregacyon. And of the men of warre ꝑ went out to ꝑ battayll, thou shalt heaue vnto the LORDE one soule of fyue hūdreth, both of the wemen, oxen, asses, & shepe: Of theyr halfe parte shalt thou take it, & geue it vnto Eleasar ꝑ prest for an heaueofferynge vnto the LORDE. But of ꝑ chyldrē of Israels halfe part, thou shalt take one head of fyfty, both of the wemen, oxen, asses, and shepe, and of all the cattel, and shalt geue them vnto the Leuites, that wayte vpon the habytacyon of the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar the prest dyd as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses. And the spoyle and praye which the mē of warre had spoyled, was sixe hundreth thousande, and fyue and seuenty thousande shepe, and seuenty thousand oxen, one & thyrtye thousande asses: and the wemē that had knowen no men nor lyen with them, were two and thyrty thousande soules.

And the halfe parte which belonged vnto them that went to the warre, was three hundreth thousande, & seuen and thyrtye thousande, & fyue hundreth shepe, of which the LORDE had sixe hūdreth, & one and seuenty shepe. Item sixe & thyrty thousande oxen: wherof the LORDE had two and seuenty. Item thyrty thousand & fyue hundreth asses: wherof the LORDE had one & sixtye. Item sixtene thousande soules of wemen: wherof the LORDE had two & thirty. And Moses gaue this heaueofferynge of the LORDE vnto Eleasar the prest, as the LORDE commaunded hym.

As for the other halfe which Moses dyuyded vnto the chyldren of Israel, the men of warre (namely the halfe that came of the congregacyon) it was also three hundreth thousande, and seuen and thyrtye thousande and fyue hundreth shepe, sixe and thyrtye thousande oxen, thyrtye thousand and fyue hundreth asses, and sixtene thousande wemen soules. And of this halfe of the chyl-of Iſrael, tobe Moſes one of euery tyfftyde both of the cattell and of the wemen, & gaue them vnto the Leuites, that wayted vpon the habitacyon of the LORDE, as the LORDE comaunded Moſes.

And the captaynes ouer the thousãdes of the hoost, namely they yͤ were ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, came forth vnto Moſes, and ſayd vnto hym: Thy ſeruaũtes haue taken the ſumme of the men of warre that were vnder our handes, and there lacketh not one: therfore wynne we a pleasure vnto the LORDE, by what euery one hath fownde of iewels as golde, chaynes, bracelettes, rynges, earynges, and taches, throughoute our maysters be reconcyled before the LORDE.

And Moſes and Eleaſar the preſt toke of them the golde of all maner ornamentes. And all the golde of the Heaue offeringe that they hemed vnto the LORDE, was xvi. thousande and fyue hundreth, and fyfty ſydes, of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes. For lobe what euery one had hoyled, that was his owne.

And Moſes with Eleaſar yͤ preſt toke the golde of the captaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes, and brought it into Tabernacle of wytnesse for a remembraunce of the chyldren of Iſrael before the LORDE.

The.xxxij. Chapter.

THe chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad had an exceadynge great multitude of cattell, & ſawe the lãde of Iaeſer & Gilead yͤ it was a mete place for cattell, and cam and ſpake vnto Moſes and to Eleaſar the preſt, and to the captaynes of the congregacyon: The lande of Aroth, Dibon, Iaeſar, Nimra, Heſbon, Eleale, Sebam, Nebo, and Beon, which yͤ LORDE ſmote before the congregacyõ of Iſrael is a mete lande for cattell, and thy ſeruaũtes haue many cattell. And they ſayd moreouer: yf we haue fownde fauour before the, then geue thy ſeruauntes this lande in poſſeſſion, and we wyll not go ouer Iordane.

Moſes ſayd vnto them: your brethren ſhall go to the warre, and wyl ye tary here? Wherfore turne ye the hartes of the chyldren of Iſrael, that they ſhulde not go ouer in to the lande that the LORDE ſhall geue them? Thus dyd your fathers alſo, whã I ſent them out from Cades Barnea, to ſpye out yͤ lande. And whan they were come vp to the ryuer of Eſcol, and ſawe the lande, they turned the hartes of the chyldren of Iſrael, ſo that they wold not go in to the lande which the LORDE wolde haue geuen them.

And the LORDE was wroth at the ſame tyme, and ſware, and ſayd: * Theſe Nu.14.b
men that are come out of Egypte, from twẽtye yeare olde and aboue, ſhall not ſe the lande which I ſware vnto Abraham, Iſaac and Iacob, because they haue not wholy folowed me: ſaue Caleb yͤ ſõne of Iephune yͤ kenyſite, and Joſua the ſonne of Nun: for they haue wholy folowed the LORDE. So the LORDE was wroth with Iſrael, and let them wander in the wyldernesse forty yeares tyll all the generacyon that had done euell before the LORDE, was conſumed.

And beholde, ye are ryſen vp in your fathers ſteade, to increaſe the nombre of ſynfull men, and to augment yet the wrath and indignacyon of yͤ LORDE agaynſt Iſrael. For yf ye turne you backe from folowynge hym, he ſhall yet leaue them more in the wyldernesse and ſo ſhall ye deſtroye all this people.

Then ſtepte they to hym, and ſayd: we wyll but buylde ſheptfoldes here for oure ſhepe and cattell, and cyties for our chyldren. As for our ſelues, we wyll go ready armed before the chyldren of Iſrael, tyll we haue brought them vnto theyr place: Our chyldren ſhall remayne in the fenced cyties, becauſe of the inwellers of the lande. We wyll not turne home agayne, tyll the chyldren of Iſrael haue taken euery one his enheritaunce in poſſeſſion: for we wyll not enherit with them beyonde Iordane: for oure inheritaunce ſhall fall vnto vs vpon this ſyde Iordane Eaſtwarde.

Moſes ſayd vnto them: * yf ye wyl do D
this, that ye wyl harnaſſe your ſelues to the Joſu.1.c and.4.e
warre before the LORDE, thẽ go ouer yͤ Iordane before the LORDE, who ſoeuer is harnaſſed amonge you, tyl he haue dryuen out his enemyes before his face, and vntyll the land be ſubdued before the LORDE, thẽ ſhal ye returne, and be vngylty before yͤ LORDE, and before Iſrael, and ſo ſhall ye haue this lande in poſſeſſion before the LORDE. But yf ye wyll not do ſo, beholde, ye ſhal offend agaynſt the LORDE, and be ſure, that your ſynne ſhall fynde you out. Buylde cyties now therfore for your chyldren, and ſhepe foldes and ſtalles for your ſhepe and cattell, and do as ye haue ſpoken.

The chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Ruben ſaid vnto Moſes: Thy ſeruauntes ſhall do as my lorde hath comaunded. Our chyldren, wyues, substaunce, and all our cattell, shalbe in the cyties of Gilead. But we thy seruauntes wyll go all harnalled for ỹ warre vnto battayll before the LORDE, as my lorde hath sayd.

Then Moses commaunded Eleasar ỹ prest and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the cheke fathers of the trybes of the chyldrē of Josua.4.c Israel, and sayd vnto them: * yf the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Ruben go ouer Jordane wt you, all prepared to fyght before the LORDE, and whā the lāde is subdued vnto you, thē geue them the lande of Gilead in possession. But yf they go not ouer with you in harnasse then shall they inherit with you in the lande of Canaan.

The chyldren of Gad and the chyldrē of Ruben answered and sayd: As the LORDE hath spoken vnto thy seruauntes, so wyll we do: we wyll go harnalled before ỹ LORDE into the lande of Canaan, & possesse our enheritaunce on this syde Jordane.

¶ * So Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Deu.3.b Gad and to ỹ chyldren of Ruben, and to the Jos.12.a.b halfe trybe of Manasse the sōne of Joseph: the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Ammorites, and the kyngdome of Og ỹ kynge of Basan, the lande with the cyties therof in all the coastes of the countre rounde about. Then the chyldren of Gad buylded Dibō, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Jaeser, & Jegabeha, Bethnimra, & Betharan, stronge fenced cyties, and shepefoldes. The chyldrē of Ruben buylded Hesbō, Eleale, Kiriatha im, Nebo Baal, Meon, & turned ỹ names and Sibamas, and gaue names vnto ỹ cyties which they buylded. And the chyldren Gen.50.b of * Machir the sonne of Manasse went in to Gilead, and conquered it, and droue out the Ammorites that were therin. Thē Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse and he dwelt therin. Jair ỹ sōne of Manasse went and conquered the villagies therof, and called them Hauoth Jair. Nobath went, and conquered Kenath, with the townes belōgyng therto, & called it Nobah, after his owne name.

The.xxxiii. Chapter,

¶ THese are the iourneys of ỹ chyldren of Israel, which went out of the lande of Egipte accordynge to their armyes, by Moses & Aaron. And Moses wrote their goynge out as they iourneyed, after ỹ the cōmaundement of the LORDE. And the

And the LORD spake vnto Moses in ỹ felde of the Moabites, by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, and sayde: Speake to the childzē of Israel, and say vnto thē: * Whā ye are come ouer Jordane in ỹ lande of Canaan, ye shall dryue out all the inhabiters before youre face, & plucke downe all theyr ymes, and all theyr ymages of metal & destroye all theyr hye places: that ye may so take the londe in possession and dwell therin. For I haue geuen you the londe to enioye it.

* And the londe shall ye deuyde oute by lotte amonge youre kynreds. Vnto those that are many, shall ye deuyde ỹ more: And vnto them that are few, shall ye deuyde the lesse. Euen as the lot falleth there vnto euery one, so shall he haue it, accordynge to the trybes of theyr fathers.

* But yf ye will not dryue out the inhabiters of the londe before youre face, then they whome ye suffre to remayne, shall become thornes in youre eyes, and darres in youre sydes, and shall vexe you in the lōde where ye dwell. Then will it come to passe that I shal do vnto you euen as I thought to do vnto them.

The.xxxiiij. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Cōmaunde the childzen of Israel, and say vnto them: Whan ye come in to the londe of Canaan: the lōde that falleth to youre enheritaūce, shal haue hir borders in the londe of Canaan. The southquarter shall begynne at the wyldernesse of Zin by Edom, so that your South quarter be from the edge of the Salte see, which lyeth towarde the East: and that the same quarter set a cōpasse from the South by to Acrabim, & go thorow Zinna: and that his outgoynge be from the South vnto Cades Bernea, and reache vnto Hazor Idar, and go thorowe Asmona, and stretch out from Asmona vnto the ryuer of Egypt and that the ende therof be at the great see.

But the west quarter shal be this: namely the greate see, let that be youre border to warde the west.

The Northquarter shalbe this: ye shal compasse from the greate see vnto mounte Hor. And frō mount Hor ye shall compasse tyll a man come vnto Hemath that the outgoynge therof be the coast of Zedada, and that the borders of the same go out vnto Siphron, and that the goyenge out of it be at Hazor Enā. Let this be your Northquarter.

And youre Eastquarter shall ye cōpasse from Hazor Enan vnto Sephā and let the coaste go downe from Sephan and Ribla on ỹ Eastsyde of Ain. Thē let it go downe, and reach vnto the syde of the see of Chinereth Eastwarde, and come downe by Jordane, so that the goynge out of it be ỹ Salt see. Let this be youre lōde with the borders therof rounde aboute.

And Moses cōmaunded the childzen of Israell, and sayde: This is youre londe ỹ ye shal deuyde out amōge you by lot, which the LORDE hath cōmaunded to geue vnto ỹ nyne trybes, & to the halfe tryde. * For the tryde of the childzē of Ruben after their fathers house, and the tryde of the childzen of Gad accordige their fathers house, and the halfe tryde of Manasse haue receaued theyr portion: Thus the two trybes and the halfe tryde haue theyr enherytaunce already on this syde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho Eastwarde.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and Deut.1.c Iosu.14.a sayd: * These are ỹ names of the mẽ, which

And the captayn of euery tryde shal ye take

Palthiell the sonne of Asan, of the tryde of the chyldren of Jsachar. Abihud the sõne of Selomi, of the tryde of the chyldren of Asser. Pedahel the sonne of Amihud, of the tryde of the chyldren of Nephtali. These are they whome the LORDE commaunded, that they shulde deuyde ỹ inheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Jsrael in the lande of Canaan

The.xxxv.Chapter.

A ND the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the feld of ỹ Moabites by Jordane ouer agaynst Iosu.21.a Jericho, and sayd: * Cõmaũde the chyldren of Jsrael, that they geue vnto the Leuites of the inheritaunce of they⁊ possellion, cyties to dwell in. The suburbes also aboute ỹ cyties shall ye geue vnto the Leuites, that they may dwel in the cyties, and in ỹ suburbes to haue they⁊ cattell, and substaunce, and all they⁊ beastes.

The suburbes which ye geue vnto ỹ Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the cyte outwarde, a M. cubytes rounde aboute.
Thus ye shall measure without the cyte on the Eastlyde, two thousande cubites: and on the southlyde, two thousande cubytes: & on the Westlyde, two thousande cubites: & on the Northlyde, two thousande cubytes, so that the cyte be in the myddes. This shal be they⁊ suburbes.

B * And amonge the cyties which ye shal
Iosu.20.a geue vnto the Leuites, ye shall geue them syre fre cyties, that he whiche compteth a slaughter, maye flye thyther. Beslydes the same ye shall geue them yet two and foxtye cyties: so ỹ al ỹ cyties which ye geue vnto ỹ Leuites, be eyght & foxty wt they⁊ suburbes. And of thesame ye shal geue the moze from them that haue much in possellion amonge the chyldren of Jsrael: & the lesse from them that haue lytle in possellion. Euery one (according to hys enherytaunce that is delyuered vnto hym) shal geue of hys cyties vnto the Leuites.

And the LORDE talked with Moses and sayd: * Speake to the chyldren of Jsrael, & saye vnto them: Whan ye come ouer Jordane in to the lande of Canaã, ye shal chose out cyties to be fre cyties, that who so commytteth slaughter vnwares, maye flye thyther. And such fre cyties shalbe amõge you, because of the auenger of blonde, that he which hath commytted slaughter, dye not, tyll he stande in iudgement before the congregacyõ. And of these cyties which ye shal geue, ther shalbe sire fre cytes. Thre shal ye geue on this syde Jordane, and thre in the lande of Canaan.

These are the sire fre cyties, both for the chyldren of Jsrael and for the straungers, and for suche as dwell amonge you, ỹ who soeuer hath slaine ony soule vnwares, may flye thyther.

* He that smytteth ony man with any weapõ, that he dye, the same is a murthurer and shall dye the death. ℣ he cast at hym a stone (wherwith ony man maye be slayne) that he dye therof, then is he a murthurer, & shall dye ỹ death. ℣ he smyte hym with an handweapen of wood (wherwith ony man may be slayne) that he dye, then is he a murthurer, and shal dye the death. The auenger of blonde shall bringe the murthurer to death. Whan he fyndeth hym he shall slay hym. ℣ he thrust at hym of hate, or caste ought at hym with layenge of wayte, or smyte hym of enuye with his hande, that he dye, then shall he ỹ hath slayne hym, dye the death: for he is a murthurer. The auenger of blonde shal bringe hym to death, as soone as he fyndeth hym.

* But ỹ he thrust at hym by chaunce not of enuy: or hurle ought at hym without ony layenge of wayte, or cast at hym with a stone (wherof a man maye dye, and se not) so that he dye, and is not his enemy neyther thought hym ony euell, then shall ỹ congregacyon iudge betwene him that hath smytted the slaughter, and the auenger of blonde in such cases. And the cõgregacyon shall delyuer the dead slayer from ỹ hande of the auenger of blonde, and shall let him come agayne to ỹ fre cyte, whyther he was fled: and there shal he abyde vnto the death of the hye preste, which was anoynted with holy ople. But yf ꝑ deadslayer go out of the borders of hys fre cytie, ꝑ he was fled vnto, and the auenger of bloude fynde hym with out the borders of hys fre cytie, & kyll hym, he shall not be gylty of bloude. For he shuld haue bydden in hys fre cytie vntyll ꝑ death of the hyghe preste, and after the hygh pre sts death to come agayne vnto the londe of hys enheritaunce. Thys shal be a statute of the lawe vnto you amonge your posterities, in all youre dwellynges.

The deadslayer shalbe slayne at ꝑ mouth of wytnesses. * One witnesse shall not answer ouer a soule to death. And ye shall receaue none attonemẽt ouer the soule of the deadslayer (for he is gylty of death) but he shall dye ꝑ death. And ye shal receaue none attonement of hym, which is fled to the fre cyte, that he shulde come agayne to dwel in the londe tyll the preste dye. And defyle not ye the londe wherin ye dwell. For who so is gylty of bloude, defyleth the londe: and the londe can not be reconciled from the bloud
that is shed therin, but only thorow ꝑ bloud of hym that shed it. Defyle not ye ꝑ londe ꝑ ye dwell in, wherin I dwell also: For I am the LORDE, which dwell amonge the children of Israell.

The .xxxvi. Chapter.

AND the chefe fathers of ꝑ kynred of the children of Gilead, ꝑ sonne of Machir (which was the sonne of Manasse of ꝑ kynred of ꝑ childrẽ of Joseph) came forth & spake before Moses, & before ꝑ captaynes amõge the chefe fathers of the children of Israel, & sayde: Syr, the LORD hath
* cõmaunded, that ye shulde geue the lond
by lotte vnto the children of Israel to enhe rite. * And thou my lorde hast cõmaunded thorowe the LORDE that the enherytaũce of oure brother Zelaphead shulde be geuen vnto hys doughters. Now yf ony men out of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues
then shall ours fathers enheritaunce be lesse: and as much as they haue, shall come to the enheritaunce of ꝑ trybe that they com vnto. Thus shall the lotte of oure enherytaunce be mynysshed. So whan the yeare of Jubilye cõmeth vnto the children of Israel, then shall theyr enheritaunce come to the enheritaunce of ꝑ trybe, where they are.
Thus shall oure fathers enherytaunce be mynysshed, as much as they haue.

Moses charged the children of Israell (accordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE) and sayde: The trybe of ꝑ children of Joseph hath sayde tyghte. Thys is it ꝑ
the LORDE commaundeth the doughters of Zelaphead, & sayeth: * Let them marye Tobi.1.a
as they lyke best, onely that they marye in ꝑ and.7.c kynred of the trybe of theyr father, that the enheritaunce of the children of Israell fall not frõ one trybe to another. For euery one amonge the children of Israell shall cleue to the enheritaũce of the trybe of his father and euery doughter that possesseth ony en-heritaunce amonge the trybes of Israell, shalbe maryed vnto one of the kynred of ꝑ trybe of hir father: * that euery one amõge Leui.25.a
the children of Israell maye enioye his fa- Iere.32.b
thers enheritaunce, and that ꝑ enheritaũce Ruth.4.b fall not from one trybe to another, but that euery one maye cleue to his owne enherit-taunce amonge the trybes of the children of Israell.

As the LORDE cõmaunded Moses, euẽ
so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead, Mahe la, Thirza, Hagla, Milca and Noa. And were maryed vnto theyre fathers bzothers sonnes, of the kynred of the children of Ma nasse the sonne of Joseph. So their enheri taunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes, which the LORDE cõmaunded by Moses vnto the children of Israell in the felde of the Moabites by Jordane ouer a-gaynst Jericho.

The fyrst Chapter.

THese are the wordes ꝓ Moses spake vnto al Israell on ꝓ other syde Jordane in the wyldernesse, in the playne fylde toward the reed see, betwen Paran, Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab, eleuē dayes iourney frō Horeb, by the waye of mōt Seir vnto Cades Bernea. And it fortuned the fyrst daye of the eleuenth moneth in the fortyeth yeare, that Moses spake vnto the children of Israell accordynge vnto all as the LORDE cōmaunded hym, * after he had smytten Sehon the kynge of the Ammorites which dwelt at Hesbon: and Og ꝓ kyng of Basan that dwelt at Astaroth & at Edrei.

On the other syde Jordane in the londe of the Moabites begāne Moses to declare this law, and sayde: The LORDE our God spake vnto vs vpon mount Horeb, & sayd: * ye haue bene longe ynough vpon this mountayne, turne you and departe hence, & goo vnto the mountaynes of the Ammorites and to all theyr neighboures in the feldes, vpon mountaynes, & in the valleyes towarde the South, and towarde the see syde, of the londe of Canaan: & to mōt Libanus euen vnto the greate water Euphrates. Behold I haue delyuered youthe londe, go in and take it in possession: which the LORDE sware vnto youre fathers Abraham, Isaac, & Jacob, * that he wolde geue it vnto them, and theyr sede after them.

Then sayde I vnto you at ꝓ same tyme: * I am not able to beare you my selfe alone by the LORDE: youre God hath increased you, so that this daye ye are as the starres of heauen in multitude, (the LORDE God of youre fathers make you yet many thousande tymes mo, and bielle you, as he hath promised you) How can I alone beare such cōbraūce, and charge, & stryfe amōge you? Prouyde here men of wysedome and vnderstōdyng, such as are known amōg your tribes, them wyll I set to be heades vnto you.

Then answered ye me: and sayde: It is a good thynge, that thou sayeste thou wylt do. Then toke I the heades of your tribes wyse and famous men, and sette them ouer you to be heades, ouer thousādes, ouer hūdreds, ouer fyfty, and ouer ten: and officers amonge youre tribes.

And I charged youre iudges at ꝓ same tyme, and sayde: Heare your brethren, * and iudge righteously betwene euery man and his brother, & the straunger. ye shall know no persoone in iudgement, but shall heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man: for ꝓ iudgemēt is Gods. * But yf ony cause be to harde for you let it be brought vnto me, that I maye heare it. Thus cōmaunded I you at the same tyme all that ye shulde do.

Then departed we from Horeb, and walked thorow the whole wyldernesse (whiche is greate and terrible as ye haue sene) by ꝓ waye to the mountaynes of the Ammorites as the LORDE our God cōmaunded vs, and came vnto Cades Bernea. Then sayde I vnto you: ye are come to the mountaynes of the Ammorites, whiche the LORDE oure God shall geue vs. Beholde, there the lōde before the, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen vnto the: Go vp, and conquere it, as the LORDE God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the: * feare not, and be not discoraged.

Then came ye all vnto me, and sayde: * Let vs sende me before vs, to spye vs out the londe, and to bringe vs worde agayne, by what waye we shall go vp, and to what cities we shall come. That pleased me well, and I toke twolue men from amonge you, of euery tribe one. Which whan they were departed, and wēte vp the hye countre, and came to the ryuer Escoll, they spyed it out, * and toke of the frute of the londe with the and brought it downe vnto vs, & brought vs worde agayne, and sayde: It is a good londe, ꝓ the LORDE our God hath geuē vs.

But ye wolde not go vp, and were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: Because the LORDE hateth vs, ther-

Nu.20.b for youre sakes, and sayde: Thou also shalt

But as for you, turne you, and take youre iourneye to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the reed see.

Nu.14.f * Thē answered ye, and sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynste the LORDE, we wyll go vp, and fight, accordyng to all that ỹ LORDE hath cōmaunded vs. Now whā ye had prepared youre selues euery one in his harnesse, and were at ỹ poynte to go vp to the mountaynes, the LORDE sayde vnto me: Speake vnto thē, that they go not vp, and ỹ they fyght not (for I am not amōge) you that ye be not smytten before your enemyes. Whan I tolde you this, ye wold not heare, and were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORD, and were presumptuous, and wente vp to the mountaynes. Thē the Ammorites that dwelt vpon the mountaynes, came agaynst you and chaced you, as bees be: and smote you at Seir, euen vnto Horma. Now whan ye came again, and wept before the LORDE, he wolde not heare your voyce and enclyned not his eares vnto you.
* So ye abode in Cades a longe season.

The.ij. Chapter.

Then turned we vs, and toke oure iourney to ỹ wyldernesse euen ỹ waye to the reed see, as the LORDE sayde vnto me, and compassed mount Seir a longe season. And the LORDE sayde vnto me: ye haue compassed this mountayne nowlonge ynough, turne you Northwarde, and commaunde the people and saye: ye shall go thorow the coastes of youre brethren the chyldren of Esau, which dwel at Seir, and they shalbe afrayed of you. But take diligent herde to youre selues, that ye prouoke them not: for I wyl not geue you one foote bredth of theyr londe. * For mounte Seir haue I geuen to the chyldre of Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money, that ye maye eate. And water shall ye bye of them for money, that ye maye drynke. For the LORDE thy God hathe blessed the in all the workes of thy hondes, he hath considered thy iourneys thorowe this great wyldernesse: and this forty yeares hath the LORDE thy God bene with the, so that thou hast wanted nothynge.

Now whan we were departed frō our brethren the chyldren of Esau, that dwelt vpon mount Seir, by the waye of the felde frō Elath and Ezeon Gaber we turned us, and wente by the way of the wyldernesse of the Moabites. Then sayde ỹ LORDE vnto me: * Thou shalt not vexe the Moabites nor prouoke them vnto battayll, for I wyll not geue the of theyr londe to possesse. For Ar haue I geuen vnto the chyldren of Lot in possession. * The Emims dwelt there in forre tyme, which were a greate strong people, and hye of stature, as ỹ Enakims: which were taken for giauntes, lyke as the Enakims. And ỹ Moabites called thē Emims. * The Horites also dwelt in Seir afore time, and the chyldren of Esau droue them out and destroyed them before them, and dwelt in theyr stede: lyke as Israell dyd in the lōde of his possession that ỹ LORD gaue

Get you vp now, and go ouer the ryuer Sared, and we wente ouer. The tyme that we were goynge from Cades Barnea tyll we came ouer the ryuer Sared, was eyght and thirty yeares: tyll all the men of warre were wasted out of the hoost, * as the LORDE ſware vnto them. The hãde of the LORDE also was agaynſt them to deſtroy them out of the hoost, tyll they were cõſumed.

And whan all the men of warre were cõſumed, ſo that they were dead amonge the people, the LORD ſpake vnto me, and ſayd: This daye ſhalt thou go thorow the coaſt of the Moabites by Ar, and ſhalt come nye vnto the chyldrẽ of Ammon * whom thou ſhalt not vexe nor prouoke. For I wyll not geue the of the londe of the chyldren of Ammon to poſſeſſe, for I haue geuẽ it vnto the chyldren of Lot in poſſeſſyon. It was take for a londe of giauntes alſo, and giauntes dwelt therin afore tyme. And the Ammonites called them Samſummims which was a people that was great, many, and of hye ſtature, as the Enakims.

And theſe the LORDE deſtroyed before them and let them poſſeſſe the ſame, ſo that they dwelt in theyr ſteade. * Lyke as he dyd with the chyldren of Eſau, which dwell vpon mount Seir, whã he deſtroyed the Horites before them: and let them poſſeſſe the ſame, ſo that they haue dwelt in their ſteade vnto this day. And the Caphthorims came out of Caphtor, and deſtroyed the Auims (that dwelt at Haſerim euen vnto Gaza) & there dwelt they in theyr ſteade.

Get you vp now and departe, and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Behold, I haue geuẽ Sihon the kyng of the Ammorites at Hesbon in to thy hãde: go to and conquere, and prouoke hym vnto battayl. This daye wyl I begynne, ſo that al nacyons vnder al the heuẽ, ſhall feare and drede the: in ſo much that whan they heare of the, they ſhall tremble and quake for thy rommynge.

* Then ſent I meſſaungers frõ the wyldernesſe of the Eaſt vnto Sihon the kynge at Hesbon * with peaceable wordes, & cauſed to ſaye vnto hym: I wyll go but thorow thy lõde, I wyl go a longe by ẏ hye way, I wyll nether turne to the right hande nor to the lefte. Thou ſhalte ſell me meate for monye, that I may eate: and water ſhalt thou ſell me for money, that I maye drynke. Only let me go thorow by fote, * as the chyldrẽ of Eſau (which dwelt at Seir) did vnto me and the Moabites that dwelt at Ar: vntyll I be com ouer Iordane in to ẏ lond which the LORDE oure God ſhall geue vnto vs.

But Sihon the kynge at Hesbon wold not let vs go by hym: for the LORD thy God hardened his mynde, and made hys harte tough, that he myght delyuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to paſſe this daye.

And the LORDE ſayd vnto me: Behold, A
I haue begonne to delyuer Sihon wt his londe before the: go to and conquere, and poſſeſſe his londe. * And Sihon came out Nu.21.b
with all his people to fighte agaynſt vs at Deu.29.b
Jahza. But the LORD oure God delyuered hym in to our hondes ſo that we ſmote him with his chyldren and all his people.

Then toke we all his cities at the ſame tyme, and deſtroyed vtterly all ẏ cities, mẽ, wemen, and chyldrẽ, and let none remayne: ſaue the cattell, which we caught to oure ſelues, and ẏ ſpoyle of the cities that we wãne from Aroer, which lyeth vpon ẏ ryuer ſyde of Arnon and from the cite on the ryuer vnto Gilead. AND we turned vs, and wente A vp the way vnto Basan. * And Nu.21.a Og the kynge of Basan came Deu.29.b out with al his people to fighte agaynſt vs at Edrei. But the LORDE ſayde vnto me: Be not afrayed of hym, for I haue delyuered hym and all his people with his londe in to thy hande, and thou ſhalt do with hym, * as thou dyddeſt Deu.1.f
with Sihon kynge of ẏ Ammorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. Thus the LORD our God delyuered Og the kyng of Basan in to our handes alſo with all his people: ſo that we ſmote hym, tyll ther was nothynge lefte ouer vnto hym.

Then wãne we at the ſame tyme all his cities, and ther was not one cyte that we toke not from hym, euẽ thre ſcore cities, the whole region of Argob in the kyngdom of Og at Basan. All theſe cities were ſtronge with hye walles, gates, and barres, beſyde many other vnwalled townes.

And we vtterly deſtroyed them, as we B
dyd with Sihõ the kynge at Hesbon. * All Deu.29.b
the cities deſtroyed we vtterly and the men wemen, and chyldrẽ. But all the cattell and spoyle of ꝑ cityes caught we for our selues.

Thus toke we at the same tym the lõde out of the hãde of the two kynges of ꝑ Ammorites beyonde Jordane, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidons call Sirion, but the Ammorites call it Senir) all the cittes vpon the playne and all Gilead, & all Basan vnto Salcha and Edrei, the cities of ꝑ kyngdome of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the gyauntes. Beholde, his ꝑõ bed is here at Rabath amõg the childre of Ammon, nyne cubites lõge, & foure cubites brode, after ꝑ cubite of a mã.

This londe conquered we at the same tyme, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer of Arnõ. * And vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites I gaue halfe mount Gilead with the cities therof: but the remnaunt of Gilead, and al Basan the kynge of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe tryde of Manasse. * And I cõmaunded you at the same tyme, and sayde: The LORDE your God hath geuen you this londe to take possessyon of it. Go youre wayes forth therfore harnassed before your brethren the childre of Israel all ye that be mete for ꝑ warre. Num.32.d

* And I warned Josua at ꝑ same tyme and sayde: Thyne eyes haue sene all that ꝑ LORDE your God hath done vnto these two kynges: euẽ so shall the LORDE do also vnto all the kyngdomes whether thou goest. Feare thẽ not, for the LORDE your God shall fyght with you.

Num.27.b

And I besought the LORDE at the same tyme, and sayde: O LORD LORDE, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse and thy myghtye hande. For where is ther a God in heauen and earth, that can do after thy workes & after thy power? I let me go & se that good londe beyonde Jordane, that goodly hye countre, & Libanus.

* But the LORDE was angrye with me for youre sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: Be contente, speake nomore to me of this matter. * Get thee vp to the toppe of mount Pisga, and lyft vp thyne eyes towarde the west, and toward the north, & toward the south, and toward the East: and beholde it with thyne eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. But geue Josua his charge, and corage him, and holde hym, for he shall go ouer Jordane before the people, & * shall deuyde vnto them the londe, that thou shalt se. * And so we abode in the valleye ouer against the hous of Peor.

The.iiii. Chapter.

NOw herken Israel vnto the ordinaunces and lawes which I teache you that ye do them, that ye may lyue and come in, and take possessyon of the londe which the LORDE God of youre fathers giueth vnto you. * Ye shall put nothyng to the worde which I cõmaũde you, nether do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the cõmaundemẽtes of the LORDE your God which I cõmaũde you. Your eyes haue sene what the LORDE hath done with Baal Peor, * all them that walked after Baal Peor, hath the LORDE thy God destroyed amonge you. But ye that clene vnto the LORDE youre God, are all alyue this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes, suche as the LORDE my God commaũded me, that ye shulde do euen so in the lõde, in ꝑ which ye shall come, to possesse it.

Kepe them now therfore and do them * for that is youre wysedome & vnderstondynge in the syghte of all nacyons, which when they haue herde all these ordinaunces shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstondynge folke is this, and how excellent a people! For where is ther so excellent a nacyon that hath goddes so nye hym, as the LORDE our God is nye vnto vs, * as often as we vpon hym: And where is ther so excellent a nacyon, that hath so ryghteous ordynaū ces and lawes, as all this lawe whiche I laye before you this daye.

B Take hede to thy selfe now, & kepe well thy soule, that thou forget not the thynges which thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thy hart all the dayes of thy lyfe. * And thou shalt teache them thy children, and thy childers childeren, the daye * whan thou stodeste before the LORDE thy God by mounte Horeb, whan the LORDE sayd vnto me: Gather me the people together, that I maye make them heare my wordes, which they shall learne, ꝑ they maye feare me all the dayes of their lyfe vpon earth, * and that they also maye teach their children.

And ye came nye, and stode vnder the mount. But the mount burnt euē vnto the myddes of heauen, and ther was darknesse, cloudes, and myst. And the LORDE spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre. The voyce of his wordes ye herd, *neuertheles ye sawe no ymage, but herde ꝑ voyce onely *And he declared vnto you his couenaūt which he commaunded you to do, namely, ten verses, and wrote them vpō two tables of stone. And the LORDE cōmaunded me at the same tyme, to teache you ordynaū ces and lawes that ye might do therafter in the lande, in to the which ye go to possesse it

C Kepe well youre soules therfore, for ye sawe no maner of ymage, in the daye whan the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon mount Horeb, * that ye destroye not your selues, and make you ony ymage, that is lyke a man, or womā, or beast vpon earth or fetthered foule vnder ꝑ heauen, or worme vpon the grounde, or fyshe in the water vnder the earth: *that thou lyfte not vp thyne eyes to warde heauen, and se the Sonne & the Moone and the starres, and the whole hoost of heauen and be deceaued, and worshippe, and serue them *which the LORDE thy God hath made to serue all nacyons vnder the whole heauen.

But you hath the LORDE taken, and *brought you out of ꝑ yron fornace, namely, out of Egipt, ꝑ ye shuld be ꝑ people of hys enheritaūce, as it is come to passe this day. Ouer the LORDE was angry with me for your sakes, so that he sware: that I shulde not go ouer Iordane, nor come into ꝑ good lande, whiche the LORDE thy God shall geue the to enheritaunce. As for me * I must dye in this lāde, and shall not go ouer Iordane: But ye shall go ouer & shall haue that good lande in possession.

Take hede therfore vnto your selues, D that ye forget not the cōuenaunt of the LORDE your God, and that ye make no ymages of ony maner of fashion *as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded. * For the LORDE thy God is a consumynge fyre and a gelous God. Exo 20.a ‡Deu 9.a Heb 12.b

¶ When ye haue begotten children, and childers children, and haue dweite in the lande, ye marre your selues, *and make you ymages of ony maner of fashion, and do euell in the syght of the LORDE your God, to prouoke hym: * I call heauen and earth to recorde ouer you this daye, that ye shall shortly perysshe from ꝑ lande, in to the which ye go ouer Iordane to possesse it. ye shall not dwell longe therin, but shall vtterly be destroyed. * And the LORDE shal scatter you amonge the nacyons and ye shall be lefte a smal people among ꝑ Heythen, whyther the LORDE shall bringe you. There shall ye serue goddes, which are the workes of mens handes, euen woode and stone, whiche nother se nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. Deut 5.b Iere 16.b Deu 30.b and 31.c Deu 28.b

Whā thou shalt be straytely troubled and whan all these thynges shall come vpō the in the latter dayes, then shalte thou turne agayne to the LORDE thy God, & be obedient vnto his voyce. For the LORDE thy God is a mercyfull god, he shall not forsake the, nor destroye the: nother shall he forgette the couenaunt with thy fathers, *which he sware vnto them. Deu 30.c Iere 29.c

For aske after the tymes past, whiche haue bene before the, sence the daye that god created man vpon earth, from one end of the heauen vnto the other, whether ther was euer ony suche greate thynge done, or ony suche lyke herde, that a people hath herde the voyce of god speake out of the fyre (as thou haste herde) and yet lyued. Or whether god assayed to go and take vnto hym a people out of the myddes of a nacyon, thorowe temptacyons, thorowe tokens, thorowe wonders, thorowe warre, and thorowe a myghtye hande, and thorowe a stretched out arme, and thorowe great dyspons, accordynge vnto all as the LORDE your god hath done with you in Egipte before thyne eyes. AND Moses called all Israell, & sayde vnto them: Heare Israel the ordinaunces and lawes, which I speake in your eares this daye: learne thẽ, and kepe them so, that ye do therafter. * the LORD our god made a cõuenaunt with vs at Horeb, he made not his cõuenaunt with our fathers, but wt vs, that are here this daye & lyue euerycone. He talked with vs face to face out of the fyre vpon the mout. I stode at the same tyme betwixte the LORDE & you, that I myght shewe you the worde of the LORDE. For ye were afrayed of ẏ fyre & went not vp to the mount, and he sayde

* I am the LORDE thy God, which haue brought the out of the londe of Egypte, out of ẏ house of bõdage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my syght.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of ony maner of lykenesse of the thynges that are aboue in heauen, and beneth vpon earth, and in the water vnder the earth. Thou shalt not honoure them, nor serue them. * For I the LORDE thy God am a gelous God, vysytynge the synne of the fathers vpon the chyldren, vnto the third and fourth generacyon, of them that hate me: and shewe mercye vpon many thousandes of them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalte not take the name of the LORDE thy God in vayne: * for the LORDE shall not holde hym giltyless, that taketh his name in vayne.

* Kepe the Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the LORDE thy god hath commaunded the. Sixe dayes shalte thou laboure, and do all thy worke, but the seuenth daye it is the Sabbath of ẏ LORDE thy God: No maner worke shalte thou do in it, thou, and thy sonne and thy doughter, and thy seruaunt and thy mayde, thyne asse and all thy catteil, and the stranger whiche is wythin thy gates, that thy seruaunt and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. For thou shalt remember, ẏ thy selfe also wast a seruaunt in the londe of Egypte, and how that the LORDE thy God brought the out from thence with a mighty hande, and a stretched out arme. Therfore hath the LORDE thy God commaunded the to kepe the Sabbath daye.

Thou shalt not * lust after thy neyghbours wyfe.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neyghbours house, lande, seruaũt, mayde, oxe, asse or what soeuer he hath.

These are the wordes that the LORDE spake to all your congregacyon, vpon the mount out of the fyre of the cloude & darkenesse with a great voyce, & added nothynge therto. * And he wrote them vpon two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

But whan ye herde the voyce out of the darcknesse, and saw the mount burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all ye rulers amonge your tribes, and youre Elders, and sayde: Behold, * the LORDE our God hath shewed vs his glorye and his greatnesse, and we haue herd his voyce out of the fyre. This day haue we seene, that God maye talke with a man, and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shulde we dye, that this fyre shulde cõsume vs? yf we shulde heare the voyce of the LORDE our God ony more, we shulde dye. For what is all fleshe, that it shulde be able to heare the voyce of the lyuynge God speakynge out of the fyre, as we haue done, and yet lyue? Go to thou and heare all that the LORDE oure God sayeth, and tell vs. * All that the LORDE sayeth vnto the, that wyll we heare and do. Whan the LORDE herd the voyce of youre wordes which ye spake vnto me, he sayd vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people, whiche they haue spoken vnto the. It is all good that they haue spoke. * But who shall geue them such an harte, that they may feare me, and kepe all my cõmaundementes as longe as they lyue, that it may go wel with them, and with their chyldren for euer? God & saye vnto them: Get you in to youre tentes a gayne. But thou shalt stande here beforo me, that I may tell the al the commaundementes, and ordynaunces and lawes which thou shalte teache them, that they maye do them in the lande, whiche I shall geue them to possesse. Take hede now therfore that ye do, as the LORDE youre God hath commaunded you, * and turne not aside no more then vpright hande, nor to the lefte: but walke all the wayes which the LORDE your God hathe commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, & that it maye go wel with you, and that ye maye lyue longe in the lande which ye shall haue in possession.

The.vi. Chapter.

THese are the commaundementes, ordynaunces and lawes which the LORDE youre God hath cõmaunded, that ye shuld learn them, and do them, in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it, * that thou mayest feare the LORDE thy God, and kepe all his ordynaunces and commaundementes, which I commaunde the, thou and thy children childrẽ all the dayes of your lyfe, that ye maye lyue longe. Thou shalte heare (O Israel) & take hede þ thou do ther after, that it maye go wel with the, and that thou mayest multiplye greatly, as the LORDE God of thy fathers hath promysed the a lande that floweth with mylke and hony. Heare O Israel, the LORD our God is one LORDE onely. * And thou shalte loue the LORDE thy God with all thyne hart, with all thy soule, and with all thy myght. * And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalte thou take to hart, and shalt reheatse them vnto thy children, & shalt talke of them, whan thou sittest in thyne house, & whan thou walkest by þ waye: whan thou lyest downe, and whan thou rysest vp. And thou shalt bynd them for a sygne vpõ thyne hande, and they shalbe * token of remembraunce before thyne eyes, and thou shalt wryte them vpon the postes of thyne house and vpon thy gates.

good in the syght of the LORDE, that thou

Then shalt thou saye vnto thy sonne: We

LORDE brought vs out of Egipte with a great and euell tokens and wonders in E-gipte vpon Pharao and his house before our eyes, and brought vs from thence, to bringe vs in and to geue vs the lande, that he sware vnto our fathers. And therfore cordyng vnto al these ordynaũces, that we myght feare the LORDE our God, that we myght prosper all the dayes of our lyfe, as dementes, as he hath commaunded vs.

And ỹ LORDE sayd vnto me: I se thys people, that it is a stynecked people: lette me alone, that I maye destroye them, and put out theyr name from vnder heauen, I wyll make of the a people myghtyer & greater than thys is.

* And as I turned me, and went before from the mounte which brent wyth fyre, I had the two tabels of the cõuenaūt in both my handes, I loked, and behold, ye had sinned agaynst the LORDE your God, in that ye had made you a molten calfe, and were soone turned out of the waye, which ỹ LORDE had cõmaunded you. Then toke I the two tabels & cast the out of both my handes and brake them before youre eyes * and fell before the LORDE ‡ (euen as at ỹ first tyme) forty dayes and forty nyghtes, and dyd neyther eate bread, nor dranke water, because of all youre synnes which ye had sinned, whan ye dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, to prouoke hym vnto wrath. For I was afrayed of the wrath and indignacion, wherwyth the LORDE was angrye vnto you, euen to haue destroyed you. * But the LORDE herde me at that tyme also.

Moreouer ỹ LORD was very angry with Aaron, so that he wold haue destroyed him, but I made intercession for Aaron also the

Ye displeased the LORDE also at Taberā, * and at Masla, * and at the Lustes, * and whan he sent you frō Cades Barnea, and sayd: Go vp, and conquere ỹ land which I haue geuen you. And ye were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE your God and beleued not on hym, and hearkened not vnto his voyce: * for ye haue ben disobedient vnto the LORDE, as longe as I haue knowen you.

Then fell I before the LORDE forty dayes and forty nyghtes, which I lay for For the LORDE sayd, he wolde destroye you. But I made intercession vnto the LORDE and sayd: * O LORDE, destroye not thy people and thyne enheritaūce, which thou hast row thy great power hast delyuered, & brought out of Egipte with a myghtye hande. Remembre thy seruauntes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Loke not vpon the stubbornesse, and vngodlynesse and synne of this people (that the lande wherout thou hast brought vs, saye not: The LORDE was not able to bringe them in to the lande, which he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore hath he brought them to destroye the in the wyldernesse:) for they are thy people and thyn enheritaūce, which thou hast brought out with thy greate power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The.x. Chapter.

AT the same tyme sayd the LORDE vnto me: * Hew the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, and make the an Arke of wood, and in the Tables I wyll wryte the wordes, that were in the fyrst, * which thou brakest, and thou shalt laye the in the Arke. So I made an Arke of Fyrretre, and hewed two tables of stone (lyke as the fyrste were) and wente vp in to the mount, and the two tables were in my hande.

The wrote he in the tables * (accordyng as the fyrst wrytynge was) the ten verses, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the time of the gatheryng together. And the LORDE gaue them vnto me. And I turned me, and wente downe from the mount, and layed the tables in the Arke * which I had made, that they myght be there, as the LORD cōmaūded me.

* And the chyldren of Israell departed from Beroth, and Ben Jaakan vnto Mosera (there * dyed Aaron, and there was he buryed: and Eleazar his sōne became preest in his stede). From thēce they departed to Gadgad. From Gadgad to Jathbach, a londe of ryuers of water. * At the same season the LORD separated out the trybe of Leui, to beare the Arke of the LORDES conuenaunt, and to stonde before the LORDE, to mynister vnto him, and to prayse his name vnto this daye. * Therfore shall the Leuites haue no portion nor enheritaunce with their brethren, for the LORD is their enheritaunce, as the LORDE the God hath promised them.

* But I taryed vpon the mounte (lyke as afore) euen forty dayes & forty nyghtes, & the LORD herde me at that tyme also, & wold not destroye the. But he sayde vnto me: Vp and get the forth, that thou mayst go before the people, that they maye come in, and cōquere the londe whiche I sware vnto their fathers to gene them.

* Now Israell, what requyreth the LORDE thy God of the, but that thou feare the LORDE thy God, and that thou walke in al his wayes, and loue him and serue the LORDE thy God with all thy harte and with all thy soule: and that thou kepe the cōmaundementes of the LORD, and his ordinaūces which I cōmaunded the this daye, that thou mayest prosper? Beholde, * the heauē, and the heauen of all heauens and the earth, & all that is therin, is the LORDES thy God. * yet hath he had a pleasure vnto thy fathers, to loue them: and hath chosen their sede after them, namely you, aboue all nacyons, as it is come to passe this daye. Psal.25.a Jere.27.a Deu.4.f

* Circumcyse therfore the foreskynne of youre hart, and be nomore styfnecked. For the LORDE your God is God of al Goddes and LORD ouer all Lordes, a greate God, myghtye and terrybie, which regardeth no persone, and taketh no gyftes, & doth right vnto the fatherlesse and wedowe, and loueth the straunger, to geue hym foode, and rayment. * Therfore shall ye loue a straunger, for ye youre selues also were straungers in the londe of Egypte. And therfore shalt thou serue thyne enemye, which the LORDE shall sende vpon the, in hunger, and thyrst, in nakednesse, and nede of all thynge: and he shall put a pocke of yron vpon thy necke vntyll he haue brought the to naught.

* The LORDE shall bringe a nacyon vpon the from farre, euen from the ende of the worlde, as a flyenge Aegle: a people whose speache thou canst not vnderstande, an harde fauoured people, which regarde not the persone of the olde, nor haue compassyon on the ponge. And they shall eate vp the frute of thy cattell, and ỹ frute of thy londe, tyll they haue destroyed the, and shall leaue the nothynge in corne, wyne, oyle, nor the frute of thy oxen and shepe, vntyll they haue brought the to naught: and shall besege vnto the within all thy gates, tyll thy hye and stroge walles, ỹ in thou trustest throwe out all thy londe. And thou shalte be beseged within all thy portes, throwe out all thy londe which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the.

* Thou shalt eate ỹ frute of thyne owne body, the flesh of thy sonnes & of thy doughters, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the, in that straytnesse and sege, wherwith thyne enemye shal besege the: so that if the greue the, man that afore hath lyued softly & in voluptuousnesse amõge you, shall be spyteous vpon his brother, and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and eu the sonne that is left ouer of his sonnes, lest he shuld geue ony of them of the flesshe of his children that he eateth in as muche as ther is nothynge left hym in that straytnesse and sege where with thyne enymye shall besege the within all thy gates. And the woman ꝑ afore hath lyued so tenderly and voluptuously amõge you, that she durst not set ꝑ sole of hir foote vpon the grounde for tendernesse and voluptuousnesse, shalbe greued to loke vpon hir husoande that lyeth in hir bosome, and on hir sonne, and on hir doughter: euen because of hir doughters which she hath nourished betwixte hir legges in hir lappe, and because of hir somes that she hath borne: For she shall eate thẽ secretely for very scarcenesse of all thynges, in the straytnesse and sege, wherwith thyne enemye shall besege ꝑ within thy gates.

¶ If thou wylt not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe, whiche are wrytten in this boke, that thou mayest feare this glorious and fearefull name, euen the LORDE thy God, then shall the LORDE entreate the wonderously, with plages vpon the & thy sede, yee with great and continuall plages with euell and continuall syckenesses, and shall bringe vpon the all the syckenesses of Egypte, (wherof thou wast afrayed) & they shall cleue vnto the. Therto all maner syckenesses and plages, which are not wrytte in the boke of this lawe, shall the LORDE thy God cause to come vpon the, vntyl he haue destroyed the. And ther shall be left but a fewe people of you, * which afore were as ꝑ starres of heaue in multitude: because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of ꝑ LORDE thy God.

* And as the LORD reioyced ouer you & for, to do you good, and to multiplye you: euẽ so shall he reioyce ouer you, to destroye you, and to bringe you to naughte, and ye shalbe wasted from of the londe, whether thou goest now to possesse it. For the LORD shall scatter the amonge all nacyõs, frõ the one ende of the world vnto another, & there shalt thou serue other goddes whome thou knowest not, nor yet thy fathers, euẽ wood and stone.

And amonge those same nacyons shalt thou haue no quyetnesse, nother shall ꝑ sole of thy foote haue ony reste: for ꝑ LORD shall geue the there a fearefull hart, and dasyng of eyes, and a troubled soule so that thy life shall hange before the: Night & daye shalte thou feare, & shalt haue no trust in thy lyfe. In ꝑ morninge thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me the euenynge? And at euen thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me ꝑ morninge? For the very greate feare of thyne harte, whiche shall make the afrayed: and for the syght of thyne eyes which thou shalt se.

And the LORDE shall bringe the agayn in to Egypte by shyppes, euẽ thorow the way wherof I sayd vnto the: * Thou shalt se it nomore: and there shall ye be solde vnto youre enemyes for bonde seruaũtes and bõde maydẽs & ther shalbe nomã to bye you Exo. 14.c

NOw whan all this cõmeth vpon the, * whether it be the blessyng or the curse which I haue layed before the, and thou shalt in thyne harte, beynge amonge the Heythen: whither the LORDE thy God hath thrust ỹ, and thou turnest vnto the LORDE thy God so ỹ thou herkenest vnto his voyce, thou & thy chyldren with all thy soule, in al that I cõmaũde the this daye, * then shall the LORDE thy God turne thy captiuite and haue cõpassion vpon the, and shall gather thy congregacion agayne from amonge all nacyós, whether the LORDE thy God hath scatered the.

And though thou wereste thrust out vnto the vttemost partes of the heauẽ, yet shall the LORDE thy God gather the from thence and from thence shall he fetch the, & bringe the in to the londe whiche thy fathers haue possessed, & thou shalt entoye it, & he shall do the good, & multiplye ỹ aboue thy fathers.

* And the LORD thy God shall circumcise thyne harte, and the harte of thy seed, that thou mayest loue the LORDE thy God with all thy harte, & with all thy soule, that thou mayest lyue. But all these curses shall the LORDE thy God laye vpon thyne enemyes and vpon them that hate the and persecute the. But thou shalt turne and herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE, to do all his commaundementes, which I cõmaũde the this daye. And the LORDE thy God shall make the plenteous in all the workes of thyne handes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy cattel, in the frute of thy londe & goodes.

*Beholde I haue layed before you this daye, lyfe and good, death and euell. For I commaunde the this daye, to loue ꝑ LORDE thy God, and to walke in his wayes, & to kepe his commaundementes, ordynaunces and lawes, that thou mayest lyue & multiplye, and that the LORDE thy God maye bleſſe the in the lande, whyther thou goest to possesse it.

*I take heauen and earth this daye to record ouer you: I haue layed before you lyfe and death, bleſſynge and curſyng, that thou mayest chose lyfe, and that thou & thy sede maye lyue, that ye maye loue the LORDE your God and herken vnto his voyce & cleue vnto hym: (for he is thy lyfe, and thy longe age) that thou mayest dwell in the lande, which the LORDE sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Jsaac and Jacob, to geue them.

The.xxxi.Chapter.

AND Moses wente, and spake these wordes to all Jsrael, and sayd vnto them: I am this day an hundreth and twenty yeare olde. I can nomore go out and in: the LORDE also hath sayd vnto me *Thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. The LORDE thy God hymselfe shall go before the ouer Jordane: and he hym selfe shall destroye these nacyons before the, that thou mayest conquere them: and Josua he shall go before the, *as the LORDE hath sayd. And the LORDE shall do vnto them, as he dyd vnto Sehon and Og the kinges of the Ammorites and vnto theyr lande, which he destroyed.

*Now whan the LORDE shall deliuer them before you, ye shall do vnto the accordynge vnto all the commaundementes which I haue commaunded you. Be manly and stronge, feare not, and be not afrayed of them. For the LORDE thy God hymselfe shall go with the *& shall not fayle the nor forsake the. Josu.1.a Heb.13.e

And Moses called Josua, and sayd vnto hym before all Jsrael: *Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalte bringe this people in to the lande, which the LORD hath sworne vnto theyr fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge them by lotte. But the LORD hym selfe that goeth before you, euē he shalbe with the, and shall not fayle the: Feare not and be not afraped. Josu.1.b 1.Esd.2.e

And Moses wrote this lawe and delyuered it vnto the prestes the chyldren of Leui (*which bare the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE) and vnto al the Elders of Jsrael. Num.3.d

And he commaunded them, and sayde: C *At the ende of seuen yeares, in the tyme of the Free peare, in the feast of Tabernacles whan all Jsrael come to appeare before the LORDE thy God, in the place that he shall chose, thou shalte cause this lawe to be proclamed before all Jsrael in theyr eares, namely, before the cōgregacyon of the people both men and wemen, chyldren & thy straūgers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and learne to feare the LORDE theyr God, and be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that theyr chyldren also which knowe nothynge, maye heare, and learne to feare the LORDE your God, all your lyues dayes which ye lyue in the lāde, whyther ye go ouer Jordane to possesse it. 2.Esd.8.a

And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou must dye. Call Josua, and stande in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that I maye geue hym a charge. And so whan much myscheke and tribulacyon is come vpon them, this songe shall answere before them for a wytnesse. It shal not be forgotten out of the mouth of they? sede: for I knowe they? ymaginacyon, that they go about euen now, before I bringe them in to the lande, which I sware vnto them.

And to Ben Jamin he sayde: [illegible] loued of the LORDE shall dwell [illegible] on hym: All the daye longe shall he [illegible] vpon hym, and shall dwell betwen [illegible] shulders.

And to Joseph he sayde: * [illegible] lyeth in the blessynge of the LORDE [illegible] there are noble frutes of heauen, [illegible] dew, and of the depe that lyeth [illegible] There are noble frutes of the [illegible] the Sonne, and noble type frutes [illegible] monethes: And of the toppes of the [illegible] taynes of olde, and of the hylles [illegible] and of the noble frutes of the earth, [illegible] the fulneſſe therof. The good [illegible] * that dwelleth in the bushe come [illegible] heade of Joseph, and & vpon the [illegible] his head that was separated from [illegible] his brethren.

His bewtye is as a fyrstborne [illegible] his hornes are as the hornes of [illegible] corne: with the same shall he [illegible] nacyons together, euen vnto the [illegible] of the worlde. These are the [illegible] of Ephraym, and the thousandes [illegible] nasse.

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: [illegible] ioyce Zabulon of thy outgoynge: [illegible] thou Issachar of thy tentes. They [illegible] call the people vnto the hyll, and [illegible] shall they offre the offerynges of [illegible] ousnes. For they shall sucke the [illegible] daunce of the see, and the treasures [illegible] the sonde.

And to Gad he sayde: Blessyng [illegible] Gad, which maketh rowme. He [illegible] as a Lyon, and spoyleth the arme [illegible] toppe of the heade. And he sawe [illegible] gynnynge, that the heape of the [illegible] laye hydde there, and came with [illegible] lers of the people, and executed [illegible] treousneſſe of the LORDE, and [illegible] ment on Israell.

And to Dan he sayd: Dan a yonge [illegible] he shall flowe from Basan.

And to Nephtaly he sayd: Nephtaly shal haue abundaunce of pleasure, and shalbe full of the blessynge of the LORDE: his possession shalbe towarde the west and south.

And to Aser he sayd: Aser be blessed with sonnes, accepted be he vnto his brethren, & dyppe his foote in oyle. yron and brasse be on his shues. Thyne age be as his youth.

Ther is no God as the God of the iust. He that sytteth vpon heauen, be thy helpe. And his glorye is in the cloudes, that is the dwellynge of God from the begynnynge, & vnder the armes of the worlde. And he shal dryue out thyne enemye before the, and say: Be destroyed. * And Israell shall dwell safe alone. The eye of Jacob shalbe vpon the lande where corne and wyne is, heauē also shall droppe w dew. Happye art thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? O thou people ỹ art saued by the LORDE, which is thy helpe, shylde, and the sweard of thy glorye. Thyne enemyes shall ppne awaye, and thou shalte treade vpon the heyght of them.

The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

And * Moses wente frō ỹ felde of ỹ Moabites vp vnto moūte Nebo, vpon the toppe of moūt Pisga ouer agaynst Jericho. And the LORDE shewed him al the lande of Gilead vnto Dan, & all Nephtaly and the lande of Ephraim & Manasse, and all the lande of Juda, vnto the vttermoost see, and towarde the south, and the region of the plaine of Jericho, the cyte of the palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the LORDE sayd vnto him. This is the lande that I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & sayd: I wyll geue it vnto thy sede. Thou hast sene it with thyne eyes, * but thou shalt not go ouer thyther. Nu.20.b.

So Moses the seruaūt of the LORD dyed there in ỹ lande of ỹ Moabites, accordyng vnto the worde of the LORDE. And he buryed hym in a valley in the lāde of the Moabites ouer agaynst the house of Peor. And noman knewe of his graue vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundreth and twenty yeare olde whan he dyed: his eyes were not dymme, and his chekes were not fallen. And the chyldre of Israel, * weped for Moses in the feld of ỹ Moabites thyrty dayes. And the dayes of the weppng & mournyng for Moses were fulfylled. B Nu.20.d Deu.34.d

And Josua the sonne of Nun was fylled with the spyrete of wysedome, (* for Moses had layed his hande vpon hym) and the chyldren of Israel herkened vnto hym and dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And ther arose no Prophete more in Israel lyke vnto Moses, whome the LORD knewe face to face in all tokens & wonders (whiche the LORDE sent hym to do in ỹ londe of Egipte, vnto Pharao, and to all his seruaūtes, and his lande) and in all this myghtye hande, & great dispons whiche Moses dyd in the syght of all. The fyrst Chapter.

After the death of Moses the seruaunte of the LORDE spake the LORDE vnto Josua þ sone of Nun Moses * mynyster: My seruaũt Moses is dead, vp now, and go ouer this Jordane, thou & all this people in to þ londe that I haue geuen the chyldrẽ of Israel. * All the places that the soles of your fete shal treade vpõ, haue I geuẽ vnto you As I sayde vnto Moses: From the wylderneſſe and this Libanus vnto the great water Euphrates: All the lõde of the Hethites vnto the great see towarde the west, shalbe your bryder. There shall nomã be able to wtstãde þ al thy lyfe lõge. * And lyke as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the also. * I wyll not fayle the, nother forsake the. Be stronge and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde the londe, which I sware vnto theyr fathers, to geue it them.

* Be stronge therfore and very bolde, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thynge accordynge to the lawe, that Moses my seruaunt cõmaunded the. * Turne not aside from it, nother to the right hande nor to the left, that thou mayest deale wysely whether so euer thou goest. * And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercyse thy selfe therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thynge accordynge to it that is wrytten therin: Then shalt thou prosperе in thy wayes and deale wysely. Lo, I haue commaunded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not and be not afrayed: for the LORDE thy God is with the, whether so euer thou goest.

Then cõmaunded Josua, the officers of the people, and sayde: Go thorow the hoost and charge the people, and saye: Prepare you vytalles, for ouer thre dayes shal ye go ouer this Jordane, that ye maye come in & take possessyon of the londe, which the LORDE youre God shall geue you.

And to the Rubenites, Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse, sayde Josua: Thynke vpon the worde, * that Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE spake vnto you, and sayde: The LORDE your God hath brought you to rest and geuen you this londe. Let youre wyues, and chyldren and cattell remayne in the londe, that Moses gaue you on this syde Jordane: But ye youre selues (as many as be syghtynge men) shall go forth before youre brethren in harnasse, and helpe them, tyll the LORDE haue brought youre brethren to reste also as well as you: that they also maye take possessyon of the londe, whiche the LORDE youre God shall geue them: Then shall ye turne agayne in to the londe of your possessyon that ye may enioye it, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE hath geuen you on this syde Jordane towarde the East. And they answered Josua and sayde. * All that thou hast commaunded vs, wyll we do: and whether so euer thou sendest vs, we wil go thither. Like as we haue obeyed Moses, so wyll we be obedient also vnto the: Onely that þ LORD thy God be with the, lyke as he was wyth Moses. Whoso euer disobeyeth thy mouth and herkeneth not vnto thy wordes in all that thou hast cõmaunded vs, shall dye: Onely be thou stronge and bolde.

The.ij.chapter.

Josua the sonne of Nun sente out two spyes preuely frõ Sethim, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, loke vpon þ londe and Jericho. They went forth * and came in to the house of an harlot, called Rahab, and lay there. Thẽ was it tolde the kynge of Jericho: Lo, ther are mẽ come in this nyght from the chyldren of Israell, to spye the londe. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, sayenge: Deliuer the men forth that are come vnto the into thy house, for they ar come to spye out þ whole lande. Now as for the two men, the woman had hyd them, and sayd: Ther came men in vnto me in dede, but I knewe not whence they were. And at the shuttynge in of þ gate whan it was darke, they wente out, so that I can not tell whether they be gone: folowe soone after them, for ye shall ouertake them. But she had caused them to clymme vp vnto the house toppe, and hydde them vnder

the stalkes of flaxe, that she had prepared her vpon the toppe of the house. Howbe it the men folowed after them in the waye towarde Jordane, euen vnto the ferye: and whan they that folowed vpō thē were gone forth, the gate was shut.

B And ouer the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente vp to thē vnto the house toppe, and sayde vnto them: I knowe that Deu.28.a Josue.5.d the LORDE shall delyuer you the londe, * for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and all ỹ inhabiters of the londe are discouraged at Exo.14.c Josu.9.b poure cōmynge. * For we haue herde, how the LORDE dryed vp the water in the reede see, before you, whan ye departed out of E-
Nu 21.d gypte: * and what ye dyd vnto the two kynges of the Ammorites, Sihon and Og beyonde Jordan, how ye roted them out, and destroyed them. And sence we herde therof, oure harte hath fayled vs, nother is ther a good stomake more in ony man, by the reason of youre cōmynge. For the LORD your God is both the God aboue in heauē, and beneth vpon earth.

C Sweare now then vnto me * euen by Deu.10.d the LORDE (for so muche as I haue dealte mercyfully with you) that ye also wyll shewe mercy vpon my fathers house and geue me a true token, that ye wyll let my father lyue and my mother, my brethrē, and my systers and all that they haue, and delyuer our soules frō death. The men sayd vnto her: * yf Josue.6.d we shewe not mercy and faythfulnesse vpō the, whan the LORDE geueth vs the londe: then let oure soule dye for you, so farre as 1.Ma.15.c Jerem.9.b thou betrayest not oure deuyce. * Then let she them downe thorow the wyndowe by a coarde: for hyr house was in the wall of the cyte, and in the wall was hyr dwellynge.

And she sayd vnto them: Go your waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that folow vpō you: and hyde your selues there thre dayes, tyll they be come agayne that folow after you: and thē get you your way.

D But the men sayde vnto her: As for this oth that thou hast taken of vs, we wyll be discharged of it whan we come in the lond, excepte thou knyttest in the wyndowe the lyne of thys rosecoloured reed rope (ỹ thou hast lette vs downe with all) and gatherest vnto the vnto thy house, thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and al thy fathers house. And loke who so euer goeth out at the doore of thy house, his bloude be vpon his owne head and we gyltlesse. But of all those that are in thy house, yf a honde be layed vpon them, theyr bloude shalbe vpon oure owne heade. And yf thou bewrayest ony of this ỹ vpce of ourcs, then wyll we be discharged of the oth that thou hast taken of vs. Then sayde: Let it be so as ye saye, and she let them go. And they wente theyr waye. And she knytte the rosecoloured lyne in the wyndowe.

They wente on theyr waye, and came to the mountaynes and remayned there thre dayes: tyll they that folowed vpon thē were come agayne: for they sought them theyr in euery strete, and yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayn, and descended from the mountaynes, and passed ouer (Jordane) and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym euery thynge, as they had founde it, and they sayde vnto Josua: The LORDE hath geuen vs all the londe in to oure handes, and all they that dwell in the londe, are sore afrayed of vs.

The.iij. Chapter.

AND Josua rose vp early & departed frō Sethim, and came vnto Jordane, he and all the chyldren of Israell, and remayned there all nyght afore they wente ouer. But after thre dayes were the officers thorowe the hoost and cōmaunded the people, and sayde: When ye se the Arke of the couenaūt of the LORDE your God, and the prestes from amonge the Leuites bearynge it, departe ye then out of your place, and folowe after (but so, that there rowme betwene you and it by two thousand cubites, & that ye come not nye it) ỹ ye may know what way ye shulde go: for ye neuer went that waye afore.

And Josua sayde vnto the people: Folowe youre selues, for to morowe shall the LORD bryngе wonderous thynges to passe amōge you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Beare ye the Arke of the cōuenaūt, and go before the people. Then * bare they the Arke, and wente before the people. And the LORD sayde vnto Josua: * This daye

I begynne to make thy greate in the syght of all Israell, that they maye knowe, howe that lyke as I was with Moses, so am I with the also. And cõmaunde thou the prestes that beare the Arke, and say: When ye come before ẏ water of Jordane, stõde styll.

And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israell: Come hither, and heare the worde of the LORDE youre God. He sayde moreouer: By this shall ye perceaue, that the lyuynge God is amõge you, and that he shal dryue out before you the Cananites, Hethites, Heuithes, Pherelites, Girgosites, Ammorites and Jebusites. Beholde, the Arke of the cõuenaũt of him that hath dominion ouer all londes, shall go before you in Jordane. Take now therfore twelfe mẽ out of the trybes of Israel, out of euery tribe one. And whã the soles of the fete of the prestes that beare the Arke of the LORD the gouernour of all londes, are set in the water of Jordane, then shall the water of Jordane withdrawe it selfe from the water that floweth frõ aboue, ẏ it may stõde on an heape.

Now whan all the people departed out of theyr tentes, to go ouer Jordan, and the * prestes bare the Arke of cõuenaunt before the people, and came in Jordane, and dypte theyr fete before in ẏ water (as for Jordane on all his banckes it was full of all maner waters of the londe) & thẽ the water that came downe from aboue, stode streyght vp vpon one heape, very farre from the cyte of Adom ẏ lyeth on the syde of Zarthan: But the water that ranne downe to the see (euen to the salt see) fell away, and decreased.

* So the people wente thorowe ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the Arke of the LORDES conuenaunt, stode dye in the myddes of Jordane, ready prepared: and all Israell wente thorowe drye shode, vntyll ẏ whole people were all come ouer Jordane.

The.iiii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: Take ye twelfe mẽ, out of euery tryde one, and cõmaũde thẽ, and say: * Take vp twelfe stones out of Jordane, frõ the place where the fete of the prestes stode in theyr araye: and carye them with you, that ye maye leaue them in the lodgynge, where ye shal lodge this nyght. Then Josua called twelfe men which were prepared of the chyldren of Israell, out of euery tryde one, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye ouer before the Arke of the LORDE your God in the myddes of Jordane, and take euery mã a stone vpon his shulder after the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israell, that they maye be a tokẽ amonge you. And whã youre chyldren are theyr fathers herafter, and say: What do these stones there? That ye maye then saye vnto them, how that the water of Jordane cloue in sunder before the Arke of the LORDES conuenaunt, whan it wente thorow Jordane, and that these stones are set for a perpetuall remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israell.

Then dyd the chyldren of Israel as Josua cõmaunded them, and bare twelfe stones out of the myddes of Jordane (as the LORD hath sayde vnto Josua) * accordyng to the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and brought the same with them in to the lodgyng, and left them there. And Josua sette vp twelfe stones in the myddes of Jordaue, where the fete of ẏ prestes stode that bare the Arke of the cõuenaunt: & there they be yet vnto this daye. As for the prestes that bare the Arke, they stode in ẏ myddes of Jordane, vntyll all was performed that the LORDE charged Josua to say vnto the people * accordynge as Moses gaue Josua in cõmaundement. The people also made hayst, and wente ouer. Now whan all the people was gone ouer, the Arke of the LORDE wente ouer also, and the prestes wente before the people.

* And the Rubenites and Gaddites, & the halfe tryde of Manasse went harnessed before the chyldren of Israell, lyke as Moses had sayde vnto them: Aboute a fourtye thousande men ready harnessed to ẏ warre wente before the LORDE to the battayll, vpon the felde of Jericho. * In that daye ẏ LORDE made Josua greate in the syghte of al Israell: and lyke as they feared Moses, so stode they in awe of hym, al his lyfe lõge.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: Cõmaũde the prestes which beare the Arke of witnesse, that they come vp out of Jordane. So Josua cõmaunded the prestes, & sayde: Come vp out of Jordane. * And whan the prestes that bare the Arke of the cõuenaunt of the LORDE were come out of Jordane, & trode with the soles of theyr fete vpon the drye londe, the water of Jordane came agayne in to his place, and flowed (lyke as a fore tyme) vpon all his bankes.

It was ẏ tenth daye of the fyrst moneth whan the people came out of Jordane: and they pitched theyr tentes in Gilgall vpon

the Easte syde of the cyte of Jericho. And the twelfe stones which they hadde taken out of Jordane, dyd Josua set vp at Gilgal Exo.12.d and sayd vnto ỹ chyldrē of Jsraell: * Whā youre chyldren are they? fathers herafter, and say: What meane these stones? Than tell them, and saye: Jsraell wente dyre thorowe Jordane, what tyme as the LORDE youre God dryed vp the water of Jordane before you, vntyll ye were ouer: lyke as the Exo.14.e LORD your God dyd in the reed see, * which dryed vp before vs, that we myght go thorow: that all the people vpon earth myght knowe the hande of the LORDE, how myghty he is, to the intent that ye shulde alwaye feare the LORDE youre God.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ NOw whan all ỹ kynges of the Ammorites that dwelt beyond Jordane westwarde, and al the kynges of the Cananites by the see syde herde how the LORDE had dryed vp the water of Jordane before the chyldren of Jsraell, tyll they were come Josue.2.b ouer * they? harte fayled them, nother was ther ony more corage in thē at the presence of the chyldren of Jsraell.

At the same tyme sayde the LORDE vn-
Exo.4.e to Josua: Make the knyues * of stone, and circumcyse the chyldren of Jsraell agayne the seconde tyme. Then Josua made hym knyues of stone, and circūcysed the chyldrē of Jsrael vpon the toppe of the forskinnes. And the cause why Josua circūcysed all the males of the people that were come out of Egypte is this: for al the men of warre dyed in the wyldernesse by the way, after they were departed out of Egypt: for all the people that came forth, were circumcysed.

¶ But al the people that were borne in the wyldernesse by the waye (after they departed out of Egypte) were not circūcysed: for ỹ chyldrē of Jsraell walked forty yeares in the wyldernesse, vntyl all ỹ people of ỹ men of warre that came out of Egypt, were cōsumed, because they herkened not vnto the Nu.14.b voyce of the LORDE, lyke as ỹ LORD sware vnto them, * that they shuld not se the lāde whiche the LORD sware vnto they? fathers to geue vnto vs, euen a londe that floweth with mylke and hony: they? chyldren which were come vp in they? steade, did Josua circumcyse: for they had the forskynne, & were not circumcysed by the waye.

¶ And whan all the people were circumcysed, they abode in they? place euen in the tentes, tyll they were whole. And the LORD sayde vnto Josua: To daye haue I taken the shame of Egypte away from you, and the same place was called Gilgal vnto this daye. And whyle the chyldren of Jsrael lay thus at Gilgal, they kept Easter * the fourteenth daye of the moneth at euē in the felde of Jericho. And they dyd eate of the corne of the londe the seconde daye of the Easter, namely, vnleuended breade and fyrmente of that yeare, euen the same daye. And vpon the morowe, the * Manna fayled, and they dyd eate of the corne of the londe, so that the chyldren of Jsraell had nomore Mānā, but dyd eate of ỹ corne of the londe of Canaan the same yeare.

And it fortuned that whan Josua was by Jericho, he lyft vp his eyes, & was ware that ther stode a mā agaynst hym, and had a naked swearde in his hande. And Josua wēte to hym, and sayde vnto hym: Art thou one of vs, or of oure enemyes? He sayde: Nay, but I am * the prynce of the LORDES hoste & now am I come: Then fell Josua downe to the earth vpon his face, and worshipped hym, and sayde vnto him: What sayeth my LORDE vnto his seruaunt? And the prynce ouer the LORDES hooste sayde vnto Josua: * Put of thy shues frō thy fete, for ỹ place where vpon thou standest is holy. And Josua dyd so.

The.vi.Chapter.

¶ AS for Jericho, it was shut & kepte because of the chyldren of Jsraell, so that no man myght go out nor in. But the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: Behold, I haue geuen Jericho with the kyng & men of warre therof, in to thy hande. And the men of warre go once rounde about the cite, and do so sixe dayes. But vpon the seuenth daye let the prestes take the seuen trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke, and go the same seuenth daye seuen tymes aboute the cyte, and let the prestes blowe the trompettes. And whan ye horne of the yeare of Jubilye blowe and maketh a sounde, so that ye heare the trompettes, all the people shall make a great shoute, then shall the walles of the cyte fall downe, and the people shall fall in, euery one strayght before hym.

Then Josua the sonne of Nun called the prestes, and sayde vnto them: Beare the Arke of the cōuenaunt, and let seuen prestes take the seuen trompettes of the of Jubily before the Arke of the LORD. But vnto ꝑ people he sayde: Get you hence, and go rounde about the cite: and let hym that is harnessed, go before the Arke of the LORDE. Whan Josua had spoke this vnto the people, the seuen prestes bare the seuen trōpettes of the peare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORDE, and wente and blewe the trōpettes, and the Arke of the LORDES conuenaunt folowed after them: and who so was harnessed, wente before the prestes that blewe the trōpettes, and the multitude folowed the Arke. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes. But Josua commaunded the people, & sayd: ye shall make no shoute, nor let youre voyce be herde, nother shall ye geue ony worde oute of youre mouth: vntyll the day that I saye vnto you Make a shoute, then make a shoute.

So the Arke of the LORDE wente once rounde about the cyte, and came agayn in to the hoost, and remayned therin: & Josua vsed to ryse vp early in the morynge. And the prestes bare the Arke of the LORDE: so dyd the seuen prestes beare the seuen trompettes of the peare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORDE, and wente and blewe the trompettes: and whoso was harnessed, went before them, but the multitude folowed ꝑ Arke of the LORDE. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes.

The secōde day wente they once aboute the cyte also, and came agayn in to ꝑ hoost. Thus dyd they sixe dayes. But vpon the seuenth day whan the morynge sprynge arose, they gat them vp early, and wente after the same maner seuen tymes aboute the cyte, so that vpon the same one seuenth day they wente seuen tymes aboute the cyte.

And at the seuenth tyme whan the prestes blewe the trompettes, Josua sayde vnto the people: Make a shoute, for the LORD hath delyuered you the cyte: Notwithstondyng this cyte, and all that is therin, shalbe damned vnto the LORD: * onely the harlot Rahab shall lyue, and all that are with her in the house, for she hyd the messaungers, whome we sent forth. * Onely beware of it that is damned, lest ye dāne youre selues (yf ye take ought of it which is damned) and make the hoost of Israel to be damned and bryngе it in to myshfortune. But all the syluer & gold, with the ornamētes of bralle and yron, shal be sanctifyed vnto the LORDE, that it maye come to the LORDES treasure. Josua.7.a

Then made the people a greate shoute and the prestes blewe the trompettes (for whan the people herde the noyse of the trōpettes, they made a great shoute) * and the walles fell, and the people clymmed vp in to the cyte, euery one strayght before hym. Thus they wanne the cyte, and * destroyed all that was in the cyte with the edge of the sweard, both man and woman, ponge and olde, ore, shepe, and asse. Heb.11.a Deu.20.d

But Josua sayd vnto ꝑ two men, which had spyed out the londe: Go into the house of the harlot, and bryngе out the womā frō thence with all that she hath, accordyng as ye haue swore vnto her. Then the ponge men (the spyes) wente in, and brought forth Rahab with hir father and mother, and bre thren, and all that she had, and all hyr kynrede, and caused her to dwell without the hoost of Israel. As for the cyte, they brent it with fyre, and all that was therin: onely the syluer and golde, and ꝑ ornamētes of bralle and yron, put they vnto the treasure in the house of the LORD: but Josua let * the harlot Rahab lyue, with hyr fathers house, & all that she had: and she dwelt in Israell vnto this day, because she had hyd the messaū gers whō Josua sent vnto Jericho to spye. Heb.11.a Jame.2.c

At the same tyme sware Josua, and sayd: * Cursed be that man before the LORDE, whiche setteth vp this cyte of Jericho and buyldeth it. Whan he layeth the fundacion therof, lette it cost hym his fyrst sonne: And whan he setteth vp ꝑ gates of it, let it cost hym his ponguest sonne. Thus the LORDE was with Josua, so that he was spoken of, in all londes. 3.Re.16.b

The.viii. Chapter.

But * ꝑ chyldren of Israel had I compitted a synne in the thyng that was damned: for Achan the sonne of Charmi, the sōne of Sabdi, the sōne of Zarah of ꝑ tribe of Juda, toke some of it that was damned. Then was the wrath of the LORD fearce ouer the chyldren of Israell. Deut.7.f Josue.6.b 1.Mac.5.f

Now whan Josua sent out men frō Jericho vnto Hai, which lyeth beside Bethauen on the east syde of Bethell, he sayde vnto them: Go vp, and spye ꝑ londe. And whā they had gone vp, and spyed out Hai, they came agayne to Josua, and sayde vnto him Let not all the people go vp, but vpon a two or thre thousande, that they maye go vp and smyte Hai, lest all the people wery them selues there, for they are but few.

So ther wente vp, of the people vpon a thre thousande men, and they fled before the men of Hai, and they of Hai smote vpō a xxx and thirtye men of them, and chaced thē frō the porte vnto Sebarim, and smote them downe the waye. Then was the harte yo fal.22.b of the people discouraged, * and became lyke water. As for Josua he rente his clothes, & fell vpon his face vnto the earth before the Arke of the LORDE vntyll the euenynge, w the Elders of Israell, and caste dulle vpon theyr heades.

Deu.9.a And Josua sayde: * Oh LORD LORDE, wherfore hast thou broughte this people ouer Jordane, to delyuer vs in to the handes of the Ammorites to destroye vs? O ꝑ we had taried beyonde Jordane, as we beganne. O my LORDE what shall I saye, whyl Israel turneth his backe vpō his enemyes? When the Cananites heare of this, they shall compasse vs rounde aboute, yee and rote out our names from of the earth. What wylte thou do then vnto thy greate name?

The sayd ꝑ LORD vnto Josua: Stōde vp, why lyest thou so vpō thy face? Israel hath offended, and transgressed ouer my cō uenaunt, which I cōmaunded them. They haue taken also of the thynge that was dā ned, and haue stolen, and dissembled, and layed it amonge theyr ornamētes. The chil dren of Israel are not able to stonde before theyr aduersaryes, but muste turne theyr backes vpon theyr enemyes: for they are ac cursed: I wyll nomore be with you from hencefoorth yt ye put not out ꝑ damned frō among you.

C Stonde vp, and sanctifye the people,
1.Re.16.a and saye: Sanctifye youre selues agaynste tomorow, for thus sayeth the LORDE God
Deu.13.c and.17.b of Israell: * Ther is a damned thynge in ꝑ O Israel, therfore canst thou not stonde be fore thyne enemyes tyll ye putte awaye the damned frō amonge you. And ye shall syse vp early, one trybe after another: and loke whiche trybe soeuer the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one kynred after ano ther: and loke which kynred the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one house after another. And loke what house the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one housholder after another. And whosoeuer is foūde in the curse, the same shall be burnt in ꝑ fyre w all that he hath: because he hath gone beyonde the conuenaunt of the LORDE and cōmytted folye in Israell.

Then Josua gat hym vp by tymes in the morynge, and brought forth Israell one trybe after another, & the tribe of Juda was take. And whan he had broughte forth the kinreds in Juda, the kynred of ꝑ Sera hites was taken. And whā he had brought forth ꝑ kynred of the Serahites, one house holde after another. Sabdi was take whan he had broughte forth his house one housholder after another. Achan the sone of Charmi, the sone of Sabdi, the sonne of Serah, of the trybe of Juda, was taken.

And Josua sayde vnto Achan: My sone: geue the glory vnto the LORDE the God of Israell: and geue him the prayse, and tell me, what thou hast done, and hyde nothing from me.

Then answered Achā vnto Josua, and sayde: Verely I haue synned against the LORDE God of Israell, thus and thus haue I done: I sawe amōge the spoyles a fayre Babilonysh garmēt, and two hundreth sicles of syluer and a tunge of golde, that was fyfty sicles in weyght, vnto which I had a lust, and toke it: and beholde, it is hyd in the groūde in my tēte, & the syluer vnder

Then Josua sent messangers, which rāne to the tente, and beholde, it was hyd in his tente, & the syluer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tent, and brought it vnto Josua, and to all the children of Israell and powred it before the LORDE. Josua and all Israel with hym, toke the sonne of Serah with the syluer, the garment, and golde tūge, his sonnes & doughters, his oxen and asses, and sheepe, that he had, brought they in to the valley of Achor.

And Josua sayd: For so muche as thou hast troubled vs, the LORD trouble þ this daye. And all Israel * stoned hym, and burned hym with fyre with all that he hadde. And whan they had stoned hym, they made ouer hym a great heape of stones, which remayneth vnto this daye. (So the LORDE turned from the rygorousnes of his wrath) Therfore is the same place called the valley of Achor vnto this daye.

The.viii.Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: * Feare not, and be not afrayed. Take all the men of warre with the, and syse, & get the vp vnto Hai. Beholde, I haue geuen in to thy hande, the kynge of Hai, with his people in his cyte and contre. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, * as thou dyddest with Jericho and þ kynge therof, sauynge that ye shall * deale amonge you theyr spoyle and cattell: but set thou a * prouy watch behynde the cyte.

Then Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp vnto Hai: and Josua chose fyue thousande fyghtynge men, and sent them out by nyght, and commaunded them and sayd: Take hede, ye shall be the prouy watch behynde the cyte, but go not to farre from the cite, & se that ye be redy altogether to fyght me and al the people that is with me we shall get vs to the cyte. And whan they come forth agaynst vs (* as afore) we shall flye before them, that they maye folowe out after vs, tyll we haue prouoked them forth of the cyte: for they shall thynke that we flye before them, lyke as at the fyrst. And whyle we flye before them, ye shall get you vp out of the prouy watch, and wynne the cyte. For the LORDE your God shall delyuer it in to your handes. But whā ye haue wōne the cyte, set fyre vpō it, doynge * accordyng vnto the worde of the LORDE. Beholde, I haue commaūded it you.

So Josua sent them awaye, and they went vnto the place of the prouy watche, and laye betwixte Bethell and Hai, on the weste syde of Hai. But Josua abode þ nyght amonge the people. And in the morynge he rose early, and set the people in order, & went by with the Elders of Israel before the people towarde Hai: and all the men of warre that were with hym, wente vp, and got them forth, and came ouer agaynst the cyte, and pytched theyr tentes on the north syde of Hai, so that ther was but a valley betwene hym and Hai.

He had taken aboute a fyue thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch betwene Bethell and Hai, on the weste syde of the cyte, and they ordred þ people of þ whole hooste that was on the northsyde of the cyte, so that the vttermost of the people reached vnto the west ende of the cyte. So Josua wente the same nyght in to the myddes of the valley.

But whan the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made haist, and gat hym vp early, and þ mē of the cyte, to mete Israel to the battail, with al his people, euen ryght before þ feld: for he wyst not that ther was a prouy watch behynde hym on the backe syde of the cyte. But Josua and all Israel were feble before them, and fled by the way to the wildernesse. Then cryed all the people in the cyte, þ they shulde folowe vpō them, and they folowed after Josua and rushed out of the cyte, so þ ther remayned not one man in Hai and Bethel, which wente not out to folowe vpō Israel, and they lefte the cyte stondynge open that they myght persecute Israel.

Thē sayd þ LORDE vnto Josua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thyne hāde towarde Hai: for I wyll delyuer it in to thy hande. And whā Josua reached out þ spear that was in his hande, towarde the cyte, the hynder watch brake vp out of theyr place, & ranne (whā he had stretched out his hande) and came in to the cyte and wāne it, & made haist, and set fyre vpō it. And the mē of Hai turned them, and loked behynde them, & the smoke of the cyte wente vp toward heauen and they had no place to flye vnto, nother hyther nor thyther: and the people that fled towarde the wildernesse, turned about to folowe vpon them.

And whan Josua and all Israel sawe þ the hynder watch had wonne the cyte (for þ smoke of the cyte ascended) they turned agayne, and smote the men of Hai. And they in the cyte came forth also agaynst them, so that they came in the myddes amonge Israell on both the sydes, and they slewe them so that ther was not one man of them lefte ouer or escaped: and they toke the kynge of Hai alyue, and brought hym vnto Josua. And whā Israel had slayne al þ inhabiters of Hai, which had folowed vpō thē in þ feld and in the wyldernesse: & whan they were all fallen thorowe the edge of the swearde, tyl they were destroyed, thē turned al Israel vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of the swearde. And of all them which fel that day fro man vnto womã, ther were twelfe thousande, all men of Hai.

Nu.31.b Deu 20.c. Josu.8.a and.22.b

¶ But Josua withdrew not his hãde (wher with he reached out the speare) tyll al the inhabiters of Hai were vtterly destroyed, * saue vnto the cattell and the spoyle of the cyte, dyd Israel parte amonge them selues, accordynge vnto the worde of the LORDE, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua burned vp Hai, and made an heape therof for euer, which is there yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tre vntyll the euen.

Deu.21.b Josu.10.c

* But whã the Sõne was gone downe he commaunded to take his body from the tre, and to cast it vnder the gate of the cyte, & made vpon hym a graet heape of stones, which is there yet vnto this daye.

Then builded Josua an altare vnto the LORDE God of Israell vpon mount Ebal * accordynge as Moses the seruaũt of the LORDE commaunded the chyldren of Israel as it is wrytten in the boke of ỹ lawe of Moses, euen an altare of whole stone, whervpon ther was no yron lyfted: and he offered burntofferynges and thankofferynges, and there vpon the stone he wrote the seconde lawe of Moses, which he wrote before the chyldren of Israell.

Deu.27.a Exo 20.b

And all Israel with theyr Elders and officers and iudges, stode on both the sydes of the Arke, ryght ouer agaynst the prestes that bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE, the straũger as well as one of the selues, the one halfe besyde mount Grisim,

Deut.11.b and.27.b

and the other halfe beside mouṫ Ebal, * as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE cõmaũded afore, to bielle the people of Israel. Afterwarde caused he to proclame al the wordes of the lawe, of the biessynge & curssynge, as it is wrytte in the boke of the lawe. Ther was not one worde that Moses commaunded, but Josua caused it to be proclamed before all the congregacyon of Israel, and before the wemen, and chyldrẽ, and straũgers which walked amonge them.

The.ix. Chapter.

NOw whan all the kynges that were beyonde Jordane vpõ the mountaynes, and in the contrees, and in all ỹ hauens of the great see, and beside mount Lybanus, herde this (namely the Hethites, Ammorites, Canantites, Pherezites, Heuites and Jebusites,) they gathered them selues together with one accorde, to fyght gaynst Josua, and agaynst Israell.

* But whan the inhabiters of Gibeon herde, what Josua had done with Jericho and Hai, they dealt craftely, wente an other waye, and made a message & toke olde sakkes vpon theyr asses, and olde rente bottels, and olde mended shues vpon theyr fete, and put on olde and peced garmentes, and all ỹ bread of theyr vytayles was dry and moulde, and they wente vnto Josua to the hoost at Gilgall, and sayd vnto hym, and to euery man in Israel: We are come out of a farre contre, & therfore make vs a couenaũt with vs. Then sayd euery man in Israel vnto the Heuites: Peraduenture thou dwellest amonge vs, how can I make a couenaunt with the?

They sayd vnto Josua: We are thy seruauntes. Josua sayd vnto them: Who are ye, and whence come ye? They sayd: Thy seruauntes are come out of a farre contre, becaule of the name of the LORDE thy God. * for we haue herde the reporte of hym, and all that he dyd in Egipte, & all that he dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites beyonde Jordane, Sihon the kyng of Hesebon, and Og the kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Therfore sayd our Elders and all the inhabiters of our contre: Take vitayle you for youre iourney, and go meete them, and saye vnto them: * We are your seruauntes, therfore make now a bonde with vs. This our bread that we toke out of our houses for our foode, was newe whã we toke it for our iourney toward you: but now, lo, it is dry and moulded. And these bottels which were newe, and lo, they are rente. And these our clothes and shues are waxed old, by reason of the sore longe iourney.

Then the captaynes toke therof, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE. * And Josua made peace with thẽ, and dyd a couenaũt with them, that they should be saued alyue and the rulers of the congregacon sware vnto them. But after that they had made a couenaunt with them, they herd that they were theyr neyghbours, and dwelt amonge them. For the chyldren of Israel went forth on their iourney they came on ỹ thyrde day vnto their cities which are called Gibeõ, Caphirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath Jearim, and smote them not, because that the rulers of the congregacon had sworne vnto them by the

of the LORDE the God of Israell.

But whan all the congregacyon murmured against the rulers, al the rulers sayd vnto the whole congregacyon: We haue swore vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israel, therfore may we not touch them. But this wyll we do vnto them: Let them lyue, that ther come no wrath vpon vs, because of the othe that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto them: Let them lyue, that they maye be * hewers of wood, and bearers of water for the whole congregacyon, as the rulers haue sayd vnto them. Then Josua called them, and communed with them, and sayd: Wherfor haue ye deceaued vs, and said, that ye were farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs: Therfore shall ye be cursed, so that of you ther shall not ceasse seruaūtes to hew wood and to beare water for the house of my god.

They answered Josua, & sayd: It was tolde thy seruauntes, that the LORDE thy God commaunded Moses his seruaunt, ỹ he shulde geue you the whole lande, & that he wolde destroye all the inhabiters of the lande before you: therfore were we sore afrayed of our lyues before you, & thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy hādes: take what thou thynkest good and ryght to do vnto vs, that do.

And he dyd euen so vnto them, and delyuered the from the chyldren of Israels hāde, ỹ they shuld not slaye the. So vpon ỹ same daye Josua made them hewers of wood, & water bearers for the congregacyon, & for the altare of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shall chose.

The.x. Chapter.

WHan Adonisedech the kynge of Jerusalem herde, that Josua had wonne Hai, and damned it as he had done vnto Hai & ỹ kynge of it, lyke as he dyd vnto Jericho and to the kynge therof, * and ỹ they of Gibeon had made peace with Israell, & were come vnder the, they were sore afrayed: for Gibeon was a great cyte, lyke as one of the kynges cytes, and greater then Hai and all the cytesyns therof were men of armes. Therfore sent he vnto Hoham ỹ kyng of Hebron, and to Phiram kynge of Jarmuth, to Japhia the kynge of Lachis, and to Debir the kynge of Eglon, and caused to saye vnto them: Come vp vnto me, and help me that we maye smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace with Josua and the chyldren of Israel. Then came the fyue kynges of the Ammorites together, and went vp: the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon, with all they armyes, and layed sege vnto Gibeon, and fought agaynste ti.

Howbeit they of Gibeon sent vnto Josua at Gilgal, and caused to saye vnto him: Withdraw not thyne hande from thy seruauntes, come vp soone vnto vs: delyuer & helpe vs, for all the kynges of the Ammorites that dwell vpon the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynst vs. Josua went vp from Gilgall, and all ỹ warriers and al the men of armes with hym. And the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: * Feare them not, for I haue geuen them in to thy hāde. Ther shall not one of them be able to stande before the. * So Josua came sodenly vpō them, for all that nyght went he vp from Gilgall. * And the LORDE discomfited them before Israell, and smote them with a great slaughter at Gibeon: and they chaced them ỹ waye downe to Bethhoron, and smote them vnto Aseka and Makeda.

And whan they fled before Israel, ỹ way downe to Bethoron, the LORDE caused a great hayle from heauen to fal vpon them, vnto Aseka, so that they died: and many mo of them dyed of the hayle, then the chyldren of Israell slewe with the swearde.

Then spake Josua vnto the LORDE the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Ammorites before ỹ chyldren of Israell and sayd in the presence of Israel: * Sōne, holde styll at Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Ialon.

Then the Sonne helde styl, & ỹ Moone stode, vntyll the people had auenged them selues on they enemyes. Is not this wrytten in the boke of the ryghteous? Thus the Sonne stode styll in the myddes of heauē, and deferred to go downe for the space of a whole day after. And ther was no day lyke vnto this (nother before nor after) whan the LORDE herkened vnto the voyce of one mā for the LORDE fought for Israel. And Josua went agayne to Gilgal in to ỹ tentes, and all Israel with hym. As for ỹ fyue kynges, they were fled, and had hyd them selues in the caue at Makeda.

Thē was it tolde Josua: We haue fould the fyue kynges hydde in the caue at Makeda. Josua sayd: Rolle great stones [illegible] fore the hole of the caue, and set men ther to kepe them.

As for you, stande ye not styll, but folow after your enemyes, and smyte the behynde and let them not come in they cyties, for the LORDE your God hath delyuered them in to your hande. And whā Josua and the chyldren of Israel hadde ended the sore greate slaughter vpon the, so that they were brought to nought, the remnaunt of them came into the stronge cyties.

So all the people came agayne to the hoost vnto Josua to Maketa in peace, and noman durst moue his tunge agaynst the chyldren of Israell. Josua sayde: Open the mouth of the caue, and bryng the fyue kynges forth vnto me. They dyd so, and brought the kynges vnto hym out of the caue the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon.

When these fyue kynges were brought forth vnto hym, Josua called euery man of Israel, and sayd vnto the rulers of the men of warre that went with hym: Come forth and tread vpon the neckes of these kynges with your fete. And they came forth & trode vpon they neckes with they fete, and Josua sayd vnto them: Be not afrayed & feare not: be stronge and bolde, for thus shall the LORDE do vnto all your enemyes, agaynst whom ye fyght.

And Josua smote them afterwarde and Josu.10.f. put them to death * and hanged them vpon Deut.21.d fyue trees. And they hanged styll vpon the trees vntyll the euenynge. * But whan the Sonne was gone down, he cōmaunded to take them of from the trees: and they caste them in the caue, wherin they had hyd them selues, and before the hole of the caue they layed great stones, which ar there yet vnto this daye. The same daye wanne Josua Maketa also, and smote it with the edge of Deu.20.c the swearde, and the kynge therof, and * dāned it, and all the soules that were therin, & let none remayne escaped, and dyd vnto the Josu.6.g kynge of Maketa * as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

The Josua and al Israel wt him departed fro Maketa vnto Libna and fought agaynst it. (And the LORDE gaue it with the kynge therof in to the hande of Israel) and smote it and all the soules that were therin with the edge of the swearde, and let not one remayne in it, and dyd vnto the kynge therof as he had done vnto the kynge of Jericho.

After warde wente Josua and all Israel with him from Libna vnto Lachis, layd sege vnto it, and fought agaynst it. And the LORDE delyuered Lachys also in to the hande of Israel, so that they wanne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin, accordynge to all as he had done vnto Libna. At the same tyme Horam kyng of Gozer went vp, to helpe Lachis. But Josua smote hym with all his people, that remayned not one.

And Josua wente with all Israell from Lachis, vnto Eglō, and layed sege vnto it, and fought agaynst it, and wanne it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swearde and damned all the soules that were therin the same daye, accordynge vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that went Josua with all Israel from Eglon vnto Hebron, and fought agaynst it, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swearde and the kynge of it, and all the cyties therof, and all the soules that were therin, and let not one remayne, and dynge vnto all as he had done vnto Eglon and damned it, and all the soules that were therin.

Then turned Josua agayne with all Israel to warde Debir, and fought agaynst it and wanne it, with the kynge of it, & all the cyties therof, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, and damned all the soules that were therin and let not one remayne. Euen as he had done vnto Hebron & Libna with they kynges, so dyd he also vnto Debir, and the kynge therof.

Thus Josua smote all the lande vpon the mountaynes, and towarde the south, & in the lowe contrees, and by the tyrres, with they kinges, and let not one remayne, and damned al that had breth, as the LORDE God of Israel had commaunded. Thus Josua smote them from Cades Barne to Gaza, and all the lande of Gosen vnto Gibeon, & toke all these kynges and they lande at one tyme: for the LORDE God of Israel fought for Israel. And Josua came agayne wt al Israel to the tētes vnto Galgal.

The.xi. Chapter.

When Jabin the kynge of Hasor herde this, he sent vnto Jobab the kynge of Madon, and vnto the kynge of Symron, and vnto the kynge of Achsaph, & vnto the kynges that dwelt towarde the north mountaynes, and in the lowe syde of Cinerot, and in the lowe and to the Carthage west, to the Amorites, and Jebusites, and to the Heuites in the lande of Mizpa, all they armye as the sonde of the see ny horses and charettes gathered them togither by the water with Israell.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Josua, them not, for to morowe this tyme will I delyuer them all slayne before the chyldren of Israell. Houghe they sholde, and burne they charettes.

And Josua came vpon them sodenly, all the men of warre with him, and fell vpon them by the waters of Merom, and the LORDE delyuered them into the hande of Israel, and they smote them and chased them vnto great Sidon, and vnto Misrephoth Maim, and to the playne of Mizpe, and smote the, vntyll they had no more left.

Then dealed Josua with them as the LORDE had sayd vnto him: houghed they horses, and brent they charettes with fyre. And he turned backe at that tyme, and wanne Hasor, and smote the kynge therof with the edge of the swearde (for Hasor was before all these kyngdomes the chefe) and damned all the soules that were therin, as he had done vnto Jabin and to the kynge of Madon, and to the kynge of Symron, and to the kynge of Achsaph, and vnto all that had breth, and burned Hasor with fyre. All the cyties of these kynges wanne Josua also, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, and damned them, as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE had commaunded.

Howbeit the cyties that stode vpon they hylles, dyd not Josua burne, saue Hasor only: but he burned it. And all the spoyle of the cattell, dyd the chyldren of Israell take amonge them vnto they owne vse. But the edge of the swearde smote they all, and let none remayne that had breth. As the LORDE had commaunded Moses his seruaunt Moses, so commaunded he Josua euen so dyd Josua, and left nothynge vndone of all that the LORDE had commaunded Moses.

So Josua wanne all the mountaynes, and mountaynes, and in the playne on the south syde of Cineroth, and in the lowe contrees and in the lordshippes of Dor by ye see syde and to the Cananites towarde the east and west, to the Ammorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes and to the Heuites, vnder mounte Hermon in the lande of Mispa. These wente out w all their armyes, a great people, as many as the sonde of the see, and exceadynge many horses and charrettes. All these kynges gathered them selues and cam, and pitched together by the water of Merom, to fyght with Israell.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: Fear them not, for to morowe aboute this tyme will I delyuer thē all slayne, before ye chyldren of Israell: thou shalt lame their horses, and burne their charrettes with fyre.

*And Josua came sodenly vpon them, and all the men of warre with hym by the water of Merom, and fell vpon them. And ye LORDE delyuered them in to the handes of Israel, and they smote them, and chaced them vnto great Sidon and to the warme water and to the playne of Mispa towarde ye east & smote thē, vntyll ther remayned not one.

Then dealt Josua with them as ye LORDE had sayd vnto him, and lamed their horses, and brent their charrettes. And he turned backe at the same tyme, and wanne Hasor, and smote the kynge of it w the sweard (for Hasor was, afore tyme the heade cyte of all these kyngdomes) and smote al the soules ye were therin with the edge of ye sweard and damned it, and let nothynge remayne that had breth, & damned Hasor with fyre. Al the cyties of these kyngdomes wāne Josua also, and smote them with ye edge of the sweard, and damned them, *accordyng as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE comaunded.

Howbeit the cyties that stode vpon the hylles, dyd not the chyldrē of Israel burne with fyre: but Hasor only dyd Josua burne *And all the spoyles of these cyties and the cattell, dyd the chyldren of Israell deale amonge them but smote all the men with the edge of the sweard, tyll they had destroyed them, and let nothynge remayne that had breth. As the LORDE commaunded his seruaunt Moses, and as Moses commaūded Josua euen so dyd Josua, so that ther was nothynge vndone of all that the LORDE cō maunded Moses.

So Josua toke all this lande vpon the mountaynes, and all that lyeth toward the south, and al the lande of Gosen, & the lowe contre, and the playne felde, and the mountayne of Israell with the valley therof, frō the mountayne that parteth the lande vp toward Seir vnto Baalgad, in the playne of mount Libanus beneth mount Hermon All they kynges toke he, and smote them, & put them to death. * Howbeit he warred a longe season with these kynges. Exo 17.b

yet was ther not one cyte, that yelded it selfe peaceably vnto the chyldren of Israel *(except the Heuithes, which dwelt at Gibeon) but they wanne them all with battayll. And this was done so of the LORDE, that their harte was so hardened, to come agaynst thē chyldren of Israell with battayll, that they myghte be damned & no fauoure to be shewed vnto them, but to be destroyed. *as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses. Josu.9.a Deu 20.c.

At the same tyme came Josua, and roted out the Enakims from the mountayne, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, frō euery mountaine of Juda, & frō euery mountayne of Israell, & dāned thē with their cyties, and let none of the Enakyms remayne in the lande of the chyldren of Israel, saue at Gasa, * at Gath, at Asdod, there remayned of them. 1.Re.17.8

Thus Josua conquered all the lande accordynge vnto all as the LORDE sayd vnto Moses, and gaue it vnto Israel to enheritaunce, * vnto euery trybe his porcyon, & the lande rested from warre. Nu.26.f

The.xii. Chapter.

These are the kinges of ye lande, whome the chyldren of Israell smote, and conquered their lande, beyonde Jordane, Eastwarde, from the water of Arnon, vnto mount Hermon, and vnto all the playne felde towarde the east: * Sihon the kynge of the Ammorites, whiche dwelt at Hesbon, and hath dominion frō Aroer that lyeth by the water side of Arnon, & vnto the myddes of ye water: and ouer halfe Gilead, Nu.21.b Deu.2.f

These are the kynges of the lande, whō Josua and the children of Israel smote on this syde Jordane westwarde, frō Baalgad vpon ꝑ playne of mount Libanus, vnto the mount that parteth the lande vp towarde Seir, and that Josua gaue vnto ꝑ tribes of Israell in possession, vnto euery one his parte, what soeuer was in the mountaines, valleyes, playne feldes, by ꝑ ryuers, in the wyldernesse and towarde the south, the Hethites, Ammorites, Cananites, Pheresites, Heuites, and Jebusites.

These are one and thyrtye kynges.

The.xiii.Chapter.

NOw whan Josua was olde, & well stryken in age, the LORD sayd vnto him: Thou art olde, and well aged, and ther remayneth yet muche of the lande to conquere, namely, all Galile of the Philistines, and all Gessuri, from Sihor which lyeth before Egipte, vnto the border of Cron, northward, which is rekened vnto the Cananites: fyue lordes of the Philistines, namely, the Gasites, the Asdodites, ꝑ Askalonytes, the Gethites, the Ekronites, & the Iuites. But from the south it is all ꝑ lande of the Cananites, and Maara of the Sidonians vnto Aphek, euen vnto the borders of the Ammorites. Moreouer the lande of the Giblytes and all Libanus eastward, from Baalgad vnder mount Hermon, vntil a man come vnto Hamath. All they that dwell vpon the mout, frō Libanus vnto ꝑ warme waters, and all the Sidonias. I will dryue them out before the children of Israel. Onely let them be dealt out among Israel as I haue commaunded the.

Deuyde thou this lande now to enherytaunce amonge the nyne trybes & the halfe tribe of Manasse. * For the Rubenites and Gaddites with the halfe tribe of Manasse haue receaued their enherytaunce, which Moses gaue them beyonde Jordane eastwarde, *acrordynge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue them the same, from Aroer which lyeth vp by the waterstyde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the water, and all the coastes of Medba vnto Dibon, and all the cyties of Sihō the kynge of the Ammorites, which dwelt at Hesbon, vnto the border of the children of Ammon: Gilead and the border of Gessuri and Maachati, and all mount Hermon, and all Basan vnto Salcha: all the kyngdome of Og in Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, that remayned yet ouer of Raphaim. For Moses smote them and droue them out.

The children of Israel droue not out the Gessurites & Maachathites, but both Gessur and Maachat dwelte amonge the children of Israel vnto this daye. * Vnto the tribe of the Leuites he gaue no enherytaunce: for the offerynge of the LORDE God of Israel is their enherytaunce, accordynge as he hath promysed them.

* So Moses gaue vnto the tribe of the children of Rubē after their kynredes, that their border was Aroer, which lyeth vpon the waterstyde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the same water, with all the playne felde vnto Medba, Hesbon, and all the cyties therof whiche lye in the playne felde: Dibon, Bamoth Baal, and Beth Baal Meon, Jahza, Kedemoth, Mephaath, Kiriathai, Sibama, Zereth Sahar, vpon the mout Emek, Bethpeor, ꝑ ryuers by Pisga and Beth Jesimoth, & all the cities vpō the playne, & all the realme, of Sihon kynge of the Ammorites, which dwelt at Hesbō, * whō Moses smote with the prynces of Madian, Eui, Reké, Sur, Hur, and Reba, ỹ myghty men of kynge Sihon, which were inhabiters of ỹ londe. And Balaá the sōne of Beor the prophecyer, dyd the chyldré of Israel kyll with the swearde amonge ỹ other that were slayne, and the border of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordane. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben amonge their kynreds, cyties and villages.

Unto the trybe of the chyldren of Gad amōge their kynreds gaue Moses, so that they border was, Jahesar and al the cities in Gilead, and the half londe of the chyldrē of Ammon, vnto Aroer, which lyeth before Rabbath: and from Hesbon vnto Ramath Mispe and Betonim: and frō Mahanaim vnto the border of Debir. But in the valley, Beth Haram, Beth Nimra, Suchoth and Saphon (which remayned yet of the reame of Sihon kynge of Hesbon) and was by Jordane, vnto the edge of the see of Cineroth, on this syde Jordane Eastwarde. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Gad in they kynreds, cityes and villages.

* Unto ỹ halfe trybe of ỹ chyldré of Manasse after they kynreds, gaue Moses so, that they border was fro Mahanaim, all Basan, all the kyngdome of Og kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jair which lye in Basan, namely thre score cities. And halfe Gilead, Astaroth, Edrei, the cyties of the kyngdoms of Og at Basan, vnto the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasse. This is the halfe porcyon of the chyldren of Machir after they kynreds.

This is it that Moses dealte out vpon the feide of Moab beyonde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde. * But vnto ỹ trybe of Leui gaue Moses no enheritaūce: for the LORDE God of Israell is they enheritaunce, as he hath promysed them.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

THis is it that the chyldre of Israel haue enherited in the lōde of Canaan, * which Eleazar ỹ preste, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and ỹ chefe of the fathers amonge ỹ trybes of the chyldren of Israell parted out amonge them. * But by lot dyd they deuyde it out amonge thē, accordynge as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses to geue vnto the nyne trybes and ỹ halfe. For vnto the two trybes & the halfe dyd Moses geue enheritaūce beyōde Jordane. * But vnto ỹ Leuites he gaue no enheritaunce amonge them. * For of the chyldren of Joseph ther were two trybes, Manasse and Ephraim. Therfore gaue they the Leuites no porcyō in the londe, but cities to dwell therin, and suburbes for their cattell and goodes. * Euen as the LORDE commaunded Moses so dyd the chyldren of Israell, and deuyded the londe. Josu.13.b Gen.48.c Nu.35.a

B Then came forth the chyldren of Juda to Josua at Gilgall, and Caleb the sōne of Jephune ỹ Kenisite & sayde vnto hi: Thou knowest what the LORD * sayde vnto Moses the man of God, concernynge me, and the in Cades Bernea. I was forty yeare olde, whan Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE * sente me out from Cades Bernea to spye out the londe, & I brought hym worde agayne, euē as I had it in myne hart. Howbeit my brethré that wente vp with me, discoraged the harte of the people: but I folowed the LORDE my God vnto the vttemost. Nu.14.a Nu.13.a

C Then sware Moses vnto me the same day, and sayde: The londe where vpō thou hast trodden with thy fote, shalbe thyne enhertaunce and thy chyldrens for euer, because thou hast folowed ỹ LORDE my God vnto the vttemost. And now hath the LORDE letten me lyue, * accordynge as he sayd. It is now fyue and forty yeare sence the LORDE spake this vnto Moses, whan Israell walked in the wylderneße. And now lo, this day am I fyue and foure score yeare olde, * and am yet as stronge to daye, as I was in that day, whan Moses sent me out: euen as my strength was than, so is it now also to fyght, and to go out and in. Nu.14.b Eccl.46.b

D Geue me now therfore this mountayne wherof the LORDE spake in that daye: and thou herdest it the same daye. For now the Enakims dwell theron, and it hath greate and stronge cities: yf happily the LORD wyl be with me, that I maye dryue them out, as he hath sayde. Then Josua blessed hym, * and so gaue Hebron vnto Caleb the sōne of Jephune, therfore was Hebron the enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune ỹ Kenesite, vntothis day, because he folowed the LORD God of Israel vnto the vttemost. * But afore tyme was Hebron called Kiriath Arba, and great people were there amōg the Enakims. And ỹ lōde ceased frō warre. 1.par.7.b Josu.21.b Josu.15.a

The.xv. Chapter.

A THe lot of the trybe of the chyldre of Juda amõge theyr kynreds, was the coast of Edõ by the wyldernesse of Zin, which bordereth southwarde on the edge of the south countrees. Their south borders were from the vttemoost syde of ỳ salt see, that is, frõ ỳ coast that goeth southwarde, and cõmeth out from thẽce towarde the eastsyde of Acrabim, & goeth forth thorow Zinna, and yet goeth vp from ỳ south towarde Cades Bernea, and goeth thorow Hesrõ, and goeth vp to Adara and fetcheth a compasse aboute Carcaa, and goeth thorow Asmona, and cõmeth forth to the ryuer of Egypte so that the see is the ende of the border. Let this be your border southward.

But the east border is from the salte see to the vttemost parte of Jordane.

B The border northwarde, is from the see coast which is on the edge of Jordane, and goeth vp vnto Beth Hagla, and stretcheth out from the north vnto Beth Araba, and commeth vp vnto the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben, and goeth vp vnto Debir from the valleye of Achor, and frõ the north coast that is toward Gilgall, whiche lyeth ouer agaynst Adumim vpwarde, which is on the southsyde of the water. Then goeth it vnto the water of Ensemes, and cõmeth out vnto the * well of Rogell. Then goeth it vp to the valley of the sonne of Hinnam, alonge besyde the Jebusite that dwelleth southwarde that is Jerusalem: and cõmeth vp vnto the toppe of the moũt whiche lyeth before the valley of Hinnã westwarde that bordereth on the edge of the valleye of Raphaim towarde the north.

C Then cõmeth it frõ the toppe of the same mount vnto the water well of Nephtoah, and cõmeth out vnto the cyties of mounte Ephron, and boweth towarde Baala, that is Kiriath Jarim and fetcheth a compasse aboute from Baala westwarde vnto mount Seir, and goeth by ỳ northside of the moũt Jarim, that is Chesalõ: and cõmeth downe to Bethsemes, and goeth thorow Thimna, and breaketh out in the northsyde of Acron and stretcheth forth towade Sicron, and goeth ouer mount Baala, and cõmeth out vnto Jabneell, so that they vttemost border is the see.

The west border is the greate see. This is the border of the childzen of Juda roũde aboute in theyr kynredes. Caleb the sonne of Jephune had his portion geuen among the chyldzen of Juda (as the LORDE cõmaũded Josua) namely * Kiriath Arba, the father of Enak, that is Hebron.

* And Caleb droue from thence the three sõnes of Enak, Sesai, Ahiman, and Thalmas begotten of Enak. And from thence he wẽte vp to the inhabiters of Debir. (Before Debir, it was called Kiriath Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb sayd: * Who so smiteth Kiriath Sepher & wynneth it, I will geue him my dougther Achsa to wyfe. Then Athniell the sonne of Kenas the brother of Caleb wãne it: and he gaue him his dougther Achsa to wyfe.

And it fortuned whã they wente in, that she was counceled of hir husbande, to aske a pece of lãde of hir father. And she fell downe from the asse. Then sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Geue me a blessynge, for thou haste geuen me a south (and drye) londe: geue me welles of water also. Then gaue he her welles aboue and beneth.

This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the childzen of Juda amõge theyr kynredes. And ỳ cyties of the trybe of the childzen of Juda, one to another by the coastes of the Edomites towarde the south, were these: Cabseel, Eder, Jagur, Kina, Dimona, Adada: Kedes, Hasor, Jethnam, Siph, Telem, Bealot, Hasor Hadatha, Kiriath Heron, that is Hasor: Amam, Sema, Molada, Hasar Gadda, Hesmon, Beth Palet, Hasar Sual, Beer Seba, Bisiothia, Baala, Jim, Esem, Eltholad, Chesill, Harma, Ziklag, Medemanna, Sansanna, Lebaoth, Silhim, Ain, Rimon. * These are nyne and twenty cities and theyr villages.

But in the lowe contrees was Esthaol, Zaren, Asna, Saroah, Engannim, Thapua, Enam, Jarmoth, Adullam, Socho, Asseka, Saaraim, Adithaim, Gedera, Gederothim. These are fourtene cities and theyr villages.

Zenam, Hadasa, Migdalgad, Dilean, Mispa, Jaktheel, Lachis, Bazkath, Eglon, Chabon, Lachman, Chithlis, Gederoth, Bethdagon, Naama, Makeda, These sixtene cities and theyr villages.

Libna, Ether, Asen, Jephthah, Asna, Nezib, Keila, Achsib, Maresa. These nyne cityes and theyr villages. * These hyr doughters and vyllages. From Ain vnto the see, all that reacheth vnto Ashdod and ỳ villages therof. Aldod with ỳ daughters and the villages therof. Gasa with hir doughters and the vyllages vnto ỳ brooke of Egipte. And the greate see is his bor-

But vpon the mount was Samir, Jattir, Socho, Danna, Kiriath Sanna that is Debir: Anab, Esthemo, Anim, Golen, Holon, Gilo. These are eleuen cyties and theyr villages. Arab, Duma, Eshan, Janum, Beth Tapuah, Aphека, Humpta, Kiriath Arba, that is Hebron, Zior. These are nyne cities and theyr villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, Juta, Jesraell, Jakdeam, Sanoah, Kain, Gibea, Thimna. These are ten cities and theyr villages. Halhull, Bethzur Gedor, Maarath, Beth Anoth, Elthekon. These are sixe cyties and theyre vyllages, Kiriath Baall (ꝑ is Kiriath Jearim) Harabba: two cityes & theyr villages. And in the wyldernesse was Betharaba, Middin, Sechacha, Nibsan, and the salt cyte & Engaddi. These are sixe cities & their villages.
*But ꝑ Jebusites dwelt at Jerusalē, & the chyldrē of Juda could not dryue thē awaye So the Jebusites remayne with the chyldrē of Juda at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

The.xvi. Chapter.

AND the lot fel vnto the chyldrē of Joseph from Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, vnto the water on the Eastsyde of Jericho and the wyldernesse, ꝑ goeth vp from Jericho thorow the mountayne of Bethell, and commeth out from Bethel vnto Lus, and goeth thorow ꝑ coast of Archi Itaroth, and stretcheth downe westwarde vnto the coast of Japhleti to the border of the lower Bethoron, and vnto Gaser: and ꝑ ende therof is by the greate see. This the chyldrē of Joseph, Manasses, and Ephraim receaued to enheritaunce.

The border of the chyldren of Ephraim among theyr kynreds of theyr enheritaūce from the east, was Itaroth Adar vnto the vpper Bethoron, and goeth out westward by Michmethath that lyeth towarde the north, there fetcheth it a compasse towarde the eastsyde of ꝑ cyte Thaenath Silo, and goeth there thorow from the east vnto Janoha, and commeth downe from Janoha vnto Itaroth and Naaratha, and bordereth on Jericho, and goeth out at Jordane. From Tapuah goeth it westward vnto Nahalan, and the outgoynge of it is at the see.

This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim amonge theyr kynreds. And all the borders, cyties with their villages of the chyldren of Ephraim lay scattered amonge the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Manasse. * And they dryue not out the Cananites, which dwelt at Gaser. So ꝑ Cananites remayned amōge Ephraim vnto this daye and became tributaries.

The.xvii. Chapter.

AND the lot fell vpon the tribe of Manasse, (for * he is Josephs fyrst sonne) and it fell vpon Machir the fyrst sonne of Manasse the father of Gilead: for he was a man of armes, therfore had he Gilead and Basan. It fell also vnto the other chyldren of Abieser, the chyldrē of Helek, the chyldren of Asriel, the chyldrē of Sechem, the chyldren of Hepher, and ꝑ chyldren of Semida. These are the chyldrē of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, males amonge theyr kynreddes. * Gen.42.c

* But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse: had no sonnes, but doughters: and theyr names are these: Mahala, Noa, Hagla, Milca, Tirza, and they came before Eleasar the prest, and before Josua the sonne of Nun and before ꝑ rulers, and sayde: The LORDE commaunded Moses, to geue vs an enheritaunce amonge oure brethren. And so they had enheritaunce geuen them amonge theyr fathers brethren, accordynge to the commaūdement of the LORDE. Nu.27.d and 36.a

Ther fell vpon Manasse ten meetynesse without the londe of Gilead and Basan, whiche lyeth beyonde Jordane. For the doughters of Manasse receaued enheritaunce amonge hys sonnes: but ꝑ other chyldren of Manasse had the londe of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was frō Asser forth vnto Michmethath, that lyeth before Sichem, and reacheth vnto ꝑ right syde of them of En Tapuah: for the londe of Tapuah fel vnto the tribe of Manasse: and the border of Manasse, is vnto the chyldren of Ephraim. Then commeth it downe to Nahelcana towarde the south syde of the ryuer cities, whiche are Ephrayms amonge the cities of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the ryuer, and goeth forth by ꝑ seesyde, southward vnto Ephraim, and to Manasse northwarde, and the see is his coaste. And it shal border on Asser from the north and on Issachar from the easte.

* So (amonge Issachar and Asser) Manasse had Beth Sean and the townes thereof, and Jeblaā and the townes thereof, and them of Dor and theyr townes, and them of En Dor and theyr townes, and Judi.1.a

them of Taanach and theyr townes, and them of Mageddo and theyr townes, and the thirde parte of (the cite) Nopher. And ỳ chyldren of Manasse coulde not dryue away the inhabiters of these cities but the Cananites beganne to dwell in the same londe. Howbeit whan the chyldren of Israel were able, they made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

Then spake the chyldren of Joseph vnto Josua, and sayd: Wherfore hast thou geuen me but one porcyon and one meetlyne of enheritaunce, and I am yet a great people, as the LORDE hath blessed me so largely? Then sayd Josua vnto them: For so muche as thou arte a greate people, go vp therfore in to the wood, and make thy selfe rowme there in the londe of the Pherezites and Raphaim, seynge mounte Ephraim is to narow for the.

D Then sayde the chyldren of Joseph: We shall not be able to attayne vnto the mountaynes, for ther are yron charrettes among all the Cananites, that dwel in the londe of Emek, by whom lyeth Beth Sean and the villages therof, and Israell in Emek. Josua sayd vnto the house of Joseph, euen to Ephraim and Manasses: Thou art a great people, & for so much as thou art so great, thou must not haue one lot, but the mountayne where the wood is, shalbe thyne: rote that out for the, so shal it be the out goynge of thy porcyon, whan thou dryuest out the Cananites, which haue yrõ charrettes, and are myghtie.

The.xviii.Chapter.

I AND all the multitude of ỳ chyldren of Israell gathered them selues together vnto Silo, & they set vp the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the lõde was subdued vnto them. But ther were yet seuen trybes of the chyldren of Israell, vnto whõ they had not deuyded theyr enheritaunce. And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israell: How longe are ye so slowe, to go and conquere the londe, which the LORDE God of youre fathers hath geuẽ you? Chose you thre men out of euery trybe, ỳ I may sende them, and that they may get thẽ vp and go thorowe the lande, and describe it accordynge to the enheritaũces therof, and come vnto me.

Deuyde the londe in seuen partes. Judas shall remayne vpon his borders of the southsyde: and the house of Joseph shall remayne vpõ his borders of the north parte but describe ye ỳ londe in seuẽ partes, and brynge thẽ vnto me, thẽ shal I cast ỳ lotte you before the LORDE our God, * For ỳ Leuites haue no porcion amonge you, but ỳ presthode of the LORD is their enheritaunce. * As for Gad, and Ruben, and ỳ half trybe of Manasse, they haue receaued theyr enheritaunce beyonde Jordane eastwarde, which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue them.

Then the men gat vp, to go theyr waye. And whan they were aboute to go for to describe the londe, Josua cõmaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and walke thorow the londe, and describe it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast the lot for you before the LORD at Silo. So ỳ men departed, and wente thorow the londe, and described it in seuen partes vpon a letter in a booke, and came to Josua in to the hoost at Silo. Then Josua cast lot ouer thẽ at Silo before the LORDE, and there distributed the londe amõge the chyldren of Israell, vnto euery one his parte.

And the lot of the trybe of the chyldren of Ben Jamin fell accordynge to theyr kynredes, and the border of theyr lot went out betwene the chyldren of Juda, and the chyldren of Joseph. And their border was on the northquarter of Jordane, and goeth vp from the northsyde of Jericho, and clymmeth vp to the moũtayne westwarde, and goeth out by the wyldernesse of Bethaun, and goeth from thẽce towarde Lus, euen by the south syde of Lus (that is Bethel) and commeth downe vnto Atarothadar by ỳ mountayne, whiche lyeth on the southsyde of the lower Bethoron. Then boweth it downe, and fetcheth a compasse into the southwest quarter from the mount that lyeth ouer agaynste Bethoron towarde the south, and goeth out vnto Kiriath Baall that is Kiriath Jearim, a cyte of the chyldren of Juda. This is the west border.

But the south border is from Kiriath Jearim forth, and goeth out towarde the west, and commeth forth vnto ỳ water well of Nephthoah: and goeth downe by ỳ syde of the mount, that lyeth before the valley of the sonne of Hinnam: and goeth downe thorow the valley of Hinnam on the south syde of the Jebusites, & cõmeth downe to the wel of Rogel, & stretcheth frõ he northwest and cõmeth out vnto En Semes, and commeth forth to ỳ heapes that lye vp towarde Adummim & cõmeth downe vnto the

For so muche as the enheritaunce of ỹ chyldren of Juda was to great for them, therfore inherited the children of Symeon amonge their enheritaunce.

The thirde lot fell vpon the chyldren of Zabulon after theyr kynreds. And the border of theyr enheritaunce was vnto Sarid and goeth vp westwarde to Mareala, and bordereth vpon Dabaseth, and reacheth vnto ỹ ryuer that floweth ouer agaynste Jakneam: and turneth from Sarid eastwarde vnto the border of Chisloth Thabor, and cõmeth out vnto Dabrath, and reacheth vp to Japia, and frõ thence goeth it westward thorowe Githa Hepher, and Ithakazim, & commeth out towarde Rimon, Hamthoar Hanea, and fetcheth a compasse aboute frõ the north vnto Nathõ, and the goynge out B ofit is in the valley Jephtah, Elkatath, Nahalal, Simron, Jedeala, and Bethlehem: These are twolue cities and theyr villages This is the enheritaunce of the children of Sabulon in their kynreds, these are the cyties and villages.

The sixte lot fell vpon the trybe of the chyldren of Asser, after theyr kynreds. And theyr border was Helkath, Hali, Betẽ, Achsaph, Alamelech, Amead, Missheall, and bordereth on Carmell vnto the see, and on Sihor, and Libnath, and turneth towarde the east vnto Beth Dagon, and bordereth on Zabulon, and on the valleye of Jephtaell, and towarde the north syde of Beth Emek and Negiel, and commeth out vnto Cabull on the left syde of Ebron, Rehob, Hamon & C

And their border was from Heleph Elon thorow Zaanaim, Adami Neked, Jabneel vnto Lakum, & goeth out vnto Jordane, and turneth westwarde to Asnoth Thabor, and cõmeth out from thẽce vnto Hukok, and bordereth on Zabulon towarde the south, and on Asser toward the west: and on Juda by Jordane towarde the east: and hath stronge cyties, Ziddim, Zer, Hamath Rakath, Chinnaret, Adama, Rama, Hasor, Kedes, Edrei, En Hasor, Jereon, Migdal, Elharen, Beth Anath

D The seuēth lot fell vpō the trybe of ỹ chyldré of Dan after their kynreds & the bozder of their cheritaūce was Zarea, Elthaol, Jr lames, Saalabin, Aialō, Jethla, Elō, Thinata, Ekrō Eltheke, Gibethō, Baalath, Jehud, Buerbarak, Gat Rimō, Me Jarkon, Rakon with the bozder by Japho, and on the same goeth the bozder of the chyldré of Dan out. And the chyldré of Dan wēte vp, and fought agaynst Lesem, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of ỹ sweard, and toke it in possession, & dwelt therin, and cal-

And whan the londe was all parted out with the bozders therof, the chyldren of Israell gaue Josua the sonne of Nun an enheritaunce amonge them, and (accozdynge to the cōmaundement of the LORDE) they gaue hym the cyte that he requyred, name-

Nu.34.d * These are the enheritaūnces whiche Eleasar the pzeste and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the chefest of the fathers among the trybes deuyded out by lot vnto the chyldren of Israell at Silo befoze the LORDE euen befoze the doze of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and so they ended the deuydynge out of the londe.

The.xx. Chapter.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Josua, and sayde: Speake to the chyldré of Israel: Geue amog you fre cities * wherof I spake
Exo.21.b vnto you by Moses, ỹ a dead-
Deu.19.c slayer which slayeth a soule vnwares & vnwyttyngly, may flye thither, that they may be fre amōge you frō the auenger of bloud. And he that flyeth to one of those cytyes shall stonde without befoze the pozte of the cyte, and shewe his cause befoze the Elders of the cyte, then shall they take him to them in to the cyte and geue hym place to dwell with them.

B And ỹ the auenger of bloude folow vpon hym, they shall not delyuer ỹ deadslay-er in to his handes, foz so much as he hath slayne his neyghboure vnwares, and was not his enemye afoze: but he shall dwell in the cyte, tyll he stonde befoze the congregacyon in iudgement, vntyll the hye priedye, whiche shalbe at that tyme. Then shall the deadslayer returne, & go vnto his owne cyte, & vnto his house to the cyte, frō whens he was fled.

Then appoynted they Kedes in Galile vpon mount Nephtali: and Sechem vpon mount Ephzaim: And Kiriatharba, that is Hebzon vpon mounte Juda: And beyonde Jozdane on the eastsyde of Jericho, they gaue Beser in ỹ wildernesse vpon ỹ playne out of the trybe of Ruben: And Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Ruben: And Ramoth in Giliad out of ỹ trybe of Gad: And Golā in Basan out of ỹ trybe of Manasse.

These were the cityes appoynted for all the chyldren of Israell, and foz the straungers which dwelt amonge them, that who soeuer had slayne a soule vnwares, might flye thether, ỹ he shulde not be put to death by the auenger of bloude, tyl he had stonde befoze the congregacyon.

The.xxi. Chapter.

THen the cheke fathers among the Leuites came foth vnto Eleasar ỹ prest and to Josua the sonne of Nun, and to the auncyent fathers among the trybes of the chyldren of Israell, and spake vnto them at Silo in the londe of Canaan and sayd: * The LORD cōmaunded, by Moses, that we shulde haue cyties gruen vs to dwell in, and the suburbes of the same for our cattell. Then the chyldren of Israell gaue of theyr enheritaunce these cities and the suburbes therof, vnto the Leuites, accozdynge to the cōmaundemēt of ỹ LORDE.

And the lot fell vpon the kynred of the Kahathithes, and the chyldren of Aaron ỹ prest amonge the Leuites, had by ỹ lot thir-tene cyties of the trybe of Juda, of ỹ trybe of Simeon, and of the tribe of Benjamin. The other chyldren of Kahath of the same kynred had by the lot ten cities, of the trybe of Ephzaim, of the halfe trybe of Dan, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

But the chyldren of Gerson of the same kynred had by the lot thirtene cyties, of the trybe of Issachar, of ỹ trybe of Aser, of the trybe of Nephtali, and of the tribe of Manasse at Basan.

The chyldré of Merari of theyr kynred had twelfe cyties, of the trybe of Ruben, of the trybe of Gad, and of the trybe of Zabulon. So the chyldren of Israell gaue cyties & theyr ſuburbes vnto ỹ Leuites by lot, as the LORDE cõmaũded by Moſes.

Of the tryde of the chyldren of Juda, & of tryde of the chyldrẽ of Simeõ, they gaue theſe cities (which they named by name) vn to the chyldren of Aaron of the kynrede of the Kahathites amonge the chyldren of Leui: for the fyrſt lot was theyrs.

So they gaue them Kiriatharba, which was the fathers of Enack, that is Hebron vpon ỹ mount Juda, & the ſuburbes therof rounde aboute. * But the felde of the cyte & the vilages therof, gaue they vnto Caleb the ſonne of Jephune for his poſſeſſion.

Thus gaue they vnto the chyldren of Aaron the preſt, the fre cyte of the deadſlayers, Hebrõ and the ſuburbes therof, Libna and the ſuburbes therof, Jathir and the ſuburbes therof, Eſthuma and ỹ ſuburbes therof. Holon and the ſuburbes therof, Debir and the ſuburbes therof, Ain and the ſuburbes therof, Juta and the ſuburbes therof, Beth Semes and the ſuburbes therof, euen nyne cyties of theſe two trybes.

But of ỹ tryde of Ben Jamin they gaue foure cyties, Gibeon and the ſuburbes therof, Gaba and the ſuburbes therof, Anathot and the ſuburbes therof, Almõ and the ſuburbes therof: ſo that all the cyties of ỹ chyldren of Aaron the preſt were thyrtene with theyr ſuburbes.

The kynredes of the other chyldren of Kahath the Leuites, had by theyr lot foure cyties, of the tryde of Ephraim & they gaue them the fre cyte of the deadſlayers, Sechẽ and the ſuburbes therof vpon mouñt Ephraim, Gaſer and the ſuburbes therof, Kibzaim and the ſuburbes therof, Bethorõ & the ſuburbes therof.

Of the tryde of Dan foure cyties, Elthece and the ſuburbes therof, Gibthon and the ſuburbes therof, Jalon and the ſuburbes therof, Gath Rimon and the ſuburbes therof. Of the halfe tryde of Manaſſe two cyties, Thaenach and the ſuburbes therof, Gath Rimon and the ſuburbes therof: ſo ỹ all the cyties of the other chyldren of ỹ kynred of Kahath, were ten wt theyr ſuburbes.

But vnto the chyldren of Gerſon amõge the kynredes of the Leuites were geuen. Of the halfe tryde of Manaſſe two cyties, the fre cyte of the deadſlayer, Gola in Baſã and the ſuburbes therof. Beaſthra and the ſuburbes therof. Of the tryde of Iſachar foure cyties, Kiſion and ỹ ſuburbes therof, Dabrach and ỹ ſuburbes therof, Jarmuth and the ſuburbes therof, Engannim and ỹ ſuburbes therof. Of the tribe of Aſſer foure cyties, Miſeal, Abdon, Helkath, and Rehob with the ſuburbes therof. Of the tryde of Nephtali thre cyties, the fre cyte Kedes for the deadſlayer in Galile, Hamoth, Dor, & Kartha with the ſuburbes therof: ſo that all cyties of the kynred of the Gerſonites were thyrtene with theyr ſuburbes.

Unto the kynredes of Merari the other Leuites were geuen. Of the tryde of Zabulon foure cyties, Jakmean, Kartha, Dimna and Nahalal with the ſuburbes therof. Of the tryde of Ruben foure cyties, Bezer, Jahza, Kedemoth and Mephaat with theyr ſuburbes. Of the tryde of Gad foure cities, the fre cyte for the deadſlayer, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaim, Helbon, and Jaeſer with theyr ſuburbes: ſo that all the cyties of the chyldren of Merari amonge theyr kynreds of the other Leuites, were twelfe. Thus all the cyties of the Leuites amonge the poſſeſſion of the chyldren of Iſrael, were tyght & forty with theyr ſuburbes. And theſe cyties were ſo dealt out, that euery one had theyr ſuburbes rounde aboute, the one as ỹ other.

Thus the LORDE gaue the chyldrẽ of Iſrael all the lande, which he had ſworne vnto theyr fathers to geue: & they toke poſſeſſion of it, and dwelt therin. And ỹ LORDE gaue them reſt brſyde all thoſe that were aboute them * lyke as he ſware vnto theyr fathers, and none of theyr enemyes ſtode agaynſt them, but all theyr enemyes delyuered he in to theyr hande. And they myſſed nothynge of all the good that the LORDE had promyſed vnto the houſe of Iſrael, it came euery whyt.

The.xxii. Chapter.

When Joſua called the Rubenites and Gaddites, and the halfe tryde of Manaſſe, and ſayd vnto them: ye haue kept al * that Moſes the ſeruaũt of the LORDE commaunded you, and haue herkened vnto my voyce in all that I haue commaũded you. Ye haue not forſaken your brethren a longe ſeaſon, vnto this daye, & haue wayted vpon the commaundement of the LORDE your God. For ſo much now as the LORDE your God hath brought your brethren to reſt, as he promiſed them, turne you now and go youre wayes to your tentes in to the lande of youre poſſeſſion, which Moſes the ſeruaunt of the LORDE gaue you, beyond Jordane.

Num.32.f Deut.3.b Joſu.12.a

But take diligent hede now, that ye do accoꝛdynge to the commaundement & lawe whiche Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE hath commaunded: * That ye loue ꝓ LORDE your God, and walke in all his wayes, Deut.10.c and kepe his commaundemẽtes, and cleue vnto hym, and serue hym with al your hart and with all your soule. So Josua blessed them, and let them go. And they wente vnto theyꝛ tentes.

Unto the halfe tryb̃e of Manasse had Moses geuen possession at Basan, vnto the other halfe gaue Josua amonge theyꝛ bꝛethꝛen on this syde Joꝛdane westwarde. And whan he let them go to theyꝛ tentes & blessed them, he sayde vnto them. ye come agayne with great good vnto your tentes, with exceadynge much cattell, syluer, golde Deu. 20.d Nu. 31. b Josue. 8.f 1. So ꝓ Rubenites, Gadditꝛs, and ꝓ halfe tryb̃e of Manasse returned, and went from the chyldꝛen of Jsrael out of Silo (whiche lyeth in the lande of Canaan) to go in to the contre of Gilead to the land of theyꝛ possession, that they myght possesse it, accoꝛdynge to the commaundement of the LORDE by Moses.

C And whan they cam vnto the heapes by Joꝛdane, which lye in the lande of Canaaa the same Rubenites, Gadditꝛs, and ꝓ halfe tryb̃e of Manasse buylded there besyde Joꝛdane, a fayꝛe great altare. But whan ꝓ chyldꝛen of Jsrael herde saye: Beholde, the chyldꝛen of Ruben, the chyldꝛen of Gad, ꝓ halfe tryb̃e of Manasse haue buylded an altare ouer agaynst ꝓ lande of Canaã vpon ꝓ heapes by Joꝛdane on this syde the chyldꝛen of Jsrael, they gathered them selues together with the whole cõgregacyon at Silo, to go vp agaynst them with an armye. And (in ꝓ meane season) they sent to thẽ in to the lãde of Gilead, Phineas the sõne of Eleasar the pꝛest, & with hym ten chefe pꝛynces amõge ꝓ houses of theyꝛ fathers, out of euery tryb̃e in Jsrael one. And they came to the chyldꝛẽ of Ruben, to the chyldꝛen of Gad, and to the halfe tryb̃e of Manasse in the lande of Gilead, and sayd:

D Thus sayth the whole congregacyon of Judi, 20.b the LORDE vnto you: * What trespasse is this, that ye haue trespassed agaynst the God of Jsraell, that ye shulde turne backe from the LORDE this daye, to buylde you an altare, foꝛ to fall awaye from the LORDE?

Num.25.a * Haue we not ynough of ꝓ wyckednesse of Peoꝛ, from the which we are not pur-

Then answered the chyldꝛen of

What haue ye to do with the LORDE

Therfoꝛe sayde we: Let vs

And we sayd: But yf they

oure fathers made, not for sacrifice, nor for burntofferynge, but for a wytnesse betwene vs and you.

God forbyd, that we shulde fall awaye from the LORDE, to turne backe frō hym this daye, and to buylde an altare for sacrifice, for burntofferynge, and for ony presēt, without the altare of the LORDE our God, that standeth before this Habitacyon.

6 But whā Phineas the prest, and ỳ chefe of the congregacyon, the pynces of Israel which were with hym, herde these wordes, that the chyldren of Ruben, Gad and Manasse had spoken, they pleased them well. And Phineas the sonne of Eleasar ỳ preste sayd vnto the chyldren of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse: This daye, we knowe ỳ the LORDE is amonge vs, in that ye haue not trespassed agaynst the LORDE in this dede. Now haue ye delyuered the chyldren of Israel out of the hande of the LORDE.

Then Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and the rulers returned out of ỳ lande of Gilead, from the chyldren of Ruben, and Gad, vnto the lande of Canaan to the chyldren of Israel, and brought them worde agayne of the matter.

Then were the chyldren of Israell well content with the thynge. And they praysed the God of Israell: and sayd nomore ỳ they wolde go vp agaynst them with an armye, to destroye the lande that the chyldrē of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the chyldren of Ruben and Gad called the name of the altare: This altare be wytnesse betwene vs, that the LORDE is God.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

1 AND after a longe season, whan the LORDE had brought Israel to rest from all theyr enemyes rounde aboute: & Josua was now olde and well stryckē in age, he called al Israel and theyr Elders, heades, iudges, and officers, and sayd vnto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue sene all ỳ the LORDE youre God hath done vnto all these nacyons in your syght. For ỳ LORDE youre God hymselfe hath foughte for you. * Beholde, I haue parted amonge you the remnaunt of the nacyons by lot, vnto euery tryde his enheritaunce from Jordane forth, and all ỳ nacyōs whom I haue rooted out vnto the great see westwarde.

3 And the LORDE your God shal thrust them out before you, and dryue them away from you, that ye maye haue theyr lande in possession, as the LORDE youre God hath promysed you. Be stroge now therfore, that ye maye obserue and do all that is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses: * so that ye turne not aside from it, nother to ỳ right hande nor to the lefte: that ye come not amonge the remnaūt of these nacyōs, whiche are with you: And se that ye make no mencion nor * sweare by the names of theyr goddes nother serue thē, nor bowe your selues vnto them: But cleue vnto ỳ LORDE your God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: then shall the LORDE dryue away great and myghtye nacyons before you, lyke as ther hath no man bene able to stande before you vnto this daye. * One of you shall chace a thousande: for the LORDE your God fyghteth for you, accordyng as he promysed you. Take diligent hede therfore vnto your soules, that ye loue the LORDE your God.

As for me and my house, we will serue the LORDE. Then answered the people and sayd: God forbyde, that we shulde forsake the LORDE, & serue other goddes. For the LORDE our God brought vs and our fathers out of ỹ lande of Egipte from the house of bondage, & dyd suche great tokens before our eyes, and preserued vs all the waye that we wente, and amonge all the nacyons, whom we trauayled by. And the LORDE thrust out before vs all the people of the Ammorites that dwelt in the lande. Therfore will we also serue the LORDE, for he is our God.

Josua sayd vnto the people: ye can not serue the LORDE: for he is an holy God, a myghtye, & gelous, which spareth not your transgressiõs and synnes. But yf ye forsake the LORDE, & serue a straunge God, * then shall the LORDE turne hym, & do you euell and consume you, after ỹ he hath done you good. The people sayd vnto Josua: nay, but we will serue the LORDE. The sayd Josua vnto the people: ye are wytnesses ouer your selues, that ye haue chosen you ỹ LORDE, to serue hym. And they sayd: ye. Then put awaye from you (sayd he) the straunge goddes that are amonge you, and enclyne your hart vnto the LORDE the God of Israell. And the people sayd vnto Josua: We will serue the LORDE our God and be obedient vnto his voyce. So Josua *made a conuenaunt with the people the same daye, and layed statutes and lawes before them at Sichem.

And Josua wrote this acte in the boke of the lawe of God * and toke a great stone, & set it vp there vnder an oke which was in the Sanctuary of the LORDE, and sayd vnto all ỹ people: Beholde, this stone shalbe a wytnesse ouer you. For it hath herde all ỹ wordes of the LORDE, which he hath spoken to vs, & shalbe a wytnesse ouer you, that ye denye not your God. So Josua let the people go euery one to his enheritaunce. * And it fortuned after these actes, that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the LORDE dyed, whan he was an hundreth & ten yeare olde, and was buryed in the border of his enheritaunce at Thimnath Serah, which lyeth on mount Ephraim, on the north side of mount Gaas. * And the chyldren of Israel serued the LORDE as longe as Josua lyued, and the Elders (that lyued longe after Josua) which knewe all the workes of the LORDE, ỹ he had done vnto Israel. * The bones of Joseph, which the chyldren of rael had brought out of Egipt, buryed they in Sichem, in the pece of the lande, * that Jacob bought of the childzen of Hemor the father of Sichem for an hundzeth pens, & was the enheritaunce of the childzen of Joseph. Eleasar the sonne of Aaron dyed also, and they buryed hym at Gibeath, whiche was Phineas his sonnes, that was geuen him vpon mount Ephzaim.

After the death of Josua the childze of Israel axed the LORDE & sayd: Who shal go vp and be oure captain of warre against the Cananites? The LORDE sayd: Juda shal go vp. * Behold I haue delyuered the lande in to his hande. Then sayd Juda vnto his brother Simeon: Go vp with me into my lotte, and let vs fyght agaynst þ Cananites, then wyll I go agayne with the in to thy lot: So Simeon went with hym. A Josu. 23. a

Now whan Juda wente vp, the LORDE deliuered the Cananites and Pherelites in to theyr handes, & they slewe ten thousande men at Besek, and they founde Adoni Besek at Besek, and fought agaynst hym, and slewe the Cananites, and Pherelites. But Adoni Besek fled, & they folowed after hym and whan they had ouertake hym, they cut of the thombes of his handes and fete.

Then sayd Adoni Besek: Thze score & ten kynges with the thombes of theyr handes and fete cut of, gathered vp the meate that was lefte vnder my table. * Now as I haue done, so hath God rewarded me agayne. And he was brought vnto Jerusalem, whete he dyed. B Leui. 24. d Judi. 15. a

But the childzen of Juda foughte agaynst Jerusalem, and wanne it, * & smote it with the edge of the swearde, and set fyze vpon the cyte. Then went the childzen of Juda downe, to fyght agaynst the Cananites, that dwelt vpon the mount, & toward the south, and in the valleys * and Juda went agaynst the Cananites, which dwelt at Hebzon. (As for Hebzon, it was called Kiriath Arba afozetyme) and they smote Sesai, and Achiman, and Thalmai. Deu. 20. a Josu. 15. b

C And from thence he wente agaynst the inhabiters of Debir (but Debir was called Kiriath Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb Iosu.15.d 2.par.12.a 1.Re.17.f sayd: * He that smytteth Kiriath Sepher, & wynneth it, I wyll geue hym my doughter Achsa to wyfe. Then Athniel the sonne of Kenas, Calebs yongest brother wanne it. And he gaue hym his doughter Achsa to wyfe. And it fortuned that whan they went in, she was councelled of hir husband, to aske a pece of lande of hir father. And she fel frō the asse. Then sayd Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayd: Geue me a blessynge for thou hast geuē me a south & drye land: geue me also a watery land. Then gaue he her a lāde þ was watery aboue and beneth.

And the Ammorites subdued þ chyldren of Dan vpon the mountayne, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Ammorites beganne to dwell in mount Heres at Aiolon, and at Saalbim. Howbeit the hande of the house of Joseph was to sore for them and they became tributaries. And the border of the Ammorites was, as a mā goeth vp toward Acrabim, from the rocke, and from the toppe.

The.ii.Chapter.

BVt ther came vp a messanger of the LORDE from Gilgal vnto Bochim, & sayde: I brought you vp hyther out of Egypt, and brought you in to the lande that I sware vnto your fathers, and sayd: * I wyll neuer breake my covenaunt with you, that ye shuld make no covenaunt with þ indwellers of this lande, but breake downe they? altares: Neuertheles ye have not herkened vnto my voyce. Wherfore haue ye done this? Then sayd I moreouer: I wyll not dryue them out before you, but they maye be a fall vnto you, and they? godes a snare. And whan the messanger of the LORDE had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people lyfte vp they? voyce, and wept, and called the name of place Bochim, and offred there vnto the LORDE.

For whan Josua had sent away the people and the chyldren of Israell were gone, euery one to his enherytaunce, for to take possession of the lände, * the people serued ỹ LORDE as longe as Josua lyued and the Elders, which lyued lõge after Josua, and that sawe all the greate worckes of ỹ LORD which he dyd for Israel.

B * Nowe whan Josua the sonne of Nun the seruannt of the LORDE, was dead (whã he was an hündreth and ten yeare olde) they buryed hym in ỹ border of hys enherytaũce at Timnath Heres vpon mount Ephraim on the northsyde of moũt Gaas. And whã all the same generacyon was gathered vnto theyr fathers ther came vp after them another generacyõ which knew not ỹ LORD nor ỹ worckes that he had done for Israell.

* Thẽ wrought the chyldren of Israell euell before the LORD, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the LORDE the God of their fathers (which brought them out of the lände of Egypte) and folowed other goddes, and the goddes of the nacyõs that dwelt roũde aboute them, and worshypped them, & displeased the LORDE: for they forsoke ỹ LORD euer more and more, and serued Baall and Astaroth.

C Then the wrath of the LORDE ware whote vpon Israell, and he delyuered thẽ in to the hãdes of those that spoyled them, that they myght spoyle them and solde thẽ in to the handes of theyr enemyes rounde aboute, & they were not able to withstonde theyr enemyes any more, but what waye so euer they wolde out, the hande of the LORD was agaynst them to theyr hurte (euen as ỹ LORDE sayde and sware vnto them) & they were sore oppressed.

Now whan the LORDE raysed them vp iudges, which helped thẽ out of the hande of such as spoyled them, they folowed not the iudges nother, but wente a whorynge after other goddes, and worshipped them, and were soone gone out of the waye that theyr fathers walked in, to heare ỹ cõmaundementes of the LORDE, and dyd not as they dyd.

But whan the LORDE raysed vp iudges vnto them, the LORDE was with the iudge, and helped them out of the hande of theyre enemyes, as longe as ỹ iudge lyued. * For the LORDE had pitye of theyr complaynte whiche they made ouer those that subdued them and oppressed them.

D * Neuertheles whan the iudge dyed, they turned backe, and marred all more thẽ

theyr fathers, so that they folowed other goddes to serue them and to bowe themselues vnto them: they wolde not fall frõ their purposes, nor from theyr obstynate waye.

Therfore ware the wrath of the LORD alwaye so whote ouer Israel, that he sayde: For so much as ỹ people haue transgressed my cõuenaunt, which I cõmaunded theyre fathers, and folowe not my voyce, I wyll from hence forth dryue out none of the Heythen, whome Josua left behynde hym, whã he dyed, * that by them he maye proue Israell, whether they wyll kepe the waye of ỹ LORD, to walk therin, as theyr fathers dyd, or not. Thus the LORDE suffered all these nacyons, so that in a shorte tyme he droue them not out, whome he had not geuẽ ouer into Josuas hande. Deu. 8. a and. 13. d

The.iij. Chapter.

THese are the nacyons, whome the LORD suffered to remayne, that by thẽ he might proue Israell, which had no vnderstondynge in the warres of Canaã onely because that the trybes of the chyldrẽ of Israel myght know and learne to warre which afore had no knowlege therof, namely: The fyue lordes of the Philistynes, and all the Cananites, and Sidonians, and the Hethites that dwelt vpon mount Libanus, fro mount Baal Hermon, vntyll a mã cõmeth vnto Hemath. Then the wrath of the LORD ware whote ouer Israell, and he solde thẽ vnder the hãde of Cusan Risathaim kynge of Mesopotamia, and so the chyldren of Israel serued Cusan Risathaim eight yeares. But Ehud put forth his left hãde, and toke the dagger from his ryghte thye, and thrust it in to his bely, so that the hefte went in also after the blade, and the fat closed the hefte: for he drue not the dagger out of his bely, and the fylthynes departed frõ hym. But Ehud gat hym out at the backe dore, & put to ỹ dore after him, & locked it.

Now whan he was gone, his seruaũtes came in, and sawe that the doore of the sommer parler was loked, and they sayde: peraduenture he is gone to the preuye in the syled somer parler.

D But whan they had wayted so longe tyl they were ashamed (for no man opened the parler dore) they toke the keye, and opened it. Beholde, thẽ laye their lorde dead vpon the earth. As for Ehud he was gone thẽ whyle they made so longe tarienge: and he wente ouer by ỹ Idols, and ranne his way vnto Seirath.

And whan he came in * he blewe the trumpet vpon mount Ephraim, and the chyldren of Jsraell wente with hym from the mount and he before thẽ, and he sayd vnto them: Folowe me, for the LORDE hath delyuered the Moabites your enemyes in to youre hãde. And they folowed hym, and wãne the ferye of Jordane, that goeth toward Moab, and suffred no man to go ouer, and at the same tyme they smote of the Moabites vpõ a ten thousande men, all nobles & men of armes, so that ther escaped not one. Thus were the Moabites brought vnder the hande of the chyldren of Jsraell at that tyme, and ỹ lãde was in reste foure score yeares.

Afterwarde was * Sangar the sonne of Anath, which slew fyue hũdreth Philistynes with a coulter gad, & delyured Jsrael alle.

The.iiii.Chapter.

BUt * the chyldrẽ of Jsrael dyd yet more euell before the LORDE, whã Ehud was dead. And the LORDE solde thẽ in to the hãde of Jabin the kynge of the Canaanites, which dwelt at Hazor, and ỹ chefe captayne of his hoost was Sillera, and he dwelt at Haroseth of the Heythen. And the chyldren of Jsraell cryed vnto the LORDE: for he had nyne hundreth yron charettes, and subdued the chyldren of Jsrael by violence twentye yeare.

At the same tyme was iudgelle in Jsraell the prophetysse Debora, the wyfe of Lapidoth, and she dwelt vnder the palme of Debora betwene Rama and Bethel, vpon mount Ephraim, and the chyldren of Jsraell came vp vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, * and called for Barak the sonne of Abi Noam of Kedes Nephtali, and sayd vnto hym. Hath not the LORDE the God of Jsraell cõmaunded the: Go thy waye, and get the vp vnto mount Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men of the children of Nephtali and Zabulõ? For J wyll make Sillera the cheke captayn of Jabins hoost to come to the vnto the * water of Cyson with his charrettes and wt his multytude, and J wyll delyuer hym in to thy hãde. Barak sayde vnto her: yf thou wilt come with me, J wyll go: but yf thou wylt not come with me, J wyll not go.

She sayde: J wyll go with the:

theleſſe the prayſe ſhall not be thyne in this tourneye that thou goeſt, but the LORD ſhal delyuer Siſſera in to a womās hande. So Debora gat her vp and wente with Barak
vnto Kedes. Then Barak called Zabulon and Nephtali vnto Kedes, & wente on foote with ten thouſande men. As for Heber the Kenite he was departed from the Kenites from the chyldren of * Hobab Moſes brother in lawe, and had pitched his tente by the Oke of Zaanaim beſyde Kedes.

Then was it tolde Siſſera, that Barak
the ſonne of Abi Noam, was gone vp vnto mount Thabor: and he gathered all his char rettes together, nyne hundreth yron charret-tes, and all the people that was with hym from Haroſeth of the Heythen, vnto the wa ter Cyſon. Debora ſayd vnto Barak: Vp, this is the daye wherin the LORD hath dely
uered Siſſera in to thy hande: for the LORD
ſhall go forth before the. So Barak wente fro mount Thabor, and ten thouſande men after hym.

C * But the LORDE diſcomfyted Siſſera with al his charrettes and hooſt, and made them afrayed of the edge of the ſwearde before Barak, ſo that Syſſera leapte of his charrette, and fled on foote. Neuertheleſſe Barak folowed vpon the chatrettes and the hooſt vnto Haroſeth of the Heythen, and al Sſſeras hooſt fell thorowe the edge of the ſwearde, ſo that not one eſcaped. As for Siſſera, he fled on foote vnto the tēte of Ja ell, the wyfe of Heber the Kenite. For ther was peace betwene kynge Jabin at Hazor
and the houſe of Heber the Kenite.

Iſrael wente forth to mete Siſſera, and ſayde vnto hym: Turne in my LORD, turne in to me, and be not afrayed. And he turned in vnto her in to the tente, and ſhe couered hym with a garment. He ſayde vnto her: I praye the geue me a lytle water to drynke,
for I am a thyrſt.

* Then opened ſhe a mylkepot, & gaue hym to drynke, and couered hym. And he ſayd vnto her: Stonde in the tent dore and yf one come and aſke, is ther ony man herelaye: Noman.

Thē Jael the wyfe of Heber toke a nayle
of the tente, and an hammer in hir hande,
and wente in preuely vnto hym, and ſmote
the nayle in thorowe the tēples of his heade, ſo that he ſanke to the earth. As for hym he was fallen on a ſlomber, and weery and ſo
he dyed.

But whan Barak folowed after Siſſe-ra, Jael wente for to mete hym, and ſayde

vnto hym: Come hyther, I wyll ſhewe the the man, whome thou ſekeſt. And whan he came in vnto her, he ſawe Siſſera dead, and the nayle ſtyckynge in hys temples. Thus God brought downe Jabin the kynge of Cananites before the chyldren of Iſrael at that tyme, and the hande of the chyldren of Iſrael wente and ſubdued Jabin the kynge of the Cananites, tyll they had roted hym out. Then Debora and Barak the ſonne of Abi Noam, ſange at that ſame tyme & ſayde:

Out of Machir haue teachers ruled, & out of Zabulon are ther become gouerners thorowe the wrytynge penne.

And out of Jssachar ther were prynces, with Debora, & Jssachar was as Barak in they valley, sent with his people on foote: As for Ruben, he stode hye in his owne concayte, and separated hym selfe from vs.

C Why abodest thou betwirte ꝑ borders whan thou herdest the noyse of the flockes? because Ruben stode hye in his owne concayte, and separated hymselfe from vs?

Gilead abode beyõde Jordane, and why dwelt Dan amonge the shyppes? Asser sat in ꝑ haue of the see, & tarved in his porcyõs.

He bowed himselfe downe at hir fete, he fell downe, and laye there. He sanke downe and fel at hyr fete: whã he had sonke down, he laye there destroyed.

His mother loked out at the wyndowe, & crydpyteously thorow the trallace: Why tarveth his charret out so longe, that he cõmeth not? Wherfore do the wheles of his charret make so longe tarvynge?

The wyselest amonge hyr ladyes answered and sayde vnto her: Shulde they not fynde and deuyde ꝑ spoyle, vnto every man a fayre mayde or two for a prayse, and party coloured garmẽtes of nedle worke to Sisera for a spoyle: partycoloured garmentes of nedle worke aboute the necke for a prayse.

Thus all thyne enemyes must perysshe O LORD: but they that loue the shalbe as the Sonne rysynge vp in his myght.

And the londe had peace foure yeares.

The.vi.Chapter.

AND whan * the chyldren of Jsraell dyd euell in the sight of ꝑ LORDE, the LORDE deliuered them vnder the hãde of ꝑ Madianites vii. yeares. And whan the hande of the Madianites was to myghtye ouer the chyldren of Jsraell, the chyldren of Jsraell made them clyffes in the mountaynes, caues and holes, to defende themselues from the Madianites. And whã Jsraell sowed ony thynge, the Madianites, and the Amalechites, and the chyldren toward the East came vp vpõ them, and pitched their tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the londe downe vnto Gasa, and let nothyng remayne ouer of the beastes in Jsrael, nother shepe, nor oxe, nor asses. For they came vp with they? cattel and tentes, as it had bene a greate multitude of grashoppers (so that nother they nor they? camels myght be nombred) and fell in to the londe that they myghte destroye it. So was Jsrael exceadynge small before ꝑ Madianites. Then cryed the chyldren of Jsrael vnto the LORDE.

But whan they cryed vnto the LORDE because of the Madianites, the LORDE sent them a prophete, whyche sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Jsraell: I caried you out of Egypt, & brought you out of the house of bondage, and deliuered you from the hande of the Egyptians and from the hãde of all thẽ that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you and geuen you they? londe and sayde vnto you: I am the LORDE youre God. * Feare not ye ꝑ goddes of ꝑ Ammorites, in whose lãde ye dwell: neuertheles ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce.

And ther came an angell of the LORDE & sat hym downe vnder an Oke at Ophra which belongeth vnto Joas the father of Esrites, and his sonne Gedeon was threshynge wheate in the barne, that he might thye awaye before the Madianites.

C Then appeared vnto hym the angell of the LORDE, and sayde vnto hym: The LORDE with the thou myghtye gyaunt. But Gedeon sayde vnto hym: Syr, yf the LORD be with vs wherfore is al this then happened vnto vs? And where are all the wonders which our fathers tolde vs, and sayd: The LORD brought vs out of Egipte? But now hath the LORDE forsake vs, and delyuered vs into the hande of the Madianites.

The LORDE turned hym vnto him, and sayd: Go thy way in this thy strength, thou shalt delyuer Israel out of the hande of the Madianites: * I haue sent þ. But he sayd: My LORDE wher withall shall I delyuer Israell? Beholde, my kynrede is þ smallest in Manasse, and I am þ leest in my fathers house: The LORDE sayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the, so that thou shalt smite the Madianites, euen as though they were but one man.

D He sayde vnto hym: yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then make me a token that it is thou, which speakest with me: go not awaye, tyll I come to the, and bringe a meatoffrynge, to set before the. He sayd: I wyll tary tyll thou commest agayne.

And Gedeon wente, and made ready a kydde, and an Eph. of vnleuended floure, and layed the flesshe in a maunde, and put þ broth in a pot, and broughte it forth vnto hym vnder the Oke, and came nye. But the angell of God sayde vnto hym: * Take the flesshe and the vnleuended bread, and set it vpon the stonye rocke that is here, & poure the broth theron. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the LORDE stretched out the staffe that he hadde in his hande, and with þ ende of it he touched the flesh and the vnleuēded floure: * and the fyre came out of the rocke and consumed the flesshe and the vnleuēded floure. And the angel of the LORDE vanyshed out of his sight.

C Now whan Gedeon sawe that it was an angell of the LORDE, he sayde: O LORDE LORDE, * haue I thus sene an angell of the LORDE face to face? The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Peace be with the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. Then Gedeon buylded an altare there vnto þ LORDE, and called it: The LORDE of peace. The same stondeth yet vnto this daye at Aphra, that belongeth vnto the father of the Estites.

And in the same nyght sayde the LORDE vnto hym: Take a fed bullocke frō amōge thy fathers oxen, and another bullocke of seuē yeare olde, and breake downe þ altare of Baall which is thy fathers, & cut downe the groue that stōdeth by it, and buyld thou an altare vnto the LORDE thy God aboue vpon the toppe of this rocke, and make it ready, and take the other bullock and offer a burntoffrynge with þ wood of the groue that thou hast hewen downe. Thē toke Gedeon ten men of his seruauntes, and did as the LORDE sayde vnto hym: but he was afrayed to do this by daye tyme, for his fathers house, and the people in the cyte, and so he dyd it by nyght.

Now whā the people in the cyte rose vp early in the morynge, Beholde, Baals altare was broken, & the groue hewen down by it, and the other bullocke a burntoffrynge vpon the altare that was buylded, & one sayde vnto another: Who hath done this? And whan they sought and made sear che, it was sayde: Gedeon the sonne of Joas hath done it. Then sayde the people of þ cyte vnto Joas: Bryng forth thy sonne, He must dye, because he hath brokē Baals altare, and hewen downe the groue therby. But Joas sayde vnto all thē that stode by hym: Wyll ye stryue for Baall? Wyll ye delyuer hym? He that stryueth for hym, shall dye this morynge. yf he be God, let hym auenge hym selfe, because his altare is broken downe. From that daye forth was he called Jerubaall because it was sayde: Let Baall auēge himselfe, that his altare is broken downe.

Whan the Madianites now and the Amalechites, and the chyldrē towarde þ south had gathered themselues together, & were passed thorowe (Jordane) and had pitched theyr tētes in the valley of Jesrael: þ spyrete of the LORDE endued Gedeon, and caused þ * tropet to be blowen, and called (the house of) * Abieser that they shulde folowe hym: and he sent messaungers vnto al Manasse, and called them, that they shuld folow him also: and he sent messaungers lykewyse vnto Aser, and Zabulō, and Nephtali, which came vp to mete hym.

Nu 10.8 Jud.3.b & Jud 6.a

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: yf thou wylt delyuer Israell thorow my hande, as thou hast sayde, then wyll I laye a flese, of wolle in the courte: yf the dew be onely vpō the flese, and dry vpon al the grounde, thē wyl I perceaue, þ thou shalt delyuer Israel thorow my hāde, as thou hast sayde. And it came so to passe. And whā he rose vp early on the morow, he wrange the dew out of þ flese, and fylled a dysshe full of water. And Gene.18.d Gedeon sayde vnto God *Be not wroth at me, that I speake yet this one tyme. I will proue yet but once with ỹ fleese, let it be drye onely vpon the fleese, and dewe vpon all the grounde. And God dyd so the same nyght: so that it was drye onely vpon the fleese, and dew vpon all the grounde.

The.vii.Chapter.

Judi.6.f Then *Jerubaall (that is Gedeon) gat hym vp early, and all ỹ people that was with him, and pitched theyr tentes beside the well of Harod: so that he hadde the hoofte of the Madianites on the northside beyonde the hyl of Moze in the valley. But the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: The people that are with the are to many for me to delyuer Madian in to theyre hande, lest Israell boast themselues agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath delyuered me. Cause a proclamacyon now to be made in the eares of the people, and say: *He that feareth and is afrayed, let him turne back, and get hym soone fro mount Gilead. Then returned ther of the people aboute two & twēty thousande, so that ther was lefte but ten thousande.

Deu.20.b 1.mac.3.g

And the LORD sayde vnto Gedeon. The people are yet to many: bryng them down to the water, there will I proue them for ỹ: and of whome I saye that he shall go with the, the same shall go with the: but of whō I say that he shall no go with the, the same shall not go. And he brought the people vn to the water. And the LORDE sayd vnto Gedeō: Whoso euer lycketh of the water with his tūge, as a dog lycketh, make hym stōde aside: & likewyse whosoeuer falleth downe vpon his knees to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had lycked out of the hande to the mouth, thre hundreth men. And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: Thorow the thre hundreth whiche haue lycked, will I delyuer you, and geue ouer the Madianites in to thy hande: As for the other people, let them go home euery man into his place.

And they toke vytayles with them in the people, and theyr trōpettes: but all the Israelites let he go, euery one vnto his And he strengthened hym selfe with the hundreth men: and the Madianites had laye before hym beneth in the valley. And the same nyght sayde the LORDE vnto him Up, and go down in to the hoost for I haue geuen thē ouer in to thy hāde. But yf thou be afrayed to go downe, the let thy seruaunt Pura go downe vnto the hoost, and thou mayest heare what they say: afterwarde shalt thou be bolde, and thy hande strong that thou mayest go downe in to the hoost.

Than wente Gedeon downe with his seruaunt vnto the vttermoste parte of the watchmen of armes that were in the hoost. And the Madianites and Amalechites and all the chyldren of the east, had layed themselues beneth in the valley, as a multitude of grashoppers, and theyr camels were without nōbre for multitude, euen as the sonde of the see shore. Now whan Gedeon came and beholde, one tolde another his dreame and sayde: Beholde, I haue dreamed a dreame. Me thought a baken barlye lofe came tumblynge downe to the hoost of the Madianites: and whan it came to the tente, it smote it, and ouerthrewe it, and turned it vpside downe, so that the tente fell. Then answered the other: That is nothynge els but the Swearde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas the Israelite: God hath geuen ouer the Madianites with all the hoost in to his hande.

Whan Gedeon herde this dreame and the interpretacyō of it, he worshipped and came agayne in to the hoost of Israel and sayde: Up, for the LORDE hath delyuered the hoost of the Madianites into your hande. And he deuyded the three hundreth men in to thre partes, and gaue them euery trompet in his hande, and empty pottes and lampes therin, and sayde vnto them *Loke vnto me, and do ye euen so: Beholde, whan I come to the vttermoste parte of ỹ hoost, euen as I do, so do ye also. When I blowe the trompet, and all that are with me, then shall ye blowe the trompettes rounde aboute all the hoost, and crye: For the LORDE and Gedeon. Thus came Gedeon and the thre hundreth men with him vnto the vttermoste parte of the hoost in the tyme whan the myd watche began, and waked vp the watchmen, with the trompettes, and smote asunder the pitchers in theyr handes.

So all the thre companies blewe with the trōpettes, and brake the pitchers. But the lampes helde they in theyr lefte hande,
and the trompettes in theyr ryght hande, so that they blewe and cryed: Here the swearde of the LORDE and Gedeon. And euery one stode in his place aboute ỹ hoost. Thē came all the hoost, and cryed and fled. And whyle the thre hundreth men blewe the trō pettes, the LORDE brought it so to passe, ỹ *euery mans swearde in all the hoost was agaynst another, and the hoost fledde vnto Bethsitha Zereratha, and vnto the border of the playne of Mehohab besyde Tabath.
And the men of Israel of Nephtali, of Aser,
and of Manasse cryed, and folowed vpon the Madianites.

And Gedeon sent messaungers vp vnto
all mount Ephraim, saynge: Come downe agaynst the Madianites, and stoppe ỹ water frō them vnto Beth Bara and Jordan.
And then cryed all they that were of Ephra im, and stopped the water from them vnto Beth Bara and Jordane, and toke two princes of the Madianites, Oreb and Zeb
and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke of Oreb, & Zeb in the wynepresse of Zeb, and folowed vpon the Madianites and brought the hea des of Oreb and Zeb, and vnto Gedeon ouer Jordane.

The.viij. Chapter.

AND the men of Ephraim sayde
vnto him: *Wherfor hast thou done this vnto vs, ỹ thou hast
not called vs, whan thou wentest forth to fyght agaynst the Madianites? and they chode sore with him
But he said vnto them: What haue I done now that is lyke your acte? Is not ỹ *after gatherynge of Ephraim better thē ỹ whole haruest of Abi Ezer? God hath delyuered ỹ
princes of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb
in to your hande, how coulde I do that ye haue done? Whan he had sayd this, they blast was swaged from hym.

Now whan Gedeō came vnto Jordan
he went ouer with the thre hundreth men ỹ were with hym, and they wer weery, and fo
lowed vpon theyr chace. And he sayd vnto the men of Sucoth: *I praye you geue the people ỹ are with me, some loaues of bread (for they are weery) that I may folowe vpō Zebea and Salmana the kynges of ỹ Ma dianites.

But the rulers of Sucoth sayd: Are the handes of Zebea & Salmana in thy hādes already, ỹ we must geue bread vnto thy me of warre? Gedeon sayd: Wel, Whā ỹ LORD delyuereth Zebea and Salmana in to my hande, I wyll threshe your flesh w thornes of the wyldernesse & with breares. And fro thence he went vp vnto Penuel, & spake euen so vnto thē. And ỹ mē of Penuel gaue hym lyke answere as they of Sucoth. And he sayd also vnto the men of Penuel: yf I come peaceably agayne, I wyll breake dow ne this tower.

As for Zebea & Salmana, they were at C
Karkar, & theyr hoost w thē vpon a fyftene thousande, which were al ỹ were left of the whole hoost of ỹ chyldrē of the East: for ther were fallen an hundreth and twenty thousande that coulde drawe the swearde.

And Gedeō went vp by the way, where they dwell in the tentes on the East syde of Nobah and Jakbeha, and smote the hoost,
for the hoost was carelesse, and mystrusted nothynge. And Zebea and Salmana fled, but he folowed after them, and toke ỹ two kynges of ỹ Madianites Zebea and Sal-mana, and put all the hoost in feare.

Now whan Gedeon the sonne of Joas came agayne from the battayll out of ỹ east he toke a lad from the men of Sucoth, and examined hym, which wrote hym vp the na mes of the rulers of Sucoth, & theyr elders
euen thre score and seuentene men.

And he came to the men of Sucoth, & D
sayd: Beholde, here is Zebea & Salmana, cōcernyng whom ye laughed me to scorne, & sayd: Are the handes of Zebea and Sal-mana in thy handes already that we must geue bread vnto thy men which are weery?
And he toke the elders of the cytie, and thor nes out of the wyldernesse, and breares, and caused the men of Sucoth to be borne ther-with. * And the tower Penuel brake he 3.Re.12.d.
downe, and slewe the men of the cytie.

And he sayd vnto Zebea and Salmana:
What maner of men were they whom ye slewe at Thabor? They sayd: They were euen lyke the, and goodly me, as yf they had ben a kynges chyldren. He said: They were my brethren, euen my mothers sonnes: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf ye had lette them lyue, I wolde not slaye you.

And he said vnto his fyrst borne sōne Je E ther: Stonde vp and slaye thē. Howbeit the lad drue not out his swearde, for he was a-frayed, for so much as he was yet but a lad.
Zebea & Salmana sayd: Stonde thou vp,

and slaye vs, for suche as the man is, suche is also his strēgth. So Gedeō arose, & slewe Zebea, and Salmana, and toke ꝯ ornamētes that were aboute theyr camels neckes.

Then sayd certayne in Israel vnto Gedeon: Be thou lorde ouer vs, thou & thy sōne and thy sonnes sonne, for so muche as thou hast delyuered vs from the hande of ꝯ Madianites. Neuertheles Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wyll not be lorde ouer you, nother shall my sonne be lorde ouer you, but ꝯ LORDE shalbe lorde ouer you.

F Gedeon sayd vnto them: One thynge I desyre of you. Euery man geue me ꝯ earing that he hath spoyled. (For in so much as the men were Ismaelites, they had earynges.) They sayd: Them wyll we geue the. And they spred out a cloth and euery man cast ꝯ earynge theron that he had spoyled. And ꝯ golden earynges which he requyred, had in weyght, a thousande & seuen hundreth Sycles of golde, besyde the spanges, and cheynes, scarlet rayment: which ꝯ kynges of the Madianites dyd weare, and besyde the net bandes of theyr camels. And Gedeon made an ephod therof, and set it in his cyte at Aphra. And al Israel went there * a whorynge after it, and it turned to an occasyon of fallynge vnto Gedeon and his house. Gen.16.b. and.20.b

G Thus were the Madianites broughte downe before the chyldren of Israel, & lyfte vp theyr heade nomore: and the lande was in rest fortye yeares, as longe as Gedeon lyued.

And Jerubaal the sonne of Joas went and dwelte in his house. And Gedeon * had thre score and ten sonnes, which were come out of his thye: for he had many wyues. And his concubyne which he had at Sichē bare hym a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sōne of Joas dyed in a good age, and was buried at Aphra in the sepulcre of his father Joas, the father of the Ezrites. 4.Re.10.a

But whan Gedeō was dead, * the chyldre of Israel turned back, & wēt a whorynge after Baalaim, & made a conuenaunt with Baal Berith, that he shulde be theyr God. And the chyldren of Israel thought not on the LORDE theyr God which had delyuered them from the hande of theyr enemyes rounde aboute: and they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubaal Gedeon, accordynge to all the good that he had done vnto Israel. Nu.25.a

The.ix.Chapter.

ABimelech the sonne of Jerubaal, went vnto Sichē to his mothers bretherē, and spake to them, and to all the kynred of his mothers fathers house, and sayd: I praye you speake in the eares of all the men at Sichem: What is best for you: that thre score and ten men all the dren of Jerubaal shuld be lordes ouer you or ꝯ one mā shuld be lorde ouer you. Remembre also that I am your bone & your flesh.

Then spake his mothers bretheren all these wordes for hym, in the eares of all the mē at Sichem. And they harkened to Abimelech, for they thought: He is our brother: and gaue hym thre score & ten syluerlynges out of the house of Baal Berith. And with them Abimelech hyred men that were vagabundes and of lyght conuersacion, which folowed hym: And he came to his fathers house vnto Aphra, * and slewe his bretheren the chyldren of Jerubaal, euen thre score men and ten vpon one stone. But Jotham the yongest sōne of Jerubaal remayned ouer for he was hyd. And all the men of Sichem, and all the house of Millo gathered them selues together, and went & made Abimelech kynge by the Oke that stode at Sichem.

Whan this was tolde Jotham, he went and stode vpon the toppe of mount Garizim and lyft vp his voyce, cryed, and sayde vnto me ye men of Sichē, that God maye hyre you also. * The trees wente to anoynte a kynge ouer them, & sayd vnto ꝯ Olyue tree: Be thou our kynge. But the Olyue tree answered thē: Shall I go & leaue my fatnesse (which both God & mē cōmend in me) ꝯ to be puft vp aboue ꝯ trees? Then sayd they vnto the fygge tree: Come thou and be kynge ouer vs. But the fygge tre sayd vnto them: Shall I leaue my swetnesse and my good frute, and go to be puft vp aboue the trees? Then sayd the trees vnto the vyne tree: Come thou and be our kynge. But the vyne tree sayd vnto them: Shall I leaue my swete wyne, which reioyceth God and men and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? Then sayd all the trees vnto the thorne bush: Come thou and be kynge ouer vs. And ꝯ thorne bush sayd vnto the trees: yf it be true, that ye anoynte me to be kynge ouer you, then come and put your trust vnder my shadowe. yf not, then let fyre out of the thorne bushe, and consume the Ceder trees of Libanus.

yf ye haue done ryght now and truly, in that ye haue made Abimelech to be kynge:

yf ye haue done wel vnto Jerubaall and to his house, and haue done vnto him as he deserued vnto you: Whiche (euen my father) fought for youre sakes, and peoparded his lyfe, to deliuer you out of the Madianites hande, euen you, whiche are rysen vp this daye agaynst my fathers house, and haue slayne his chyldren, thre score persones and ten vpon one stone, and haue made you a kynge (euen Abimelech the sonne of his mayd) ouer the men of Sichē, for so much as he is your brother.

yf ye haue done ryght now and iustly to Jerubaall and his house this daye, then reioyce ouer Abimelech, and let him reioyce ouer you. yf no, then go fyre from Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem, and the house of Millo: And fyre go out also frō the men of Sichem, and from the house of Millo, & consume Abimelech. And Jotham (whan he had spoken out this) fledde, & gat hym out of the waye, and wente vnto Ber, and dwelt there because of his brother Abimelech.

Now whan Abimelech had reigned thre yeare ouer Israel, *God set an euel inynde betwene Abimelech and the men of Sichē, for the mē of Sichem despised Abimelech, & rebersed the wronge done to the sonnes of Jerubaal, and their bloude, and layed it vpon Abimelech their brother whiche slewe them, and vpon the mē of Sichem ỹ strēgthed his hande therto, that he myght slaye his brethren.

And ỹ mē of Sichē set an hynder watch vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, & spoiled al them ỹ walked nye them by the waye & it was tolde Abimelech. But ther came Gaal the sonne of Ebed and his brethren, & entred in to Sichem, & the men of Sichem put their trust in hym, and went out in to ỹ felde, and gathered their vynyardes, and pressed them, and made a daunce, and went in to their gods house and dyd eat & drynk and cursed Abimelech.

And Gaal the sone of Ebed sayd: Who is Abimelech? & what is Sichem that we shuld serue hym? Is he not the sonne of Jerubaal, and hath set Sebul his seruaunt ouer the men of Hemor the father of Sichē? Wherfore shuld we serue hym? Wold God the people were vnder my hāde, ỹ I myght put downe Abimelech.

And it was tolde Abimelech: increase thyn hoost, & departe. For Sebul ỹ chefe ruler of the cyte, whā he herde ỹ wordes of Gaal the sone of Ebed, he was wrothfully displeased & sent message secretly to Abimelech, & caused to saye vnto hym: Behold, Gaal ỹ sonne of Ebed & his brethren are come to Sichem and make the cyte to be agaynst the.

Aryse therfore by nyght, thou & thy people ỹ is wt the, and laye wayte for thē in the felde: & to morowe whan the Sōne aryseth get the vp soone, & fal vpon the cyte: and yf he and ỹ people that is with hym come out vnto the thē deale with hym, as thyne hāde fyndeth.

Abimelech stode vp by nyght, & al ỹ people that was with hym, and layed wayt for Sichem with foure companies of men of warre. And Gaal the sonne of Ebed wente out and stode at ỹ dore of the gate of ỹ cyte. But Abimelech gat hym vp out of the hynder watch, and ỹ people that was with him. Now whan Gaal sawe the people, he sayde vnto Sebull: Beholde, ther cōmeth a people downe from the toppe of the moūt. Sebul sayd vnto hym: Thou seist the shadowe of the moūtaynes as though they were mē Gaal spake yet more and sayd: Behold, ther commeth a people downe from the myddes of the lande, and one bonde of men cōmeth by the waye to the wytchoke. Thē sayd Sebul: Where is now thy mouth that sayde: Who is Abimelech, ỹ we shulde serue hym? Is not this the people whom thou hast refused? Go forth now, and fyght with hym.

Gaall went forth before the cytesyns of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. But Abimelech chaced hym, so ỹ he fled, & ther fell many slayne euen vnto the gate of the cyte. And Abimelech abode at Aruma. But Sebull droue awaye Gaal and his brethren so that they must not remayne at Sichem. Upon the morowe went the people forth in to the felde. Whan this was tolde Abimelech, he toke the people, and parted them in to thre bondes of men, and wayted for thē in the felde. Nowe whan he sawe that the people went out of the cyte, he rose agaynst them, and smote them.

G Abimelech and the company of men ỹ was with hym, fell vpõ them, and stepte vn to the doze of the poze: but the other two cõ panyes fell vpon all them that were in the felde, and slewe them. Then fought Abimelech agaynst the cyte all the same daye, & wãne it, and slewe the people that was ther in, and *brake downe the cyte, & sowed salt theron.

3.Ma.12.d.

Whan all the men of the towet of Sichem herde this, they wente in to a stronge hold of the house of theyr God Berith. But whan Abimelech herde that all the men of the towet of Sichem had gathered thẽ selues together, he went vp vnto moũt Zelmõ and all the people that was with hym, and toke an axe in his hande, and hewed downe a braunche of a tre, and toke it vp & layed it vpon his shulder, and sayd vnto all ỹ people that was wt hym: *As ye haue sene me do, make haist & do euen so as I. Thẽ all ỹ people hewed downe euery one a braũche & folowed Abimelech: and they layed them to the holde, and set fyre vpon them agaynste them and the holde: and all the men of the towet of Sichem dyed thozowe the smoke of fyre, vpon a thousande men and wemen.

H As foz Abimelech, he wente vnto Thebetz, and layed sege vnto it, and wanne it. But in the myddes of the cyte, ther was a stronge towet, vnto the which all the men & wemen, & all the cytesyns of the cyte fled, & shut it after them & clymmed vp to ỹ toppe of the towet. Then came Abimelech vnto ỹ towet, and fought agaynst it, and cam nye vnto the doze of the towet, that he myghte burne it wt fyre. & But a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpõ Abimeleches heade, and brake his brayne panne. Then Abimelech in all haist, called the seruaũt that bare his weapẽ, and sayd vnto hym: *drawe out thy swearde and kyll me, that it be not sayd of me: A woman hath slayne hym. Then his seruaunt thrust hym thozow, and he dyed. Whã the Israelites which were with hym, saw, that Abimelech was dead, they gat thẽ awaye euery one vnto his owne place.

1.par.11.a

Thus God recompenced Abimelech ỹ euell that he had done vnto his father, whã he slewe his thre score and ten brethren: lyke wyse al the eurl of the men of Sichem, dyd God retwarde them vpon theyr heade: and so the *curse of Jotham the sonne of Jerubaall came vpon them.

Judi.9.c

The.x.Chapter.

After Abimelech ther rose vp ther sauegour in Israel. That a man of Issachar, and the sõ of Pua, the sonne of Dodo. And he dwelt at Samir in the moũt Ephraim, and iudged Israel thre and twenty yeare, and dyed, and was buried at Samir.

After hym stod vp one Jair a Gileadite and iudged Israel two and twentye yeare, and had thyrty sonnes, *rydynge vpon thrye alles foales: & had thyrty cytes, whose names are Hauoth Jair (that is, the cytes of Jair) vnto this daye, and lye in Gilead. And Jair dyed and was buried at Camo.

But ỹ chyldze of Israel wrought wickednelle in ỹ syght of the LORD, & serued Baalim & Astaroth, & the goddes of Syria & ỹ Goddes of Sydõ, & ỹ goddes of Moab, & the goddes of the chyldze of Ammon, & the goddes of the Philistines and forsoke the LORDE, and serued hym not. Then was the wyath of the LORDE stirred vpon Israell, and he gaue them ouer into the hande of the Philistines, and of the chyldze of Ammon. And they vexed and oppressed the chyldze of Israel eyghtene yeares long, all the chyldzen of Israel that were beyonde Jordane in the lãde of ỹ Moabites, which lyeth in Gilead. The chyldze of Ammon wente ouer Jordane, and fought agaynst Juda, Ben Jamin, and agaynst the house of Ephraim so that Israell was vexed and troubled.

Then cryed the chyldzen of Israel vnto the LORDE, and sayd: We haue synned agaynst the, foz we haue forsaken our God and serued Baalim. But the LORDE sayd vnto the chyldzen of Israel: Dyd not the gypcyans, the Ammonites, the chyldzen of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonians, Amalechites, and Maonites oppresse you, and I helped you out of theyr hande, but ye cryed vnto me, yet haue ye forsaken me and serued other goddes. Therfore will I helpe you nomore. *Go power your cry vpon the goddes whom ye haue chosen, let them helpe you in the tyme of your trouble.

But the chyldzen of Israel sayde vnto the LORDE: We haue synned, do thou vnto vs what pleaseth the, onely delyuer vs at this tyme. And they put the straũge goddes from them, and serued the LORDE. Then his soule had pytie on the mysery of Israel.

* And the chyldzen of Ammon gathered themselues together, and pitched in Gilead.

the chyldren of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pytched at Mispa. And the people of the chefest of Gilead sayde amonge them selues: Whosoeuer begynneth to fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, shalbe heade ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The.xi.Chapter.

IEphthae a Giliadite was a valeaunt man of armes, but an harlottes chylde. Gilead begat Iephthae. But whan the wyfe had borne chyldren vnto Gilead, and the same wyues chyldrē were waxē great, they thrust out Iephthae, and sayde vnto hym: * Thou shalt not be heyre in our fathers house, for thou art another womās sonne. Then fled he from his brethren, and dwelt in the lande of Tob. * And there resorted vnto hym vacabundes, and went out wt hym. And after a certayne tyme fought the chyldren of Ammon with Israel.

Now whā the chyldrē of Ammō fought thus with Israel, the Elders went from Gilead to fetch Iephthae out of the lande of Tob, and sayd vnto him: Come, and be our captayne, and fyght agaynst the chyldrē of Ammon. But Iephthae sayd vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that hate me & haue thrust me out of my fathers house, & now come ye to me whā ye are in trouble?

The Elders of Gilead sayde: Therfore come we now agayne vnto ỹ, ỹ thou mayst go wt vs, and fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and be our captayne ouer all that dwell in Gilead. Iephthae sayd vnto ỹ Elders of Gilead: yf ye fetche me agayne to fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and the LORDE delyuer them before me, shall I then be youre heade? The Elders of Gilead sayd vnto Iephthae: The LORDE be heater betwen vs, if we do not as thou hast sayd. So Iephthae wente with the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heade and duke ouer thē. And Iaphthae spake al this before the LORDE at Mispa.

Then sent Iephthae messaungers to ỹ kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and caused to saye vnto hym: What hast thou to do with me, ỹ thou comest vnto me to fyght agaynst my lande? The kynge of the chyldren of Ammon answered Iephthaes messaungers: Because that Israel toke awaye my lande (whā they departed out of Egipt) from Arnon vnto Iabok, & vnto Iordane: Geue it me agayn now therfore peaceably.

But Iephthae sent yet mo messanngers C
to the kynge of ỹ chyldren of Ammō, which sayd vnto hym: Thus sayth Iephthae: * Israel hath take no lande, nother from ỹ Moabites, nor from the chyldrē of Ammon: for whan they departed out of Egipte, Israell walked thorow the wylderneſſe vnto ỹ reed see, & came to Cades, and * sent messaūgers Nu.20.b to the kynge of the Edomites, & sayde: Let me go thorow thy lande. But the kynge of the Edomites wolde not heare them. They sent lykewyse vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wolde not also. Thus Israell abode in Cades, & compassed ỹ lande of the Edomites & Moabites, & came on the eastsyde of the lande of the Moabites & pitched beyonde Arnō, and came not within ỹ coast of the Moabites. * For Arnon is the border Nu.21.c of the Moabites.

* And Israel sent messaungers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Ammonites at Heldon D and caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thorow thy land vnto my place. Neuertheleſſe Sihon wold not trust Israel to go thorow the border of his lande, but gathered al his people, and pytched at Jahza, and foughte with Israel. Howbeit the LORDE God of Israel gaue Sihon with al his people into Israels hande, so ỹ they slewe them. Thus Israel conquered al the lande of the Ammonites that dwelt in the same cōtre. And they toke possession of all the borders of the Ammonites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, & from ỹ wyldernesse vnto Iordane. So the LORDE God of Israel droue away ỹ Ammonites before his people of Israel, & wilt thou cōquer them? Is it not so, yf thy God Camos gaue the ought to possesse, woldest thou not possesse it? What soeuer the LORDE our God hath geue vs before vs to possesse, that shall we conquere and take in possession.

Hast thou better ryght (thynkest thou) E right, against Israel? Though Israel haue dwelt now hyō a thre hūdreth yeares in Hesbon, and in the villages therof, in Aroer & in the villages therof, and in all the cyttes that lye by Arnon. Why dyd not ye recouer it at the same tyme? I haue not offended the, and thou doest me euel to fyght agaynst me. The LORDE geue sentence this daye betwene Israel & the chyldren of Ammon.

Neuertheles the kynge of the chyldrē of Ammon wolde not heare ỹ wordes of Iephthae which he sent vnto hym. Thē cam the spyrite of the LORDE vpon Iephthae, and he went thorow Gilead and Manasse, and thorow Mispa which lyeth in Gilead, and fro Mispa that lyeth in Gilead vnto the chyldren of Ammon.

Marc.6.c

And Jephthae vowed a vowe vnto the LORDE, and sayd: *yf thou wylt delyuer the chyldre of Ammō in to my hande, what soeuer commeth (fyrst) out at the dore of my house in my waye, whan I returne agayne peaceably from the chyldren of Ammon, ꝑ same shalbe the LORDES, and I wyl offer it for a burntofferynge.

So Jephthae went vpon the chyldre of Ammon, to fyght agaynst them. And the LORDE gaue them in to his hande, and he smote them from Aroer tyll thou comest vnto Minnith, euen twenty cyties, and vnto the playne of ꝑ vyneyardes a very great slaughter & thus were the chyldren of Ammon subdued before the chyldren of Jsrael.

1.Re.17.b.

Now whan Jephthae came to Mispa vnto his house, behold, *his doughter wēt out to mete hym with tabrettes and daunces: and she was his onely chylde, & he had els nother sonne nor doughter. And whan he sawe her, he rente his clothes, and sayde: Alas my doughter, thou makest my hart so rowfull, and discomforteth me: For I haue opened my mouth vnto the LORDE, & can not call it agayne.

She sayd: My father, yf thou hast opened thy mouth vnto the LORDE, then do vnto me as it is prouided out of thy mouth accordynge as the LORDE hath auenged the of thyne enemyes the chyldren of Ammon And she sayd vnto hir father: Do this for me, geue me leue to go downe vpon the mountaynes two monethes, that I maye bewepe my virginite with my playefelowes. He sayd: Go thy waye. And he let her go two monethes. Then went she with hir playefelowes, and bewayled hir maydenheade vpon ꝑ mountaynes. And after two monethes she came agayne vnto hir father And he dyd vnto her accordynge as he had vowed. And she had neuer bene in daunger of ony man. And it was a custume in Jsrael that the doughters of Jsrael shulde go euery yeare, and mourne for the doughter of Jephthae the Giliadite, foure dayes in the yeare.

The.xij.Chapter.

Judi.8.a.

AND they of Ephraim made insurrectyon, and wente northwarde, & sayd vnto Jephthae: *Wherfore wentest thou to ꝑ battayll agaynst the chyldre of Ammon, & hast not called vs, ꝑ we myght go wt the, We wyll burne thy house ouer the with fyre. Jephthae sayde vnto them: I & my people had a great matter wt the chyldren of Ammon, & I cryed vpon you but ye holpe me not out of theyr handes. And whan I sawe ther was no helper, I put *my life in my hande, and went agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and the LORDE delyuered them in to my hande. Wherfore come ye vp vnto me to fyght agaynst me.

And Jephthae gathered all the mē of Gilead, and fought agaynst Ephraim, and the mē in Gilead smote Ephraim because they sayde: ye Giliadites are as they that flye away before Ephraim (and dwell) among Ephraim & Manasse: And the Giliadites toke ꝑ ferye of Jordane fro Ephraim. And whā one of the fugitiue Ephraites sayd: Let me go ouer, the mē of Gilead sayde vnto him: Art thou an Ephraite, yf he answerd: Nay. Then bad they him saye: Scyboleth, & he sayd: Sibboleth, & coulde not speake it right: then they toke hym, & slewe hym at the fordes of Jordane, so ꝑ ꝑ same tyme there fell of Ephraim xlij.M. Jephtae iudged Jsrael six yeare. And Jephthae ꝑ Giliadite dyed & was buryed in one of the cyties of Gilead.

After hym iudged Jsrael one Ebzan of Bethleem, which had thyrtye sōnes and as many doughters: & his thyrtie doughters gaue he forth to mariage, and thyrtye wyues ters toke he from without for his sonnes. He iudged Jsrael seuen yeares, and dyed & was buryed at Bethleem.

After hym iudged Jsrael one Elon of Zebulonite, & he iudged Jsrael x yeare, and was buryed at Jalon in ꝑ lande of Zabulon.

After hym iudged Jsrael one Abdon sonne of Hillel, a Pirgathonite, which had fortye sonnes, and thyrtye neuues (which rode vpon seuenty asses foales) & he iudged Jsrael eyght yeare, & dyed, and was buryed at Pirgathon in the lande of Ephraim vpon the mounte of the Amalechites.

The.xiij.Chapter.

AND the chyldren of Jsrael wrought more euell before the LORDE, * & the LORDE gaue them ouer into ꝑ handes of the Philistines fortye yeares. But there was a man at Zarga, one of the kynred of the Danites, named Manoah, & his wife was vnfruitfull and bare hym no chyldren. To the angell of the LORDE appeared the woman, and sayd vnto her:

grewe, and the LORDE bleſſed him. And the ſpyrete of the LORDE begãne to be with hym in the tentes of Dan, betwene Sarga and Eſthaoll.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

SAmſon bete downe vnto Tim I nath, and there he ſawe a woman among the doughters of the Philiſtines. And whan he came vp, he tolde his father & his mother & ſayde: I haue ſene a womã amonge the doughters of the Philiſtynes, I praye you geue me the ſame to wyfe. His father and his mother ſayd vnto him: * Is Deu.7.a ther not a woman amonge the doughters of thy brethren, & in all thy people, but thou muſt go and take a wyfe amonge the Phy liſtines, which are vncircumcyſed?

Sãſon ſayde vnto his father: Geue me this womã, for ſhe pleaſeth mine eyes. But his father and his mother knew not that it came of the LORDE, and that he ſought an occaſyon agaynſt the Philiſtynes. For the Philiſtynes reygned ouer Iſraell at the ſame tyme. So Sãſon wente downe with his father & with his mother vnto Timath.

And whã they came to the vinyardes of B
Timnath, beholde, ther came a ponge roa-rynge lyon agaynſt hym. And the ſpyrete of the LORDE came vpon hym, and* he rente hym in peces, euen as a kydde is parted asunder, and yet had he nothynge at all in his hande, and he tolde it not vnto his father and his mother.

Now whan he came downe, he spake vñ
the womã, and she pleased Samsons eyes.
And after certayne dayes he came agayne (vnto Thymnath) to receaue her, and wen te out of the waye, that he myght se the dead carcas of the lyon: and beholde, in the lyons carcas ther was a swarme of bees, and hony: and he toke of it in his hãde and dyd eate therof by the waye: and wente vn
to his father and to his mother, and gaue them to eate also. But he tolde thẽ not, that he had taken ꝑ hony out of the lyõs carcas.

C And whã his father came downe to the womã, Samson made a feast there, as the ponge men vsed to do. And whan they saw hym, they gaue hym thyrtye companyõs to be with hym. Samson sayde vnto them, I wyll reyrselle a darke sentence vnto you, yf ye exponde me the same within these seuẽ dayes of the feast, I wyll geue you thyrtye
shertes, and thyrtye chaunge of rayment.
But yf ye can not exponde it, then shall ye geue me thyrtye shertes, and thyrty chaũge of raymẽt. And they sayd vnto him: Shew forth thy ryddle, let vs heare it. He sayd vn to thẽ: Meate went out from the deuourer and swetenesse frõ the myghtye. And in thre dayes they coulde not exponde the ryddle.

Upon the seuenth daye they sayde vnto
Samsons wyfe: Perswade thy husbande, that he tell vs what the ryddle meaneth, or els we shall burne ꝑ and thy fathers house wt fyre. Haue ye called vs hither, to bryngе vs to pouerte? Thẽ wepte Samsons wyfe before hym and sayde: Thou art displeased
at me, and louest me not: thou hast exponnded a darke sentence vnto the chyldren of my people, and hast not tolde it me.

D But he sayde vnto her: Beholde,* I ha
Iud. 14.b ue not tolde it vnto my father and mother, and shulde I tell it ꝑ? And she wepte before hym those seuen dayes, whyle they had the feast. But on the seuẽth daye he tolde it her, for she was so importune vpon hym. And she exponnded the darke sentence vnto the chyldren of hir people. Then sayde the men of the cyte vnto hym vpon the seuenth day or euer the sonne wente downe: What is sweter then hony? What is stronger then the lyõ? But he sayd vnto thẽ: yf ye had not plowed with my calfe, ye shulde not haue founde out my ryddle. And the spyrete of the LORDE came vpon hym, and he went downe vnto Ascalon, and slewe thyrtye me of thẽ, & toke theyr spoyle, and gaue chaũge
of rayment vnto them, that had exponnded
the ryddle. And he was wrothfully displeased, and wente vp vnto his fathers house.
* As for Samsons wyfe, she was geuen
vnto one of his companyons, which belon ged vnto hym.

The.xv. Chapter.

IT fortuned after certayne dayes about the wheate harueste tyme, that Sãson vysyted his wyfe with a kydde. And whan he thoughte. I wyll go to my wyfe in to the chamber, hir father wold not let him in, & sayd: I thought thou wast displeased at her, and I gaue her to thy felow.
But she hath a yõger syster which is more bewtyfull thẽ she, let the same be thyne in her. Then sayde Samson vnto thẽ, I haue once gotte a right occasyon agaynst ꝑ Phy-listynes, I wyll do you displeasure.

And Samson wente and catched thre hundreth foxes, and toke fyre brandes, and festened one tayle to another, and put eue
a fyre brande betwene two tayles, and kyn-led the same with fyre, and let thẽ go amõg
the Philystines corne and thus he brent the stoukes, and the stondynge corne, and the vynyardes, and the olyue trees.

Then sayd the Philistynes: Who hath done this? And they sayde: Samson, the husbande of the Thimnites doughter, because he toke awaye his wyfe from hym & gaue her vnto his frende. Then wente the Philistynes vp, and brẽt her and hir father also with fyre.

But Samson sayde vnto them: I can suffre you to do this, neuertheles I will be auenged vpon you my selfe, and then will I leaue of. And he smote them sore both vp pon the shulders & loynes and went down and dwelt in the stone clyffe at Etam. Then went the Philystines vp, and layed them vnto Juda, and pitched at Lechi. But they of Juda sayde: Wherfore are ye comen vp agaynst vs? They answered: we are comen to bynde Samson, ꝑ we may do vnto him
as he hath done vnto vs.

Then wente ther thre M. men of Juda
downe to ꝑ stone clyffe of Etam & sayde to Samson: knowest thou not that the Phy-listynes raygne ouer vs? Wherfore hast thou done this then vnto vs? He sayde: As they dyd vnto me, so haue I done them agayne. They sayd vnto him: We are comen

downe to bynde the, and to delyuer the in to ꝯ hande of the Philistynes. Sãson sayde vnto thẽ: Thẽ sweare & promyse me, that ye wyll not slaye me. They answered him: We wyl not kyll the, we wyl but bynde the, & de lyuer the in they hande, & wyll not slay the. And they bounde hym with two new coar des, and carped hym from the stone. And whan he came vnto Lechi, the Philistines shouted, and rãne vnto hym. But the spyrit of LORD came vpon hym: and the coardes aboute his armes were lyke thredes burnt in to the fyre, so that the bondes were lowsed from his handes.

D And he founde the chekebone of a dead asse: then put he forth his hande and toke it, and slew a thousand men therwith. And Samson sayde: With an olde asses chekebone, yee euẽ with the chekebone of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And whan he had sayd that, he cast the chekebone out of his hande and called the place Ramath Lechi. But whã he was sore a thyrst, he cal led vpon the LORD and sayde: Such great health hast thou geuen by the hande of thy seruaunt, but now must I dye a thyrst, and fall in to the hande of the vncircumcysed. Then God opened a gometothe in ꝯ chekebone, so that water wente out: and whã he dranke, his spyrete came agayne, and he was refreshed. Therfore vnto this daye it is yet called the well of ꝯ chekebone of hym that made intercessyon. And he iudged Israell in the tyme of the Philistines twẽtye yeare.

The.xvi.Chapter.

I Samson wente vnto Gasa, and there he sawe an harlot & laye with her. Then was it sayde vnto the Gasites: Samson is come hither. And they compas sed hym aboute, and caused to laye wayte for hym preuely, and watched all the night in the gate of the cyte, and all that nyghte they helde them styll, and sayde: Abyde, to morow whan it is light, we wyll slaye him. But Samson lay vnto mydnyght, thẽ rose he at mydnight, and toke holde on both the sydeportes of the gate of the cyte, with both the postes, and lyfte them out with the bar res, and layed them vpon his shulders, and bare them vp to the toppe of the mounte o uer agaynst Hebrõ.

D After this he fell in to the loue of a wo man by the broke of Sorerk, whose name was Dalila, vnto whom the princes of the Philistynes came vp, and sayde vnto her: Perswade hym, and loke wherin he hath such great strength, and how we may ouer come hym, that we myght bynde hym and subdue hym, so wyll we gene the euery mã a M. and an C. syluerlynges. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: I praye the tell me, wherin thy great strẽgth is, and how thou myghtest be bounde to be subdued. Sãson sayde vnto her: yf I were bounde with se uen roapes of fresh senowes, which are not yet dryed vp, I shuld be weake, and as and ther man. Then the prynces of the Philistines brought vp vnto her seuẽ new roapes, which were not yet dryed vp. And she boun de hym therwith. (But ther was wayte layed for hym besyde her in the chamber) and she sayde vnto him: The Philistynes vpon the Samson. Neuertheless he brake ꝯ roa pes insunder, euen as a twyned threde breaketh, whan it hath catched the heate of the fyre. And it was not knowne wherin his strength was.

C Then sayde Dalila vnto Samson: be holde, thou hast begyled me and dissembled with me: tell me yet, wherwith all mayst thou be bounde. He answered her. yf they bounde me with new coardes, wherwith no labour hath bene done, I shuld be feble, and as an other man. Then toke Dalila new coardes and bounde hym withall, and sayde: The Philistynes vpon the Samson (but ther was wayte layed for hym in the chamber.) And he brake them from his armes, euẽ as it had ben a threde.

Dalila sayde vnto him: yet hast thou be gyled me and dissebied with me: O tell me yet, wherwithal myghtest thou be bounde. He answered her: yf thou playtest seuẽ hee rye lockes of my heade together in a fyllet, and fastenest them in with a nayle, I shuld be weake. And she sayd vnto him: The Phi listines vpon ꝯ Sãson. But he awaked out of his slepe, and drue out ꝯ playted heerye lockes with the nayle of the fyllet.

D Then sayd she vnto him: How cãst thou say that thou louest me, wher as thyne hart is not yet with me. Thre tymes hast thou deceaued me, and not tolde me wherin thy greate strength is. So whan she was euery daye importune vpon hym with hir wor des, and wolde not let hym haue reste, his soule was sayntе euen vnto the death, and he shewed her his whole harte, and sayd vn to her: * Ther came neuer rasoure vpõ my heade, for I am a Nazare of God from my mothers wombe. yf I were shauen, my strengthe shulde departe fro me, so that I

shuld be weake, and as al other men. Now whā Dalila saw that he had opened all his harte vnto her, she sent and called for ỳ prin ces of the Philistynes, and sayd: Come yet once vp, for he hath opened his whole hart vnto me.

Then came the prynces of the Philistynes vp vnto her, and brought the mony w̄ them in theyr handes. And she made him to slepe vpon hir lappe, and called one which shoue of the seuē heery lockes of hys head. And she beganne to vexe hym. Then was his strength departed from hym. And she sayde vnto hym: The Philistines vpō the Samson. Now whan he awoke out of his slepe, he thought: I wyl go forth as I haue done afore tyme, & ease my selfe, and knew not that the LORD was departed from him. But the Philistynes toke him, and put out his eyes, and brought hym downe to Gasa, and bounde him with fetters, and made him to grynde in the prison. But the heer of his heade beganne to growe agayne, where it was shauen of.

Whan the prynces of the Philistynes were gathered together, to make a greate sacrifice vnto Dagon their god, and to be ioyful, they sayde: Our god hath delyuered Samson our enemye in to oure hande. Lykewyse whā the people saw hym, they prayed their god, and sayd: Oure God hath delyuered in to our handes oure enemye, that destroyed oure londe, and slew many of vs. Nowe whan their harte was ioyfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Samson, that he maye make some pastyme before vs. Then fetched they Samson out of the prison, and he made pastyme before them. And they set hym betwene two pylers. But Samson sayd vnto the lad that led him by the hāde: Let me touche the pylers where vpon the house stondeth, that I maye leane there vn to. As for the house, it was full of men and wemen. All the prynces of the Philistynes were there also, and vpō ỳ rofe were about a thre thousande men and wemen, beholde what pastyme Samson made.

But Samson called vpon the LORDE and sayde: O LORDE LORDE thynke vpon me, and strength me but this once O God I beseke ỳ, that for both myne eyes I may auenge me on the Philistines. And he beholde of the two mydpylers, that the house stode vpon. and was holden by, the one with his righte hande, and the other with his left and sayde: My soule dye with the Philistynes, and he bowed himselfe mightely. Then fell the house vpon the prynces & vpon all ỳ people ỳ were therin, so ỳ ther were mo ỳ slayn which dyed in his death, thē he lyued whyle he lyued. Thē came his brethren & all his fathers house & toke hym and caryed hym vp, and buryed hym in the graue of his father Manoah betwene Zarga and Esthaoll. He iudged Israell twētye yeres.

The.xvii. Chapter.

Ther was a man vpon mount Ephrai, named Micha, which sayde to his mother: The eleuē hunderth syluerlynges which thou hast taken vnto the, and swornest & spokest of before myne eares: beholde, the same money is by me, I haue taken it vnto me. Then sayde his mother: The blessynge of the LORD haue my sonne. So he gaue his mother the eleuē hunderth syluerlynges again. And his mother sayd: That money haue I sanctifyed vnto the LORDE with my hande for my sonne, to make a molten ymage therfore I geue it ỳ again: Neuertheles he delyuered ỳ monye agayne vnto his mother.

Then toke his mother two hunderth syluerlynges, and put them forth to the goldsmyth, which made a molten ymage therof afterward in Michas house. And the man Micha had a gods house, and made an ouerbody cote, and Idols, and fylled the hādes of one of his sonnes, that he myght be his preest. * At that tyme was there no kynge in Israell, and euery man dyd that was ryghte in hys owne eyes. There was a ponge man of Bethlem Juda among the kynreds of Juda: and he was a Leuite and was a straunger there. The same man went out of the cyte of Bethlem Juda, to wete whether he coulde.

And whan he came vp to the mount Ephraim vnto the house of Micha, to go his iourney. Micha axed hym: Whence comest thou? He answered hym: I am a Leuite of Bethlee Juda, and am walkynge where I can. Micha sayde vnto hym: Tary with me, thou shalt be my father and my prest, I will gene the euery yeare ten syluerlynges and thy appoynted rayment, and meat and drynke: and the Leuite wente on. And the Leuite agreed to abyde with the man: and he helde the ponge mā, as one of his owne sōnes. And Micha fylled the Leuites hāde ꝓ he might be his prest, & so he was in Michas house. And Micha sayde: I am sure the LORDE wyll do me good, now that I haue a Leuite to my prest.

The.xviii.Chapter.

AT * ꝓ tyme was ther no kynge in Israell. And the trybe of the Danites sought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, * for vnto that daye ther was no enheritaunce fallen vnto them amonge the trybe of Israell. And the chyldrē of Dan sent out of theyr kynreds fyue captaynes (whiche were men of armes) from Zarga & Esthaol, to spye and searche out the londe. And they sayde vnto thē: Go youre waye, and search out the londe. And they came vp to mount Ephraim in to the house of Micha, and taryed there all nyght. And whyle they were there with Michas housholde, they knewe the voyce of the yong man the Leuite, and sayde vnto hym. Who brought the hither? What makest thou here? and why woldest thou come hither.

He answered thē: Thus and thus hath Micha done vnto me, and hath hyred me to be his prest. They sayd vnto hym: Oare at God, ꝓ we maye perceaue, whether oure iourneye which we go, shall prospere well or not. The prest answered them: Go youre waye in peace, youre iourney that ye go, is before the LORDE. Then the fyue men wēte theyr waye, and came vnto Lais, and sawe that ꝓ people which was therin, dwelt sure enough as the Sidonās, at rest, and careles, and that ther was no lorde in the londe to vexe them, and were farre from the Sidonās, and had nothyng to do with ony mā.

And they came to theyr brethren to Zarga and Esthaoll, and theyr brethren sayde vnto them: How is it with you? They sayd: Arise, let vs go vp vnto them, for we haue sene the londe, that it is a very good lāde: make hayst therfore and be not slack to go, that ye maye come to take possessyon of the londe. When ye come, ye shall come to a careles people, & the londe is wyde: for God hath delyuered this place in youre hande where nothyng wanteth of all that is vpon earth.

Then wente ther thence out of the kynreds of Dan from Zarga and Esthaol, sixe hūdreth men ready wapened to the battayl and wente vp, and pitched at Kiriath Jearim in Juda: therfore called they the same place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this daye, which is behynde Kiriath Jearim.

And from thence they wente vp vnto mount Ephraim, and came to the house of Micha. Then answered the fyue men that wente out to spye the londe of Lais & sayd vnto theyr brethren: Knowe ye not that in these houses ther is an ouerbody cote, Idols, and molten ymages? Nowe maye ye loke what ye haue to do. They departed thence, and came to the house of the ponge man the Leuite in Michas house, and salu ted him frendly. But the sixe hundreth men which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode ready harnessed before ꝓ gate. And the fyue men that were gone out to spye the londe went vp, & came thither, & toke the ymage, the ouerbody cote, and the molten Idols. In ꝓ meane whyle stode the prest at ꝓ gate with the sixe hundreth readye harnessed.

Now whan these were come in to Michas house, and toke the ymage, the ouerbody cote, and the molten Idols, the preste sayde vnto them: What do ye? They answered hym: Holde thy peace, and laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth, and go with vs, that thou mayeste be oure father and preste: Is it better for the to be preste in one mans house, then amonge a whole trybe and kynred in Israell? This pleased the prest well, and he toke both the ouerbody cote, and the Idols, and the ymage, and came in amonge the people. And whā they turned them and wente thence, they sente theyr chyldrē, and cattel, and such precious thynges as they had, before them.

Whā they were now come farre frō the house of Micha, the mē ꝓ were in Michas houses gathered them together by Michas house, and folowed the chyldren of Dan: & cryed vpon the chyldren of Dan. They turned their faces aboute, and sayde vnto Micha: What ayleth ꝓ, that thou makest such a cryenge? He answered: ye haue taken away my goddes, and the prest, and are gopenge youre waye, & what haue I behynde? What is here? And yet ye saye vnto me: What ayleth the? But the chyldren of Dan sayd vnto him: Let not thy voyce be herde amonge vs, that some wrothfull men thrust not at the, & so thy soule & the soule of thy house be destroted. So ỹ childrē of Dā were on their waye. And Micha, whan he sawe that they were to stronge for hym, turned backe, and came agayne to his house.

C But they toke that Micha had made, & the preest whome he had, and came vnto Lais, to a quyete careleſſe people, and slew thē with the edge of the sweard, and burnt the cyte with fyre, and ther was noman to delyuer thym, for they laye farre from Zidon, and had to do with no man, and they lays in the valley, which is beside Bethrehob. Then buylded they the cyte, and dwelt therin, * and called it Dan, after the name of Josu.19.b they father Dan, whō Israell begat. And the cytie was called Lais afore time.

And the chyldren of Dan sette vp the ymage for them: and Jonathan the sonne of Gerson ỹ sonne of Manasse, and his sonnes were preestes amōge the trybe of ỹ Da-

The.xix.Chapter.

A AT the same tyme was ther no kynge in Israel, and ther was a man of Leui whiche was a straūger beside mount Ephraim, and had taken hym a cōcubyne of Bethleem Juda to wyfe. And whā she had played the harlot beside hym, she came from hym to hir fathers house vnto Bethleem Juda, and was there foure monethes longe. And hir husbande gat hym vp, and wente after her, to speake frendly with her, and to fetche her agayne, and had a seruaunt and a couple of asses with hym. And she led hym in hir fathers house. But whan the damsels father sawe hym, he was glad, and receaued hym: and his father in lawe, the damsels father kepte hym, so that he taryed thre dayes with hym: thus they dyd eat & drynk & remayned there al night.

B But on the fourthe daye he gat hym vp early, and wolde go his waye. Then sayde the damsels father vnto his sonne in law:
Gene.18.a * Refreshe thyne hart fyrst with a morsel of pſa.103.b bread, and then shal ye go. And they sat thē downe, and dyd eate and drynke both together: Thē sayd the damsels father vnto the man: Oh tarye all nyght, that we maye refreshe thyne harte. But the man arose, and wolde nedes go. And his father in lawe constrayned hym to tarye all nyght. And the fyfth daye in the morninge he gat hym vp and wolde be gone. Then sayde the damsels father: I praye the conforte thyne harte, and let vs tary tyll the daye be farther passed, so they dyd eate both together.

And the man gat hym vp, and wolde go with his concubyne and with his seruaunt. But his father in lawe the damsels father sayd vnto hym agayne: Lo, the day is lōge, and it begynneth to be euen, tary al nyght, beholde, ther is lodgynge yet this daye. Abyde here this nyght, it shall refreshe thyne harte: to morow by tymes get you vp, and go youre waye vnto thy tente. Nevertheleſſe ỹ man wold not tary, but gat him vp, and wente his way, and came ouer against Jebus (that is Jerusalem) and his company of asses laden, and his cōcubyne with him.

Now whā they were come nye vnto Jebus, the daye fel fast awaye. And ỹ seruaunt sayde vnto his master: I praye you go, and let vs turne in to this cytye of the Jebusites, and tarye therin all nyght. But his mayster sayde vnto hym: Ie will not turne in to the cytye of the aliaunt that are not of the chyldren of Israell, but I wyll go ouer vnto Gibea. And he sayde vnto his seruaunt: Go thou before, that we maye come to some place, and tarye in Gibea or at Ramah all nyght. And they went on & walked, and the Sonne went downe vpon them harde by Gibea, which was of the trybe of Ben Jamin: and they turned there, that they might come in, and tarye in Gibea all nyght. But whan he came in, he sat hym downe in the strete of the cyte: for ther was no man that wolde lodge them in his house that night.

And beholde, thē came ther an olde man from his worke out of the felde in the euenynge: and he was also of mount Ephraim, and a straunger at Gibea, but the men of that place were the chyldren of Jamin. And whan he lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe the straunger in the strete he sayde vnto him: Whether wylt thou go? and where fro thou? He answered hym: We are passengers on oure journey from Bethlem Juda, and tyll we come beside mōut Ephraim ther I am, and wente vnto Bethlem Juda, and now I go vnto the house of the Lord, and no man wyl harborow me. We haue straw and prouender for our asses, and bread and wyne for me and thy handmayden, and for the ponge man which is with thy so that we wante nothynge.

The olde man sayd: Peace be with the: what soeuer thou wantest, thou fyndest it w̄ me, onely tary not in the strete all nyght.

And he brought hym in to his house, and gaue the asses prouender, and they washed their fete, and dyd eate & drynke. And whā their harte was now ioyfull, ꝑ men of the cytie the chyldren of Belial came, and compassed the house rounde aboute, and rushed at the doze, & sayd vnto the olde man, which was the good mā of the house: Bryng out the man which is come in to thy house that we may knowe hym.

*But the good man of the house wente forth to them, and sayd vnto them: Oh no my brethren, do not so wyckedly, consyderynge this mā is come in to my house: Oh do not suche folly. Beholde, I haue a doughter yet a virgin, and this man hath a concubyne, those wyl I bryng forth vnto you, that ye may humble them, and do with thē as ye lyke: but do not suche folye vnto this man. Neuertheles the men wolde not herken vnto hym. Then toke the man his concubyne and brought her forth vnto them: & they knewe her, and dealt shamefully with her all ꝑ nyght vntyll the morynge. And whā ꝑ morynge brake an, they let her go.

Then came the woman early in the morynge, and fell downe at the doze of ꝑ mās house that hyr lorde was in, and laye there tyll it was lyght. Now whan hir lorde rose vp in the morynge, and opened the doze of the house, and went forth to go on his iourney, beholde, his concubyne laye at the doze of the house, and hir handes vpon the thresholde. He sayd vnto her: stande vp, let vs go. Neuertheles she gaue hym no answer. Thē toke he her vp vpon his asse, gat hym vp, and wente vnto his place.

Now whan he came home, he toke a swearde, and helde his concubyne, and *cut her with the bones and all in to twelfe peces, and sent them in to al the coastes of Israel. Who soeuer sawe it, sayd: Suche a thynge hath not ben done nor sene, sence the tyme that the chyldren of Israell departed out of the lande of Egipte, vnto this daye. Now as cōcernynge this, take your aduysement, & geue your counsel, & shewe it forth.

The.xx. Chapter.

Then wente the chyldren of Israel out and gathered a cōgregacion together as one mā, frō Dan vntyl Berlaba, & frō the land of Gilead vnto ꝑ LORDE to Mispa: and ther came together of all the quarters of the people, & of al the trybes of Israel in to the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundreth thousande fotemen that drue out the swearde. But the chyldren of Ben Jamin herde, how that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp vnto Mispa. And the chyldren of Israel sayd: Tell vs, how happened this euell?

Then answered the Leuite the husband of the woman that was slayne, and sayd: I came to Gibea in Ben Jamin with my concubyne, to tary there al nyght, then the cyte syns of Gibea gat them vp against me, and compassed my about in the house by nyght, and thought to slaye me, and defyled my cō cubyne, so that she dyed: then toke I my cō cubyne, and cut her in peces, and sent the peces in to euery contre of the inheritaunce of Israel: for they haue done an abhominacyō and folye in Israell. Behold, here are ye chyldren of Israell: aduyse you well, and take this matter in hande.

So al the people gat thē vp as one mā, B and sayd: noman shal go in to his tente, nor departe to his house, but this wyll we do now agaynst Gibea, Let vs cast lot, & take ten men of an hundreth, and hundreth of a thousande, and a thousand of ten thousāde, out of al the trybes of Israel, that they may take foode for the people, to come and do w̄ Gibea Ben Jamin, accordynge to their folye which they haue done in Israell. Thus all the men of Israell beynge confederate, gathered themselues together as one man vnto the cyte: and the tryde of Israell sent men vnto all the kynreds of Ben Jamin, & caused to say vnto them: * What maner of Iosu. 22.b wyckednesse is this, that is done amonge you? Delyuer here therfore the men the chyldren of Beliall at Gibea, that we maye put them to death, and do awaye the euell out of Israell. Neuertheles the chyldrē of Bē Jamin wolde not folowe the voyce of their brethrē ꝑ chyldrē of Israel, but gathered thē selues out of the cityes vnto Gibea, to go forth in battayl agaynst ꝑ chyldrē of Israel.

And the same day were ther nombred of C the chyldrē of Ben Jamin out of the cyties fyue and twentye thousande men, that drue the swearde, beside the cytelyns of Gibea, of whome ther were tolde seuen hundreth chosen men. And amōge al this people ther where chosen out seuen hundreth men, which vsed not the right hand but the left, and yet with ꝑ slynge coulde they touch an heer, and not myss. But the men of Israel

beſyde them of Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundreth thouſande, whiche drue the ſwearde, and were all men of armes. And ỹ chyldren of Iſrael aroſe, and wente vp to ỹ houſe of God (in Silo) and ared at God, & ſayd: Who ſhall go vp forꝺs to begyn the battayll with the chyldren of Ben Jamine The LORDE ſayd Juda ſhall begynne.

So the chyldren of Iſraell gat them vp in the mornynge, and pitched ouer agaynſt Gibea, and euery man of Iſrael wente out to fyght with Ben Jamin, and ſet them ſelues in araye to fyght agaynſt Gibea. Then fell the chyldren of Ben Jamin out of Gibea, and ſlewe the ſame daye amõge Iſrael two and twenty thouſande to the grounde.

But the people of the men of Iſrael cõforted them ſelues and made them redy to fyght yet more in the ſame place after they had prepared them ſelues the daye afore. And the chyldren of Iſrael went vp, & wept before the LORDE vntyl the euenynge, and ared at the LORDE, and ſayd: Shall we go ony more to fyght with our brethren the chyldren of Ben Jamin? The LORDE ſayd: Go vp vnto them. And whan the chyldren of Iſrael gat them vp to the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin on the nexte daye, the Ben Jamites fell out of Gibea agaynſt thẽ the ſame daye and ſlewe yet eyghtene thouſande of ỹ chyldren of Iſrael to the groũde, which all drue the ſwearde.

Then wente all the chyldren of Iſraell vp, and all ỹ people, and came to the houſe of God and wepte, and tarped there before the LORDE, and faſted that daye vntyll the euen, & offred burntofferynges & thanck offerynges before the LORDE. And ỹ chyldren of Iſrael ared at the LORDE (for the Arke of the conuenaũt of God was there at that tyme, and Phineas the ſonne of Eleaſar the ſonne of Aaron ſtode before hym at the ſame tyme) & they ſayde: Shall we go forth ony more to fyght agaynſt our brethren the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin, or ſhall we leaue of?

The LORDE ſayde: Go vp, for to morow I delyuer them into youre handes.

* And the chyldren of Iſraell ſet a watch agaynſt Gibea rounde about and ſo the chyldren of Iſraell wente vp to the chyldren of Ben Jamin on the thirde daye, and ſet themſelues in araye againſt Gibea lyke as the other two tymes afore. Then came ỹ chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin out againſt the people, and drake out of the cytye, and beganne to ſlaye certayne wounded of the people (lyke as ỹ other two tymes afore) in the feld vpõ two ſtretes: wherof one gaed towarde Bethel, the other vnto Gibea, on a thyrtye men in Iſraell. Then thought the chyldren of Ben Jamin: They are ſmytten before vs lyke as afore. But the chyldren of Iſraell ſayde: Let vs flye, that we maye prouoke them out of the cytye vnto hye ſtretes.

Then all the men of Iſraell gat them from theyr place and prepared themſelues vnto Baali Thamar. And ỹ hynder watch of Iſrael drake out of theyr place, from the caue of Gaba, and came vnto Gibea, with tye thouſande choſen men out of all Iſrael ſo that it was a ſore battayl: but they had not that the euel ſhulde happen vnto them. Thus the LORDE ſmote Ben Jamin before the chyldrẽ of Iſrael, ſo that the ſame daye the chyldren of Iſraell deſtroyed fyue and twentye thouſande and an hundreth men of Ben Jamin, which all drue the ſwearde.

For whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin ſawe that they were ſmytten, the men of Iſrael gaue thẽ rowme (to flye). For they truſted to the watch, which they had ſet by Gibea. And ỹ watch made haſt alſo, & brake forth vnto Gibea, and wente vpon it, and ſmote all the cytye with the edge of the ſweard. They were appoynted betwene themſelues the men of Iſraell and the hynder watch, to fall vpon them with the ſmoke whan the ſmoke of the cytye aroſe. And whan the men of Iſrael turned them in the battayll, and Ben Jamin began to ſmyte the wounded in Iſrael vpon a thyrtye and thought, they are ſmytten before vs lyke as in the battayll afore, then began ther a pyler of ſmoke to aryſe vp from the cytie. And Ben Jamin loked behynde them, and beholde, the flamme of the cytie went vp vnto heauen. And the men of Iſrael turned them, and were fearce vpon the men of Ben Jamin: for they ſawe that the euel was happen vnto them.

And they turned them before the Israel in the waye to the wyldernesse but ꝑ battayll folowed vpon them. And them of the cytie destroyed they amonge them. And they compassed Ben Jamin rounde aboute and folowed vpon them vnto Menuah, & trode thē downe tyl afore Gibea eastward. And ther fell of Ben Jamin eyghtene thousande men, which were all men of armes.

Whan the remnaūt of Ben Jamin saw that, they turned them and fled toward the wyldernesse vnto the stony rocke of Rimō. But in the same strete they slewe fyue thousande men, and folowed vpon thē vnto Gideon, and slewe two thousande of them: and so ther fell the same day of Ben Jamin fyue and twēty thousande men whiche dyue the swearde and were all men of armes. Onely sixe hundreth men turned backe, and fled toward the wyldernesse vnto the stony rocke of Rimon, and abode in the rocke of Rimō, foure monethes. And the men of Israell came agayn to the chyldren of Ben Jamin, and smote them that were in the cytie with the edge of the swearde, both men & cattell, and all that was founde: and what soeuer was founde in cytie, they cast it in to the fyre.

The.xxi.Chapter.

THe men of Israell had sworne at Mispa, & sayd: Noman shal geue his doughter to the Benjamites to wyfe. And ꝑ people cam to the house of God (in Silo) and abode there before God vntyll the euenynge, and lyft vp theyr voyce, & wepte sore, and sayd: O LORDE God of Israel, wherfore is this com to passe in Israel this daye? But on the morow we the people gat them vp early, and buylded there an altare and offred burntofferynges and thankoffe-rynges.

And the chyldren of Israel sayd: Where is ther ony mā of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp with the congregacyon vn to the LORDE? For ther was a great othe made, that who so came not to Mispa vnto the LORDE, shulde dye the death. And the chyldren of Israel were sory for Ben Jamin theyr brother, and sayd: This daye is ther one trybe lesse in Israel. How wyll we do ꝑ the remnaunt may haue wyues? For we haue sworne by the LORDE, that we wyll not geue them wyues of oure doughters.

And they sayd: Where is ther ony man of ꝑ trybes of Israel, that is not come vp to the LORDE vnto Mispa? And beholde, ther was not one man of the cytelyns of Jabes in Gilead.

Then sent the congregacyō twelfe thousande men of armes thyther, & commaūded them, and sayd: Go your waye and smyte ꝑ cytelyns of Jabes in Gilead wt the swearde, the wemen also and the chyldren, but so that ye do after this maner: * Se that ye dēme all them that are males, and all the wemen that haue lyen wt men. And amonge ꝑ cytie syns of Jabes in Gilead they founde foure hūdreth damsels, which were virgins, and had lyen with nomā: those they brought in to the hoost vnto Silo, whiche lyeth in the lande of Canaan. Num.31.c

Then sent the whole congregacyon, & C caused to talke with the chyldren of Ben Jamin, * which were in ꝑ stonye rocke of Rimon, and called vnto them frendly. So the chyldren of Ben Jamin came agayne at the same tyme, & they gaue them women which they had of ꝑ women of Jabes in Gilead, & founde no mo after that maner. Then were the people sory for Ben Jamin, that ꝑ LORDE had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And the Elders of the congregacyon sayd: What wyll we do, that the remnaunt maye haue wyues also? for ꝑ womē in Ben Jamin are destroyed, and they sayd: The enherytaūce of them of Ben Jamin that are escaped, must nedes remayne, that ther be not a trybe destroyed out of Israell: and we can not geue thē our doughters to wyues: For the children of Israel haue sworne and sayd: cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to the Ben Jamites. Judi.20.g

And they sayd: Behold, ther is a yearly feast of the LORDE at Silo, which lieth on the northsyde of the Gods house, and on the eastsyde of the strete as a man goeth frō Bethel vnto Sichem, and lyeth on the southsyde of Libona. And they commaunded the chyldren of Ben Jamin, and sayd: Go your waye, and wayte in the vyneyardes. And whan ye se that the doughters of Silo, go forth by cōpanyes to daunse, get you out of the vyneyardes, and euery man take hym a wyfe of the doughters of Silo, & go youre waye in to the lande of Ben Jamin. As for theyr fathers and brethren, whan they come to lawe with vs, we wyll saye vnto them: Be fauourable to them, for they haue not taken them in battayll: but ye gaue them not vnto them by tyme, and it is your faute. D

The chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd so, & ac-cordynge to theyr nōbre tokē thē wyues frō

wyues frō the dauce, whō they caught by violence, & wente theyr waye, and dwelt in in theyr owne inheritaūce, and buylded cyties and dwelte therin. The chyldren of Israel also gat them vp from thence at ỹ same tyme, euery one to his trybe and to his kynred, and departed thence, euery man to his owne inheritaunce. * At that tyme was ther no kyng in Israel, & euery man dyd the thynge that was ryght in his owne eyes.

¶ The ende of the boke of the Iudges, called Judicum.

The boke of Ruth

* What this boke contayneth.

Chap. i. Elimelech departeth from Bethleem with his wyfe & two sōnes into ỹ lāde of the Moabites wher the father dyeth & both the sonnes. Ruth the wyfe of the one sonne goeth home with hir mother in lawe.

Chap. ii. Ruth gathereth vp eares of corne in the felde of Boos hir husbandes kynsman.

Chap. iii. Ruth layeth her downe in ỹ darke at Boos fete & he greeteth her good wordes & ladeth her with fyre measures of barlye.

Chap. iiii Boos marieth Ruth which begetteth hym Obed Dauids graūtfather.

The fyrst Chapter.

IN the tyme whan the Iudges ruled, ther was a derth in the lande. And ther went a mā frō Bethleē Juda to take his iourney in to the lande of the Moabites with his wyfe and two sōnes, which man was called Elimelech, and his wife Naemi, and his two sonnes, the one Mahelon, and the other Chiliō: these were Ephrates of Bethleem Juda. And whan they came in to the lande of ỹ Moabites, they dwelt there. And Elimelech Naemis husbād dyed, & she was left behynde wt hir two sōnes, whiche toke Moabitish wyues: ỹ one was called Orpa, the other Ruth. And whan they had dwelte there ten yeares, they dyed, both Maheliō & Chilion, so that the woman remayned desolate of both hir sonnes, and hir husbande.

Then gat she her vp with both hir sonne wyues, and wente agayne out of the lande of the Moabytes (for she had herde in the londe of the Moabytes, that the LORDE had vysyted hys people, and geuen them breed) and so she departed from the place where she was, and both hyr sonnes wyues with her. And as they wente by ỹ way to come agayne in to the lond of Juda, Naemi sayd vnto both hyr sōnes wiues: Go your waye: and turne backe ether of you to hyr mothers house: the LORDE shewe mercy vpon you, as ye haue done on them that are dead, and on me. The LORDE graūte you, ỹ ye may fynd rest ether of you in hyr husbandes house (whom ye shall gyue) and she kyssed them.

Then lyfte they vp theyr voyce, and wept, & sayde vnto her: We wyll go wt the vnto thy people. But Naemy sayd: Turne agayn my doughters, why wold ye go wt me? * How can I haue chyldren ony more in my body, to be youre husbandes? Turne agayn my doughters, and go youre waye, for I am now to olde to take an husbande.

And though I shuld saye, I hope thys night to take an husband, & to bringe forth chyldren, yet could not ye tary, tyl they were growne vp: for ye shulde be to olde, & so ye coulde haue no husbandes. No my doughters, therfore am I sory for you, for ỹ hāde of the LORD is gone forth ouer me.

Then lyfte they vp theyr voyce, & wept yet more, and Orpa kyssed hyr mother in lawe and turned backe agayne, but Ruth abode styll by her. Neuertheles she sayde: Beholde, thy syster in lawe is turned backe vnto hyr people, and to hyr God, turne thou agayn, also after thy syster in lawe. Ruth answered: Speake not to me therof, I shulde forsake the, and turne backe from ỹ: * whyther soeuer thou goest, thyther wyl I go also: and loke where thou abydest, there wyl I abyde also: Thy people is my people, and thy God is my God. And where thou dyest, ther wil I dye, & ther will I also be buried. The LORDE do so & that vnto me, death only shal departe vs.

Now whā she sawe, ỹ she was stedfastly mynded to go wt her, she spake nomore to her therof. So they wente on both together, tyl they came vnto Bethleē. And whā they were come in to Bethleem, the hole cytie was moued ouer them, and sayd: Is not this Naemy? Neuertheles she sayde vnto them: cal me not Naemy, but Mara for the almightie hath made me very

I departed full, but ꝑ LORD hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why call ye me then Naemi? whan the LORDE hath brought me lowe, and the Almyghtye hath made me sorye?

It was aboute the tyme of the begynnynge of the barlye haruest, whan Naemi and hir sonnes wyfe Ruth the Moabitisse, came agayne from the lande of the Moabites vnto Bethleem. Ther was a kynsman also of the kynred of Eli Melech Naemis husbande, whose name was Boos, whiche was an honest man.

The.ii. Chapter.

AND Ruth the Moabitysse sayd vnto Naemi: Let me go in to ꝑ felde, and gather eares of corn, after him, in whose sight I shal fynde fauoure: She sayde vnto her: Go thy way my doughter. She wet on, and came and gathered after ꝑ reapers in the felde. And it fortuned that the same felde was the enheritaunce of Boos, which was of the kynred of Eli Melech, and beholde, Boos came frō Bethleem, and sayde vnto the reapers: The LORDE be with you They answered: The LORD blesse the. And Boos sayde vnto his pōge man which had the ouersight of the reapers, Whose damsell is this? The ponge man that was set ouer the reapers, answered and sayde: It is the damsell the Moabitisse, which came agayne with Naemi from the londe of the Moabites. And she sayd: Let me plucke vp and gather (I pray the) betwene ꝑ sheues after the reapers: and thus is she come, and hath stonde here euer sence the morynge, and within a litle whyle she wold haue ben gone home agayne.

Then sayde Boos vnto Ruth: Hearest thou my doughter? Thou shalt not go vpō an other mans londe to gather, & go not awaye from hence, but tary with my dāsels, and loke where they reape in the felde, go thou after them: for I haue cōmaunded my seruauntes that no man touche the. And yf thou be a thyrst, go thy waye to the vessell and drynk, where my seruaūtes draw. Thē fell she vpō hir face, & bowed hir selfe downe to the earth, and sayd vnto him. How haue I founde this fauoure in thy syght, ꝑ thou woldest know me, which am yet a strāger? Boos answered and sayde vnto her: It is told me altogether, what thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe after thy husbandes death, howe what thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and thy natiue cōtre, and art come to a people, whome thou hast not knowne afore. The LORDE recompence the thy doynge, and thy rewarde be perfecte vō the LORDE God of Israell, vnto whō thou art come to put thy trust vnder his wynges. She sayde: let me fynde fauoure (syre) before thyne eyes for thou hast cōforted me and spoken frendly vnto thy handmayde, where as I am not yet lyke one of thy handmaydens.

Boos sayde vnto her: Whan it is eatynge tyme, come hither, & eate of the bread and dyppe thy morsell in the vyneger. And she sat hir downe beside ꝑ reapers. And he set parched corne before her, & she dyd eate, and was satisfyed, and lefte ouer. And whā D she rose to gather, Boos cōmaunded his seruauntes, and sayd: Let her gather betwene the sheues also, and do her no dishonesty: and cast of ꝑ sheues vnto her, and let it lye that she maye gather it vp, and se that no man reproue her for it.

So she gathered in the felde vntyll euē and she dyd shake out what she had gathered, and it was almoost an Epha of barlye: and she toke it vp, and came in to the cite, & shewed hir mother in law what she had gathered. She toke forth also, and gaue her of that whiche was left, wherof she was satisfyed. Then sayde hir mother in lawe, vnto her. Blessynge haue the man that hath knowne the, where thou hast gathered and laboured this daye.

She tolde hir mother in law by whome E she had laboured, & sayd: The mans name by whome I haue wrought to daye, is Boos. Naemi sayd vnto hir doughter in law: The blessynge of the LORDE haue he, for he hath not left of to be mercyfull vnto the lyuynge * and to the dead. And Naemi Cor.12.a sayde vnto her: The same man belongeth vnto vs and is our nye kynsman. Ruth the Moabitisse sayde: He sayde moreouer vnto me, Thou shalt resorte vnto my seruaūtes, tyll they haue made an ende of all my haruest. Naemi sayd vnto Ruth hyr doughter in law: It is better my doughter that thou go forth with his dāsels, lest ony man with stonde the in another felde. Thus she kepte her selfe with Boos damsels, so that she gathered vntyl the barly haruest: and ꝑ wheat haruest was out, and came agayne to hyr mother in lawe.

The fyrst Chapter.

THer was a mā of Ramathaim Sophim of mounte Ephraim *whose name was Elcana the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sōne of Tohu, the sonne of Zuph, that was an Ephrait. And he had two wyues, the one was called Anna, the other Peninna. As for Peninna, she had children, but Anna had no children. And ỳ same man wente vp from his cytie *at his tyme, to worshippe and to offer vnto the LORDE Zebaoth at Silo. There were the prestes of the LORDE Ophni and Phineas, the two sōnes of Eli. Now whan it came vpō a day that Elcana offred, he gaue partes vnto his wyfe Penina, and to al his sōnes & doughters. But vnto Anna he gaue one deale heauely, for he loued Anna. Neuertheles *the LORD had closed hir wombe, and hir aduersary cast her in the teth with hir vnfrutfulnesse, because the LORDE had closed hyr wombe: thus dyd she euery yeare, whā they went vp to the house of the LORDE & thus she prouoked her. So she wept and dyd eat nothynge. But Elcana hir husbande sayde vnto her: Wherfore wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? And wherfore is thyn hart so greued? Am not I better vnto the thē ten sonnes?

Then stode Anna vp, whan she had eaten & dronken at Silo. But Eli the prest sat vpon a stoole by the poste of the tēple of the LORDE. And she was ful of heuynesse in hir hart, & prayed vnto the LORDE, & wepte, & vowed a vowe, & sayd: O LORDE Zebaoth, yf thou wylt loke vpon the aduersite of thy handmayden, & thynke vpon me, & not forget thy handmayden, & wylt geue thy handmayden a sonne, I wyll geue hym vnto the LORDE all his lyfe longe, *and ther shal no rasoure come vpon his heade. Judi 13.a Num 9. a

And whan she had prayed longe before the LORDE, Eli toke hede to hir mouth, for Anna spake in hir hart, hir lippes onely moued, but hir voyce was not herde. Then thought Eli she had ben dronken, and sayd vnto her: How longe wylt thou be dronkē? Let come from the the wyne that thou hast by the. Neuertheles Anna answered and sayd: No my lorde, I am a sorowful womā, wyne nor stronge drynke haue I not dronken, *but haue poured out my harte before the LORDE. Count not thy handmayden a doughter of Belial: for out of my heuy thought & sorowe haue I spoken hetherto. Psal 41.a

Eli answered her, and sayd: Go thy way in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt the thy petityon that thou hast desyred of hym. She sayd: Let thy handmayden fynde fauoure in thy syght. So the woman wente hir waye and dyd eate, and loked nomore so sorowfully, and on the morowe they gat thē vp by tymes. And whan they had worshipped before the LORDE, they returned, & came home vnto Ramatha.

And Elcana laye with Anna his wyfe: and the LORDE remembred her. *And after certayne dayes she conceaued and bare a sonne, and called his name Samuel, for I haue desyred hym (sayd she) of the LORDE. Gene.21.a

And whan the man Elcana wente vp with all his householde to offer sacrifice and his vowe vnto the LORDE at such tyme as ỳ costume was. Anna went not vp, but sayd vnto hyr husvande: I wyll not go vp tyll the chylde be weened: then wyll I bringe hym that he maye appeare before the LORDE, & contynue there *forever. Num.9.

Elcana hir husband sayd vnto her: Thē do as thou thynkest best, tary tyl thou haue weened hym: but the LORDE performe ỳ he hath spoken. So the woman abode, and gaue hir sonne sucke, tyll she weened hym. And whan she had weened hym, she *brought hym vp with her, with thre bullockes, with an Epha of fyne flour, and a botel of wyne, and brought hym in to the house of ỳ LORDE at Silo. Luce 2.b

Neuertheles the chylde was yet but yonge. And they slew a bullocke, & brought the chylde vnto Eli. And she sayd: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule lyueth my lorde I am ỳ woman that stode here by ỳ, & made intercession vnto the LORDE, whā I prayed for this chylde. Now hath the LORDE graūted me my petityon, whiche I desyred of hym, therfore haue I geuen hym ouer vnto the LORDE, as longe as he is lent vnto the LORDE. And they worshipped the LORDE there.

The.ii. Chapter.

I AND Anna prayed and sayde:
My harte reioyceth in the LORDE, and my horne is exalted in the LORDE.
My mouth is opened wyde vpon myne enemyes, for I am glad of thy saluacyon.

There is noman holy as the LORDE, for without the is nothynge, and there is no rõe forte lyke vnto our God.

Let go your great boastynge of hye thynges, let go out of your mouth that olde byworde: for the LORDE is a God that knoweth all thynges, and he hath set all workes in order.

The bowe of the myghtye is broken, & the weake are gyrded about with strength.

They that were fylled afore, are solde for bread: & they that were hõgrye, are satisfied vntyll the baren bare seuen, and tyl she that had many children, was become weake.

B *The LORDE slayeth, and geueth lyfe: he ledeth vnto hell, and bryngeth out agayne.

Deu 32.f
Sap 16.c
Tob 13.a

The LORDE maketh poore and maketh rych: he bryngeth lowe and exalteth.

Psa 112.a
Luc.1.b

*He taketh vp the nedye out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the poore out of the myre, ỹ he may set them amonge the princes, and to let them inheret the seat of honoure, for the fundacyon and corners of the worlde are the LORDES, and he hath set the compasse of the earth theron.

He shall preserue the fete of his sayntes, but the vngodly shalbe put to silence in dar knesse. *For ther is no man ỹ can do ought of his owne power.

Deu 8.b

The LORDES enemyes shalbe put in feare before hym, he shall thonder vpon the in heauen.

The LORDE shall iudge the endes of the worlde, and shal geue strength vnto his kynge, and shall exalte the horne of his anoynted.

C Elcana wente his waye to Ramath vnto his house. And the chylde became the LORDES mynyster before Eli the preste. But Elies sonnes were the childrẽ of Belial, and knewe not the LORDE, nor the deutye of the prestes vnto the people: but whan ony man wolde offer ought, the prestes boye came, whyle the fleshe was sethynge and had a thre forked flesheoke in his hande and thrust it in to the catildron, or kettell, or panne or pot: and loke what he fyshed vp with the flesheoke, that toke the preest therfore. Thus dyd they vnto all Israel, which came then there vnto Silo.

Lykewyse or euer they burned the fatte, the prestes lad came, and sayde vnto hym that brought the offerynge: Geue me the fleshe, that I maye roste it for the preest, for he will receaue no sodden fleshe of the, but rawe. Yf ony man sayd then vnto hym: Let ỹ fatte burne as it ought to do this daye, and afterwarde take what thyne harte desyreth, then sayd he vnto hym: Thou shalte geue it me euen now: yf no, I wyll take it from the by violence. Therfore was the synne of ỹ chyldren very great before the LORDE, for the people spake euel of the meatofferynge of the LORDE. But Samuel was a mynister before the LORDE, and the chylde was gyrded with an ouerbody cote of lynnē. His mother also made hym a lytle cote of lyke and brought it vp vnto him at cõuenient tymes whan she * wente vp with hir husbande to offer the offerynge in due season.

And Eli blessed Elcana and his wyfe, & sayde: The LORDE geue the sede of this woman, for this good that thou hast lent vnto the LORDE. And they went vnto their place. And the LORDE vysyted Anna, so that she conceaued and bare thre sonnes & two doughters: but ỹ chyld Samuel grewe vp with the LORDE.

As for Eli, he was very olde, and herde of all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, how they laye with the wemen that serued God before the dore of the tabernacle of the nesse, and he said vnto them, wherfore do ye this? for I heare of your euel conuersacyon of all this people. Not so my children, for it is no good reporte that I heare, ye cause people of the LORDE to offende. * yf ony man synne agaynst a man, the iudge can reconcyle it. But yf ony man synne agaynst the LORDE, who can reconcyle it? Neuertheles they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, for the LORDES will was to slaye them. *But ỹ chylde Samuel wẽte & grewe vp & was accepted of the LORDE and of men.

There came a man of God to Eli, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I shewed my selfe vnto thy fathers house whan they were yet in Egipte vnder the house of Pharao, and chose hym ther vnto my selfe before all the trybes of Israel for the prestlhode, that he shulde offer vpon myne altare, and burne incense, and weare the ouerbody cote before me, * & vnto thy fathers house I gaue all ỹ offerynges of the chyldren of Israell. Why lapest thou thy selfe then agaynst my sacrifices and meatofferynges, which I commaunded to offer in the habitacyon: and thou honourest thy sonnes more then me, that ye myghte fede your selues with the fyrstlynges of all the meatofferynges of my people of Israel.

Therfore sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: I haue spoken, that thy house & thy fathers house shulde walke before me forever. But now sayth the LORDE: That be farre fro me. But whosoeuer honoureth me hym wyll I honoure also: as for those that despyse me, they shall not be regarded. Beholde, * the tyme shall come, that I wyll breake thyne arme in two, and the arme of thy fathers house, so that ther shall no olde mã be in thy house. And thou shalt se thyne aduersaries in the habitacyõ, in all ỹ good of Israell and ther shall neuer be olde man in thy fathers house. yet wil I not rote out euery man of the fro myne altare, but that thyne eyes maye be consumed, & ỹ thy soule may be sorye: * and a great multytude of thy house shall dye whan they are come to be men.

*And this shalbe a token vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes Ophni & Phineas: * They shall both dye in one day. * But vnto my selfe I wyll rayse vp a fayth full prest, which shall do accordynge as it is in my harte and in my soule: vnto hym wyl I buylde a sure house, that he maye alway walke before myne anoynted. And whosoeuer remayneth of thy house, shall come and worshippe hym for a syluer peny and for a pece of bread, and shal saye: I praye ỹ leaue me to one prestes parte, that I maye eate a morsell of bread.

The.iii. Chapter.

AND whan the chylde Samuell ministred vnto the LORDE vnder Eli, the word of the LORDE was deare at the same tyme, no ther was ther ony sure & many reuelõ. And it fortuned at the same tyme that Eli laye in his place, * and his eyes began to be dymme, so that he coulde not se. And Samuel had layed hym downe in the temple of the LORDE (where the Arcke of God was) before the lampe of God was put out. And the LORDE called: Samuel. He answered: Beholde, here am I. And he ran vnto Ely, and sayd: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. But he sayde: I haue not called the, go thy way agayne, & lay the downe to slepe. And he wente his waye, and layed hym downe to slepe.

The LORDE called agayne: Samuel. And Samuel arose, and wente vnto Ely, & sayd: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. Neuertheless he sayd: My sõne, I haue not called the. Go thy waye agayne, & laye ỹ down to slepe. As for Samuel, he knewe not the LORDE as yet, and ỹ worde of the LORDE was not yet shewed vnto hym. And the LORDE called Samuel the thyrd tyme. And he arose and went vnto Eli, and sayd: Beholde, here am I thou hast called me.

Then perceaued Eli that the LORDE called the chylde, and he sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to slepe: and yf the LORDE call ony more, then saye: Speake LORDE for thy seruaunt heareth. Samuel wente his waye, and layed hym downe in his place. Then came the LORDE and stode, and called lyke as afore: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel sayd: Speake (LORDE) for thy seruaunte heareth. And the LORDE sayd vnto Samuel: Beholde, I do a thynge in Israel ỹ whosoeuer shall heare it, both his eares shall glowe. In that dayes wyll I rayse vp vpon Eli * all that I haue spoken concernynge his house, I wyll take it in hande, & perfourme it: for I haue tolde hym, that I wyl be iudge ouer his house forever, because of the wyckednes, ỹ he knewe how shamefully his chyldren behaued the selues, & hath not once loked so wel therto. Therfore haue I swore vnto the house of Eli, that this wyckednesse of ỹ house of Eli shall not be reconcyled nether with sacrifice nor with meatofferynge forever. And Samuel lay vnto the morowe, and opened the dores of the house of the LORDE, 1.Reg.2.g

But Samuel was afrayed to tell ỹ vision vnto Eli. Then Eli called hym & sayd: Samuel my sonne. He answered: Beholde, here am I. He sayd: What is ỹ worde that the LORDE hath spoke vnto the? hyde it not fro me: God do this & that vnto the, yf thou hyde ought fro me, of al that he hath talked with the. Then Samuel tolde hym altogether, and hyd nothynge from hym. He sayd: It is the LORDE, let hym do what pleaseth hym.

Samuell grewe vp, and the LORDE was with hym and ther fell none of all his wordes vpon the earth. And all Israell frō Dan vnto Berlaba, knewe that Samuell was faythfull to be a prophete of the LORDE. And the LORDE appeared agayne at Silo: for the LORDE shewed hymselfe vnto Samuel at Silo, thorow the worde of ỹ LORDE.

The.iiii.Chapter.

AND all Israel spake of Samuel. And Israel wente forth to ỹ battayll agaynst the Philistines, & pitched beside the *Helpstone: As for the Philistines, they pitched at Apheck, and prepared themselues agaynst Israel. And whan the battayll beganne, the hoost was deuyded, so ỹ Israel was smytten before the enemyes, & in the edge in the felde they slewe aboute a fourte thousande men. And whan the people came in to the hoost, the Elders of Israell sayd: Wherfore hath ỹ LORDE cauſed vs to be smytten this daye before the Philistines? Let vs take vnto vs the Arke of ỹ LORDES conuenaūt from Silo, and let it come amonge vs, that it may helpe vs from the hande of our enemyes. And the people sent vnto Silo, and cauſed to fetch thēce ỹ Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE Zebaoth that sytteth vpon the Cherubyns. And with the Arke of the cōuenaūt of God ther were the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas. *1.Reg.7.c.

B And whan the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE came in to the hoost, all Israel shouted with a great shoute, so that the earth sounded withall. But whan the Philystines herde ỹ noyse of ỹ shoute they sayd: What noyse is this of such great shoutyng in the tentes of the Hebrues? And whā they perceaued that the Arke of the LORDE was come in to the hoost, they were afrayed and sayd: God is come in to the hoost. And they sayd moreouer: Wo vnto vs, for it hath not bene thus afore tyme. Wo vnto vs. Who wyll delyuer vs frō ỹ hāde of these hye goddes? These ar the goddes that smote Egipt with all maner of plages in ỹ wyldernesse. Be stronge now and manly ye Philistynes that ye serue not ỹ Hebrues * as they haue serued you. Be manly and fyght. *Iudi.13.a.

C Then fought the Philistines, and Israell was smytten, and euery one fled vnto his tente, and ther was a very great slaughter, so that ther fell of Israell thirtye thousande foote men. And the Arke of God was taken, * and the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas dyd. *1.Reg.2.d

Then tāne ther one of Ben Jamin ran of the fore front of the battayl & came [illegible] Silo the same daye, & had his clothes rent and had earth vpon his heade. And whā he came in, Heli sat vpon the seate, ỹ he might loke towarde ỹ waye: for his harte was full aboute the Arke of God. And whan the man came in to the citye, he tolde it forth, and all the cytye cryed. And whan Eli herd the noyse of the cryenge, he axed: What noyse of businesse is this? The mā came hastily, and tolde Eli. (As for Eli he was fourscore and eyghtene yeare olde, * and his eyes were dymme so ỹ he coulde not se.) The man sayde vnto Eli: I come & am fled this day out of the hoost. He sayde: How is it sonne?

Then answered the tydynge bringer, & sayde: Israel is fled before the Philistines, and a great slaughter hath ther ben among the people, and thy two sonnes Ophni and Phineas are dead, yee & the Arke of God is taken awaye. Whan he had made mencyon of the Arke of God, he fel downe backwarde from the seate by the gate, and brake his necke, and dyed: for he was olde, and a heuy man. He iudged Israel fourty yeare. The wyfe of his sonne Phineas was with chylde, and shulde shortly haue ben delyuered: whan she herde the tydynges ỹ the Arke of God was taken, and that hir father in lawe and hir husbande were dead, she bowed her selfe and trauayled: for her paynes came vpon her. And whan she was nye the poynte of death, the wemē that stode by her, sayd: * Feare not, thou hast a sonne. But she gaue no answere, nother regarded it, and she called the chylde Icabod, & sayde: The glorye is gone from Israel, because the Arke of God was taken awaye, and for her father in lawe and hir husbande. And she sayde moreouer: The glorye is gone from Israel, for the Arke of God is taken away.

The.v.Chapter.

AS for ỹ Arke of God, the Philistynes toke it and brought it from * the stone of helpe vnto Asdod into the house of Dagon, and set it beside Dagon. And whan they of Asdod rose vp early on the morowe, they founde Dagō lyeng on his face vpon the earth, before the Arke of the LORDE. But they toke vp Dagon, and set him agayne in his place. Neuertheles they rose vp early on ỹ nexte morowe, they Dagon lyenge on his face agayne vpō the earth before the Arke of the LORD: but his heade and both his handes hewen of vpon the trefholde, so that the blocke laye there onely. Therfore the prestes of Dagon, and all they that go in to his house, treade not vpon the trefholde of Dagon at Asdod vnto this daye.

But the hande of the LORDE was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and destroyed thē, and smote Asdod and all the borders therof in secrete places. Whā the men of Asdod saw ꝑ they were so plaged, they sayde: * Let not the Arke of ꝑ God of Israel tary with vs, for his hāde is to hard vpon vs & vpō oure God Dagō. And they sent forth and gathered all the prynces of the Philystines vnto them, and sayd: What shall we do with the Arke of ꝑ God of Israell? Then answered they of Geth: Let the Arke of the God of Israell be borne aboute. And they caried the Arke of the God of Israell rounde aboute.

But whan they bare it aboute, ther was a very great rumore in the cytie thorow the hande of the LORDE, and smote the people of the cytie, from the smalest vnto the great, and destroyed thē in the secrete places. Then sent they the Arke of the LORD vnto Ekrō. But whā the Arke of the LORD came vnto Ekrō, they of Ekrō cryed: They haue caried the Arke of God aboute vnto me, to slaye me and my people.

Then sente they forth, and gathered all the prynces of ꝑ Philistines together, and sayde: Sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel agayn vnto hir place, that it slaye not me & my people: for ther is a very great rumoure with the dead in all the cytie, and the hande of God is there. And the people that dyed not, were smittē in secrete places, so that the noyse of the cytie wente vp vnto heauen.

The.vi.Chapter.

THus was the Arke of the LORDE in the londe of the Philistynes seuen monethes. And the Philystynes called their prestes and soothsayers, and sayd: What shal we do with the Arke of ꝑ LORD? Shewe vs, wherwith shall we sende it vnto hir place? They sayde: yf ye wyll sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israell, sende it not away empty, but geue a trespasseoffe rynge: so shall ye be made whole, & ye shall know, why his hāde departeth not frō you.

They sayde: What is the trespasseofferynge that we shal geue hym? They answered: fyue mans hynder partes of golde, and fyue golden myce accordynge to the nombre of the fyue prynces of the Philistines. For ther hath bene one maner of plage vpō you all, and vpon your prynces. Therfore must ye make youre hynder partes of one fasshyon and youre myce, whiche haue destroyed youre londe: that ye maye geue the God of Israell ꝑ honoure: peraduenture his hand shalbe thelighter vpon you and vpon youre God, and vpō youre londe. Why harden ye your harte as the Egipcians & Pharao hardened their hart? Whan he shewed hymself vpon them: * dyd not they let them departe to go their waye? Exo.12.c

Go to now therfore, and make a * newe cart, and take two mylke kyne, vpon the which ther neuer came yocke, and yocke thē to the carte, & let their calues tary behynde them at home: and take ye the Arcke of the LORDE and laye it vpon ꝑ cart: and the ꝑwels of golde that ye geue him for a trespasseoffe rynge put in a coffer besyde it, and sende it awaye and let it go. And loke well yf it go the way of hir owne coast Beth Semes, then hath he done vs all this great euell: yf no, then shal ye knowe ꝑ his hande hath not touched vs, but that is happened vnto vs by chaunce. 2.Reg.6.a

The men dyd so, and toke two yonge mylkekyne, and yocked them to a carte, and helde their calues at home, and layed the Arke of the LORDE vpon the cart, and the coffer with the golden myce, and with the ymages of their disease. And the kyne went C strayght waye vnto Beth Semes vpō one hye strete, and wente on bleatynge, and turned nother to the ryght hande nor to ꝑ left. And the prynces of the Philistynes went after them vnto the coast of Beth Semes.

The Beth Semites were euen reapyng downe their wheat harueste in the valley, & lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe the Arke, and reioyced to se it. The carte came in to ꝑ feld of Iosua ꝑ Beth Semite, and there it stode styll. And there was a great stone, and they claue the tymber of the carte, and offred the kyne vnto the LORDE for a burntoffrynge.

But the Leuites toke downe the Arke of the LORDE, and the coffer that was by it, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and sette them vpō the great stone. The men of Beth Semes offered burntofferinges & other offerynges also vnto ꝑ LORD the same day. And whan ꝑ fyue prynces of ꝑ Philistines had sene it, they departed agayne ꝑ same daye towarde Ekron.

D These are the golden diseases, that the Philistines offred for a trespasse offerynge vnto the LORDE: Asdod one: Gasa one: Ascalon one: Gath one: and Ekron one: & golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of all the cytyes of the Philystynes amonge the fyue prynces, from the walled cyte vnto the village, and vnto the greate playne felde, wherupon they set the Arke of the LORDE which was vnto this daye vpon the felde of Josua the Bethshemite.

And certayne of Beth Semes were slayne because they had sene the Arke of the LORDE, and he slewe fyfty thousande and seuentye men of the people. Then mourned the people, because the LORD had done so great a slaughter in ỳ people. And the men at Beth Semes sayde: Who may stonde before the LORD so holy a God? And to whome shall he go frō vs? And they sent messaungers to the inhabiters of kyriath Jearim, sayenge: The Philistynes haue brought ỳ Arke of God agayn, come downe and fetch it vp vnto you.

The.vii.Chapter.

I SO the men of kyriath Jearim came downe, & fetched the Arke of the LORDE, and broughte it in to ỳ house of * Aminadab at Gibea & they consecrated Eleasar his sonne that he mighte kepe the Arke

2.Reg.6.a

1.par.14.a * And from that daye that the Arke of the LORDE abode at kiriath Jearim, the tyme extended forth so longe tyll it came to twēty yeares: and all the house of Israel wept after the LORDE.

Josu.24.c Judi.14.c But Samuell sayde vnto all the house of Israell: * yf ye turne with all youre hart vnto the LORDE, then put awaye from you the straunge goddes and Astaroth, and directe your hart vnto the LORD and Deu.6.c Mat.4.b * serue hym onely, so shall he delyuer you out of ỳ hande of the Philistynes. Then the chyldren of Israell put awaye Baalim and Astaroth frō thē, and serued the LORDE onely.

B Samuell sayde: Gather all Israell together vnto Mispa, that I maye praye for you vnto the LORDE. And they came together vnto Mispa, and drue water, and powted it out before the LORDE, and fasted the same daye, and there they sayde: We haue synned vnto the LORDE. So Samuell iudged the chyldren of Israell at Mispa.

But whan the Philistynes herde that the chyldren of Israell were come together vnto Mispa, the prynces of ỳ Philystynes wente vp agaynst Israell. Whan the children of Israell herde that, they were afrayed of the Philistynes, and sayde vnto Samuel: Ceasse not to crye vnto the LORDE God for vs, that he maye helpe vs out of hande of the Philistynes. * Samuell [illegible] a fat lambe, and offred an whole burntsacrifice vnto the LORDE, and cryed vnto the LORD for Israell, and the LORD herde him. And whyle Samuell was offeryng the burntsacrifice, ỳ Philistines came to fight agaynst Israell. But the LORDE thondred a thonder vpon the Philystynes the same daye, and discōfited them, so that they were smytten before Israel. Then wente the men of Israel forth: and chaced the Philistines and smote them tyll vnder Beth Car. Then toke Samuell a stone, and set it betwene Mispa and Sen, and called it the * stone and sayde: Hetherto hath the LORDE helped vs. Thus were the Philistynes brought downe, and came nomore within the border of Israell. And the hande of the LORDE was agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Samuell lyued.

* So Israell gat ỳ cytyes agayne, that the Philistynes had cōquerred, from Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders therof, that dyd Israell rescue out of the hande of the Philistynes: and Israell had peace with Ammorites. Samuell iudged Israell alōge as he lyued, & wēte about euery yere vnto Bethell, & Gilgal, and Mispa: and he had iudged Israell in all the places, he came agayne vnto Ramath: for there was his house, and there he iudged Israell and buylded an altare there vnto the LORDE.

The.viii.Chapter.

BUt whan Samuel was olde he sette his sonnes to be iudges ouer Israell. His firstborne sonne was called Joell and the secōde Abia, and they were iudges at Berlaba. Neuertheles his sonnes walked not in his wayes, but enclyned to couetousnesse, and * toke gyftes, & peruerted the law. Then all the Elders in Israell gathered themselues together, and came to Ramath vnto Samuell, and sayde vnto hym: Beholde thou art waxen olde, and thy sōnes walke not in thy wayes, * set a kynge ouer vs therfore, to iudge vs, as all the people then haue. Then was Samuell displeased whan they sayd: Geue vs a kynge to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed before the LORDE

B The LORDE sayde vnto Samuell: Herken vnto the voyce of the people in all that they haue sayde vnto the. * For they haue

They do vnto the as they haue done euer, sence the daye ỹ I brought them out of the londe of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes. Herke now therfore vntotheir voyce, yet testifye vnto the, & shewe the ỹ

And Samuell tolde all the wordes of ỹ LORDE vnto the people, that requyred a kynge of hym. This shalbe the lawe of the

C and to be rulers and captaynes, to be plowmen to tyll his londe, and to be reapers in his harueste and to make his harneste, and suche thynge as belonge to his charrettes.
Is for your doughters, he shall take them, to be appotecaries, cokes, & bakers. youre

D youre seruauntes and youre maydens and your beste yonge men, & your asses shalhe take & do his busynesse wal: of your flockes shal he take ỹ tythes, & ye shalbe his seruaũtes. Whan ye shall crye then at the same tyme ouer your kynge, whome ye haue chosen you, the LORDE shall not heare you at the same tyme. Neuertheless the people refused to heare the voyce of Samuell, and sayde: Not so, but ther shalbe a kynge ouer vs, that we maye be as all other Heythen, that oure kynge maye iudge vs, & go forth before vs, and gouerne our warres. Then herkened Samuell vnto all that the people sayd, and tolde it before the eares of the LORDE. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Herken thou vnto theyr voyce, and make them a kynge. And Samuel sayd vnto the men of Israell: Go youre waye euery one vnto his cytye.

The.ix. Chapter.

I Ther was a man of Ben Jamin named * Cis, the sonne of Abiel the sonne of Zeor, the sõne
9.a of Bethorah, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a man of Jemini, a valeaunt man, whiche had a sonne named Saull, which was so goodly a yonge man, that ther was not a goodlyer among the chyldren of Israel, hygher by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had lost his asses, and he sayde vnto Saul his sonne: Take one of the chyldren with the, get the vp, go thy way, and seke the asses. And he went his waye thorow mounte Ephraim and thorow the londe of Solisa and founde them not. They wente thorow the londe of Saalim, and there they were not. They passed thorowe the londe of Jemini and founde them not. But whan they came in to the londe of Zuph, Saull sayde vnto the chylde that was with hym: Come let vs go home agayn, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for vs. He sayd: Behold, here is an honorable man of God in this cytye, al that he sayth, cõmeth to passe: Let vs go thither nowe, peraduenture he maye shew vs our waye which we go. But Saull sayde vnto his chylde: Though we shulde go, what bringe we the man? For ỹ breade is gone out of oure wallet, and els haue we no gyft to bringe the man of God: what haue we? The child answered agayn and sayde: Behold, I haue the fourth part of a syluer Sycle by me, the same will we geue the man of God that he maye shew vs oure waye.

(Afore tyme in Israel, whã a man wẽte B to are councell at the LORD, he sayd: Come, let vs go to the Seyer: for they that now at called prophetes, were celled Seyers afore tyme). Saul sayde vnto his chylde: Thou hast wel spoken come let vs go. And whan they wente vnto the cytye where the man of God was, and came vp vnto the cytye, they founde damsels whiche were gone forth to drawe water, vnto them they sayde: Is the Seyer here? They answered thẽ and sayd: yee: Behold, he is there, make haist: for he came in to the cytye this day, because ỹ people haue a sacrifyce to do to daye in the hye place. Whan ye come in the cytye, ye shall fynde hym, afore he go vp to the hye place for to eate: for the people will not eate tyll he come. For he shall blesse the offerynge: Then shall they eate that are called. Therfore go youre waye vp, for euen now shall ye fynde hym.

And whã they came vp to the cytye, and C were euen in the myddes of ỹ cytye, behold Samuel came forth in theyr way, & wolde go vp to the hye place. (* But the LORDE 1.Ma. 15.a had opened Samuels eare the daye afore, or euer Saull came, and sayde: Tomorow aboute this tyme will I sende a man vnto

the out of the lōde of Ben Jamin, him shalt thou anoynte to be prynce ouer my people of Israell, that he maye delyuer my people frō the hāde of the Philistynes: for I haue loked vpon my people, & they? crye is come before me.) Now whan Samuell behelde Saull, the LORDE answered hym: lo, that is the man of whō I tolde the that he shuld raygne ouer my people.

Then came Saull vnto Samuell vnder the gate, and sayde: tell me (I praye the) where is the Seyers house? Samuell, answered Saull, and sayde: I am the Seyer. Go vp before me vnto the hye place: for ye shall eate with me to day, to morow wyll I let the go, and all that is in thyne hart, wyl I tell the: and as for the asses whiche were lost thre dayes ago, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whome shal belonge all that is pleasaūt in Israell? Shal it not belonge vnto the, & to all thy fathers house? Saul answered: Am not I a sonne of Jemini, * & of the smalest trybe, and my kynred is ỹ leeste amōge all the kynreds of ỹ trybe of Bē Jamin? Why speakest thou so thē vnto me? Samuel toke Saul & his childe & brought them in to ỹ parler where they shuld eate, and satte them aboue those that were called, of whom ther were about a thyrtye men. And Samuell sayde vnto ỹ coke: geue me the porcyon that I gaue the, and bad the kepe it by the. Then the coke toke vp a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saull. And (Samuell) sayde: Behold, this is left, laye it before the, & eate: for it was kepte for the agaynst this tyme, whā I called the people. Thus dyd Saull eate with Samuell the same daye.

And whan they were gone downe from the hye place vnto the cytye, he talked with Saull in the chamber. And they rose vp early on ỹ morow. And whā the morynge sprynge arose, Samuell called Saull in ỹ chamber, and sayde: Up, that I maye sende the thy waye. And Saul gat hym vp: and they both wente forth together, he and Samuell. And whan they came downe to the ende of ỹ cytye, Samuel sayd vnto Saul: Speake vnto ỹ chylde, that he go on forth before vs, but stonde thou styll now, that I maye shewe the what God hath sayde.

The.x. Chapter.

THen * toke Samuell a glas of oyle, and powred it vpō his heade, and kyssed hym, & sayde: Seyst thou that the LORDE hath anoynted the, to be the prynce ouer * his enheritaunce? Whā thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men besyde * Rachels graue in the coast of Benjamin at Selzah, whiche shall saye vnto the: The asses are founde, whome thou wentest to seke: and beholde, thy father hath put ỹ asses out of his mynde, & taketh thought for ỹ, & sayeth: What shal I do for my sonne.

And whan thou goest on forth frō thence thou shalt come to ỹ Oke of Thabor, there shall thre men fynde the, which go vp vnto God towarde Bethel: one beareth thre kydes, another thre loaues of bread, the third a bottell wyth wyne: and they shall salute the, and geue the two loaues, whiche thou shalt take of theyr hande. After that shalt thou come to the hyll of God * where the Philistynes watch is: and whan thou commest there in to the cytye, there shall mete the a company of prophetes cōmynge downe from the hye place, and before them a psaltery, and tabret, a pype and a harpe, & they themselues prophecyeng. And the spyrite of the LORDE shall come vpon the, and thou shalt prophecye with thē, and shalt be chaūged in to another man.

Whan these tokens come now vnto the * then do what soeuer cōmeth vnto thyne hande: for God is with the. And whan he turned his shulder to go from Samuell. God chaūged hym another harte, and all these tokens came the same daye.

And whan they came vnto the hyll, beholde ther mette him a campany of prophetes, * and the spyrite of God came vpō him so that he prophecyed amonge them. But whan they which knewe hym before, sawe him that he prophecyed with the prophetes they sayde all amonge themselues: What is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And one of the was there answered & sayde: Who is their father? * Here of cam ỹ prouerbe: Is Saul also amōge ỹ prophetes? And whan he had left of prophecyenge, he cam vp to the hye

Sauls vncle sayd vnto hym & to his

To seke the asses. And whan we sawe that they were awaye, we came vnto Samuel.
The sayd Sauls vncle: Tel me, what said Samuel vnto you? Saul answered his vn cle: He tolde vs, that the asses were founde.
But of the kyngdome he told hym nothing
what Samuel had sayd.

D Samuel called the people together vn=
to the LORDE to Mispa, and spake vnto
the chyldren of Israel: Thus sayeth ỹ LOR DE the god of Israel: I brought Israel out of Egipte, and deliuered you from the hãde
of the Egipcyans, and from the hande of al
the kyngdomes that oppressed you. * But now haue ye refused your God, which hath helped you out of all youre sorowes & troubles, and ye haue sayd vnto hym: Set a kynge ouer vs. Well, stande ye now before the LORDE accordynge to your trybes and kynredes.

* Now whan Samuel hadde brought forth all the trybes of Israell, the tryb of Ben Jamin was taken. And whan he had brought forth the tryb of Ben Jamin with his kynredes, the kynred of Matri was taken, and Saul the sonne of Cis was taken And they sought hym, but they founde him not.

E Then ared they further at the LORDE, whether he was for to come thether. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath hyd hymselfe amonge the vessels. Then ranne they thyther, and fetched hym. And whan
he stode amonge the people, he was hygher
by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayd vnto all the people: There se ye hym whom the LORDE hath chosen, for in all the people ther is none lyke hym. Then gaue all the people a shoute, & sayd: * God
saue the new kynge.

Samuel tolde the people all * the lawe of the kyngdome, and wrote it in a boke, & layed it before the LORDE. And Samuel let all the people go, euery one to his owne house. And Saul went home also vnto Gi bea, and ther wente with hym one parte of the hoost, whose hartes God had touched.
But the chyldren of Belial sayde: What shall this felowe helpe vs, * and despyled hym, and brought hym no presente. But he made hym as though he herde it not.

The.xi. Chapter,

NAhas the * Ammonite went vp A

them: I wyll make a couenaunt with you, on this condicyon that I maye thrust out all your ryght eyes, & put you to shame amonge all Israel. Then sayde all the Elders of Jabes vnto hym: Geue vs seuen

gers in to all the coastes of Israel: yf ther be no saueoure, we wyll go forth vnto the.

So the messaungers came vnto Gibea B of Saul, and spake this before the eares of the people. Then all the people lyfte vp theyr voyce, and wepte. And behold, Saul came after the oxen out the felde, and sayde:
What ayleth the people that they wepe?
So they tolde hym the earande of the men of Jabes. * Then came the spyrite of God, 1.Re.10.c

Then fell the feare of the LORDE vpon C
the people, so ỹ they went forth lyke as one of the chyldren of Juda. And they spake vn to the messaungers that were come: Saye thus vnto the men of Jabes in Gilead: To morowe shall ye haue helpe, whan the sõne is at the whotest. Whan the messaungers came & tolde this to the men of Jabes, they were glad. And the men of Jabes sayd: To morowe wyll we come forth vnto you, that ye maye do vnto vs, whatsoeuer it pleaseth

you. And on the nexte morow Saul set the people in thre partes, and cam in to ỹ hoost aboute the morynge watch, and smote the Ammonites tyl ỹ daye was at the whotest.
As for those that remayned, they were so sca
tred, that two of them abode not together.

Then sayd the people vnto Samuel: 1.Re.10.g
Where are they that sayd: * Shulde Saul raigne ouer vs? Delyuer vs here the men, that we may put them to death. But Saul sayde: Ther shall no man dye this dye, for to daye hath the LORDE geuen health in Israell. Samuel sayde vnto the people:

Come, let vs go vnto Gilgall and renewe the kyngdome there. Then wente all ỹ people vnto Gilgall, & there they made Saull kynge before the LORDE at Gilgal, and offred thankoffrynges before the LORDE. And Saul with al the men of Israel reioyced there greatly.

The.xii.Chapter.

1 SAmuel sayd vnto all Israel: Beholde, I haue herkened vnto your voyce in al that ye said vnto me, & haue made a kynge ouer you. And now lo, there goeth your kynge before you. As for me, I am waxen olde and grayheered, and my sõnes are with you: and I haue gone before you fro my youth vp vnto this daye. Beholde, here am I: answere ye agaynst me before ỹ

They sayd: Thou hast done vs nother violence nor wronge, nother oppressed, nor taken ought of ony mans hande. He sayde: The LORDE be wytnesse agaynst you, and so be his anoynted this daye, that ye haue founde nothynge in my hande. They sayd: yee they shalbe wytnesses. And Samuel
B sayd vnto the people: The LORDE whiche made Moses and Aarõ, and brought your fathers out of the lande of Egipte is here present. Stonde forth now therfore, that I may iudge you before the LORDE ouer the ryght wysnes of the LORDE, which he hath done for you and your fathers.

Gen.46.a Exo.2.d Exo.3.b * Whan Jacob was come in to Egipt, your fathers cryed vnto the LORDE, * And he sent Moses and Aaron to bryngе your fathers out of Egipt, and to cause them for to dwell in this place.

Judi.6.c & Jud.13.d & Jud.11.a & 1.Re.7.a and we wyll serue the. * Then the LORDE sent Jerubaal, & Bedan, * Jephthae, * and Samuel, and delyuered you from your enemyes rounde aboute & caused you to dwell safe.

But whã ye sawe that Nahas, ỹ kynge of the chyldren of Ammõ came agaynst you * ye sayde vnto me: Not thou, but a kynge shall raigne ouer vs, where as not withstandynge your God was your kynge. Nowe, there haue ye youre kynge, whom ye haue chosen and desyred: for lo the LORDE hath set a kynge ouer you. yf ye shall feare the LORDE now, and serue hym, and herken vnto his voyce, and be not disobedient vnto ỹ mouth of the LORDE, then shall both ye and your kynge that rayneth ouer you, folowe the LORDE your God. But yf ye herken not vnto the voyce of the LORDE, but be disobedient vnto his mouth then shall the hande of the LORDE be agaynst you, & agaynst your fathers.

Stande forth now also, and behold this great thynge, that the LORDE shall do before your eyes. Is it not now ỹ wheate haruest? yet wyll I call vpon the LORDE, & he shall cause it to thonder and rayne, that ye shall knowe and se the great euell, which ye haue done in the syght of the LORDE, in that ye haue desyred to haue a kynge.

* And whan Samuel called vpon the LORDE, the LORDE caused it to thonder and rayne the same daye.

Then all the people feared the LORDE and Samuel greatly, and they sayd all vnto Samuel: Praye thou vnto the LORDE thy God for thy seruaũtes, that we dye not. For besyde our synnes we haue done this euell also ỹ we haue desyred vnto vs a kynge. Samuel sayde vnto all the people: Feare not, ye haue done all thys euell in dede. Neuertheless departe not backe from ỹ LORDE, but serue the LORDE with all your hert, and go not aside after vanyte, for it profiteth you nothynge, and can not deliuer you in so much as it is but a vayne thynge.

* For ỹ LORDE shall not forsake his people because of his great names sake: for ỹ LORDE hath begon to make you a people vnto hym selfe. But God forbyd that I shulde synne so vnto the LORDE, to cease fro prayenge for you, and frõ teachyng you ỹ good and ryghteous waye. Feare ye the LORDE therfore, & serue hym faythfully wt all your harte: for ye haue sene, how great thynge he doth vnto you. But yf ye do wyckedly both ye and youre kynge shall perysshe.

The.xiii.Chapter.

SAul had ben kynge one yeare, and whā he had raygned ouer Jsraell two yeares, he chose hī thre thousand men out of Jsraell: two thousande were with Saul at Michmas vpon the mount of Bethell, and one thousande with Jonathas at Gibea of Ben Jamin. As the other people, he let thē go euery one vnto his tente. But Jonathas smote the Philistynes in theyr owne * watch, which was at Gibea. That came to the Philistines eares. And Saull caused to blowe the trompes in al the lāde, and to saye: Let the Hebrues heare. And al Jsraell herde saye: Saull hath smytten the Philistynes watch, for Jsraell stanke before the Philistynes. And all the people cryed after Saull at Gilgall.

Then the Philistynes gathered them selues together to fight with Jsraell, thyrtye thousande charrettes, sixe thousande horsmen, and other people besyde in nombre as the sande by the see shore, and wente vp, and pitched at Michmas on the eastsyde of Bethauen. When the men of Jsraell sawe that myskortune laye vpon theyr nekkes (for the people was come ther to) they crope in to caues and dennes, in to rockes, and holes, and welles. But the Hebrues wente ouer Jordane in to the lāde of Gad and Gilead. As for Saull he was yet at Gilgal and all the people were kaynthar ted after hym. * Then taryed he seuē dayes accordynge to ỹ tyme appoynted of Samuell. And whan Samuel came not vnto Gilgall, the people were scatered abrode from hym. Then sayde Saul: Bringe me hither a burntofferyng, and thākofferynges: and he offered a burntofferynge. But whan he had made an ende of the burntofferinge, beholde, Samuell came. Thē wente Saull forth to mete hym, ỹ he myghte salute hym.

But Samuell sayde: What haste thou done? Saul answered: I sawe that the people was scatred abrode fro me, and thou camest not in due season: and the Philistynes were gathered together at Michmas. Thē sayde I: Now shall the Philistynes come downe to me vnto Gilgall, and I haue not besought the face of the LORD: and so I bolde ned my selfe and offered a burntofferige.

Samuell sayde vnto Saul: Thou hast done folyshly, and not kepte the cōmaundement of the LORDE thy God, which he commaūded the. For yf thou haddest not done this he had prospered thy kyngdome vpon Jsrael for euer: but now shall not thy kyngdome continue. * The LORDE hath sought hym out a man after his owne harte, hym hath the LORDE cōmaunded to be prynce ouer his people, for thou hast not kepte that the LORD cōmaunded the. And Samuel arose, and wēte vp from Gilgal vnto Gibea Ben Jamin. 1.Re.16.c

* And Saull nombred the people that was founde with hym, vpon a fyre hūdreth men. Saull and his sonne Jonathas, and the people that was with thē, taryed at Gibea Ben Jamin: but the Philistynes hadde pitched theyr tentes at Michmas. And out of the hooste of the Philistynes ther wente thre bondes of men to destroye: one turned the waye towarde Ephra, in to the londe of Suall: another turned towarde the waye of Bethoron: the thyrde turned toward the waye, that reacheth to ỹ valleye of Zeboim vnto the wyldernesse. 1.Re.17.e and.15.a

But ther was not a smyth founde in all ỹ lāde of Jsrael: for ỹ Philistynes thought: The Hebrues myght happlye make swerdes and speares. And al Jsrael were fayne to go downe to the Philistynes whan ony man had a plowshare, a mattocke, an axe, or a syth to sharpe: & the edges of the plowshares, and mattockes, and forkes, & axes were laboured, and ỹ poyntes blont. Now whan the daye of ỹ battayll came ther was nother sweard nor speare founde in ỹ hāde of all the people, that was with Saull and Jonathas: but for Saull and Jonathas his sonne ther was somwhat foūde. Betwene the passages where Jonathas soughte to go ouer vnto the Philistynes watch, ther were two hye rockes, the one on the one syde, the other on the other: the one was called Bozez, the other Senne. And the one laye on the northe syde towarde

Jud.4.c Sauls watchmē at Gibea Ben Jamin saw that the multitude gat them awaye, & tāne to and fro.

Saul said vnto the people that was wt hym: Tel and se which of vs is gone away. And whā they nōbred, beholde, Jonathas & his wapenbearer was not there. Then said Saul vnto Ahia: Bryng hether the Arke of God (for at ỹ tyme was the Arke of God with the chyldren of Israel,) & whyle Saul was yet speakynge to the prest, the multytude in the Philistynes hooste gat vp, ranne & was great. And Saul sayde vnto ỹ prest: Withdrawe thyne hande. And Saul cryed and all the people that was with hym, and came to the battayll. And beholde, a many mans swearde was agaynst another, & there was a very great tumoure.

The Hebrues also that were with ỹ Philistynes afore, and had gone vp with them in ỹ hooste on euery syde, ioyned them selues vnto Israel which were wt Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israel which *had hyd thē selues vpon ỹ mout of Ephraim, whan they herde ỹ the Philistynes fled, folowed after them in the battayll. Thus the LORDE helped Israel at that time, and the battayll lasted vnto Bethauen.

And whan the men of Israel came faynt Saul charged all the people the same day and sayd: Cursed be euery man, which eateth bread vntyll euen, that I maye auenge me on myne enemyes. Then all the people tasted no bread. And al ỹ people of ỹ lande came in to the wood. But ther laye hony vpon the felde: and whan the people came in to the wood, behold, the hony flowed, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hande, for the people were afrayed because of the othe. As for Jonathas he had not herde that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staffe ỹ he had in his hande and dypped ỹ ende of it in the hony combe, and turned his hand to his mouth, and his eyes were lyghted.

Then answered one of the people, & said: Thy father hath charged the people, & sayd: Cursed be euery mā that eateth ought this daye. Neuertheless the people were faynt. Thē sayd Jonathas: My father hath troubled the lande: Se how lyght myn eyes become, because I haue tasted a litle of this hony. yf the people this daye had eaten of ỹ spoile of theyr enemies that they founde, the slaughter shulde haue bene greater gaynste the Philistynes. yet smote they the Philistynes the same daye fro Machmas vnto Aialon, and the people were very weery.

And the people turned to ỹ spoyle, and toke shepe and oxen, and calues, and slewe them vpon the earth, * and dyd eate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul: Beholde, the people synne agaynst the LORDE, in that they eat bloude. He sayde: Ye haue done euell: roll vnto me now a great stone. And Saul sayd moreouer: Go out amonge the people, and saye vnto them that euery one bryng me his ox and his shepe, and slaye them here, that ye may eate and not to synne agaynst the LORDE in the eatyng of bloude. Thē bro ught al ỹ peo-euery one his oxe with his hande the same nyght, and slewe them there. And Saull buylded an altare vnto the LORDE. This is the fyrste altare that he buylded vnto the LORDE.

And Saull sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistynes, by night, and spoyle the tyll it be cleare mornynge, that we let none escape. They answered: Do what so euer pleaseth the. But the preest sayde: Let vs go nye here vnto God. * And Saull ared at God. Shal I go downe here after the Philystynes? and wylt thou delyuer the into Israels hāde? Neuertheless he answered him not at that tyme.

Then sayde Saul: Let all the armeyes of the people come hither, & make search and se, in whom is this synne at this tyme. For as truly as God the sauioure of Israel lyueth and though it be in my sonne Jonathas, he shall dye. And no man answered hym of al the people. And he sayd vnto al Israel: Be ye on the one syde, I and my sonne Jonathas wyll be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as it pleaseth the. And Saul sayde vnto the LORD the God of Israel: do thou that ryght is. Then was Jonathas & Saull take: but the people wente forth fre. Saull sayde: Cast the lot ouer my and my sonne Jonathas. So Jonathas was take. And Saul sayd vnto Jonathas: * Tel me what hast thou done? Jonathas tolde him, and sayde. I tasted a lytle hony with the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, must I dye therfore? Then sayd Saul: God do this and that vnto me, Jonathas thou must dye the death.

But the people sayd vnto Saul: Shulde Jonathas dye, that hath done so great health in Israel this nyght? God forbyd. * As truly as the LORD lyueth, ther shall not one heer of his heade fall vpon the earth: for he God hath he wrought this tyme. So the people delyuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. Then wente Saul vp from the Philistynes: and the Philistynes wente vnto their place.

But whā Saull had conquered the kyngdom ouer Israel, he fought agaynst al his enemyes rounde aboute: agaynst the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Ammon, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kynge of Zoba, agaynst the Philistynes: and whether so euer he turned hym, he gat the victorye. And he made an hoost, and smote the * Amalechites, and delyuered Israel frō the hāde of all those that spoyled them.

Saul had these sōnes: Jonathas, Jsui, and Melchisua. And these were the names of his two doughters: The fyrstborne Merob: and the yongest Michol. And Sauls wyfe was called Ahinoham, the doughter of Ahimaas. And his chef captaynes name was Abner, the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle * Cis was the father of Saull. But Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiell. 1.Reg.9.a 1.Par.9.a

Ther was a myghty sore warre agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Saull lyued. And where Saull sawe a man that was stronge and mete for the warre, he toke him to hym.

The.xv. Chapter.

Samuel sayd vnto Saul: * The LORDE sent me to anoynte the for to be kynge ouer his people of Jsraell: Heare nowe therfore the voyce of the wordes of the LORDE. Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: I haue remembred what Amaleck dyd vnto Jsraell, * and howe he layed wayte for hym in the waye, whan he wente out of Egipte: Go thy way now ther fore, and smyte the Amalechites, and dāne them with al that they haue, and spare him not: but slaye both man and woman, chyldren and sucklynges, oxen and shepe, camels and asses. Saull commaunded the people the same, * and nombred them at Talaim two hūdreth thousande foote men, and ten thousande men of Juda. A 1.Reg.9.a Exo.17.f Nu.24.b Deu.25.a 1.Reg.11.f and.13.b

And whan Saull came to the cyte of Amalechites, he set an hynder watch by the ryuer, and sayde vnto the Kenites: Get you hence, departe, and go downe frō the Amalechites, that I smyte you not with them, * for ye shewed mercy vnto all the chyldren of Jsrael, whā they departed out of Egipt. So the Kenites gat them awaye frō amōg the Amalechites. B Nu.10.b Jud.1.b

Then smote Saul the Amalechites frō Heuila vnto Sur (which lieth ouer against Egypt) and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalechites alyue, and dāned all the people with the edge of the sweard. Neuertheless Saull and the people spared Agag, and the shepe & oxen that were good and fat, and the lambes, and all that was good, and wolde not damne them: but loke what was foule and nothynge worth, that they damned.

Then came the worde of the LORDE vnto Samuel, and sayde: It repenteth me that I made Saull kynge, for he hath turned hym selfe backe fro me, & not confirmed my wordes. Therfor was Samuel angry, and C cryed vnto the LORDE all that nyghte. And Samuell gat hym vp early, that he might mete Saull in the mornynge. And it was tolde hym, that Saul was come vnto Carmell, * and set hym vp a pyler, & was gone aboute and came downe to Gilgall.

Deu.17.c

Now whā Samuel came to Saul, Saul sayde vnto hym: Blessed be thou vnto the LORDE. I haue performed the worde of ꝑ LORDE. Samuell answered: What crye is this then of shepe in myne eares, and ꝑ crye of oxen which I heare.

D Saull sayde: They haue brought them from the Amalechites: for ꝑ people spared the best shepe and oxen for ꝑ offerynge of ꝑ LORD thy God, the other haue we damned. Neuertheless Samuell answered Saull: Let me tell the what the LORDE hath sayde vnto me this night. He sayd: Saye on. Samuell sayde: * Whan thou wast but small in thyne owne eyes, waste thou not ꝑ heade amonge the trybes of Israell: and ꝑ LORD anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. And the LORD sent the in to the waye, and sayd: Go thy waye and dāne the synners ꝑ Amalechytes, & fyght agaynst thē, tyl thou haue vtterly destroyed thē. Wherfore hast thou not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE but hast turned the selfe to the spoyle, and done euell in the syght of the LORDE.

1.Reg.9.c and.10.a

E Saull answered Samuel: yee, I haue herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE and haue gone the waye that the LORD sent me, and brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites, & dāned ꝑ Amalechites: but ꝑ people haue takē of ꝑ spoyle, shepe & oxē, & the best amōge ꝑ dāned, to offer vnto the LORD thy God in Gilgal. Samuel sayd: Hath ꝑ LORDE pleasure in sacrifices & burntofferiges, as in obeyenge ꝑ voyce of ꝑ LORDE? Behold, Eccli.4.c * obedience is better then offerynge, and to herken is better then the fat of rāmes. For

F Thē sayd Saul vnto Samuel: I haue synned, that I haue trāsgressed the cōmaū dement of the LORDE, and thy worde: for I was afrayed of ꝑ people, & herkened vnto theyr voyce. And now forgeue me my sinne and returne wt me, that I maye worshippe the LORDE. Samuel sayde vnto Saull: I wyl not turne backe with the, for thou hast

1.re.11.b.c refused ꝑ worde of the LORD, and * ꝑ LORD hath refused ꝑ also, that thou shuldest not be kynge in Israell. And whan Samuel turned hym backe to go his waye, he gaue him by ꝑ edge of his garment, and rente it. Then sayd Samuel vnto hym: The LORD hath * rente the kyngdome of Israel from the this day, & geuē it vnto thy neyghboure, which is better thē thou. The ouertrymer in Israell also shall not lye, nother shall he repente: for he is no mā that he shuld repente.

He sayde: I haue synned, yet honour me before the Elders of my people and before Israell, and turne backe with me, that I maye worshippe the LORD thy God. So Samuell turned agayne after Saull, that Saull might worshyppe the LORDE. But Samuell sayde: bynge me hether Agag ꝑ kynge of the Amalechites. And Agag came vnto hym tenderly. And Agag sayde: Thus departeth ꝑ bytternesse of death. Samuell sayde: * Lyke as thy sweard hath made wo men childlesse: so shall thy mother also be without childre amonge wemen. So Samuell hewed Agag in peces before the LORDE in Gilgall

* And Samuel departed vnto Ramath. But Saull wente vp to his house at Gibea Saull. * And Samuell sawe Saul no more vnto the daye of his death. Nethelesse Samuell mourned for Saul, because it repented the LORD ꝑ he had made Saul kynge ouer Israell.

The.xvi.Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: How lōge mournest thou for Saull, whome I haue refused, that he shulde not be kynge ouer Israell? Fyll thyne horne with oyle, go thy waye, I wyll sende the to Isai the Bethleemite: for amonge his sonnes haue I prouyded a kynge. But Samuell sayde: How shall I go? Saul shall perceaue it, and shal slaye me. The LORDE sayde: Take the a calfe from the droue, and saye: I am come to do sacrifyce vnto the LORDE. And thou shalt call Isai to the sacrifice, & shall I tel the what thou shalt do, that thou mayst anoynte me him, whom I shall shewe the. Samuel dyd as the LORDE sayde, and came to Bethleem. Then were the Elders of the cytye astonnied, & wente forth to mete hym and sayde: * Is thy cōmynge peasyble? He sayd: yee, I am come to do sacrifice vnto the LORD. * Sāctifye youre selues & come wt me to ꝑ sacrifyce. And he sanctified Isai & his sonnes, & called thē to ꝑ sacrifice.

Now whan they came in, he beheld liab, and thought, whether he shulde be his anoynted before the LORD. But the LORD sayde vnto Samuel: Loke not vpon his cõtenaunce, nor vpon the talnesse of his personne. For I iudge not after ỹ sight of mã. I man hath respecte vnto the thynge that is before his eyes, but the LORD loketh vpon the harte. Then Isai called Abinadab, and brought hym before Samuell. And he sayde: This hath not ỹ LORDE chosen. Thẽ Isai brought Samma. But he sayd: This also hath not ỹ LORD chosen. Thẽ brought Isai his seuen sonnes before Samuell. Nevertheless Samuel sayde vnto Isai: The LORDE hath chosen none of these.

And Samuell sayd vnto Isai: Are here all the children? He sayde: There is yet one the lest of all, & beholde, he keepeth ỹ shepe. Then sayde Samuell vnto Isai: Sende & cause hym to be fetched, for we will not syt downe at the table, vntyll he come. Then sent he, and caused hym to be brought. And he was well coloured, with fayre eyes and of a bewtyfull contenaunce. And the LORD sayde. Aryse and * anoynte hym, that is he.

* Then toke Samuell his oyle horne, & anoynted hym amonge his brethren. And the spirite of the LORDE came vpon Dauid from that daye forth. As for Samuell, he gat hym vp, and wente vnto Ramath.

But the spirite of the LORD departed frõ Saull, and an euell spirite from the LORDE vexed hym. Then sayde Sauls seruauntes vnto hym: Beholde, * an euell spirite from God vexeth the. Let our lord saye vnto his seruauntes which stonde before hym, that they seke a man whiche can playe vpon the harpe and instrument, that whan the euell spirite of God commeth vpon the, he maye playe with his hande, to ease the withall. Then sayd Saul vnto his seruaũtes: Prouide me a man, that can playe well vpõ the instrumente, and bringe hym vnto me.

Then answered one of the children, and sayde: Beholde, I sawe a sonne of Isai the Bethleemite, which can playe vpon the instrumente, an honest and valeaunt man, & one that hath vnderstondynge in matters, and is well fauoured. Thẽ Saul sent messaungers vnto Isai, sayenge: Sende me Dauid thy sonne, which is with the shepe. Thẽ toke Isai an asse with breade, and a bottell with wyne, and a kyd, & sent it vnto Saull by Dauid his sonne. So Dauid came to Saull, and stode before hym, and he loued him wel, and he became his weapenbearer. And Saul sent vnto Isai, sayeng: Let Dauid remayne before me, for he hath founde fauoure in my sight. Now whan the euell spirite of God came vpon Saull, Dauid toke the harpe, and played with his hande: So was Saull refreshed, and eased, & the euell spirite departed from hym.

The.xvii. Chapter.

THe Philistynes gathered their hoost to the battayll, and came together to Socho in Juda, & pitched theyre tentes betwene Socho and Aseka, at the ende of Damin. But Saull and the men of Israel came together, and pitched in the Oke valley, and prepared themselues to the battayll agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistynes stode vpon a hyll on the one syde, and the Israelites vpon a hyll on the other syde, so that ther was a valley betwene thẽ.

Then stept ther forth from amonge the Philistines a stoute bolde mã, named Goliath of * Gath, syre cubites and an hande breth hye, and had an helmet of stele on his heade, and a fast habergion vpon him, and the weight of his habergion was fyue thousande sycles of stele, & harnesse of stele had he vpon hys legges, and a shyld of stele vpon his shulders: and the shaft of his spear was lyke a weuers lowme, and the yron of his speare had fyue hundreth Sycles of yrõ and his wapenbearer wente before hym. Judi. 11. B

And he stode and called vnto the hoost of Israell, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore are ye come forth to prepare your selues to the battayll? Am not I a Philistyne, and ye the seruauntes of Saull? Chose one amonge you to come downe vnto me: yf he can fyght agaynst me and slay me, thẽ will we be youre seruauntes: but yf I can ouercome hym and slay hym, thẽ shall ye be our seruauntes, to do vs seruice. And the Philistyne sayd: I haue spokẽ disdanously vnto the hoost of Israel this day, Geue me one & let vs fight together. Whã Saul & all Israel herde these wordes of ỹ Philistine, they were astonied and sore afrayed.

1.Re.16.f * But Dauid was the sonne of a mã of Ephrata of Bethleem Juda, whose name was Jsai, whiche had eyght sonnes, & was an olde man in Sauls tyme, and was well stryckẽ in age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Jsai were gone with Saul to ꝑ battayll. And they names where these Eliab the firstborne, Abinadab the second, and Samma the thirde. But Dauid was the yongest of all. So when the thre eldeste were gone with Saull to the battayll: Dauid wente agayne from Saull, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethleem. But the Philystyne stept forth early in the mornynge and at euen, and stode there forthe dayes.

C Jsai sayd vnto Dauid his sonne: Take this Epha of fermentye for thy brethren, & these ten loaues of breade (and runne to the hoost vnto thy brethren) and these ten new cheses, and bringe thẽ to the captayne, and loke how thy brethrẽ do: whether it go well with them or no, and take what they byd ꝑ. But Saul and they, and all the men of Jsraell were in the Oke valleye, and foughte agaynst the Philistynes.

Then Dauid gat hym vp early in the mornynge, and cõmitted the shepe to the kepar, and toke his burthen, wente his waye, as Jsai cõmaunded hym, and came to the tent. And ꝑ hoost was gone forth, and had prepared themselues, and cryed in the battayl: For Jsrael had set themselues in aray and ꝑ Philystines were agaynst they hoost in their araye also.

Then left Dauid the vessel that he bare wyth the keper of ꝑ stuffe, and ranne to the hooste, and wente in, and saluted hys brethrẽ. And whyle he was yet talkynge wyth thẽ, beholde, then came vp the stoute bolde man, whose name was Goliath, the Philistine of Gath, out of the Philistines hoost, and spake lyke as afore, and Dauid herde it. But euery man in Jsrael whan he sawe the man, fled from hym, & was sore afrayed of hym.

And euery mã in Jsrael sayde: Haue ye sene the man commynge vp hether? For he is come vp hether to speake disdaynously Josu.15.b Judi.1.c 1.Re.18.b vnto Jsrael. * And whosoeuer smiteth him hym wyll the kynge make rych, & geue hym hys doughter, & make hys fathers house free in Jsraell.

D Then sayde Dauid vnto the men that stode by hym: What shalbe done to the mã that smyteth this Philistyne, and turneth this shame awaye from Jsraell? For what is he this Philistyne, this vncircumcysed, that defyleth the hoost of the lyuynge God? Then the people tolde him as afore: Thus shall it be done vnto the man that smyteth hym. And Eliab his greater brother herde hym talke with the men, & was very wroth agaynst Dauid, and sayde: Wherfore art thou come downe? and why hast thou lefte a fewe shepe in the wildernesse? I know thy presumptuousnesse well ynough, and the wickednesse of thine hart: for thou art come downe to se the battayll. Dauid answered: What haue I done nowe? Is ther not an occasion? And he turned hym selfe fro hym vnto another, and spake accordynge as he had sayde before. Thẽ the people answered hym lyke as afore.

And whan they herde the wordes which Dauid sayd, they tolde thẽ in ꝑ presence of Saull, and he caused hym be fetched. And Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Let no mãs hart be discouraged because of hym. Thy seruãt shall go, and fight with the Philistine. Neuertheles Saul sayd vnto Dauid: Thou art not able to go agaynst this Philistyne to fyght with him, for thou art but a chylde, but this is a mã of warre fro his youth vp.

Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Thy seruãt kept his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon and a beere, and caryed awaye a shepe from the flocke, then wente I forth after hym, & smote him, & delyuered it out of his mouth. * And whan he wolde haue bene vpon me, I toke hym by his beerde, and smote hym and slew hym. So thy seruãt smote both the lyon and the beere. Therfore shall this Philistyne, this vncircumcysed be euen as one of them: for he hath defyed the hoost of the lyuynge God. And Dauid sayde: The LORD that delyuered me fro the lyons and beres, shall delyuer me also fro this Philistyne.

And Saull sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, the LORDE be with the. And Saul clothed Dauid with his clothes, and put an helmet of stele vpon his heade, and put a habergion vpon hym. And Dauid gyrded his swearde aboue his clothes, and began to go: for he had neuer ben vsed to it afore. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go thus for I haue not ben vsed to it, and so he layed it from hym, and toke his staffe in his hande: and chose fyue smothe stones out of the ryuer, and put them in the shepherdes bagge which he had by hym, & toke a slyng in his hãde, & gat hi to ꝑ Philistine. And ꝑ Philistine went forth, & gat him to Dauid, and his wapenbarer before hym.

Now whan the Philistine loked & sawe
1 Dauid, he thoughte scorne of hym for he was but a chylde, well coloured, and bewtyfull to loke vpon. And the Philistyne sayd vnto Dauid: Am I a dogge thē, that thou commest vnto me with a staffe? And he cursed Dauid by his God, and sayd vnto Dauid: Come hyther to me, I wyll geue thy flesshe to the foules vnder the heauē, and to the beastes in the felde. Neuertheless Dauid sayd vnto the Philistyne: Thou cōmest vnto me with swearde, speare, and shylde. But I come vnto the in the name of ỹ LORDE Zebaoth the God of the hoost of Israel whom thou hast despysed. This daye shall the LORDE delyuer the in to my hāde, that I may smyte the, and take thy head frō the, and geue the bodyes of the hoost of the Philistynes this day vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and to the wylde beastes vpon the earth, that all the lande maye knowe ỹ Israel hath a God. And all this congregacyō shall knowe, that the LORDE saueth nother thorow swearde, nor speare: for the battayll is the LORDES, and he shal delyuer you in to our handes.

Now whan the Philistyne gat hym vp, and went forth and drue nye vnto Dauid, Dauid made haist, and ranne frō the hoost vnto the Philistyne. And Dauid put his

And Saul had a iauelyng in his hande, and cast it, and thought: I will stycke Dauid fast to the wal. Neuertheleſſe Dauid turned hym selfe twyse awaye from him. And Saul was afrayed of Dauid: for the LORDE was with hym, & departed from Saul. Then Saul put hym from him, and set hym to be prynce ouer a thousande men, and he wente out and in before the people. And Dauid behaued hymselfe wyſely in al his doynges, and the LORDE was wyth hym.

D Now whan Saull sawe that he was so exceadynge wyse, he stode in feare of hym. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, for he went out and in before them. And Saul sayd vnto Dauid. Beholde, my greatest Whan this was tolde Saul, ỹ matter pleased hym well, and he sayd: I will geue hym her, that she maye be a snare vnto him and that the handes of ỹ Philistynes maye come vpon hym, and he sayd vnto Dauid: This day shalt thou be my doughters husbande the seconde tyme. And Saul spake vnto his seruauntes: Talke with Dauid secretly & saye: Beholde, the kynge hath pleasure in the, and all his seruauntes loue the, mary thou therfore the kynges doughter.

F And Sauls seruauntes spake these wordes in ỹ eares of Dauid. But Dauid sayde: Thynke ye it but a small matter, to mary ỹ kynges doughter? As for me, I am but a poore simple mā. And Sauls seruātes told hym agayne, and sayd: Such wordes hath Dauid spoken. Saul sayd: Thē saye ye vnto Dauid: The kynge desyreth no dowrye, but onely an hundreth foreskynnes of ỹ Philistynes, that vengeaunce may be taken of ỹ kinges enemies. Howbeit Saul thought to cause Dauid be slayne by ỹ hāde of the Philistynes. Then his seruauntes told Dauid these wordes, and Dauid was [illegible] ỹ the matter to mary the kynges doughter.

And after a fewe dayes Dauid gat him vp, and wente with his men, and smote two hundreth men amōge the Philistynes. And Dauid brought theyr foreskynnes, and nombred theyr nōbre sufficyent vnto the kynge, ỹ he myght mary the kynges doughter. * Then Saul gaue hym his doughter Michol to wyfe. And Saul sawe and perceaued, that the LORDE was with Dauid. And Michol Sauls doughter loued hym. Then was Saull the more afrayed, and became his enemye as longe as he lyued. And whā the prynces of the Philistynes wente forth, Dauid behaued hymselfe more wyſely then all the seruauntes of Saul in theyr outgenge: so that his name was in great reputacyon.

The.xix. Chapter.

SAul spake to Jonathas his sone, and to all his seruauntes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. But Iuerthelesse Jonathas the sone of Saull loued Dauid exceadyngly, and tolde hym, and sayd: Saul my father goeth about to slaye the. Kepe ỹ self fore (I praye the) in the morynge & abyde in secrete & hyde the. But I wyl go forth, & stande beſyde my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll speake of the vnto my father: and what soeuer I se I shall bryng the worde.

And Jonathas reported the best of Dauid vnto Saul his father, & said vnto him: Oh let not the kynge synne agaynst his seruaunt, for he hath not synned agaynst the, & his doyng is very necessary for the, * for he put his lyfe in his hāde also, and smote the Philistyne, and the LORDE dyd a great health vnto all Israel: this hast thou sene, and reioyced therof. Wherfore wylt thou offende agaynst innocent bloude, that thou wolest kyll Dauid without a cause? Then hearkened Saul vnto the voice of Jonathas, and sware: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, & tolde hym al these wordes, & brought hym to Saul, so ỹ he was in presence as afore tyme.

But ther arose a battayll agayne, & Dauid went forth and fought agaynst the Philistynes, & smote a greate slaughter, & they fled before hym. Neuertheleſſe * spret of the LORDE came vpon Saul, and he sat in his house, and had a pauelynge in his hande. But Dauid played vpon the instrument w̄ his hande. And Saul thought with his pauelynge to stycke Dauid fast to the wall. Howbeit, he went aside frō Saul, and the pauelynge smote in the wall. And Dauid fled and escaped that nyght.

C Notwithstandynge Saul sent his messaungers to Dauids house, that they shuld laye wayte for hym, and kyll hym in ỹ morynge. Michol Dauids wyfe tolde hym this, and sayde: yf thou saue not thy soule this nyght, thou shalt dye tomorow. * The Michol let hym downe thorow ỹ wyndow, so that he went his waye, fled, and escaped. And Micholl toke an ymage, and layed it in the bed, and layed a goates skynne at the heade of it, & couered it with clothes. Then Saul sent messaungers, to fetch Dauid. But she sayde: He is sycke. Neuertheles Saul sent messaungers to se Dauid, and sayde: Bynge hym vp to me with ỹ bedde, that he maye be slayne.

Now whan the messaungers came: beholde, the ymage laye in the bed, & a goates skynne at the heade of it. Then sayd Saul vnto Michol: Why hast thou begyled me, and let myne enemye go, that he myght escape? Michol sayd vnto Saul: He sayd vnto me: Let me go, or I wyll kyll the. As for Dauid: he fled, and escaped, & came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and tolde hym all that Saul had done vnto hym. And he wente with Samuel, and they abode at Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul: Beholde, Dauid, is at Naioth in Ramath. Then dyd Saul sende messaungers to fetch Dauid. And they sawe a company of prophetes prophesyeng, and Samuel had the ouersyght of them. Then came the spyrete of God vpō the messaungers of Saul, so that they prophesyed also.

Whan this was tolde Saul he sent other messaungers, which prophesyed lykewyse. Then sent he messaungers the thyrde tyme, and they in lyke maner prophesyed. Then went he hymselfe also vnto Ramath, and whan he came to the great well whiche is at Sechu, he axed & sayd: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was it tolde hym: Beholde, at Naioth in Ramath. And he wente there, euen vnto Naioth in Ramath And ỹ spyrete of God cam vpō him also & he we wente and prophecied tyl he came vnto Naioth in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, and prophesyed lykewyse before Samuel, and fell downe naked all that daye, & all that nyght. * Here of came the prouerbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? 1.Re.10.f

The.xx. Chapter.

DAuid fled from Naioth in Ramath, & cam & spake before Jonathas: What haue I done? What trespasse haue I made? What haue I sinned in ỹ sight of thy father, that he seketh to kyll me? He sayd to hym: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye Beholde, my father doth nothynge, nother great nor smal, but he sheweth it before myn eares. Wherfore shuld my father then hyde this fro me? It shall not be so. Then sware Dauid agayne, and sayd: Thy father knoweth well, that I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, therfore shall he thynke: Jonathas shall not knowe of this, lest it greue hym. Verely, as truely as the LORDE lyueth, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, ther is but one steppe betwene me & death. Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: I wyll do what soeuer thy harte desyreth. Dauid sayd vnto hym: Beholde, to morow is ỹ new Moone, that I shuld syt at the table with the kyng. Let me hyde my selfe therfore in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. yf thy father B then ask after me, saye: Dauid prayed me, that he myght rūne to Bethleem vnto his cyte, for all his kynred haue there a yearly sacrifice. yf he saye thē: It is good, thē shōdeth it well with thy seruaunt. But yf he be wroth, thou shalt perceaue that he intēdeth euel. Do mercy therfore vpon thy seruaunt *for with me thy seruaunt hast thou made a cōuenaunt in the LORDE. But yf ther by ony trespasse in me, then slaye me thy selfe, for why woldest thou brynge me vnto thy father? 1.Re.19.e and.23.d

Jonathas sayd: That be farre from the that I shuld perceaue my father to intende ony euel agaynst the, and shuld not tell the. Dauid sayd: Who shall brynge me worde, yf thy father geue the an harde answere? Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: Come, let vs go forth in to the felde. And they wente out both in to ỹ felde. And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid.

LORDE God of Jsrael, yf I perceaue by my father to morow or on the thyrde daye, that it goeth well with Dauid, & sende not vnto the, and shewe the before thyne eares, then let the LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathas. But yf my father delyte in euel C agaynst ỹ, I wyl shewe it before thyn eares also, and let the go, that thou mayest depart in peace.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. ¶ If I do it not, then do thou no mercy of the LORDE on me, while I lyue, no not whan I dye, and pluck thy mercy from my house for euer. And whā the LORDE roteth out the enemyes of Dauid, euery one of the lande, then let Dauid rote out Jonathas also with his house, and the LORDE requyre it of the hande of Dauids enemyes.

And Jonathas proceaded further, and sware vnto Dauid (he loued hym so well: for he loued hym as his owne soule) and Jonathas sayd vnto hym: Tomorow is ỹ new Moone, & thou shalt be axed after: for thou shalt be wanted where thou wast wonte to syt. But on ỹ thyrde day come downe soone and go in to the place where thou hyddest the on the worckdaye, and set the downe by the stone of Asel: then wyll I shote thre arowes on that syde, as thoughe I wolde shote at a marke: and behold, I wyll sende ỹ boye and saye vnto hym: Go seke the arowes. ¶ If I saye now vnto the lad: Lo, the arowes lye hyther ward behynd the, fetch them, thē come thou, for it is peace, and thet is no perell, as truly the LORDE lyueth. But ¶ if I saye vnto the lad: Beholde, the arowes lye ponderwarde before the, then go thou thy waye, for the LORDE hath let the go. * As for that which thou and I haue spoken together, the LORDE is betwene me and the for euer.

Dauid hyd hymselfe in the felde. And whan the newe Moone came, the kynge sat hym downe at the table to eate. Whan the kynge had set hym downe in his place as he was wonte, by the wall, Jonathas stode vp, but Abner sat him downe beside Saul. And Dauid was myssed in his place. And Saul spake nothyng ỹ day, for he thought Ther is somwhat happened vnto hym, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new Moone, whan Dauid was myssed in his place. Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne: Wherfore is not the sonne of Jsai come to ỹ table nether yesterday nor to daye

Jonathas answered Saul: He prayed me that he myghte go vnto Bethleem, and sayd: Let me go, for our kynred hath a sacrifice to do in the cyte, and my brother hath sente for me hymselfe: ¶ If I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, I wyll go, and se my brethren: therfore is he not come to the kynges table. Thē was the kynge wroth at Jonathas, and sayd vnto him: Thou wicked vnthryfte, I knowe how that thou hast chosen the sōne of Jsai, to the shame of thy self and of thy shamefull mother. For as longe as the sonne of Jsai lyueth vpon earth ther thou nor thy kyngdome shall prosper. Sende now therfore, and cause hym to be fetched vnto me * for he is a chylde of death.

Jonathas answered his father Saul and sayd vnto hym: Wherfore shall he dye? What hath he done? Then shote Saul his tauelynge at hym, that he myghte smyte him. Then perceaued Jonathas that his father was vtterly determyned to kyl Dauid, and he rose vp from the table in a wrothfull displeasure, and dyd eate no bread the seconde daye of the newe Moone: for he was vexed because of Dauid, that his father had done hym such dishonoure.

On the morowe wente Jonathas forth in to the felde, at the tyme appointed of Dauid, and a lytle boye with hym and sayd vnto the boye: Runne and seke me the arowes which I shote. Whan the boye came he shote an arowe ouer hym. And whan the boye came to the place whyther Jonathas had shote the arowe, Jonathas cryed after hym, & sayd: The arowe lyeth ponderwarde before the. And he cryed after hym agayne: hatst the, and stande not styll. Thē the boye gathered vp Jonathas arowes, & brought them to his lorde. And the boye knewe nothynge, only Jonathas and Dauid knewe of the matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boye his weapens, and sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye and cary them in to the cyte. And whan the boye was gone, Dauid arose from the place warde ỹ south, and fell vpon his face to the grounde, and worshipped thre tymes, and they kyssed one another, and wept together. But Dauid most specyally And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: Go thy waye in peace. * What soeuer we both haue sworne & spoken together in ỹ name of ỹ LORDE, the LORDE be wytnesse betwene me & the, betwene my sede and thy sede for euer. And Jonathas gat hym vp, and came vnto the cyte.

And Dauid toke these wordes to hart, and was sore afrayed of Achis the kynge of Gath, and altered his countenaunce before them, and shewed hymselfe as he had ben madde in theyr handes, & starered toward the dores of the gate, and his slauerynges ranne downe his beerde. And he lefte them before ꝑ kynge of the Moabites, so that they remayned by hym, as longe as Dauid was in the castell. Neuertheles the prophet Gad sayd vnto Dauid: Abyde not in the castel, but go thy way and come in to the lande of Juda. Then departed Dauid, and came into the woode of Hareth. Ahimelech answered the kynge & sayd: And who is amonge all thy seruaūtes lyke Dauid, which is faythful and hath maried the kynges doughter, and goeth in thine obedience, and is honourably taken in thyne house? And ỹ LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, thou shalt smyte the Philistynes, and delyuer Cegyla. But the men that were with Dauid, sayd vnto hym: Behold, we are here in fear in Jewry, and shall we go to Cegyla vnto the hoost of the Philistynes? Then Dauid ared at the LORDE agayne. And ỹ LORDE answered hym & sayd: Vp, get ỹ to Cegyla, for I wyll delyuer the Philistynes in to thy hande.

So Dauid wente with his men to Cegyla, and fought agaynst the Philistynes, and droue away their cattell, & slewe them with a great slaughter. Thus Dauid delyuered them of Cegila, For when Abiathar that the sonne of Ahimelech fled vnto Dauid at Cegyla he bare downe the ouerbody coate with hym.

Then was it tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Cegyla, & he sayde: God hath delyuered hym in to my hāde for he is shut fast in, now that he is com in to a cyte which is kepte with gates and barres. And Saul caused to call al the people downe vnto the battayll vnto Cegyla, that they myght besege Dauid and his men. But when Dauid perceaued that Saul entended euel against hym, he sayde vnto Abiathar the priest: * Bringe me hether the ouerbody coate. And the LORDE sayde: He shall come downe.

Dauid sayd: Shall the cytesyns of Cegyla delyuer me and my men in to Saules hande? The LORDE sayde: yee. Then Dauid gat hym vp with his men, of whom there were vpon a fyre hundreth, and walked whether they coulde. Now whan it was tolde Saul that Dauid was escaped from Cegyla, he let his iourney stande. As for Dauid he remayned in the wyldernesse in ỹ mount, and abode vpon the mounte in the wyldernesse of Siph. But Saul sought hym as longe as he lined. Neuertheless God gaue hym not in to his handes. Then Jonathas the sonne of Saul rose vp hym vp, & wente vnto Dauid in to ỹ wood, and strengthed his hande in God, and sayde vnto hym: Feare not: My fathers hande shall not fynde the, and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, so wyll I be the next to the. If he be in the lõde, I wyll enquere after hym, amonge all the thousandes in Juda.

C Then gat they them vp, and went their way vnto Siph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesse of Maon, euen in the felde of the ryghte hande of the wyldernesse. Now whan Saul wente thyther with his men to seke hym, it was tolde Dauid, and he gat hym downe to the rocke, and abode in the wyldernesse of Maon. Whan Saul herde that, he folowed after Dauid in the wyldernesse of Maon. And Saul with his men wente on the one syde of the hyl: Dauid with his men on the other syde of ỹ hyll. But whã Dauid made

And Dauid stode vp, and cut of the typpe of Sauls garment quyetly. Neuertheles it smote him afterward in his hart, because he had cut of the typpe of Sauls garment, and sayd vnto his men: The LORD let that B

But whan Saul gat hym out of the caue, and was goynge his waye, Dauid rose vp also after him, and wente out of the caue, and cryed behynde Saul, and sayde: My lorde the kynge. And Saul loked behynde hym. And Dauid bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and sayd vnto Saul: Why herkenest thou vnto the wordes of men, that saye: Dauid seketh thy mysfortune? Beholde, thyne eyes se this daye that the LORDE gaue the in my hande in the caue, and I was counceled to slaye the: Neuertheles thou wast fauoured, for I sayde: I wyll not laye my hande vpõ my C lorde, for he is the LORDES anoynted. Beholde my father the typpe of thy garmẽt in my hande, that I wolde not slaye the, whã I cut of the typpe of thy garment. Knowe and se, that ther is no euell, nor trespasse in my hãde: nother haue I offended the, & thou folowest after my soule to take it awaye. The LORDE shalbe iudge betwene me and the, and auẽge me on ỹ, but my hande shall not be vpon the, accordynge as it is sayde after the olde prouerbe: Vngodlynesse commeth of the vngodly: but my hande shall not be vpon the. Whome persecutest thou O kyng of Israel, whom persecutest thou? a dead dogge? a flee? The LORD be iudge, and geue sentence betwene me and the, and consyder it, and defende my cause, and deliuer me from thy hande.

Now whan Dauid had spoken out these wordes vnto Saul, Saul sayde: * Is D
1.Re.26.c not this the voyce of my sõne Dauid? And Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayde vnto Dauid: Thou art more righteous thẽ I, for thou hast recõpensed me good: but I haue rewarded ỹ euel. And this day haste thou shewed me howe thou hast done me good, for so much as the LORDE hath delyuered me in to thy hande, and thou neuertheleſſe hast not slayne me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemye, wyll let hym go in a good waye? The LORDE rewarde the good for ỳ thou hast done vnto my this daye? Behold now, I know that thou shalt be kynge, and the kyngdome of Israell stō deth in thy hand. Sweare now therfore vnto me by the LORD, that thou shalt not rote out my sede after me, nother destroye my name out of my fathers house. And Dauid sware vnto Saul. Thē went Saul home, but Dauid gat hym vp with his men vnto the castell.

The.xxv.Chapter.

A 1.reg.28.a AND * Samuell dyed, and all Israell gathered thēselues together, mourned for hym, & buryed hym in his house at Ramath. Is for Dauid he rose, & wente down in to the wildernesse of Parā. And ther was a mā at Maon, and his possession at Carmell, & the man was of great power, and had thre thousande shepe, and a thousande goates. And it fortuned that he clypped his shepe at Carmel, and his name was Nabal, but his wyues name was Abigail, and she was a woman of good vnderstondynge, and bewtyfull of face. But the man was harde, & wycked in his doynges, and was one of Caleb.

Now whan Dauid herde in the wylderneſſe that Naball clypped his shepe: he sent out ten ponge men, and sayde vnto thē: Go vp vnto Carmell, and whā ye come to Naball, salute hym frendly on my behalfe, and saye: Good lucke, peace be with the, & thyne house, and with all that thou haste. I haue B herde saye ỳ thou hast shepe clippers. Now thy shepherdes whome thou hast, haue ben with vs, we haue done thē no dyshonoure, and they wanted nothynge of their nōbre, as longe as they were at Carmell: Fre thy ponge men, they shal tell the, & let thy pōge men fynde fauoure in thy syght: for we are come in a good daye, * geue thy seruauntes Iudic.8.b & Ma.21.a and thy sonne Dauid what thy honde fyndeth.

And whan Dauids pōge men came and spake all these wordes on Dauids behalfe vnto Naball, they lefte of. But Naball answered his seruauntes, and sayde: What is he that Dauid? and who is the sonne of Isai? Ther are many seruauntes nowe that runne awaye from theyr masters. Shall I take my breade, water, and flesshe, that I haue slayne for my clyppers and geue it to men whō I know not whence they are?

Then Dauids ponge men turned their waye agayne. And whā they came ageyne vnto hym, they tolde hym all these wordes. Then sayde Dauid vnto his men: Euery man gyrde his swearde aboute hym. And euery one gyrde his swearde aboute hym. Dauid gyrded his sweard about hym also, and ther wente vp after hym vpon a fower hundreth men, but two hūdreth remayned with the stuffe.

Neuertheleſſe one of ỳ ponge men told Abigaill Nabals wyfe, and sayde: Behold, Dauid sent messaungers out of the wylderneſſe to blesse our lorde. Notwithstondynge he was fearce vpō them, and yet haue they ben very profitable men vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonoure, & we wanted nothynge of the nombre as longe as we walked with them, whan we were in the felde: but they haue ben oure wall day and nyght, as longe as we kepte the shepe by them. Take hede now therfor, & loke wel what thou doest. For ther is surely a myschefortune at hāde ouer our lorde, & agaynst al his house. And he is a man of Beliall, so whō noman dare speke ony thynge. * Then Abigail made haste, and toke two hūdreth loaues of breade, and two bottels of wyne, and fyue shepe ready dyghte, and fyue measures of frumēty, and an hundreth frayles of rayſyns, and two hundreth frayles of fygges, and layed them vpon asses, and sayde to hyr pōge men: Go ye your waye before me: behold I will come after. And she tolde Naball hyr husbande nothynge therof. And as she rode vpon ỳ asse, and went downe in the shadowe of the hyl, beholde, Dauid & his men came her downe, so that she came vpon them.

But Dauid sayd: Wel, all that this man hadde in the wylderneſſe, haue I kepte in naught, so that ther wanted nothynge of all that he had, and he rewardeth me euell for good. God do this and yet more vnto the enemyes of Dauid, yf vntyl tomorowe vnto mornynge I leaue this man (of all that he hath) so much as * one that maketh water agaynst the wall. Now whan Abigail saw Dauid, she light downe frō ỳ asse in all hayst, and fell vpon hyr face before Dauid, and worshypped hym to the grounde, and at his fete, and sayde: Oh my lorde, let the trespasse be myne, & let thy hādmayde speke before thyne eares, and heare the wordes thy handmayden: Let not my lorde set his harte agaynst this Naball the man of Belial, for he is a foole, accordige as his name is called: his name is foole & folishnes is wt hym. As for me thy handmaydē, I saw not my lordes yōge mē, whō thou dydest sende.

But now my lord, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soull lyueth, the LORDE hath kepte the backe, that thou shuldest not come agaynste bloude and he hath delyuered thyne hande.

Thyne enemyes be now as Nabal, and so be they that wolde my lorde euell. Here is the blessynge, that thy hādmayden hath brought my lorde, take it, and geue it vnto the ponge men: that walke vnder my lorde. For a sure house shall the LORDE make vnto my lorde, whiche fyghteth the fightynge of the LORDE, and no euell shall be founde in the all thy lyfe lōge. And yf ony man ryse vp to persecute ỹ, and to lay wayte for thy soule, then shal ỹ soule of my lorde be boūde in the bundel of the lyuynge, euen with the LORDE thy God. But the soule of thyne enemyes shalbe turned backe with the slynge. Whā the LORD therfore doth all this good for my lorde (which he hath promysed the) and cōmaūded the to be his Duke ouer Israell, then shall it be no stomblynge blocke nor occasyō of fallyng vnto my lordes hart that thou haste not shed bloude without a cause, and auenged the selfe, then shall the LORDE do good vnto my lorde, and thou shalt thynke vpon thy handmayden.

Then sayd Dauid vnto Abigail: Blessed be the LORD God of Israell, which hath sent the to mete me this day: and blessed be thy speach, and blessed be thou, which haste kepte me backe this daye, that I am not come agaynste bloude, to auenge me with myne owne hande. Verely (as truely as the LORDE the God of Israell lyueth, whiche hath hyndred me that I shulde do no euell) yf thou haddest not met me in all ỹ hayste, Naball shulde not haue had lefte hym vntyll ỹ light morynge, so much as one that maketh water agaynst the wal. So Dauid toke of hyr hāde what she had brought him and sayde vnto her: Go vp in peace vnto thy house: Beholde, I haue herkened vnto thy voyce, and accepted thy personne.

But whan Abigail came vnto Nabal, behold, he had prepared a feast in his house lyke a kynges feast, and his hart was merry for he was very dronke. And she tolde hym nothynge, nother small nor greate vntyll the cleare morynge. But whā it was daye and the wyne was come from Naball, his wyfe tolde hym these thynges.

Then was his harte deade in his body, so that he became euen as a stone: and ouer ten dayes the LORDE smote hym, so that he dyed. Whā Dauid herde that Naball was dead, he sayde: Blessed be the LORD whiche hath auenged my rebuke on Naball, & pre serued his seruaunt frō euell. And the LORDE hath rewarded Naball that euell vpon his heade.

And Dauid sent & caused to talke with Abigaill, ỹ he myght take her to wife. And whan Dauids seruauntes came vnto Abigaill vnto Carmell, they spake vnto her, & sayde: Dauid hath sent vs vnto the, that he maye take the to wyfe. She rose vp, & worshypped vpon hyr face vnto the earth, and sayde: behold, here is thy hādmayden, that she maye do seruyce vnto the seruauntes of my lorde, and to washe theyr fete. And Abigaill made hayst, and gat her vp, and rode vpon an asse, and fyue maydens that were vnder her, and wente after Dauids messaū gers, & became his wyfe. Dauid toke Ahinoam of Jesrael also, and they both becam his wyues. * But Saul gaue Michol his doughter the wyfe of Dauid vnto Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim. 2.Reg.3.d

The.xxvi. Chapter.

THey of Siph came to Saull vnto Gibeath, and sayde: * Is not Dauid hyd vpon the hyll of Achyla, which lyeth ouer agaynst the wyldernesse? Then Saul gat hym vp and wente downe to the wyldernesse of Siph, & thre thousāde mē of Israell wt him, to seke Dauid in the wilder nesse of Siph, & pitched vpō the hyl of Achi la, which lyeth by the waye before the wyl dernesse: But Dauid remayned in the wyl dernesse, & whē he sawe ỹ Saul came after hym in to ỹ wyldernesse, he sent out spyes, & knew of a suertye, ỹ he was come in dede. 1.Re.23.b

And Dauid gat hym vp and came to ỹ place where Saull had pitched his tente, and sawe the place where Saull laye with his chefe captayn. * Abner ỹ sonne of Ner: for Saull laye in the tente and the hooste a boute hym. Then answered Dauid, and sayde vnto Ahimelech the Hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Zeruja the brother of Joab: Who wyll go downe with me to Saull in to the hooste? Abisai sayde: I wyll go downe with the. 1.Re.14.g

the nyght season: and beholde, Saull laye and slepte in the tent, and his speare stacke in the ground at his head. But Abner, and the people laye rounde aboute hym. Then saide Abisai vnto Dauid: God hath closed thyn enemye in thine hand this daye. Ther fore will I now thrust him thorow once wt the speare euen in to the grounde, ꝑ he shal haue ynough of it. Neuertheless Dauid sayde vnto Abisai: Destroye him not, for who wyll laye hande vpon the anoynted of the LORDE, and remayne vngilty. Dauid saide moreouer: As truely as the LORDE lyueth, ꝑf the LORDE hymselfe smyte him not, or excepte his tyme come that he dye, or that he go in to the battayll and perysh, the LORDE let it be farre frō me, that I should laye my handes on the LORDES anoynted. Take the speare now therfore at hys head, and the cup of water, and let vs go. So Dauid toke the speare, and the cup of water at Sauls heade, and they went their waye. And ther was noman that sawe it, and perceaued it, nother awaked, but they slepte euery one, for ther was a depe slepe fallen vpon them from the LORDE.

¶ Now whan Dauid was come ouer on the other syde, he stode vpon the toppe of the mount a farre of (so ꝑ ther was a wyde space betwene them) and cried vpon ꝑ people, and vpon Abner the sonne of Ner, and sayde: Hearest thou not Abner? And Abner answered and saide. Who art thou ꝑ criest so, and disease the kyng? And Dauid said vnto Abner: Art thou not a mā? And where is ther suche one as thou in Israell? Why hast thou not then kepte thy Lorde ꝑ kyng? for ther is one of the people come in to destroye thy Lorde the kynge. It is not well ꝑ thou hast done. As truely as the LORDE
2.Mc.20.f liueth, * ye are the chyldren of death, because ye haue not kepte youre Lorde the LORDE sanoynted. Behold now, where is the kynges speare, and the cuppe of water that was at his heade.

Then knewe Saul the voyce of Da-
1.Mc.24.b uid, and saide: * Is not that thy voyce my sonne Dauid? Dauid sayd: It is my voyce my Lorde the kynge. And he sayde moreouer: Why doth my Lorde so persecute hys seruaunt? What haue I done? and what
D euell is ther in my hande? yet let my Lorde the kynge heare but the wordes of hys seruaunt: ꝑf the LORDE prouoke the agaynst me, let ther be smelled a meatofferynge: but ꝑf the childzen of men do it, cursed be they before the LORD, because they haue thrust me out this daye that I shulde not dwell in the LORDES enheritaunce, and saye: Go thy waye, and serue other goddes. So let not now my bloude vpon the earth this face of the LORDE. For the kynge of Israel is gone forth to seke a flee, as a partrych is folowed on vpon the mountayns.

And Saull sayde: I haue synned. Come agayne Dauid my sonne, I will do the nomore hurt, because my soul hath ben in thy syght this day. Behold, I haue done foolyshly and very vnwysely. Dauid answered and saide: Beholde, here is the kynges speare, let one of the ponge men come ouer here, and fetch it. But the LORDE shal rewarde euery one accordynge to his righteousnesse and fayth, for the LORDE deliuered the this daye in to my hande: nonetheless I wolde not laye my hande vpon the LORDES anoynted. And as thy soule hathe ben greatly reputed in my syght this daye, se let the LORDE repute my soule in his syght, and deliuer me from all trouble. Saul saide vnto Dauid: Blessed be thou Dauid my sonne, thou shalt do it, and be able. But Dauid wente his waye, and Saul turned agayne vnto his place.

The.xxviii.Chapter.

DAuid thought in his hart: one of these dayes shall I fall in the handes of Saul. It is better ꝑ I get me my waye into the londe of the Philystynes, that Saul maye leaue of from seknge me in all the coastes of Israell, so shall I escape his handes. * And he gat him vp, and went ouer with the sixe hundreth men that were with him vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Gath. So Dauid remayned by Achis at Gath, with his men, euery man ꝑ his household, and Dauid with his two wyues. Ahinoā the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmell. And whā it was came to Saull that Dauid was fled to Gath, he sought hym nomore.

And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: ꝑf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then let them geuen me a place in one of the cytes of this londe, that I maye dwell therin. Wherfore shulde thy seruaunt dwell in the kynges cyte wt the? Then Achis gaue him Siceleg the same daye. Therfore belōgeth Siceleg to the kinges of Juda vnto this daye. The tyme that Dauid dwelt in the londe of the Philistines is foure monethes.

Dauid wente vp with his men, and sayde: Towarde the south part of Juda: to and toward the south parte of the Kenites.

But Dauid let nother mā nor womā come peraduenture speake & reporte agaynst vs:

Thus dyd Dauid, and this was his maner

to Dauid, and thought: he hath made hym

The.xxviii.Chapter.

IT fortuned at the same tyme,
that the Philistines gathered

Achis sayde to Dauid: Thou

B Then sayde Saull vnto his seruaūtes:
Seke me a woman whiche hath a spyrite of

aske at her: his seruauntes sayde vnto him:
Beholde, at Endor is ther a womā, which hath a spyrite of sothsayenge. And Saull chaunged his clothes, and put on other, & wente his way and two men with him and came by nyght vnto the woman, and sayd:
Prophecye vnto me (I praye the) thorowe
the spyrite of sothsayenge, and bryng me hym vp whom I shal name vnto the. The womā sayd vnto him: Beholde, thou know

lande, wherfore wylt thou bynge my soule

Saull sware vnto her by the LORDE, and sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, ther shal no harme happen vnto the for this. Then sayde the woman: Whome shall I bynge
vp vnto the: He sayde, Bynge me vp Sa

C Now whan the woman sawe Samuel,
she cryed loude, & sayde vnto Saul: Wher fore hast thou begiled me? Thou art Saul.
And the kynge sayde vnto her: Feare not,
what seist thou? The womā sayd to Saul:
I se goddes cōmynge vp out of the earth.
He sayde: How is he shapened? She sayde:
Ther cōmeth vp an olde man, & is clothed with a lōge garmēt. Thē perceaued Saul that it was Samuell, and bowed hymselfe
downe with his face to the grounde, & wor

Samuell sayde vnto Saull: Why hast thou disquyeted me, to cause me be brought

I wyll set a morsel of breade before the to eate, that thou mayest come to thy strength, and go thy waye. But he refused, and sayde: I wyll not eate. The his seruauntes and the woman compelled him so, that he herkened vnto their voyce.

And he rose vp from the grounde and sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so she made hayst, and kylled it, and toke meell and dyd kneede it, & baked swete cakes, and brought the forth before Saul, and before his seruauntes. And whan they had eaten, they stode vp, and wente their waye that nyght.

The.xxix. Chapter.

A THe Philystynes gathered all theyre armyes together at Aphek. But Israell pitched at Jin in Jesrael. And ỳ prynces of the Philistynes wente forth with hundreds and with thousandes, but Dauid and his men wente behynde with Achis. Then sayde the prynces of the Philistines: What shall these Hebrues do? Then Achis called Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, I take the for an honest man, and thy outgoynge and ingoynge with me in the hoost pleaseth me well, and no euell haue I marked in the, sence the tyme that thou camest to me vnto this daye. But thou pleasest not ỳ prynces. Returne now therfore, and go thy waye in peace, that thou do no euell in the syght of the prynces of the Philystynes.

C Dauid sayde: what haue I done, and what haste thou marked in thy seruaunte, sence the tyme that I haue bene in thy presence vnto this day, that I should not come & fight agaynst the enemyes of my lorde the kynge? Achis answered and sayd vnto Dauid: I knowe well that thou pleasest myne eyes euen as an angell of God. But ỳ prynces of the Philistynes haue sayde: Let him not go vp with vs vnto the battayll. Get the vp therfore tomorow by tymes, and thy lordes seruauntes whiche are come with the. And whan ye haue gotten you vp early in the morynge, whan it is lyghte, go your waye. So Dauid and his men gat them vp early to go theyr waye in the morynge, to come agayne in to the londe of the Philistynes. But the Philistynes wente vp towarde Jesrael.

The.xxx. Chapter.

NOw whanne Dauid came to Siclag on the thyrde day with his men, the Amalechites had fallen in on the southparte and at Siclag, and had smytten Siclag, and burned it with fyre, & had caryed awaye the wemen out of it, both small and greate. Neuertheless they had slayne noman, but dryuē thē thence, and wente forth enge on theyr waye. Now whan Dauid & his men came to the cyte, and sawe that it was brent with fyre, and that theyr wyues, sonnes and doughters were led awaye captyue: Dauid and the people that was with him lyfte vp theyr voyce, and wept so long, tyll they couldе wepe nomore. For Dauids two wyues also were caryed awaye captyue, Ahinoam the Jesraelitish, and Abigail the wyfe of Carmell. And Dauid was in ry sorowfull, for the people wolde haue stoned hym: for the soule of all the people was in greate heuynesse, euery one ouer his sonnes and doughters.

Neuertheless Dauid strengthed himself in ỳ LORD his God, and sayd vnto Abiathar that he prest ỳ sōne of Ahimelech: * Bryng me hether the ouerbodycote. And whan Abiathar had brought ỳ ouerbodycote vnto Dauid, Dauid ared at the LORD, & sayd: Shall I folowe vpon the men of warre, & shall I ouertake thē? He sayd vnto him: Folowe vpon them, for thou shalt ouertake thē, and shalt make a prayе. Thē wente Dauid his waye, and sixe hundreth mē that were with hym. And whā they came to to ỳ ryuer of Besor, there stode styll. But Dauid and the fourehundreth men folowed after: As for the two hundreth men that stode styl, they had ben so faynt to go ouer the ryuer of Besor.

And they founde a man of Egipte vpon the felde, hym they brought vnto Dauid, D *gaue hym breed to eate, & water to drynke and gaue hym a quarte of fygges, and two quantities of raysyns. And whan he had eaten, his spirite came to hym agayne, for in thre dayes and thre nyghtes he had eate no bread, and dronken no water.

C Dauid sayd vnto hym: Whose art thou? He sayd: I am a childe of Egipte, and Amalechites seruaunt, and my master hath forsaken me, because I was sycke thre dayes ago. We fell here in towarde the south syde of Chrethus, and vpon Juda, and towarde the south parte of Caleb, and haue burned Siclag with fyre.

Dauid sayde vnto hym: Wylt thou bringe me downe to these men of warre? He sayd: Sweare vnto me by God, y thou shalt not slaye me, nor delyuer me in to my masters hande, and I wyl bringe y downe to these men of warre. And he brought the downe, and behold, they were scatred vpon all the grounde, eatynge & drynkynge, & kepyng holy daye, & were makyng mery there because of the great spoyles that they had taken out of the lande of the Philistynes & of Juda.

D And Dauid smote them frō the morowe tyll the euē, agaynst the nexte daye, so y ther escaped none, except foure hūdreth yōge me which rode vpon camels, and fled. So Dauid releued all that the Amalechites had taken and his two wyues, and there mysled no thynge, nother small nor great, nother sonnes nor doughters, nor spoyles: and what soeuer they had taken, Dauid brought all agayne. And Dauid toke the shepe & oxen, and droue the cattell before hym. And they sayd: This is Dauids spoyle.

And whan Dauid came to the two hundreth mē, which had ben slowe to folowe after Dauid, and abode at the ryuer of Besor, they wēt forth to mete Dauid, and the people that was with him. And Dauid came to the people and saluted them frendly.

Then answered suche men as were euel E and Belials men (amonge them that had gone with Dauid) and sayd: Seynge they went not with vs, they shall haue none of the spoiles that we haue relcued: but let euery man take his wyfe and chyldren and be goynge.

Then sayd Dauid: ye shal not do so (my brethren) with that whiche the LORDE hath geuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and delyuered these men of warre (which were come agaynst vs) in to our handes. Who shulde consent vnto you herin? Lyke as the porcyon is of them that wente downe to the battayll, so shall the porcyon be of thē also that abode with the stuffe, and shalbe deuyded a lyke.

From that tyme forth hath this bene F an ordinaūce and lawe in Israell vnto this daye. And whan Dauid came to Syclag, he sent of the spoyle vnto the Elders in Juda his neyghbours, and sayd: Behold, there haue ye the blessyng out of the spoyle of the enemyes of the LORDE, namely vnto them of Bethel, vnto them at Ramath in y south, vnto them at Jathir, vnto them at Aroer, vnto them at Siphamoth, vnto them at Eschemoa, vnto them at Rachal, vnto the in the cyties of the Jerahmielites, vnto the in the cyties of the Kenites, vnto them at Horma, vnto them at Borosā, vnto them at Atach, vnto them at Hebron, and to all the places where Dauid had walked with his men.

The.xxxi.Chapter.

BUt the *Philistynes fought A agaynst Israel, and the mē of 1.par.11.a Israel fled before the Philistynes, and fell downe smytte dpon the mount of Gilboa. And the Philistines preased vpō Saul and his sōnes, and slew Jonathas, and Aminadab and Malchisua y sonnes of Saul. And the battayl was sore agaynst Saul, and the archers fell vpon hym with bowes, & he was sore wounded of the archers.

Then sayd Saul to his wapenbearer: *Drawe out thy swearde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcysed come not and slaye me, and make a laughynge stocke of me. Neuertheles his wapēbearer wolde not, for he was sore afrayed. Then toke B Saul the swearde & fel theron. Now whan his wapēbearer sawe that Saul was dead he fel also vpon his sweard, and dyed with hym. Thus dyed Saul and his thre sōnes, and his wapenbearer, and all his men toge ther the same daye. Judi.9.b

Whan the mē of Israel which were beyonde the valley, & beyonde Jordane, sawe that the mē of Israel were fled, and y Saul and his sonnes were dead, they lefte the cyties and fled also. Then came the Philistynes, and dwelt therin.

The fyrst Chapter.

After ỹ death of Saul whã Dauid was come agayne from the *slaughter of ỹ Amalechites, and had remained two daies at Siclag, beholde, on the thyrde daye ther came a man out of Sauls hooste, w̃ his clothes rente, and earth vpon his heade. And whã he cam vnto Dauid, he fell downe to the grounde, & worshipped. Dauid sayd vnto hym: Whence commest thou? He sayd vnto hym: Out of the hooste of Israel am I fled. Dauid sayd vnto hym: Tell me, what is the matter? He sayd: the people is fled frõ the battayll, and many of the people are fallen: yee and Saul also is dead & his sonne Jonathas. Dauid sayd vnto the ponge mã that brought hym this worde: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne are dead? The ponge man that tolde hym this, sayd: I came by chaunce vnto mount Gilboa, and beholde, Saul leaned vpõ his speare, and the charrettes, and horsemen followed harde after hym: and he turned hym aboute, and sawe me, and called me. And I sayde: Here am I: And he sayd to me: What art thou? I sayd vnto hym: I am an Amalechite. And he sayd vnto me: Come to me, and kyll me, for anguyshe hath gotten holde of me: for my lyfe is yet whole within me. Then stepte I to hym and slewe hym, for I knowe well that he coulde not lyue after his fall. And I toke the crowne frõ his heade, and the armelet from his arme, and haue brought it here vnto the my lorde.

Then toke Dauid holde of his clothes, * & rente them, and so dyd al the men that were with hym, and mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntyll the euen, ouer Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and ouer the people of the LORDE, and ouer the house of Israel, because they were fallen thorow the swearde.

And Dauid sayd to the ponge man that brought hym worde: What art thou? He sayd: I am the sonne of a straũger an Amalechite. Dauid sayd: How happened it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thyne hande vpon the LORDES anoynted to destroye hym? * And Dauid sayd vnto one of his ponge men: Come hyther, and slaye hym. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayd Dauid vnto hym: Thy bloude be vpõ thyn owne heade. * For thy mouth hath spoken agaynst thy selfe and sayde: I haue slayne the anoynted of the LORDE. And Dauid mourned this lamẽtacyon ouer Saul, and Jonathas his sonne, and commaunded to teache the chyldren of Juda ỹ bowe. Beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the ryghteous.

The Eldest in Israel are slayne vpon ỹ height of the. How are the worthies fallen?

* Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in ỹ stretes at Ascalon: lest the doughters of the Philistynes reioyce, lest ỹ doughters of the vncircumcysed triumphe.

Ye mountaynes of Gilboa, nother dew nor rayne come vpon you, nother lande be wherof cõmeth heaue offerynges: for there is the shylde of the worthies smyttẽ downe: the shilde of Saul as though he hadde not ben anoynted with oyle.

* The bowe of Jonathas sayled not, & the swearde of Saul came not agayne voyde from the bloude of the slayne, & from the fat of the glauntes.

Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunt in theyr lyfe, and in theyr death were not parted asunder, lyghter thẽ eagles and stronger then lyons.

Ye doughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul which clothed you with purple i pleasures, and decked you with iewels of golde on your garmentes.

How are the Worthies fallen so in the battayl? Jonathas is slayne vpon ỹ height of the.

I am sory for the my brother Jonathas: thou hast bene very louely vnto me: Thy loue hath ben more specyall vnto me, then the loue of wemen.

How are the Worthies fallen, and the weapens destroyed?

The.ii. Chapter.

After these actes Dauid * ared at the LORDE, and sayd: Shall I go vp in to one of the cyties of Juda? And the LORDE sayde vnto him: Go vp. Dauid sayd: Whyther? He sayd: Vnto Hebron. So Dauid went thyther with his two wyues, Ahi-

2.Re.33.c. And whan it was tolde Dauid, * that they of Jabes in Gilead had buried Saul he sent messaungers vnto them, sayenge: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue done such mercy vpon your lorde Saul, & haue buryed hym. The LORDE therfore shewe mercy now and kaythfulnesse vpon you. And because ye haue done this, I also wyl do you good. Let your hande now ther fore be cõforted, & be ye stronge: for though Saul your lorde be dead, yet hath ꝑ house of Juda anointed me to be kynge ouer the.

B But Abner the sõne of Ner, which was Sauls chefe captayne, toke Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and brought hym thorowe ꝑ hoost, & made hym kynge ouer Gilead, Assuri, Jesrael, Ephraim, Ben Jamin & ouer all Jsrael. And Isboseth the sonne of Saul was fortye yeare olde, whan he was made kynge of Jsrael, and he raygned two yeares. But the house of Juda helde with Dauid: * The tyme that Dauid was kynge at Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was seuen yeare and sixe monethes longe.

3 Reg.5.a.

And Abner the sonne of Ner went forth with the seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saul, out of the hoost vnto Gibeõ. And Joab the sõne of Zeru Ja wente forth with Dauids seruauntes, and they met together by the pole at Gibeon, and these laye on the one syde of the pole: the other, on the other syde. And Abner sayd vnto Joab: Let the ponge men get them vp, and playe before vs. Joab sayd: Let them aryse. Then gat they them vp, and wente in nõbre twelfe of Bẽ Jamin on Isboseth Sauls sõnes syde, and twelfe of Dauids seruauntes. And euery one gat another by the heade, and thrust his swearde in his syde, and fell together: therfore is ꝑ place called Helkath Hazurim (that is, the felde of the worthies) which is at Gibeon.

C And ther arose a sore harde battayll the same daye. But Abner and the men of Jsrael were put to flyghte of Dauids seruaũtes. Thre sonnes of Zeru Ja were there, Joab, Abisai, & Asahel. As for Asahel he was lyght of fete as a roo in the felde, and folowed after Abner, and turned not asyde nother to the ryght hande, nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner turned hym about, & sayd: Art thou Asahel? He sayd: yea. Then sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye ether to the ryght hande or to the lefte, and get the one of the ponge men, and take his harnesse fro hym. Neuertheless Asahel wolde not leaue of from hym. Then sayde Abner agayn to Asahel: Get ꝑ awaye fro me, why wylt thou that I smyte the to the goundes? how then I lyfte vp my face agaynst thy brother Joab? Howbeit he wolde not go his waye.

Then Abner thrust hym in with a speare into his bely, so that his speare went out behynde hym. And there he fell and dyed before hym: and who so came to ꝑ place where Asahel laye dead, stode styll there. But Joab and Abisai folowed vpon Abner, ꝑ the Sonne went downe. And whã they came to the hyll of Amma, which lyeth before Gia, by the waye to the wyldernesse of Gibeon, the chyldren of Ben Jamin gathered them selues together behynde Abner, and gaue a multytude, and stode vpon the toppe of an hyll.

And Abner called vnto Joab, and sayde: Shall the swearde then deuoure without ende? Knowest thou not, that it wyll be bytter at the last? How longe wyll it be or thou say vnto the people that they leaue of from their brethren. Joab sayd: As truly as God lyueth yf thou haddest sayd thus to day in the morninge, the people had ceassed euery one from his brother. And Joab blewe a trompet, and all the people stode styll, and folowed nomore vpon Jsrael, nother fought they ony more.

Abner and his men wente all the same nyght ouer the playne feld, and passed ouer Jordane, and walked thorow all Bithron, and came to the tentes. Joab turned him from Abner, and gathered all the people together. And of Dauids seruaũtes there were fownd nynetene mẽ, and Asahel. But Dauids seruauntes had smytten so among Ben Jamin and the men of Abner, that three hundreth and three score men were dead. And they toke vp Asahel, and buryed him in his fathers graue at Bethlee. And Joab and his men went all that nyght: and at ꝑ light of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The.iii. Chapter.

AND ther was a great battayll betwene the house of Saul & the house of Dauid. But Dauid wente and increased, & the house of Saul went and shed. And vnto Dauid were chyldre borne at Hebrō. * His fyrstborne sōne Ammon of Ihmoā the Iesraelitesse: the seconde Chi-leab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmel: the thyrde Absalon the sonne of Maacha * doughter of Thalmai kynge of Ges sur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith:

the fyfth Saphatia the sōne of Abitail: the sixte Iethrea of Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne vnto Dauid at Hebron.

Now whan it was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid.
Abner strēgthed Sauls house. And Saul had had a concubyne, whose name was Ris pa the doughter of Aia. And Isboseth sayd vnto Abner: Wherfore lyest thou with my fathers concubyne?

B The was Abner very wroth at these wor
des of Isboseth, and sayd: Am I a dogges heade then, that I agaynst Juda do mercy vnto the house of Saul thy father, and vn to his brethren and kynsfolkes, & haue not delyuered the into the hande of Dauid, and thou laiest a trespasse to my charge this day for a womās sake? God do Abner this and that, yf I do not * as the LORDE hath swome vnto Dauid, that ꝓ kyngdome may be taken from the house of Saul, & the seat of Dauid set vp ouer Israel and Juda, frō Dan vnto Berseba. Then coulde he not answere hym one worde agayne, he feared hym so.

And Abner sent messaungers vnto Da
uid, sayeng: Whose is the lande? And sayd Make thy conuenaunt with me. Beholde, my hande shalbe with the to turne al Israel
vnto the.

C He sayde: Well, I wyll make a conue-naunt with the, but one thynge I desyre of the, that thou se not my face, excepte thou fyrst bynge my Michol Sauls doughter, whan thou commest to se my face. Dauid sent messaungers also vnto Isboseth ꝓ sōne of Saul, sayenge: * Geue me my wyfe Michol, whom I maried with an hūdreth fore skynnes of the Philistynes, Isboseth sent, & caused for to take her from the man * Pal-thiel the sonne of Lais. And hir husbande went with her, and wepte behynde her vnto Bahurym. Then sayd Abner vnto hym: Turne backe agayne and go thy way. And he turned backe agayne.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Israel, and sayd: youre myndes haue bene set afore tyme and longe ago vpon Dauid, that he might be kynge ouer you, do it now therfore, for the LORDE hath sayd of Da-uid: I wyll delyuer my people of Israel by the hande of Dauid my seruaunt, from the hande of the Philistines, and from ꝓ hande of theyr enemyes.

Abner spake also before the eares of Be D
Jamin, and wente to speake before ꝓ eares of Dauid at Hebron that all Israel and the whole house of Ben Jamin was contente withall. Now whan Abner came to Hebron vnto Dauid, and tweuty me with hym, Da uid made them a feast. And Abner sayd vn to Dauid: I wyll get me vp, and go gather all Israell togerher to my lorde the kynge, and that they may make a conuenaūt with the, that thou mayest be kynge, at thy sou-les desyre.

So Dauid let Abner go from hym in peace. And beholde, Dauid seruauntes and Joab came frō the men of warre & brought a great spoyle with them. And Abner was not now with Dauid at Hebron: for he had sent hym from hym, so ꝓ he was gone his waye in peace.

But whan Joab and all the hoost with E
hym was come, it was tolde hym ꝓ Abner the sone of Ner came to the kynge, and how he had sent hym from hym, so that he was gone his waye in peace. Then wente Joab in to the kynge, and sayde: What hast thou done? Behold, Abner came to the, why hast thou sent hym from the, that he is gone his waye? Knowest thou not Abner the sōne of Ner? For he came to the to deceaue the, that he myght knowe thy outgoynge, and ingo
ynge, and to spye out all that thou doest.
And whan Joab went out from Dauid, he sent messaungers after Abner, to fetch hym agayne from Bohacira, and Dauid knew not therof. Now whan Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Joab brought hym in to the myddes vnder the gate, to talke with hym secretly, and * thrust hym there in to ꝓ bely Judi.3.e
ꝓ he dyed, because of his brother * Asahels 2.Reg.2.d bloude.

Whan Dauid knewe of it therafter, he F
sayd: I am vngylty, and so is my kyngdom for euer before the LORDE concernynge
the bloude of Abner the sōne of Ner: but vp pon the heade of Joab fall it, and vpon all his fathers house. In the house of Joab ther ceasse not one to haue a renninge yssue
and a lepros, and to go vpon a staffe, & fall thorow the swearde, and to haue scarsenesse of bread. Thus Joab and his brother Abi-sai slew Abner, because he had slaine theyr brother Asahel in the battayll at Gibeon.

Dauid sayd vnto Joab and to all the people that was with hym: Rent your clothes, and gyrde sackcloth about you, and make lamentacyon for Abner. And ỳ kinge wente after the beare. And whã they buried Abner at Hebron, the kynge lyfte vp his voyce, and wept beside Abners graue, and all the people wepte also.

G And the kynge mourned for Abner, and sayd: Abner is not dead as a foole dyeth. Thy handes were not bound, thy fete were not bered with fetters, thou art fallen as a man falleth before wycked vnthryftes. Thẽ all the people bewayled hym yet more.

Now whã al ỳ people cã in to eat w̃ David whyl it was yet hye day, David swate, & sayd: God do this and that vnto me, yf I taste eyther bread or ought els afor ỳ Sõne go downe. And all the people knewe it, and it pleased them well all that the kynge dyd in the syght of all the people. And all ỳ people and all Israel perceaued the same daye, that it came not of ỳ kynge, that Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne. And the kynge sayd vnto his seruauntes: Knowe ye not ỳ this daye a prynce, a great man is fallen in Israel? As for me, I am yet but tender and anoynted kynge. But the men the chyldren of Zeruia are to harde for me. The LORDE recompence hym that doth euell, accordyng to his wyckednesse.

The.iiii. Chapter.

A WHan Sauls sonne herde that Abner was dead at Hebrõ, his handes were feble, and all Israel was sorry. But ther were two men captaines ouer ỳ soul dyers vnder the sonne of Saul, ỳ one was called Baena, the other Rehob, sõnes of Rimon the Berothite, of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was counted also in Benjamin. And the Berothites were fled vnto Gethaim, and were straungers there vnto this daye. * Jonathas also ỳ sõne of Saull had a sonne which was lame on his fete, & was fyue yeare olde whan the rumoure of Saul and Jonathas came from Israel. And his norse toke hym, & fled. And whyle she made haist and fled, he fell & was lame: And his name was Mephiboseth. 2 Reg. 9.a

B Then wente the sonnes of Rimon ỳ Berothite, Rehob and Baena, and came to ỳ house of Isboseth, in the heat of the daye, & he laye vpon his bed at the noone day. And they came in to the house to fetch wheate, & thrust hym in to the bely, and gat thẽ awaye for whan they came in to the house, he laye vpon his bed in his chãber and they stickte him to death, and smote of his heade, & tooke his heade, and departed by the waye of the playne felde all that nyght, and brought the heade of Isboseth to David vnto Hebron, and sayd vnto the kynge: Beholde, here is the heade of Isboseth ỳ sõne of Saul thyne enemye which layed wayte for thy soule. This daye hath the LORDE auenged our lorde the kynge of Saul and his seede.

Then answered David vnto Rehob Baena his brother, the sonnes of Rimon Berothite, and sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth which hath delyuered my soule out of all trouble, * I toke hym that brought me worde & sayd: Saul is dead, & he thought he had ben a good messaunger, and for his clag I put hym to death, vnto whom I should haue geuẽ a reward for his message. And these vngodly persones haue slayne a righteous man in his owne house vpon his bed. Nowe shulde not I requyre his bloud of your handes, and take you awaye from the earth? And David commaũded his yonge men, which slewe them, and smote of their handes and fete, and hãged them vp by the poole at Hebron. But the head of Isboseth toke they, and buryed it in Abners graue at Hebron.

The.v. Chapter.

AND al ỳ trybes of Israel came to David vnto Hebron, and sayde: * Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesshe. And afore tyme when Saul was king ouer vs, thou leddest Israel out and in. So the LORDE hath sayde: Thou shalte kepe my people Israel, and shalt be the duke ouer Israel. And al the Elders in Israel came to the kynge vnto Hebron. And kynge David made a couenaunt with them at Hebron before the LORDE. And they anoynted David to be kynge ouer Israel. Thyrty yeare old was David whan he was made kyng, and raygned fourty yeares. * At Hebrõ raygned he seuen yeares & sixe monethes ouer Juda: but at Jerusalem he reygned thre and thyrty yeare ouer all Israel and Juda.

And the kynge went w̃ his men to Jerusalem, agaynst the Jebusytes, which dwelled in the lande. Neuertheles they spake vnto David: Thou shalt not come in hether, but the blynde and lame shall dryue the away. (They thought planely, that David shulde not come in.) Howbeit David wanne the castell of Sion, which is the cyte of David. Thẽ sayd David the same daye: &

euer smyteth the Jebusites, and optayneth the perquylles, the lame and the blynde, (whiche Jebusites) Dauids soule hateth. Herof cōmeth ꝑ prouerbe: * Let no blynde nor lame come in to the house. So Dauid dwelt in the castell, and called it the cītye of Dauid. And Dauid buylded roūde aboute fro Millo and within. And Dauid grewe, and the LORDE the God Zebaoth was with hym.

C * And Hiram the kynge of Tyre sente messaungers vnto Dauid, and cedre trees for walles, and carpenters, and masons, to buylde Dauid an house. And Dauid knew that the LORDE had confirmed hym kynge ouer Israel, and exalted his kyngdome for his people of Israels sake. And Dauid toke yet more wyues and concubynes at Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron, and ther were yet mo sonnes and doughters borne vnto hym: * And these are the names of them that were borne vnto hym at Jerusalem: Samma, Sobab, Nathā, Salomon, Jebehar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, Eliphalet.

And whan the Philystynes herde that Dauid was anoynted kynge ouer Israell, they wente vp all to seke Dauid. Whā Dauid perceaued that: he wente downe in to a castell. But the Philystines came and scatered themselues beneth in the valleye of Rephaim. * And Dauid axed at ꝑ LORD, and sayde: Shall I go vp agaynst the Philistines? and wylt thou delyuer them in to my hande? The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyll delyuer the Philistynes in to thy hande.

D And Dauid came vnto Baall Phazim, and smote them there, and sayde: The LORDE hath deuyded myne enemyes, euen as the waters parte asunder: therfor is ꝑ same place called Baall Phazim. And they lefte their ymages there, but Dauid and his men caryed them awaye.

* Neuertheles the Philistynes wente vp agayn, and scatered themselues beneth in the valleye of Rephaim. And Dauid axed at the LORDE. The LORD sayde: Thou shalt go vp, but cōpasse them behynde, that thou mayst be vpon them ouer agaynst the peerētrees: and whan thou hearest vpon the toppe of the peerētrees, the soūde of the goynge, be bolde: for then is the LORDE gone forth before the, to smyte the hoost of ꝑ Philistynes. Dauid dyd as the LORDE cōmaūded hym, and smote the Philistines frō Gibea, tyll thou cōmest vnto Galer.

The.vi.Chapter.

A And * Dauid gathered agayn all the yonge chosen men in Israell, euen thre thousande, and gat hym vp, and wente with al the people that was with hym of the cytezyns of Juda, to fetch vp ꝑ Arke of God from thence whose name is: The name of the LORDE Zebaoth dwelleth ther on betwene the cherubyns. * And they caused the Arke of God to be caryed vpō a new carte, * and fetched it out of ꝑ house of Aminadab, which dwelt at Gibea. Usa and Ahio the sonnes of Aminadab droue the new carte. And whan they broughte it with the Arke from the house of Aminadab whiche dwelt at Gibea, Ahio went before the Arke: and Dauid & al the house of Israel played before the LORDE, with all maner of instrumentes of pyne tre, with harpes, and psalteries, and tabrettes, and belles, and cymbals. 1.par.14.a 1.Re.6.b 1.Reg.7.a

B * And whā they came to the barnfloore of Nahon, Usa stretched out his hande, * & helde the Arke of God: for the oxen wente out aside. Thē wared the wrath of the LORDE fearte agaynst Usa, and God smote him there because of his presumption, so that he dyed there beside ꝑ Arke of God. Thē was Dauid sory, because the LORDE had made such a rent vpon Usa, and he called ꝑ same place ☞ Perez Usa vnto this daye. And Dauid feared the LORDE the same daye, and sayde: How shall this Arke of the LORDE come to me? And he wold not let it be brought to hym in to the cītye of Dauid, but caused it be broughte in to the house of Obed Edom the Gathite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had cōtinued thre monethes in the house of Obed Edom the Gathite, the LORDE blessed hym and all his house. 1.par.14.b & Nu.4.b and.7.b Perez: a rent or diuysion.

And it was tolde kynge Dauid, that the C LORDE had blessed the house of Obed Edō and all that he had because of the Arke of God. * Then wente he and fetched vp the Arke of God out of the house of Obed Edō in to ꝑ cytye of Dauid with ioye. And whā they were gone sire steppes in with ꝑ Arke of the LORDE, they offered an ox and a fat shepe. And Dauid daūced vō all his might before the LORDE and was gyrded with an ouerbody cote of lynnen. And Dauid with al Israel brought vp the Arke of the LORD with tabrettes, and trompettes. 1.par.16.b

in to the cytie of Dauid Michol the doughter of Saull loked out at a wyndowe, and sawe kynge Dauid leappynge, spryngynge and daunsynge, before the OLRDE, and dessysed hym in hir harte. * But whan they brought in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in hir place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offered burntoffrynges and thãkoffrynges before the LORD. And whã Dauid had made an ende of offrynge ꝑ burnt offrynges and thãkoffrynges, he blessed the people in ꝑ name of the LORD Zebaoth, and dealte out vnto all the people, and to ꝑ multitude of Israell, both to man and woman, vnto euery one a cake of bread, and a pece of flesshe, and a meace of pottage. Thẽ wente all the people theyr waye, euery one vnto his house.

Whã Dauid came agayne to blesse his house. Michol the doughter of Saul wẽte forth to mete him, and sayd: How glorious hath the kynge of Israel ben to day, which hath vncouered hymselfe before ꝑ maydẽs of his seruauntes, lyke as the rascal people discouer themselues. But Dauid sayde vnto Michol: I will playe before the LORD, which hath chosen me afore thy father, and afore all his house, because he hath cõmaũded me to be a prynce ouer the people of the LORDE, euen ouer Israell, and yet will I be vyler then so, and will be lowe in myne owne sight: and with the maydens wherof thou hast spoken, will I be honoured. As for Michol the doughter of Saul, she had no chylde vnto the daye of hir death.

The.vii. Chapter.

1.par.18.a

NOw * whã the kynge sat in his house, and the LORDE had geue hym rest from all his enemyes on euery syde, he sayd vnto the prophete Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedre, and the Arke of God dwelleth amonge the curtaynes. Nathan sayde vnto the kynge. Go thy waye, what soeuer thou hast in thyne harte, that do: for the LORDE is with the. But the same nyght came ꝑ worde of the LORD vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go & speake to my seruaũt Dauid, Thus sayeth ꝑ LORD: Shalt thou buylde me an house to dwell in? I haue dwelt in no house sence ꝑ daye ꝑ I brought the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte vnto this daye, but haue walked in ꝑ Tabernacle and Habitacion, whether soeuer I wẽte with the chyldren of Israell. Dyd I euer speake to ony of the trybes of Israell, whõ I cõmaunded to kepe my people of Israel, and sayde: Wherfore do ye not buylde me an house of Ceder woode?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruaunt Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: * I toke the from the pasture, where thou wentest behynde the shepe, that thou shuldest be the prynce ouer my people Israel, and haue ben with the whether so euer thou wentest, and roted out all thyne enemyes before the, and haue made the a great name, accordynge to the name of the great men vpon earth. And for my people Israell I will appoynte a place, & will plãte thẽ, that they may remayne there, and not to be remoued, and that the chyldren of vnrighteousnesse oppresse thẽ no more, lyke as they dyd and sence ꝑ tyme that I ordeyned Iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I will geue the rest from all thyne enemyes. And the LORDE shewed the, that the LORDE will make the a house.

* Now whã the tyme is fulfylled ꝑ thou shalt slepe with thy fathers, I will aduãce thy seede rayse vp thy sede, which shal come of thy bodye: his kyngdome will I stablyshe, he shall buylde an house for my name, * and I will stablysh the seate of his kyngdom for euer. * I will be his father, & he shalbe my sonne.

* Whan he doth a trespasse, I will chastise him & proue hym with the rodde of men and with the plages of the chyldren of men: But my mercy shal not be withdrawe frõ hym, as I haue withdrawe it frõ Saull, whõ I haue taken awaye before the. As for thy house & thy kyngdome, it shall be stablyshed for euer before ꝑ, and thy seate shal endure for euermore.

Whan Nathan had tolde all these wordes and all this vysion vnto Dauid: kynge Dauid came and sat hym downe before the LORDE, and sayd: O LORDE God, what am I? & what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus farre? This O LORDE God hast thou thought to lytle also, but hast spoken of the house of thy seruaunt yet long for to come. O LORDE God is this the lawe of men?

And what shall Dauid speake more vnto the, for thou knowest thy seruaũt O LORDE God? for thy wordes sake, & accordynge to thyne owne hert hast thou done all these great thynges, that thou myghtest shewe them vnto thy seruaunt. Therfore art thou great O LORDE God * for there is none lyke he, and ther is no God but thou alone dynge vnto all that we haue herd with our eares. * For where is ther a people vpon earth as thy people of Israell? For whose sake wente God to delyuer hym a people, & to make hym selfe a name, and to do them such greate & terryble thynges in thy lãde before thy people, * whom thou hast delyuered vnto thy selfe from Egypte, frõ the people, and frõ theyr goddes. And thy people of Israel hast thou prepared the to be a people vnto thine owne selfe for euer, and thou O LORDE arte become theyr God.

Stablyshe nowe the wordе therfore for euer (O LORDE God) which thou hast spoken ouer thy seruaunt and ouer his house, and do accordynge as thou hast sayde. So shall thy name be greate for euer so that it shalbe sayde: The LORDE Zebaoth is the God of Israell, and ỹ house of thy seruaunt Dauid shalbe made sure before ỹ. For thou LORDE Zebaoth, thou God of Israel hast opened the eare of thy seruauut, and sayde: I will buylde the an house. Therfore hath thy seruaunt founde his harte, to pray this prayer vnto the. * Now LORDE God thou thy selfe arte God, and thy wordes shalde ỹ truth. Thou hast spoken suche good ouer thy seruaunt. Begynne nowe therfore, and bleſſe thy seruauntes house, that it maye be before ỹ for euer, for thou LORD God thyne owne selfe hast spoke it: & with thy blessinge shal thy seruaũtes house be blessed for euer.

The. viii. Chapter.

AND it fortuned after this, that * Dauid smote ỹ Philistines, and discõfited them, and toke the bydell of bondage out of ỹ Philistynes hãde, * he smote the Moabites also to the grounde, so that he brought two partes of thẽ to death, and let one parte lyue. Thus ỹ Moabites were subdued vnto Dauid, so that they brought hym gyftes.

Dauid smote Hadadeser also the sonne of Rehob kynge of Soba, whan he went to fetch his power agayne at ỹ water Euphrates. And of them toke Dauid a thousande and seuen hũdreth horsmẽ, & twentye thousande foote men, and lamed all the chariottes, saue an hũdreth which he kept behynd. But the Syriãs came from Damascon to helpe Hadadeser kynge of Zoba. And Dauid smote two and twentye thousande men of the Syrians, and layed people vnto Damascus in Syria.

Thus was Syria subdued vnto Dauid o ỹ they brought hym gyftes: for ỹ LORDE helped Dauid whither soeuer he wẽte. And Dauid toke ỹ shildes of gold, which Hadad Esers seruaũtes had, & brought thẽ to Ieruſalẽ. But frõ Bethah & Berothai ỹ cytes of Hadad Eser toke Dauid very much brasse.

* Whã Thoi the kynge of Hemath herd B

Dauid gat hymselfe a name also whã he C

The.x. Chapter.

AND Dauid sayde: Remayneth A ther yet ony mã of Sauls house, that I may do mercy vpon him for Jonathas sake? Ther was a seruaũt of Sauls house named * Siba, whom they called vnto Dauid, and ỹ kynge sayde vnto hym: Art thou Siba? he sayd: yee thy seruaũt. The kyng sayd: Is ther yet ony man of Sauls house, that I may do the mercy of God vpõ hym? Siba sayde vnto the kynge: * Ther is yet 2.Sa.4.a a sonne of Jonathas lame on his fete. The kynge sayde vnto hym: Where is he? Siba sayde vnto the kynge: Beholde, he is 2.Sa.17.a

1.par.9.b

B Now whan Mephiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saull came vnto Dauid, he fell vpon his face, and worshipped hym. Dauid sayde: Mephiboseth. He sayde: Here Im I thy seruaũt. Dauid sayd vnto hym: Feare not, for I wyll do mercy vpõ the for thy father Jonathas sake, and 2.Re.19.c wyll * restore vnto the all the lande of thy father Saull: But thou shalt eate breade daylye at my table. He worshipped & sayde: Who am I thy seruaunt, that thou turnest the to a deade dogge as I am?

C The the kynge called Siba the seruaũt of Saull, and sayd vnto him: All that hath belonged vnto Saull and to all his house, haue I geuen to thy lordes sonne. Tyll his londe for hym therfore, thou and thy children and seruauntes, and bringe it in, that it maye be breade for thy lordes sonne, and that he maye enioye it: But Mephiboseth thy lordes sonne shall eate bread daylye at my table. Siba had fyftene sonnes & twentye seruauntes. And Siba sayde vnto the kynge: Accordynge vnto all as my lord the kynge hath cõmaunded his seruaũt, so shal his seruaũt do. And let Mephiboseth (sayd Dauid) eate at my table, as one of the kynges owne children. And Mephiboseth had a yõge sõne, whose name was Micha. But all þ dwelt in þ house of Siba, serued Mephiboseth. As for Mephiboseth hymselfe, he dwelt at Jerusalẽ: for he dyd eate daylye

The.x.Chapter.

A AND * it fortuned after this þ
1.Par.20.a the kynge of the childrẽ of Ammon dyed, and his sonne Hanun was kynge in his steade.
1.Re.12.a Then sayde Dauid: I wyll do mercy vpõ Hanun to sonne of Nahas * as his father dyd mercy vpon me. And so he sent, and conforted hym by his seruauntes vpõ his fathers death. Now whã Dauids seruauntes came in to the londe of the children of Ammon, the myghtye men of þ children of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun theyr lorde: Thynkest thou it is for the honoure of thy father in thy syght, that Dauid hath sent cõforters vnto the? Hath he not sent his seruauntes vnto the (thynkest thou) to spye and search out the cytie & to ouerthrowe it?

B Then toke Hanun þ seruauntes of Dauid and dyd shaue of the one halfe of their beerdes, and cut of the halfe of their garmẽtes euen by the gyrdell, and so let them go.

Whan this was tolde Dauid he sent to mete thẽ: for þ mẽ were put to great shame. And the kynge caused to saye vnto them: Byde at Jericho tyl your beerdes be grone and then come agayne.

Whã the childrẽ of Ammõ sawe þ they stynked in the sight of Dauid, they sent and hyred the Syriãs of þ house of Rehob, and the Syrians of Zoba, euen twentye thousande foote men, and frõ the kynge of Micha a thousande men and frõ Istob twelue thousande men. Whan Dauid herde that, he sent Joab with all þ hoost of the men of warre. And þ childrẽ of Ammon were forth and prepared theselues to þ battayl before the intraunce of the gate. But the Syrians of Zoba, of Rehob, of Istob & of Micha, were alone in the felde.

Now whan Joab sawe that the battayl was sette vpon him before and behynde, he chose of all the best yonge men in Israell, & prepared themselfe agaynst the Syriãs. And the residue of the people put he vnder the hande of his brother Abisai that he myght prepare hym agaynste the children of Ammon. And sayde: yf the Syriãs be to myghtye for me helpe thou me: but yf the children of Ammon be to myghtie for þ, I shal helpe the. Take a good corage vnto the, and let vs be stronge for our people, & for the cytyes of oure God: neuertheles the LORD do what pleaseth hym.

And Joab gat hym forth with the people that was with hym to fyght agaynst the Syriãs: & they fled before hym. And whan the childrẽ of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai, and wente in to the cytye. So Joab turned agayne from the childrẽ of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And whã the Syrians sawe that they were smytten before Israell they came together.

And Hadad Eser sente and brought out the Syrians beyonde the water, and they ledde their powre in, and Sobath þ chefe captayne of Hadad Esers hõst before thẽ. And this was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Israell together, and wẽte ouer Jordane and came to Helam, and the Syrians prepared themselues agaynst Dauid to fyght with hym: howbeit, the Syrians fled before Israell. And Dauid slew of the Syrians seuẽ hundreth charrettes, and fortye thousande horsmen, and Sobath the chefe captayne smote he also, so that he dyed there. Whan the kynges which were vnder Hadad Esers sawe, that they were smytten before Israell, they made peace with Israel, and were subdued vnto the. And the Syrias were afrayed to helpe the chyldren of Ammon ony more.

The.xi.Chapter.

A And whan the yeare came aboute whatyme as kynges vse to go forth * Dauid sente Joab and his seruauntes with hym, and all Israell, to destroye the chyldren of Ammon, and to laye syege vnto Rabba: but Dauid abode at Jerusalem.

And aboute the euentyde it fortuned that Dauid arose from his restynge place and went vp to the toppe of the kynges palace, and from the toppe he saw a woma * washynge her selfe, and the woma was of a very fayre beauty. And Dauid sente, & caused to aske what woman it was, and sayde: Is not that Bethsaba the doughter of Eliam, the wyfe of Urias the Hethite? And Dauid sente messaungers, and caused for to fetche her. And whan she was come in vnto hym, * he laye with her. Neuertheless she halowed her selfe fro hir vncleanesse, and turned agayn vnto hir house. And the woma was with childe, and sent, and caused to tell Dauid and say: I am with chylde. Dauid sent vnto Joab (sayenge:) Sende me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias vnto Dauid. And whan Urias came to hym. Dauid axed him yf it stode well with Joab, and with the people, and with the battayll.

B And Dauid sayd vnto Urias: Go down in to thy house, and wash thy fete. And whan Urias wente out of the kynges palace, the kynges gyfte folowed him. And Urias layed hym downe to slepe before the kynges palace gate, where all his lordes seruauntes lay, & wente not downe in to his house. Whan worde came to Dauid: Urias is not gone downe to his house. Dauid sayde vnto hym: Camest thou not ouer the feld? Why wentest thou not downe in to thy house? Urias sayde vnto Dauid: The Arke, and Israell, and Juda abyde in the tentes: And Joab my lorde and my lordes seruauntes lye in the felde, and shall I go to my house to eate and drynke, and to lye with my wyfe? As truely as thou lyuest, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not do this thynge. Dauid sayde to Urias: Abyde here then to daye, tomorow wyl I let the go. So Urias abode at Jerusalē the same daye, and the nexte also. And Dauid called him to eat & drynke before hym, and made hym dronke. And at eue he wente to lay hym downe for to slepe vpon his couche with his lordes seruautes and wente not downe in to his house.

C On the morow wrote Dauid a letter vnto Joab, & sent it by Urias. After this maner wrote he in the letter: Set Urias in the forest parte of the battayl and turne you behynde hym, that he maye be slayne. Nowe whan Joab layed sege to the cytye, he sette Urias in the place, where he knew that the myghtiest men of armes were? And whan the men of the cytye fell out, and foughte agaynste Joab, ther fell certayne of the people of Dauids seruauntes. And Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, & caused to tel the kynge all the matter concernynge the battayll, & commaūded the messaūger, & sayde: Whan thou hast tolde the kynge all the matter concernige the battayll, and seist that he is wroth, and yf the kynge saye vnto the: Wherfor came ye so nye the cytye with the battayll? know ye not how they vse to shute fro the walle? * Who smote Abimeleth the sonne of Jerubball? dyd not a woma cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hym fro the wall, so that he dyed at Thebez? Why came ye so nye the wall? Then shalt thou say: Thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also. Judic. 9.b

D The messaūger wente his waye, & came and tolde Dauid altogether, werfore Joab had sent hym. And the messaunger sayd vnto Dauid: The men preuayled agaynste vs, and fell out vnto vs in to the felde: and we were vpon them harde at the dore of the porte. And the archers shot fro the wall vpon thy seruauntes, and slewe certayne of the kynges seruauntes: and thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also.

Dauid sayde vnto the messaunger: Thus shalt thou saye vnto Joab: Let not the vere the, for the sweard consumeth now one, now another. Go forth with the battayll agaynste the cytye, that thou mayest destroye it, and confort the men. And whan Urias wyfe herde that Urias was dead, she mourned for hir husbande. But whan she had made an ende of mournynge. Dauid sent and caused her be fetched vnto his palace, and she became his wyfe, & bare hym a sonne. Neuertheles this dede the Dauid dyd, displeased the LORD.

The.xii.Chapter.

A And the LORDE sente Nathan vnto Dauid. Whan he came to hym, he tolde hym: Ther were two men in one cytye, the one ryche, the other poore. The ryche man had very many shepe and oxen: but the poore mā had nothyng saue one lytle shepe which he had bought, & norysshed it, so that it grewe vp with hym and his chyldren together. It dyd eate of his breade, and dranke of his cuppe, and slepte in his lappe, and he kepte it as his doughter. But whan ther came a straūger vnto the ryche man, he spared to take of his owne shepe & oxen (to prepare ought for the straūger that was come vnto hym) & toke ỹ poore mās shepe, & prepared it for the man ỹ was come vnto him.

B Thē was Dauid wroth with greate displeasure agaynst that man, and sayde vnto Nathan: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, the man that hath done this, is the chylde of Exo.22.a death. * The shepe also shall he make good foure folde, because he hath done suche a thynge and not spared it.

Then sayd Nathā vnto Dauid: Thou art euen the man. Thus sayth the LORDE
1.Re.16.c the God of Israell: * I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel, and delyuered the out of the hande of Saull, and haue geuē the thy lordes house, & his wyues in to thy lappe, and the house of Israell and Juda haue I geuen the: and yf that be to lytle, I wyl yet do this and that for the also. Wherfore hast thou thē despysed the worde of the LORD, to do such euell in his syght? Urias the Hethite hast thou slayne wt the sweard: his wyfe hast thou takē to be thy wyfe, but him haste thou slayne with the swearde of the chyldren of Ammon.

C Now therfore shall not the swearde departe from thy house for euer, because thou hast despysed me, and taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus say
Deu.28.c eth the LORDE: Beholde, * I wyll rayse vp
1.Re.16.b euell of thyne owne house, & wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and wyl geue thē vnto thy neghboure, so that he shall lye wt thy wyues by Sonne light. For thou haste done it secretely, but I wyll do this in the sight of all Israell, and by Sonne lyght.

Eccl.47.c Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan * I ỹ Sal.50.a haue synned vnto the LORDE. Nathā sayde vnto Dauid: So hath the LORDE also takē away thy synne, thou shalt not dye. But for so much as thou thorow this dede haste caused the enemyes of the LORDE to blaspheme, the sonne that is borne vnto ỹ shall dye the death. And Nathan went home. As for the chylde which Urias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, the LORDE smote it, so that it was dead sycke.

D And Dauid besought God for the chyld and fasted, and wente in, and laye all night vpō the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue taken hym vp from the grounde: neuertheles he wolde not, ne ther dyd he eate with them. Upō the seuē daye the chylde dyed. And Dauids seruantes durste not tell hym that the chylde was dead, For they thought: Behold, when the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, he herkened not to oure voyce, How much more shall it greue hym, yf we saye: The chylde is dead? And Dauid sawe that his seruaūtes made a whysperynge togyder, and perceaued that the chylde was dead, & sayde vnto his seruauntes: Is the chylde dead? They sayde: yee. Then rose Dauid vp from the earthe, and washed hym self, and anoynted hym, and put on other garmentes, and wente in to the house of LORDE, and worshipped.

And whan he came agayne, he called for bread to set before hym, and dyd eate. Thē sayde his seruaūtes vnto hym: What maner of thynge is this ỹ thou doest? While the chylde was alyue thou fastedest and weptest: but now that it is dead, thou arysest vp and eatest? He sayde: I fasted and wepte for the chylde whā it was yet alyue, for I thought: Who knoweth, peraduenture the LORDE may be gracyous vnto me, that the chylde maye lyue? * But now that it is dead, wherfore shulde I faste? Can I fetche it agayne? I shall go vnto it, but it shall not come agayn vnto me. And whā Dauid had cōforted Bethseba his wyfe, he went in vnto her, & lay with her. * And she bare a sonne, whome he called Salomon. And the LORDE loued hym. And he put hym vnder the hāde of Nathan the prophete, which called his name Jedidia because of the LORDE.

So Joab fought agaynst Rabbath, the chyldren of Ammō, and wanne the royall cytye, and sente messaungers vnto Dauid, & caused to say vnto hym: * I haue fought agaynst Rabba, and haue wonne the royall cytye also. Gather thou therfore the residue of the people together, and laye syege vnto the cytye and wynne it, that I wynne it not, & haue the name therof. So Dauid gathered all the people together, and went, & fought agaynste Rabba, and wanne it, and toke their kynges crowne frō his head (which in weyght had a talēte of golde, & precious stones) and was set vpon Dauids head, and very muche spoyle caryed he out of the cytye. As for the people that was therin, he brought te them forth, and layed them vnder yron sawes, and hokes, and ypon,and burned them in tyle oues. Thus dyd he vnto all the cytyes of the chyldren of Ammon. Then returned Dauid and all the people vnto Jerusalem agayne.

The.xiii. Chapter.

And it fortuned after this, that Absalō the sōne of Dauid had a fayre syster, whose name was Thamar, and Ammō the sōne of Dauid loued her. And Ammon was in great combraunce, in so much that he was cuē sycke, because of Thamar his syster. For she was a virgin, & Ammon thought it shulde be harde for hym to do ony thynge vnto her. But Ammon hadde a frende, whose name was Jonadab ỹ sonne of Simea Dauids brother. And ỹ same Jonadab was a very wyse man which said vnto hym: Why arte thou so leane (thou kynges sonne) from daye to daye? Wayest thou not tell me? Then sayd Ammon vnto hym: I loue Thamar my brother Absalōs syster exceadyngly.

Jonadab sayd vnto hym: laye ỹ downe vpon thy bedde, and make the sycke. And whā thy father commeth to loke how thou dost, saye vnto hym: Oh let my syster Thamar come, that she maye fede me, and make a meace of meate before me, that I maye se it, & eat it of hyr hande. So Ammon layed hym downe, and made hym sycke. Now whā the kynge came in to loke how he dyd, Ammon sayd vnto the kynge: Oh let my syster Thamar come, and make me a sypppynge or two, and that I maye eate it of hir hande. Thē sent Dauid for Thamar in to ỹ house and sayd vnto her: Go thy waye to thy brother Ammons house, and make him a messe of meate. Thamar wente vnto hir brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bedde. And she toke floure, and mixte it, and dyght it before his eyes, and made hym a sypppyng And she toke the messe of meate and poured it out before hym: but he wolde not eat.

And Ammon sayd: Put forth euery man fro me. And euery man wente forth frō him Then sayd Ammon vnto Thamar: Bryng me that messe of meat in to the chāber, that I maye eate it of thy hande. Thē toke Thamar the sypppynge that she had made, and brought it vnto Ammon hir brother in to the chamber.

And whan she brought it vnto hym ỹ he might eate, he toke holde of her, and said vnto her: Come my syster lye with me. Nevertheles she sayd: Oh no my brother, force me not: for so do they not in Israell, do not thou such foly. Whether shal I go with my shame? and thou shalt be as one of the vnwyse in Israel. But speake vnto the kynge, he shall not withholde me from the.

Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her and ouercame her, * and forced her and laye with her. And Ammon hated her exceadingly, so that ỹ hatred was greater then ỹ loue was before. And Ammō sayd vnto her: Vp, and get the hence. D Gen.34.a. Leuit.18.a.

She sayde vnto hym: This euel that thou thrustest me out, is greater then the other, that thou hast done vnto me. Neuertheles he herkened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued hym, and sayd: Put away this woman fro me, and locke ỹ doze after her. And she had a party garment on: for such garmētes ware the kynges doughters whyle they were virgyns.

And whā his seruaūt had put her forth, & lockt the doze after her, Thamar strowed asshes vpon hir heade, and rente the partye garment which she had vpon her and layed hir hande vpon hir heade, and went on and cryed. And hir brother Absalon sayde vnto her: Hath thy brother Ammon ben with ỹe Now holde thy peace my syster, it is thy brother, and take not the matter so to hart. E

So Thamar remayned a wydowe in hir brothers Absalons house. And whā kyng Dauid herde of all this, he was very sorye. As for Absalon, he spake nother euell nor good to Ammon but Absalon hated Ammō because he had forced his syster Thamar.

After two yeares had Absalon shepeclyppers at Baal Hazor, which lyeth by Ephraim. And Absalō called al ỹ kynges chyldre and came to the kynge, and sayd: Beholde, thy seruaūt hath shepeclyppers, let it please the kynge with his seruauntes to go with his seruaunte. But the kynge sayd vnto Absalon: No my sonne, let vs not al go, lest we be to chargeable vnto the.

And he wolde nedes haue had hym to go, howbeit he wolde not, but blessed hym. Absalon sayde: Shall my brother Ammon go with vs then? The kyng sayd vnto him: Wherfore shall he go with the? Then was Absalon so importune vpon hym, that he let Ammon and all the kynges chyldren go with hym.

But Absalon commaunded his ponge men, and sayde: Take he de whan Ammon is merry with wyne (and I saye vnto you: Smyte Ammon, and slaye hym) that ye be not afrayed: for I haue commaunded you, F be stronge, and plage the men. So Absalōs yonge men dyd vnto Ammon, as Absalon had commaunded them. Then stode all the kynges chyldren vp, and euery one gat him vp vpō his mule, and fled. And whyle they were yet on theyr waye, the rumoure came to kynge Dauid, that Absalon had slayne all the kynges chyldren, so that not one of them was lefte.

2.Reg 3.f Then stode the kynge vp, and * rente his clothes, and layed hym downe vpō the earth, & all his seruauntes that stode about hym, rente theyr clothes. Then answered Jonadab the sonne of Simea Dauids bro ther, and said: Let not my lorde thynke that all the yonge men the kynges chyldren are dead, but that Ammō is dead only: for Absalon hath kept it in hymselfe sence ỹ daye that he forced his syster Thamar. Therfore let not my lorde the kynge take it so to hart, that all the kynges chyldre shulde be dead, but that Ammon is dead onely.

G As for Absalon, he fled. As the pōge mā that kept the watch, lyfte vp his eye, and lo ked: and beholde, a great people came in ỹ waye one after another by the hyll syde. Then sayd Jonadab vnto the kynge: Beholde, the kynges chyldren come. Euen as thy seruaunt sayde, so is it happened. And whan he had ended his talkynge, the kynges chyldren came, and lifte vp theyr voyce and wepte.

The kynge and all his seruaūtes wept also very sore. But Absalon fled, and wente vnto Thalmai the sōne of Ammihud kyng of Gesur. As for Dauid, he mourned for his sonne euery daye. Whan Absalon was fled & gone vnto Gesur, he was there thre yeare. And kyng Dauid ceassed from goynge out agaynst Absalon, for he had comforted him selfe ouer Ammon that he was dead.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

A JOab the sonne of Zeruja, perceaued that ỹ kynges hart was agaynst Absalon, and sent vn to Thecoa, and caused to fetche from thence a prudent woman and sayd vnto her. Make lamentacion and weare mournynge garmentes, and anoynt ỹ not with oyle: but fayne thy selfe as a wo mā which mourned longe ouer a dead, and thou shalt go in to the kynge, and speake so and so vnto hym. And Joab told her what she shulde saye.

And whā the woman of Thecoa wolde speake with the kynge, she fel vpon her face to the grounde and worshipped, and sayde Helpe me O kynge. The kynge sayd vn to her: What ayleth the? She sayde I am a wedowe, a womā that mourneth, and my husbande is dead. And thy handmay den had two sonnes which stroue togyther in the felde, and whyle ther was noman to parte them asunder, the one smote the other and slewe hym.

And beholde, all the whole kynred ryseth vp agaynst thy handmayden, and say *Delyuer hym which hath smytten his bro ther, that we maye kyll hym, for the soule of his brother whom he hath slayne, and that we maye destroy ỹ heyre also. And thus wo they mynded to put out my sparke, which yet is left that ther shulde no name nor re thynge els remayne ouer vnto my husbande vpon earth.

The kynge sayd vnto the womā, go thy waye home, I wyll geue a commaundement for the. And the woman of Thecoa sayd vn to the kynge: The trespasse be vpon me my lorde the kinge, and vpō my fathers house, but the kynge and his seat be vnguilty. The kynge sayde: Whe that speaketh agaynst the bryngе hym vnto me, so shall he touche the nomore. She sayd: Let the kynge thynke vpō the LORDE his God, that ther be not to many auengers of bloude to destroye, & that they bryngе not my sonne to nought. He sayd: * As truly as the LORDE lyueth, ther shall not one heer of thy sonne fall vpon the earth. And the womā sayd: Let thy handmayden speake somwhat to my lorde the kyng. He sayd: speake on. The womā sayd: Wherfore hast thou deuysed such a thyng agaynste the people of God? And why happeneth it that the kynge speaketh thus to make hymselfe gyltye, and causeth not his outlawe to be brought agayne? For we all dye the death, and as the water that is spylled in to the earth, which is not taken vp * And God wyll not take away the lyfe, but bethynke hymselfe, that euen the beyng outlawe be not cleane thrust out from hym.

Thus am I come also to speake this vnto my lorde the kynge in the presence of the people. For thy handmayden thought: I wyll speake to the kynge: peraduenture he will do that his handmayden sayeth, for it is the heare his handmayden, to delyuer me out of the hande of all them, that wolde destroye me with my sonne from the inheritance of God. And thy handmayde thought: The word of my lord ỹ kyng shalbe as a medicyne my lorde ꝑ kyng is as an ãgel of God, so that he can heare good and euell, therfore shall the LORDE thy God be with the.

The kynge answered and sayd vnto the woman: Kepe nothynge fro me that I axe the. The woman sayd: Let my lorde ꝑ kyng speake on. The kynge sayd: Is not ꝑ hãde of Joab with the in all this? The womã answered & sayd: As truly as thy soule lyueth (my lorde O kynge,) ther is els noman nother at the ryght haude nor at the lefte, but euen as my lorde the kynge hath sayde: for thy seruaunt Joab hath commaunded me, and he hymselfe hath taught thy handmayden all these wordes, ꝑ I shulde turne this matter of this fashion, this hath Joab thy seruaunt done. But my lorde is wyse as the wysedome of an angell of God, so ꝑ he knoweth all thynges vpon earth.

Then sayd the kynge vnto Joab: Beholde, I haue done this: go thy waye therfore and brynge the childe Absalon agayn. Then fell Joab vpon his face vnto the grounde, and worshipped, and thanked the kynge, and sayde: This daye doth thy seruaunt perceaue, that I haue founde grace in thy syght my lorde the kynge, in that the kynge doth as his seruaunt hath sayd. So Joab gat hym vp, and went vnto Gesur, & brought Absalon to Jerusalẽ. But ꝑ kynge sayde: Let hym go agayne in to his house, & not se my face. Thus Absalon came agayne to his house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel ther was not so kayre, and so maruaylous goodly a mã, as Absalon. From the sole of his foote vnto ꝑ toppe of his heade ther was not one blemyshe in him. And whã his head was rouded (ꝑ was commonly euery yeare, for it was to heuy for hym, so that it must nedes haue be rouded) the heere of his heade weyed two hundreth sycles after the kynges weyght. And vnto Absalon ther were borne thre sonne & one daughter, whose name was Thamar, and she was a woman of kayre beutye. So Absalon abode two yeare at Jerusalem, & sawe not the kynges face.

And Absalon sent for Joab, ꝑ he myght sende hym to the kynge. And he wolde not come to hym. But he sent the seconde tyme, yet wolde he not come. Then sayde he vnto his seruauntes: ye knowe Joabs pece of lande that lyeth by myne, and he hath barly therin: go youre waye therfore and set fyre vpon it. So Absalons seruauntes set fyre vpon Joabs pece of lande.

Then Joab gat hym vp, and came to Absalõ in to the house, and sayd vnto hym: Wherfore haue thy seruaũtes set fyre vpõ my pece of lande? Absaló sayd vnto Joab: Beholde I sent for the, and caused to saye vnto the: Come hyther that I maye sende ꝑ to the kynge, and to saye: Wherfore cam I from Gesur? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me therfore se ꝑ kynges face But yf ther be ony trespasse in me the put me to death. And Joab went in to the kynge, and tolde hym. And he called Absalon to come in to the kynge, and he worshipped vpon his face to the groũde before the kynge. And the kynge kyssed Absalon.

The.xv. Chapter.

AND after this it fortuned that Absaló *caused to prepare him seike charrettes, and horses, & fyfty mẽ, which were his foote men. And Absalon gat him vp alwaye early in the morninge, and stode in the waye by the porte, and whã ony mã had a matter which shulde come to ꝑ kynge for iudgement. Absalon called hym vnto hym and sayd: Of what cyte art thou? ꝑ he sayd then: Thy seruaũt is of one of the trybes of Israel, then sayd Absalon vnto hym: Beholde, thy matter is ryght and playne: but ther is noman appoynted the of the kynge to heare the. *2.Reg.1.a.

And Absalon sayd: O who setteth me to be iudge in the lande, that euery mã which hath a pice or matter to do in ꝑ lawe, myght come to me, ꝑ I myght helpe hym to ryght. And whan ony man came to hym to do worshippe, & to do hym obeysaũce, he put forth his hande, & helde hym & kyssed hym. After this maner dyd Absalon vnto all Israell whan they came to the lawe vnto the kynge and so dyd he steale awaye the hartes of the men of Israel.

After forty yeates sayd Absalon vnto the kynge: I wyll go and performe my vowe at Hebron, which I made vnto ꝑ LORDE. For thy seruaunt made a vowe, *whã I dwelt at Gesur in Syria, & sayd: Whan the LORDE bryngeth me agayne to Jerusalem, I shal do a Gods seruice vnto ꝑ LORDE. The kynge sayd vnto him: Go thy way in peace. And he gat hym vp, and went vnto Hebron. *2.Re.13.g.

But Absalon had sent out spyes in all the trybes of Israel, sayinge: Whan ye hear the noyse of the trõpe, say: Absalon is made kynge at Hebron. Ther went with Absalõ two hundreth men from Jerusalem, called, but they went on symply, and knewe not of the matter. Ibsalō sent also for Achitophel (the Gelonite) Dauids counceler, out of his cyte Gilo. Now whan he dyd the sacrifice, ꝑ conspiracyon was myghtye and the people rāne together, & multiplyed with Absalon.

Then came one which tolde Dauid, & sayd: The hart of euery man in Israel folowyth Absalō. Dauid sayd vnto all his seruauntes that were with him at Jerusalem: Up, let vs flye, for here shalbe no escapyng for vs before Absalon.

Make haist that we may be goynge lest he ouertake vs and catche vs, & bryng some myschefe vpon vs, and smyte the cyte wt the edge of the swearde. Then sayd the kynges seruauntes vnto hym: Loke what my lorde the kynge chooseth, behold, here are thy seruauntes. And the kynge went forth
2.Re.16.b and.20.a on foote with all his housholde. * But ten concubynes lefte he to kepe the house.

D And whan the kynge and al the people came forth on foote, they went farre from home, and all his seruauntes went by him and all the Chrethians, and Plethiās, and all the Gethites (euen sire hundreth men) which were come on foote from Gath, went before the kynge.

2.Re.18.a. And the kynge sayde vnto * Ithai the Gethite: Why goest thou also with vs? Turne backe, and byde with the kynge, for thou art a straunger: get the hence agayne vnto thy place. Thou camest yesterday, and to daye thou leoperdest to go with vs. As for me, I wyl go whether I can: turne thou backe agayne, and mercy and kaythfulnesse happen vnto thy brethren with the. Ithai
Math.1.c answered, and sayd: * As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as my lorde ꝑ kyng lyueth, loke in what place my lorde ꝑ kynge shalbe, (whether it chaunce to lyke or death) there shall thy seruaunt be also.

E Dauid sayd vnto Ithai: Then come, & go with vs. So went Ithai the Gethite & all his men, and the whole multytude of the chyldren that were with hym. And al ꝑ lōde wept with a loude voyce, and all the people wt them. And the kynge went ouer ꝑ broke Cedron, and al the people went ouer by the waye that goeth to the wyldernesse.

And behold, Sadoc was there also, and all the Leuites that were with them & they bare the Arcke of the couenaunt of God, & set it there. And Abiathar went vp, tyll all the people came out of the cyte. But ꝑ kyng sayd vnto Sadoc: Bryng the Arke of God in to the cyte agayne. yf I shal fynde grace before the LORDE, he shal fetch me agayne, and shal let me se it, and the house of it. But if he saye thus: I haue no pleasure in the holde, here am I, let hym do with me as it pleaseth hym.

And the kynge sayde vnto Sadoc the prest: O thou * Seer, turne agayne in to the cyte with peace, and Ahimaas thy sonne & the and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar Behold, I wyll tarye in the playnes of the wildernesse, tyll the message come from you & tell me. So Sadoc & Abiathar brought the Arke of God agayne vnto Jerusalem, and remayned there.

But Dauid went vp to mounte Oliuete and wepte, and his head was couered And all the people that was with hym had euery man his head couered and went vp and wepte. And whan it was tolde Dauid that Achitophel was in the confederacy of Absalon, he sayd: LORDE turne thou Achitophels councel to foolyshnes.

And whā Dauid came vp to the toppe of the mount, where the ple was to worshyp God. Behold, Chusai the Arachite met him with his cote rent and earth vpō his head. And Dauid sayde vnto hym: yf thou go with me, thou shalte be chargeable vnto me. But yf thou goest agayne in to the cyte, & sayest vnto Absalon: I am thy seruaunt O kynge euen as I was thy fathers seruaunt, so will I now be thy seruaunt, * then shalte thou bryng Achitophels councell to nought. So is Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes by the, and all that thou hearest out of the kynges house, tel it vnto Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes. Behold, they two sonnes are with them: Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc, and Jonathas the sōne of Abiathar, by whō mayest thou sende word what thou hearest. So Chusai Dauids frende came in to the cyte. And Absalon came to Jerusalem.

The.xvi. Chapter.

AND whan Dauid was gone a lytle by from the toppe of the mounte: behold, Siba the seruāt of Mephiboseth met him with a couple of asses laden wheron were two hundreth loaues of bread and hundreth fraples of reysyns, and an hundreth fraples of hygges, & a bottell of wyne. Then sayd the kynge vnto Siba: What wylt thou do here with? Siba sayde: The asses shalbe for ꝑ kynges housholde to ryde vpon, and the loaues and hygges for the yonge men to eate, and the wyne shalbe for to drynke whan they are weery in the wyldernesse. The kynge sayd: Where is thy lordes sonne? Siba sayd vnto the kynge: Beholde, he abydeth at Jerusalem, for he sayd: To daye shal the house of Jsrael restore my fathers kyngdom vnto me. The kinge sayd vnto Siba: Beholde, * all that Mephiboseth hath, shalbe thyne. Siba sayd with reuerence. Let me fynde grace in thy syght my lorde O kynge.

But whan kynge Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, ther wente out a man of the kynred of the house of Saul, * whose name was Semei ỹ sõne of Gera, which wẽt forth & * cursed, & cast stones at Dauid, and at al kynge Dauids seruaũtes & al ỹ people, & al the myghtye men were at his ryght hande and at his lefte. Thus sayd Semei whã he cursed: Get the forth, get ỹ forth thou bloudy hounde, thou man of Belial. The LORD hath rewarded the for all the bloude of the house of Saul that thou bearmmest kynge in his steade. Now hath the LORDE geuen the kyngdome in to the hande of Absalon thy sonne. And beholde, now stykest thou in thyne owne myschefe: for thou art a bloudy hounde.

But Abisai the sonne of Zeruia sayde vnto ỹ kynge: Shal this dead dogge curse my lorde the kynge? I wyll go and take the heade awaye from hym. The kynge sayde: * ye chyldren of Zeruia, what haue I to do with you? Let hym curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded hym: Curse Dauid. Who can saye now: Why dost thou so?

And Dauid sayd vnto Abisai and to all his seruauntes: Beholde, my sonne whiche came of my body, seketh after my lyfe, how much more the sonne of Jemini? Let hym curse on, for the LORDE hath cõmaunded hym: * peraduenture the LORDE shall consyder myne aduersyte, and recompense me good for his cursynge this daye. So Dauid went on his waye with his men. But Semei wente on by the mount beside him, and cursed, and cast stones at hym, & threwe clottes of earth.

And the kynge came in and all the people that was with him weery, and refreshed hymselfe there. But Absalon and al the people of the men of Jsrael came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with hym. Whan Chusai the Arachite Dauids frende came in to Absalon, he sayd vnto Absalon: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge.

Absalon sayd vnto Chusai: Is this thy mercy vnto thy frende? Why art thou not gone with thy frende? Chusai sayd vnto Absalon: Not so, but loke whom the LORDE choseth, and this people, and all the men in Jsrael, his wyll I be, and abyde with hym. Secondly, whom shulde I serue? Shulde I not do seruyce before his sonne? Lyke as I haue serued in the presence of thy father, so wyll I do seruice before the also.

And Absalon sayde vnto Achitophel: Geue vs your councell what we shall do: Achitophel sayd vnto Absalon: * Go lye with thy fathers concubynes, whom he hath left to kepe the house, so shall all Jsrael heare ỹ thou hast made thy father to stynke, and ỹ hande of al them that are with the, shalbe ỹ bolder. Then made they a tente vnto Absalon & vpon the house toppe. And Absalon laye with his fathers concubines in ỹ syght of all Jsrael. 2 Re.12.c and.15.c The houses were flat in the temples at that tyme.

It that tyme whan Achitophel gaue a coũcell, that was euen as yf a man ared coũcell at God: So were all the councels of Achitophel both vnto Dauid & with Absalon.

The.xvii.Chapter.

AND Achitophel sayd vnto Absalon: I wyll chose out twelfe thousande mẽ, and wyl get me vp, & persue Dauid by nyght, and fall vpon hym whan he is feble and weery: Whã I vere hym then, so that all the people which is by hym, flyeth, I wyll smyte the kynge onely, and brynge all the people vnto the agayne. So whan euery man is brought vnto the as thou desyrest, then shall all the people be in peace. Absalon thought that good, and so dyd al ỹ Elders in Jsrael. But Absalõ sayd: I praye you cal Chusai the Arachite also, and let vs heare what he sayeth therto. And whã Chusai came in to Absalon, Absalon sayde vnto hym: Thus hath Achitophel spoken: Say thou now, shall we do it or not. A

Then sayd Chusai vnto Absalon: It is no good counsell that Achitophel hath geuen at this tyme. And Chusai sayde moreouer: Thou knowest thy father well and his men, that they are stroge and of a wrothfull stomack, euen * as a beer ỹ is robbed of hir ponge ones in the felde. Thy father also is a man of warre, and wyll not be negligent with the people. Beholde, he hath now peraduenture hyd hym selfe in some caue, or in some place. yf it came to passe thẽ that it chaunced euell at the fyrste, and ther shulde come a rumoure and saye: Ther is a slaughter done in the people that folowed Absalõ: Pro.17.b B

then shuld euery man be discoraged, which els is valeaunt, and hath a harte lyke a lyō: for al Israel knoweth ỹ thy father is strōg, and that all they whiche be with hym, are myghtye men.

But this is my councell, that thou gather together all Israel frō Dan vnto Berseba in nombre as the sande of the See, and go thou thyne owne persone among them: then wyll we fall vpon hym in what place we fynde hym, and wyl ouerwhelme him euen as the dew falleth vpō ỹ earth, so that we shall not leaue one of hym, and of al his men. But yf he resorte in to a cyte, then shal all Israel cast roapes about the same cyte, and drawe it in to the ryuer, so that ther shal not one stone of it be founde.

Then sayd Absalon and euery mā in Israel. The councell of Chusai the Arachite is better then Achitophels councell.

Esa 8.c and.19.c *But the LORDE brought it so to passe that the good coūcel of Achitophel was hindred, that the LORDE myght bringe euel vpon Absalon.

2.Re.15.b *And Chusai sayde vnto Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes: Thus and thus hath Achitophel counceled Absalon and the Elders in Israel: but so and so haue I counceled. Sende now therfore in al the haist, and tell Dauid, and saye: Abyde not all nyght in the playne felde of ỹ wyldernesse, but get the ouer, that ỹ kynge be not swalowed vp, and all the people that is with hym. As for Jonathas and Ahimaaz, they stode by the well of Rogell, and a damsel wente thyther and tolde them. They wente on their waye and tolde kynge Dauid, for they durst not be sene to come in to the cyte.

But a lad sawe them, and tolde Absalō. Neuertheless they went on their way, and came to a mans house at Bahurim, whiche had a well in his court, & they wente downe in to it. And the woman toke and spred a couerynge ouer the welles mouth, & strowed fyrmēty corne theron, that it was not perceaued. Now whan Absalons seruauntes cam to the womā in to ỹ house, they said: Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathas? The woman sayd vnto them: They are gone ouer ỹ lytle water.

D And whan they sought and fonde them not, they went agayne to Jerusalem. And whan they were gone, they clymmed vp out of the well, and wente their waye, and tolde Dauid the kynge, and sayd vnto Dauid: Get you vp, and go soone ouer the water, for thus and thus hath Achitophell geuen counceil agaynst you.

Then Dauid gat hym vp, and all the people that was with him, and passed ouer Jordane tyll it was cleare morynge. There was not one, but he wente ouer Jordane.

Whan Achitophel sawe that his counceil wēt not forth, he sadled his asse, gat him vp, and wēt home in to his cyte and set his house in order, and hanged hymself, dyed and was buryed in his fathers grave.

And Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalon went ouer Jordane, & all the men of Israel with hym. And Absalon had set Amasa ouer the hoost in Joabs stede. This Amasa was the sonne of a man whose name was Jethra a Jesraelite, which lay with Abigail the doughter of Nahas the sister of Zeruja Joabs mother. But Israel & Absalon pitched in Gilead.

Whā Dauid was come to Mahanaim, *Nahas of Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and * Machir the sonne of Ammiel of Lodebar, and * Barsillai a Gileadite of Roglim brought bedstuffe, tapestry, basens, earthen vessell, wheate, barlye, meale, parched corne, beens, otmeall, cyse, hony, butter, shepe, and fatte oxen vnto Dauid and to the people that was with hym to eate. For they thought: The people shal be hongrye, weery, and thyrstye in the wyldernesse.

The.xviii.Chapter.

AND Dauid mustred the people that was with hym, and set captaynes ouer them, ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes. And he sent out of the people one thyrde parte vnder Joab, and one thyrde parte vnder Abisai the sōne of Zeruja Joabs brother, and one thyrde parte vnder * Ittai the Gethite. And the kynge sayd vnto the people: I wyll go forth with you also. Nathelesse the people sayde: * Thou shalt not go forth with vs, for though we flye, or halfe of vs, they shall not regarde vs. For thou art as ten thousande of vs. Therfore is this better that thou mayst helpe vs out of the cyte. The kynge sayde vnto them: Loke what ye are contente withal, that wyll I do. And the kynge stode in the gate, and all the people went forth by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ittai, and sayde: Intreate me the yonge man Absalon gently. And all the people herde, whan the kynge commaunded all the captaynes charge

Bb Ibsalon. And whan the people were come forth in to the felde agaynst Israel, the battayll begāne in the wood of Ephraim. And the people of Israell were smytten there before Dauids seruauntes so that ther was a great slaughter the same daye, of twentye thousand mē. And ꝑ battayl was scatered abrode there in all the lande. And the wood consumed much more people the same day, then the swearde consumed.

And Ibsalon met Dauids seruauntes, & rode vpō a mule: And whā ꝑ mule came vnder a great thicke oke tre, his heade toke hold on ꝑ oke, & so hāged he betwene heauē & earth, but the mule ranne awaye frō vnder hym. Whan a certayne man sawe that, he tolde Joab, and sayde: Beholde I sawe Ibsalō hange vpon an oke tre. And Joab sayd vnto to the man that tolde it hym: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smotest thou him not there to the groūde so wold I haue geuen the of myne owne behalfe ten syluerlynges and a gyrdell.

C The man sayd vnto Joab: ꝑ thou haddest weyed me a thousande syluerlynges in my handes, yet wolde I not haue layed my handes on the kynges sonne. For the kyng commaunded the, and Ibsai, and Ithai before oure eares, and sayde: Kepe me the ponge man Ibsalon. Or ꝑ I had dissembled vpon the ioperdy of myne owne soule (for so much as nothynge shuld be hyd frō the kyng) thou thy selfe shuldest haue stōde agaynst me. Joab sayde: Not so I wyll vpon hym before thy face.

Thē toke Joab thre speares in his hāde and thrust Ibsalon thorow the hart, whyle he was yet alyue vpon ꝑ oke. And ten pōge men Joabs weapenbearers came aboute hym, and smote hym to death. * Then blew Joab the trompe, and broughte the people agayne, that they shulde folow nomore vpon Israell. For Joab wolde fauoure the people. And they toke Ibsalō, and cast him in the wood in to a greate pytte, and layed a greate heape of stones vpon him. And all Israell fled, euery one vnto his tente.

Ibsalon had set hym vp a pyler, whyle he was yet alyue, whiche stode in ꝑ kynges valleye, for he sayde: I haue no sonne, therfore shal this be a remembraūce of my name. And he called ꝑ pyler after his owne name And vnto this daye is it yet called Ibsalons place.

D Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayd: Let me runne now, and bryng the kynge word, that the LORDE hath gotten hym ryghte from the hande of of his enemyes. But Joab sayde vnto hym: Thou shalt brynge no good tydynges to daye, another daye shalt thou bryuge hym worde, and not to daye, for the kynges sōne is dead, But vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Chusi dyd his obeysaunce vnto Joab, and ranne. Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayd agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wylt thou runne my sonne? Come hither, thou shalt bryngne no good tydynges. He answered: What and I ranne yet. He sayde vnto him: Runne on thy waye then. So Ahimaas ranne the straight way and came before Chusi.

E Is for Dauid, he sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman wente vp to the toppe of the porte vpon the wall and lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe a man runnynge alone, and cryed, and tolde the kynge. The kynge sayd: ꝑ he be alone thē is ther good tydynges in his mouth. And as the same wente and came forth, the watchman sawe another man runnynge, and cryed in the porte and sayde: Beholde, ther runneth a man alone. The kynge sayde: The same is a good messaunger also. The watchman sayde: I se the runnynge of the fyrste as it were the runnynge of Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc. And ꝑ kynge sayd. He is a good man, and bryngeth good tidynges. Ahimaas cryed, and sayde vnto the kynge: Peace, and worshypped before the kyng vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Prayesed be the LORDE thy God, whiche hath geuen ouer the men that lyfte vp theyr handes agaynst my lorde the kynge.

F The kynge sayde: Goeth it well with the ponge man Ibsalon? Ahimaas sayd: I sawe a greate vproure, whan Joab the kynges seruaunt sent me thy seruaūt, & I wote not what it was. The kyng sayd: Go about and stode there. And he went about & stode there. Beholde then came Chusi and sayde:

I bynge good tydynges my lord ỹ kynge: The LORD hath executed right for the this daye from the hande of all thē that rose vp agaynst the. But ỹ kynge sayde vnto Chusi: Goeth it well with the ponge man Absalon? Chusai sayde: euen so go it with all the enemyes of my lord the kynge and with all them that ryse vp agaynste the to do euell, as it goeth with the ponge man. Thē was the kynge sorowful, and wente vp in to the parler vpon the gate, and wepte, and as he wente he sayde thus: O my sonne Absalon my sonne, my sonne Absalon, wolde God ỹ I shulde dye for the, O Absalon my sonne, my sonne.

The.xix.Chapter.

AND it was tolde Joab: Beholde the kynge wepeth and mourneth for Absalon. And so out of the victory of that daye ther came a mournynge amōge all the people. For the people had herde the same day, that the kyng toke on heauely be cause of his sonne. And the people stale awaye the same daye, so that they came not in to the cytye, as a people that is putte to shame, pycketh themselues awaye, whan they are fled in a battayl. As for the kynge, he had couered his face, and cryed loude, & sayde: Oh my sonne Absalon, Absalon my sonne, my sonne.

But Joab came vp to the kynge in to ỹ house, and sayde: This daye hast thou shamed all thy seruauntes (which haue delyuered thy soule this day, and the soules of thy sōnes, of thy doughters, of thy wyues, and of thy concubynes) in that thou louest thē that hate the and hatest those that loue the. For to daye thou shewest thy selfe that thou carest not for ỹ captaynes and seruauntes. For I perceaue this daye, that yf Absalon onely were alyue, and we all dead this day thou woldest thynke it were well.

B Get the vp now therfore, and go forth, and speake louyngly vnto thy seruauntes. For I sweare vnto ỹ by the LORDE, yf thou go not forth, ther shall not be lefte the one man this night: this shalbe worse vnto the, then all the euell that happened ỹ sence thy youth vp hitherto. Thē the kynge gat him vp, and sat in the gate. And it was sayd vnto all the people: beholde, the kynge sytteth in the gate. Then came all the people before the kynge. But Israell was fled euery one vnto his tente.

And all the people stroue in all the trybes of Israell, and sayde: The kynge hath delyuered vs from the hande of oure enemyes, and saued vs frō ỹ hāde of the Philistines, and was fayne to flye out of the lāde for Absalon. So Absalon whome we haue anoynted ouer vs, is dead in ỹ battayl: Why make ye so styl now ỹ ye fetch not ỹ kyng again?

The kynge sent vnto Sadoc and Abiathar that the prestes, and caused to say vnto them: Speake to the Elders of Juda, and saye: Why wyll ye be the last to fetch the kynge agayne vnto his house? (for the sayenge of all Israel was come before the kynge in to his house) ye are my brethren, my bone and my flesh. Wherfore wyll ye thē be the last to bynge the kynge agayne? And saye vnto Amasa: Art not thou my bone & my flesh? God do this and that vntome, yf thou shalt not be ỹ chefe captayne before me in Joabs strade, as longe as thou lyuest.

And he bowed the hart of all the men of Juda as one man. And they sente vnto the kynge: Come agayne, thou and all thy seruauntes. So the kynge came agayne. And whan he came vnto Jordane, the men of Juda were come vnto Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kynge, that they myght bynge the kynge ouer Jordane. * And Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, which dwelt at Bahurim, made hayst, and went downe with the men of Juda to mete kyng Dauid, and ther were vō hym a thousande men of Bēnjamin. * Siba also the seruaunt of ỹ house of Saull with his fyftene sonnes and twentye seruauntes gat them thorow Jordane before the kynge, and passed ouer the ferye, ỹ they might bynge ouer the kynges housholde, and to do hym pleasure.

But Semei the sonne of Gera fell down before the kynge, whan he passed ouer Jordane, and sayde vnto the kyng: O my lorde laye not the trespasse vnto my charge, and thynke not vpon it that thy seruaunt did the, * in the daye whan my lorde the kynge went out of Jerusalem: and let not ỹ kynge take it to hart, for thy seruaūt knoweth that he hath synned. And beholde, this daye am I come the fyrst amōge all the house of Joseph, for to go downe to mete my lorde the kynge.

Neuertheles Abisai the sonne of Zeruia answered and sayde: And shuld not Semei dye therfore, seynge he hath cursed the anoynted of the LORDE? But Dauid sayde: * What haue I to do with you ye children of Zeruia, that ye wyll become Satan vnto me this daye? Shulde any man dye this daye in Israell? Thynkest thou that I know not, that I am become kyng ouer Israel this daye? And the kynge sayd vnto Semei: Thou shalt not dye. And the kynge sware vnto hym.

C * Mephibosheth ỹ sonne of Saull came 16.a downe also to mete the kynge. And he had not made cleane his fete, nor trymmed his beerde, nother had he washed his clothes from the daye ỹ the kinge was gone away, vntyll ỹ day that he came agayne in peace. Now whã he came to Jerusalẽ for to mete the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto hym: Mephibosheth, wherfore wentest thou not with me? And he sayde: My lorde O kynge, my seruãt hath deale vnrighteously with me: for thy seruaunt thought: I wyll saddel an asse and ride theron, and go vnto the kyng: for thy seruaunt is lame, and he hath accused thy seruaunt before my lord thy kynge. 21.b 24.a 25.b * But my lorde the kynge is an angell of God, and thou mayest do what pleaseth ỹ. For all my fathers house was nothynge, but people of death before my lord ỹ kyng. 2.b * And yet hast thou set thy seruaunt amõg thẽ that eate at thy table. What other righteousnes haue I, that I shulde crye ony more vnto the kynge? The kynge sayde vnto hym: What speakest thou yet more of thy matter? I haue sayde: Thou and Siba parte the lande betwene you. Mephibosheth sayde vnto the kynge: Let hym take it al, in as much as my lorde ỹ kynge is come home in peace.

F And Barsillay ỹ Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and brought the kynge ouer Jordane, that he might cõueye hym in Jordane. And Barsillay was very olde, so 17.a good as foure score yeare olde, * the same 23 had prouyded the kynge of foode whyle he was at Mahanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kynge sayde vnto Barsillay: Thou shalt go ouer wt me, I wyll take care for the with myne owne selfe at Jerusalem. But Barsillay sayd vnto the kyng: What haue I yet to lyue, that I shulde go vp to Jerusalẽ with the kynge? This daye am I foure score yeare olde. How shulde I knowe what is good or euell, or tayst what I eate or drynke, or heare what the musicians do synge? Why shulde thy seruaunt be chargable hence forth vnto my lorde the kynge? thy seruaunt shall go a lytle with ỹ kynge ouer Jordane. Why wyll the kynge recõpence me after this maner? Let thy seruaunt turne backe agayne, that I may dye in my cyte besyde my father & my mothers graue. Beholde, there is thy seruaunt Chimeam, let hym go ouer with my lorde the kynge, and do vnto hym what pleaseth the.

The kynge sayde: Chimeam shall go ouer with me, and I wyll do for hym what lyketh the: and what soeuer thou desyrest of me, that wyll I do for the also. And whan all ỹ people was gone ouer Jordane & the kynge lykewyse; the kynge kyssed Barsillay and blessed hym, and he turned vnto his place. And the kynge passed ouer vnto Gilgall, and Chimeam wente with hym. And all the people of Juda broughte the kynge ouer: howbeit ther was but halfe of the people of Israell there.

And behold, thẽ came all ỹ mẽ of Israell vnto ỹ kynge, & sayd vnto him: Why haue our brethrẽ the men of Juda stolen ỹ away, and haue conueyed the kyng and his housholde ouer Jordane, and all Dauids men with hym? Thẽ answered they of Juda vnto them of Israel: The kynge is of our nye kynred, why are ye ãgrye therfor? Thynke ye that we haue receaued ony foode or gyftes of the kynge? Then answered they of Israell vnto them of Juda, and sayde: We haue ten tymes more with the kinge & with Dauid then thou, why hast thou regarded me then so lightly, that oures were not the fyrst to fetch oure kynge agayne? But they of Juda spake harder then they of Israell.

The.xx.Chapter.

THer was a famous man of Belial there, whose nam was Seba the sonne of Bichri, a mã of Jemini, which blew the tröpe, and sayde: * We haue no porcyon in Dauid, nor enheritaunce in ỹ sonne of Isai: let euery one get hym to his tente O Israell. Then fell euery man in Israell frõ Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda cleued vnto they? kynge frõ Jordane vnto Jerusalem. Whã Dauid came home to Jerusalem, he toke the ten cõcubynes (* whõ he had lefte to kepe the house) and put thẽ in a holde to be kept, and made prouispon for thẽ: but he laye not with thẽ, and so were they shut vp vnto they? death, and lyued wedowes. A 3.Re.12.a 2.Re.15.a

And the kynge sayde vnto Amasa: Call me all the men of Juda together agaynst the thyrde daye, and be thou here present also. And Amasa wente to cal Juda together. And was slacke to come at the tyme which he had appointed him. And Dauid sayd vnto Abisai: Now shal Seba ỹ sõne of Bichri

B do vs more harme thē Absalon: Take thou thy lordes seruaūtes, and folow vpon him, that he fynde not some stroge cities for him and so escape out of oure syght. Then wēte Joabs men forth after hym, and the Chrethians and Plethians, and all the myghtie men: and they wente out of Jerusalē to folowe vpon Zeba the sonne of Bichri.

But whan they were by the great stone at Gibea, Amasa came before them. As for Joab, he was gyrded aboue his garmente which he had on, & vpon it he had a sweard gyrded, whiche hanged by his thye in the sheeth, and wente easely out an in, and fell from hym. And Joab sayde vnto Amasa: Peace be with the my brother. And Joab toke Amasa by the beerde with his ryghte hāde, to kisse him. And Amasa toke no hede Judic. 3. c
2. Reg. 3. e vnto the sweard in Joabs hande, * and he thrust hym therwith in to the bely, that his bowels ranne out vpon the earth, and he thrust at hym nomore. And so he dyed.

Joab and his brother Abisai folowed vpon Zeba the sonne of Bichri. And one of Joabs seruauntes stode by him, and sayd: What is he this that wold be agaynst Joab to please Dauid, and to be with Dauid in Joabs steade? As for Amasa, he laye rolled in the bloud in the myddes of the strete.
C But whā one sawe that all the people stode there styll, he remoued Amasa frō the strete to the felde, and cast a cloth vpon hym: for so muche as he sawe, that whosoeuer came by hym, stode styll. Now whan he was put out of the waye, euery man wente after Joab, to folowe vpon Zeba the sonne of Bechri.

And wente thorow all the trybes of Israell vnto Abel Beth Maacha, and all the best chosen men gathered themselues together, and folowed after hym, and came and beseged hym at Abell Beth Maacha, and made a banke aboute the cytye harde vnto the wall. And all the people that was with Joab, layed to theyr ordinaunce, and wold haue cast downe the wall.

Then cryed ther a wyse woman out of ȳ cytye: Heare, heare, saye vnto Joab that he come hether, I wyll speake with hym. And whan he came to her, the woman sayd: Art thou Joab? He sayde: yee. She sayde vnto hym: Heare the wordes of thy handmaydē. He sayde: I heare. She sayde: The comon sayenge was somtyme: Whoso wyl aske, let hym aske at Abell, and so came it to a good
D ende. This is the noble and faythfull cytie in Israell, and wylt thou destroye the cytie and the mother in Israel? Why wylt thou swalowe vp the enheritaunce of the LORDE?

Joab answered & sayde: That be farre, that be farre fro me, that I shulde swalowe vp and destroye. The matter is not so, but a certayne man of mount Ephraim named Zeba the sonne of Bichri, hath lyfte vp his selfe against kyng Dauid, delyuer him only, and I wyl departe frō the cytye. The woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heade shalbe cast vnto the ouer the wall. And the woman came in to all the people with her wysdome. And they smote of the heade of Zeba the sonne of Bichri, and cast it vnto Joab. * Then blewe he the trompe, & they departed from the cytie, euery one vnto his tente. But Joab came agayne to Jerusalē vnto the kynge.

* Joab was captayne ouer all the hoste of Israell: Benaia ȳ sonne of Joiada was ouer the Chrethians and Plethians: Adoram was rentegatherer: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was chaūceler: Seia was ȳ scryue: Sadoc and Abiathar were the prestes: Ira also the Jatrite was Dauids preste.

The.xxi. Chapter.

THer was a derthe also in the dayes vnds tym thre yeares together. And Dauid sought the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde: Because of Saul and because of that bloudy housholde, that he slewe the Gibeonites. Then the kynge called for to call the Gibeonites, and spake vnto them. (As for the Gibeonites, they were not of the chyldren of Israell, but a remnaūt of the Ammorites: howbeit * the chyldren of Israell had sworne vnto thē, and Saul sought for to smyte thē in his gelousye, for the chyldren of Israell and Juda). Then sayd Dauid to the Gibeonites: What shall I do vnto you, and where wt shall I make the attonement, that ye maye blesse the enheritaunce of the LORDE? The Gibeonites sayde vnto hym: It is not for golde and syluer that we haue to do with Saul and his house, nother haue we oughte to do to slaye onye man in Israell.

He sayd: What saye ye then, that I shall do vnto you? They sayde vnto the kynge: The mā that hath destroyed vs & ȳ ppose vs to naughte, shulde we destroye, that no thynge be lefte hym in all the costes of Israell. Let ther be geue vs seuen men of his sonnes that we maye hange them vp vnto the LORDE at Gibea of Saul the chosen of the LORD. The kynge sayd: I wyll geue them. Howbeit the kynge spared Mephibo seth ỹ sõne of Jonathas the sõne of Saull, because of the oth of the LORD that was be

b Jonathas the sonne of Saull. But the two sonnes of Rispa the doughter of Aia, whõ she had borne vnto Saull, Armony & Mephiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Micholl the doughter of Saull, whome she bare vn

C So these seuen fell at one tyme, & dyed in the tyme of the fyrst haruest whã the barly haruest begynneth. Then toke Rispa the doughter of Aia a sackcloth, and spred it vpon the rocke in the begynnynge of ỹ haruest, tyll the water from the heauẽ dropped vpon them, and suffered not the foules of ỹ heauen to rest on them in the daye tyme, nother the wylde beastes of the felde on the night seasõ. And it was tolde Dauid what Rispa the doughter of Aia Sauls concubine had done:

And Dauid went and toke the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sõne frõ the cytesyns of Jabes in Gilead (which d they * had stolen from the strete at Bethsã, where the Philistynes had hanged them, what tyme as the Philistynes had smytẽ Saull vpon mount Gilboa) & brought thẽ vp from thence, and gathered thẽ together with the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saull and his sonne Jonathas buryed they in the londe of Ben Jamin, beside ỹ graue of his father Cis. And they dyd all that the kynge had commaunded: So after this was God at one with the lande.

But ther arose warre agayne of the Philistynes agaynst Israell. And Dauid went downe & his seruaũtes with hym, & fought agaynst the Philistynes. And Dauid was weery, and Jesbi of Nob (whiche was one of the chyldrẽ of Rapha, and the weyght of his speare was thre C. weight of brasse, and had a new harnasse vpon hym) thought to smyte Dauid. Neuertheless Abisai ỹ sõne of Zeruja helped hym and smote the Philystine to death. Then sware Dauids men

f * Afterwarde ther arose yet warre at Nob with the Philistynes. Thẽ Sibechai the Husathyte smote Saph, whiche also was one of the chyldren of Rapha.

And ther arose yet warre at Gob with ỹ Philistines. Then Elhanan ỹ sonne of Jaere Orgim a Bethleemite smote Goliath the Gethite, which had a spear, whose shaft was lyke a weauers lome.

And ther arose yet warre at Gath where ther was a cõtencious man, which had fyre fyngers on his hãdes, and fyre toes on his fete, that is foure and twetye in the nõbre: and he was borne also of Rapha. And whã he spake despytefully vnto Israell, Jonathas the sonne of Simea Dauids brother smote hym. These foure were borne vnto Rapha at Gath, and fell thorow the hande of Dauid and of his seruauntes.

The.xxii.Chapter.

AND Dauid spake the wordes A of this songe before the LORD, what tyme as the LORDE had delyuered hym from the hande of all his enemyes, and from ỹ hande of Saull, and he sayde.

The LORDE is my stony rocke, and my castell, and my delyuerer.

God is my strength, in hym wyll I put my trust: my shylde and the horne of my saluacyon, my defence and my refuge, my Saueoure, thou shalte helpe me from violent wronge.

* I wyll call vpõ the LORD with prayse Psal.17.a so shal I be delyuered fro myne enemyes.

For the sorowes of death compassed me, and the brokes of Belial made me afrayed.

The paynes of hell came about me, and the snares of death hadde ouertaken me.

Whan I was in trouble, I called vpon the LORD, yee euen my God called I vpõ: B and so he herde my voyce from his holy tẽple, and my complaynte (came) in to his eares.

The earth trẽbled and quaked, the foundacyon of the heauen shoke and moued, because he was wroth.

Smoke wente vp from his nose, and cõsumynge fyre out of his mouth, coles were kyndled therof.

He bowed the heauẽs and came downe, and it was darke vnder his fete.

He sat vpon a Cherub and dyd flye, and appeared vpon the fethers of the wynde.

He made darkneſſe his pauylyon rõde aboute hym, thicke water in the cloudes of the ayre.

At the bryghtnesse of hym were the fyre coles kyndled.

The LORDE thondered from heaue, and the hyest put forth his voyce.

He shot his arowes, and scatered them: he lightened and discomfited them.

C The powrynges out of the See were sene, and the fundacyons of the earth were discouered, at the chydynge of the LORDE, and at the breth of the spyrete of his wrath.

He sente downe from aboue, and receaued me, and drue me out of many waters.

He delyuered me fro my strong enemye, from them that hated me, for they were to myghtye for me.

They ouertoke me in ỹ tyme of my trouble, but the LORDE was my succoure.

He brought me forth in to libertye, he delyuered me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

Rom.12.b * The LORD shall rewarde me after my righteousnesse, and accordynge to the clennesse of my handes shall he recõpence me.

For I haue kepte the waye of the LORD & haue not ben vngodly agaynst my God.

D For I haue an eye vnto all his lawes, & haue not put his ordinaunces fro me.

Therfore wyll I be perfecte vnto hym, and wyll eschewe myne owne wyckednesse.

So shall the LORDE rewarde me after my ryghteousnesse, accordynge to the clennesse of my handes in his eye syght.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, and with the perfecte shalt thou be perfecte.

With the cleane thou shalte be cleane, & with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde.

For thou shalt saue the poore oppressed people, and shalt set thyne eyes agaynst the proude to bryng them downe.

Psal.18.b and.118.a * For thou O LORDE art my lãterne. The LORDE shall lighte my darknesse.

For in the I shall discomfite an hoost of men, and in my God shall I leape ouer the wall.

E The waye of God is perfecte: the wordes of the LORD are tryed in the fyre: he is a shylde for all them that putte theyr truste in hym.

For where is ther a God, excepte ỹ LORDE? Or who hath ony strength without oure God?

God hath strengthed me with power, & made playne a perfecte waye for me.

He hath made my fete lyke hertes fete, & hath set me vpon hye.

Psal.143.a * He teacheth my handes to fyght, and byndeth the stele bowe with myne armes.

And thou hast geuē me the shylde of thy health, & with thy louynge correccyon hast thou multiplye me.

Thou hast enlarged my goynge vnder me, and myne ankles haue not slyded.

I wyll folow vpon myne enemyes and destroye them, and wyll not turne backe agayne, tyll I haue brought thē to nought.

I wyll consume them and thruste them thorow, that they come not vp: they shall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyrded my with strength to the battayll, and hast subdued them vnder me that rose vp agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne enemies to turne theyr backes vpõ me, that I myght destroy them that hate me.

They shall crye, but ther shalbe no helpe: ye euen vnto the LORDE, but he answereth them not.

I wyll beate them as small as the dust vpon the earth: euen as the claye of the stretes wyll I make them thynne, and thrust them out abrode.

But me shalt thou delyuer from the chydynges of the people, and shalt kepe me to be the heade of the Heythen: a people that I haue not knowne, shall serue me.

The straunge chyldren haue denyed me, at the hearynge of the eare shall they obey vnto me.

The straunge chyldren are waxen olde, and are shut vp in theyr presons.

The LORDE lyueth, and blessed be my God, and magnifyed be the strength of my health.

God seyth that I be auenged, and subdueth the people vnto me.

He bryngeth me out fro myne enemyes, and from thē that ryse vp agaynst me, hast thou exalte me, and fro the cruel man hast thou delyuer me.

* For this cause wyll I geue thanckes vnto the amonge the Heythen, and synge prayses vnto thy name.

Which doth great health for his kyng, and sheweth mercy vnto Dauid his anoynted, and to his sede for euermore.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

THese are the last wordes of Dauid: Dauid the sonne of Isai sayde. The mã that was set vp to be anoynted of ỹ God of Jacob, and a pleasaunt dyter of songes of Israell sayd: The spyrite of the LORDE hath spoken by me, & the wor-therof is done thorow my tunge. He sayde: The God of Israel hath spoken vnto me, the strength of Israell, the gouernoure amonge men, the ryghteous gouernoure in the feare of God. As the lyght is in the morninge whan the Sonne aryseth, so that for the bryghtnesse therof no cloud remayneth: and as the grasse loketh vpon the earth thorow ỹ rayne: euen so shall my house be with God

74 *For he hath made an euerlastynge couenaunt with me, well appoynted on euery syde and sure. For this is all my health and pleasure, that it shall growe. But the Belial shalbe vtterly and cleane roted out as the thornes, which mẽ take not in theyr hãdes. And they that touch them, shal destroye thẽ with yrons and speares: and in the fyre shal they be brent, that they maye be broughte to nought.

B 8 *These are the names of Dauids worthyes: Jasabeam the sonne of Hachmoni, the chefest amonge thre, which lyfte vp his speare, & slewe eyght hundreth at one tyme.

After hym was Eleasar the sõne of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi amonge the thre worthies with Dauid, whan they spake dispytfully to the Philistines, and were gathered together to the battayll, and the men of Israel went vp. Then stode he vp and smote the Philistines, tyll his hande was so weery that it crompled with the swearde. And the LORDE gaue a great victory at the same tyme, so that the people turned after him to spoyle. After hym was Samma the sonne of Age the Hararite. Whan the Philistines had gathered them selues in a company, & in the same place ther was a pece of lande full of small corne, and the people fledde before the Philistines, then stode he in the myddes of the pece of lande and delyuered it, & smote the Philistynes. And God gaue a great victory.

C 12 *And these thre pryncipall among thyrtye, cam downe in the haruest vnto Dauid in to the caue of Adullam. And the hoost of ỹ Philistines laye in ỹ valley of Rephaim: But Dauid was at the same tyme in the castel, and the Philistines people lay at Bethleem. And Dauid was desyrous, and sayd: Wolde God ỹ some man wolde fetche me a drynke of water out of ỹ well at Bethleẽ vnder the gate. Then brake ỹ thre worthies in to the hoost of the Philistines, & drewe of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate, and carted it & brought it vnto Dauid: neuertheles he wold not dryncke it, but offered it vnto the LORDE and said: The LORDE let this be farre fro me, ỹ I shulde do it. Is it not the bloude of the men that ieoparded theyr lyues, and wente thyther? And he wold not drincke it. Thus dyd ỹ thre Worthies.

D *Abisai the brother of Joab the sonne Zeruia was one also of ỹ chefe amõg thre. He lyfte vp his speare and smote thre hundreth, and was an aũcient mã among thre, and the noblest amonge thre, and was their ruler. But he came not vnto the thre. *And Benaiah the sonne of Joiada, the sonne of Jshail (a mã of great actes) of Cabzeel smote two myghtie giauntes of the Moabites, and went downe and slewe a Lyon at a wel in the snowe tyme. He smote also a fayre goodly man of Egipte, which had a speare in his hande. But he wente downe to hym with a staffe, and toke the speare out of the Egipcyans hande by violence, and slewe hym with his owne speare. This dyd Benaia the sonne of Joiada, & was a famous man amonge thre worthies, and more honorable then ỹ thyrty, but he came not vnto the thre. And Dauid made him of his secret councell.

AND *the LORDE was wroth- A gaynst Jsrael, and moued Dauid amonge them, that he dyd saye: Go nombre Jsrael & Juda. And the kynge sayde vnto Joab ỹ chefe capteyne of his hoost: Go about in all ỹ tribes of Israel, frō Dan vnto Berseba, and nombre ỹ people, that I maye knowe how many they be. Ioab sayd vnto the kynge: The LORDE thy God adde vnto this people an hūdreth times as much as it is now, ỹ my lorde ỹ kinge may se his eyes lust therin. But why hath my lorde ỹ kyng a delyre to this thynge? Neuertheleſſe the kynges worde preuayled agaynſt Ioab and ỹ captaynes of the hoost.

So Ioab and the captaynes of ỹ hoost wente forth from the kynge, to nombre the people of Israel, and paſſed ouer Iordane, and pitched at Aroer, at the ryght hande of the cyte which lyeth in the ryuer of Gad, & at Jaseer, and came to Gilead, and in ỹ low
B contre of Hadſi, and came vnto Dan Iaā and aboute Sidon, and came to the stōge cytie of Tyrus, and all the cyties of the Heuites and Cananites, and came forth to the south parte of Juda vnto Berseba, & went rounde aboute that contre, and after nyne monethes and twentye dayes they came to Jeruſalem. And Ioab delyuered vnto the kynge the sūme of the people that was nōbred. And in Israel ther were eyght hūdreth thouſande ſtronge men, that drewe out the ſwearde: and in Juda fyue hundreth thouſande men. And after that the people was nombred, Dauids harte ſmote hym ſelfe.

And Dauid ſayd vnto the LORDE: I haue ſynned ſore, that I haue done this. And now LORDE take awaye the treſpaſſe of thy ſeruaunt. For I haue done very vnwyſely.

C And whan Dauid roſe vp in the morynge, the worde of the LORDE came vnto the prophet Gad, Dauids Seer, and ſaid: Go and ſpeake vnto Dauid. Thus ſayeth the LORDE: I bringe the thre thynges, chose the one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. Gad cam vnto Dauid, and told him and ſayd vnto hym: Wylt thou that ſeuen yeare derth ſhall come into thy lande? Or that thou be kayne to flye for thyne aduerſaries thre monethes, & they to perſecute the? Or that ther be peſtilence thre dayes in the lande? Take aduiſement therfore & ſe what anſwere I ſhall bringe agayne vnto hym that ſent me.

Dauid ſayd vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. * Neuertheleſſe (yf it maye be) let me rather fall in to the handes of ỹ LORDE (for his mercy is great) I wyll not fall in to the handes of men.

Eccl. 2.f Suſan. D.

D So the LORDE ſent peſtilence in to Israel from the morow vnto the tyme appointed, ſo that ther dyed of the people fro Dan vnto Berseba, thre ſcore and ten thouſande men. And whan ỹ angell ſtretched his hande ouer Jeruſalem to deſtroye it, the LORDE repented ouer the euell and ſayd vnto the angell: It is ynough, holde now thy hande. The angell of the LORDE was besyde the barne of Arafna the Jebuſyte. But whan Dauid ſawe the angell that ſmote the people he ſayd vnto the LORDE: Beholde, I is I that haue ſynned, I haue done the euell paſſe: As for theſe ſhepe, what haue they done? Oh let thy hande be agaynſt me and agaynſt my fathers houſe.

And Gad came to Dauid at the ſame tyme, and ſayd vnto hym: Go vp and ſet vp an altare vnto the LORDE in the barne of Arafna the Jebuſite. So Dauid went vp as Gad ſayd, and as the LORDE had commaunded. And whan Arafna loked aboute hym, he ſawe the kynge with his ſeruauntes goynge vnto hym, and he worshypped vpon his face to the grounde, and ſayde: Wherfore commeth my lorde the kinge vnto his ſeruaunt? Dauid sayde: To bye the barne of the, and to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE, that the plage maye ceaſſe from the people.

But Arafna ſayd vnto Dauid: Let my lorde the kynge take it, and offre what pleaſeth hym. Behold, ther is an ore for a burnt offerynge, and ſleddes, and harneſſe of ore to the wood. All this gaue Arafna vnto the kynge. And Arafna ſayd vnto the kynge: The LORDE thy God make the accepted vnto hym. Neuertheleſſe ỹ kynge ſayd vnto Arafna: Not ſo, but I wyll bye it of the for as muche as it is worth. For I wyll not offre burntoffrynges vnto the LORDE, of that which I haue for nought. So Dauid bought the barne and the ore for fyfty ſycles of ſyluer, & buylded an altare there vnto the LORDE, and offred burntoffrynges and thankofferynges. And the LORDE was mercyful vnto the lande, and the plage ceaſſed from the people of Israel.

The fyrst Chapter.

AND whan kynge Dauid was olde and wel stryké in age, he coulde not be warme thoughe he was couered with clothes. Then sayd his seruauntes vnto hym: Let vs seke a yōge dāsel, a virgin for our lorde ỳ kynge to stonde before the kynge, and to noury she hym, and to slepe in his armes, & to warme our lorde ỳ kynge. And they sought a fayre damsell in all the coastes of Israel, & foūde Abisag of Sunem, and brought her vnto the kyng. And she was a very fayre damsel, and noryshed the kynge, and serued hym. Howbeit the kynge knewe her not.

Adonias the sonne of Hagith lyfte vp hym selfe, and sayd: I wyll be kynge. And he prepared hym charrettes and horsemen, *and fyfty mē to be rēners on foote before hym. And his father reproued hym not ther fore, so muche as to saye: Wherfore doest thou so? And he was a man of a very fayre bewty *and had begotten hym nexte after Absalon. And his matter stode by Joab the sonne of Zeruja and by Abiathar the preest which helped Adonias. But Sadoc the preest & Benaia the sonne of Jotada, & Nathan the prophet, and Semei, and Rei, & Dauids worthies were not with Adonias. 2 Re. 15.a. 2.Reg.3.a

And whan Adonias offred shepe & oxē and fat cattel beside the stone of Soheleth, which lyeth by the *well of Rogel, he called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruauntes. But the prophet Nathan and Benaia, and the worthies, and his brother Salomō called he not. Then sayd Nathan vnto Bethseba Salomōs mother: Hast thou not herd that Adonias is kynge, and our lorde Dauid knoweth not therof? Come now therfore, I wyll geue the councel, ỳ thou mayest Josu.15.b. and.18.c

delyuer thy soule and the soule of thy sonne Salomon. Come now and go in to ỹ kinge Dauid and saye vnto hym: Hast not thou my lorde the kynge sworne and sayde vnto thy handmayden: Salomon thy sõne shall be kynge after me, and he shal syt vpon my seate? Why is then Adonias made kynge? Beholde, whyle thou art yet there, and talkest with ỹ kynge, I wyl come in after the, and tell forth thy tale. And Bethseba wente to the kynge in to the chamber: and ỹ kyng was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem serued the kynge. And Bethseba bowed her selfe and worshipped the kynge.

C The kynge sayde: What wylt thou? She sayd vnto hym: My lorde, Thou hast sworne vnto thy handmayden by ỹ LORDE thy God: Thy sonne Salomõ shalbe kyng after me and syt vpon my seat. But now lo, Adonias is kynge, and my lorde the kynge knoweth it not. He hath offred oxen and fat cattell, and many shepe, and hath called the kynges sonnes, and Abiathar the preest, and Joab the chefe captayne. But thy seruaunt Salomon hath he not bydden. Neuertheless thou my lorde art kynge, the eyes of all Israel loke vpon the, ỹ thou shuldest shewe them who shal syt vpon the seat of my lorde the kynge after the. And whan my lorde the kynge slepeth with his fathers then shall I & my sõne Salomõ be fayne to be synners.

But whyle she yet spake to ỹ kynge the prophet Nathã came, and she told ỹ kynge: Behold, there is the prophet Nathan. And whan he came in before the kynge, he worshipped the kynge vpon his face to ỹ ground & sayd: My lorde O kynge, hast thou sayde: Adonias shalbe kynge after me, and syt vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this day and offred oxen, and fat cattell, and many shepe, and hath called al the kynges sõnes, and the captaynes, and the preest Abiathar.

D And beholde, they eat & drynke before hym, and saye: God saue the kynge Adonias. But me thy seruaũt, and Sadoc the preest, and Benaia the sõne of Joiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kynge commaũded this, & not certified his seruauntes who shall syt vpon the seate of my lorde the kynge after hym?

The kynge answered and sayde: Call Bethseba vnto me. And she came in before the kynge. And whan she stode before the kynge, the kynge sware, and sayd: As truly as ỹ LORDE lyueth (which hath delyuered my soule out of trouble) I wyll do vnto the this daye, euen as I sware vnto the by the LORDE the God of Israell, saying, Salomon thy sonne shalbe kynge after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate in my stede.

Then Bethseba bowed her selfe with hir face to the grounde, & thanked ỹ kynge, and sayd: God saue my lorde kynge Dauid for euermore. And the kynge sayd: Call me the preest Sadoc and the prophet Nathan. And Benaia the sonne of Joiada.

And whan they came in before ỹ kynge the kynge sayd vnto them: Take you my lordes seruauntes with you, and set my sonne Salomon vpon my mule, and caye him downe to Gihon: and let Sadoc the preest the prophet Nathan anoynte hym there to be kyng ouer Israel, and blowe the trompe and saye: God saue kynge Salomon. And go ye vp after hym. And whã he commeth he shall syt vpon my seate, and be kynge in my steade: for I haue ordeyned hym to be prince, ouer Israel and Juda. Then answered Benaia the sonne of Joiada vnto the kynge and sayd: Amen. The LORDE God of my lorde the kynge saye thus also. As the LORDE hath ben with my lorde the kynge, so be he with Salomon also, that his kingdome maye be greater then the seate of my lorde kynge Dauid.

Then wente they downe, the preest Sadoc, and the prophete Nathan, and Benaia the sõne of Joiada, and the Chrethians and Plethians, & set Salomon vpõ kynge Dauids mule, and brought hym to Gihon. And Sadoc ỹ preest toke the oyle horne out of the Tabernacle, & anoynted Salomon. And they blewe the trompe: And all ỹ people sayd: God saue kynge Salomon.

And all the people went vp after him, the people ypped with all the ypes, & were very ioyfull, so that the earth range of the noyse of them. And Adonias herd it, and all they whom he had called, which were bidden hym, and they had new eaten. And whã Joab herde the noyse of the trompe, he sayd: What meaneth this noyse of the cyte ỹ is in busynesse? But whyle he yet spake, behold, Jonathas ỹ sõne of Abiathar ỹ preest came.

And Adonias sayde: Come in, for thou art a valeaunt man, and bringest good tydynges. Jonathas answered and sayd vnto Adonias: Alas, our lorde kynge Dauid hath made Salomon kynge, and hath sent with hym Sadoc the preest, and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chrethians and Plethians, & they haue set hym vpon the kynges mule, and Sadoc the preest with the prophet Nathan anoynted hym kynge at Gihon, & frō thēce are they gone vp with ioye, that the cytie range withal: that is the noyse that ye haue herde.

Salomō also sytteth vpon the kynges seate, and the kynges seruauntes are gone in to wyshe good lucke vnto our lo:d kyng Dauid, & haue sayd: Thy God make Salomon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wyshed the kynge good lucke vpon the bed. Moreouer the kynge hath said thus: Prayse be the LORDE God of Israel which this daye hath made one to syt vpon my seat, that myne eyes haue sene it.

Then were they afrayed, and gat them vp al that were called by Adonias, & so they departed euery mā his waye. But Adonias was afraied of Salomon and gat him vp, and wente his waye, and toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde Salomon: Beholde, Adonias feareth kynge Salomon, and beholde, he taketh holde of the hornes of the altare, & sayeth: Let kynge Salomon sweare vnto me this daye, that he shall not slaye his seruaūt w̄ the sweard. Salomon sayd: yf he wyl be an honest mā, ther shall not one heer fall from hym vpon the earth, but yf ther be euel founde in him he shal dye. And kynge Salomon sent, and caused hym to be fetched * from the altare. And whan he came, he fell downe before kynge Salomon, But Salomon sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye in to thy house.

The.ii. Chapter.

NOw whan the tyme came that Dauid shulde dye, he cōmaunded Salomon his sōne & sayd: * I go the waye of all ỹ worlde. * Be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man, and kepe the watche of the LORDE thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and holde his ordynaunces, his commaundementes, his lawes, and his testimonies, * as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayest be wyse in al that thou doest, and whither soeuer thou turnest the: that the LORDE maye rayse vp his worde, which he hath spoken ouer me, and sayd: yf thy children kepe theyr waye and walke before me faythfully and truely, and with all theyr hart, and with al theyr soule, then shall ther neuer fayle the a man vpon the seate of Israel.

Thou knowest well also what Joab ỹ sonne of Zeru ja hath done vnto me, what he dyd vnto the two chefe captaynes of Israel, * Abner the sonne of Ner, and + Amasa the sonne of Jether, whome he slewe & shed the bloude of warre whan it was peace, & put the bloude of warre vpon his gyrdell ỹ was about his loynes, & in his shues that were vpon his fete: Do thou accordynge to thy wysdom, that thou bryng not his graye heer downe to the graue in peace. 2.Reg.3.a. & 21.fi.20.b

And to the children of * Barsillay the Gileadite, thou shalt shewe mercy, that they maye eate at thy table. For so ioyned they themselues vnto me, whā I fled bi fore thy brother Absalon. And beholde, thou hast w̄ the * Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with very bytter and shamefull cursynges, what tyme as I went to Mahanaim. Yet * came he downe to mete me at Jordane, where I sware to him by the LORDE, and said: I wyl not slaye the with the sweard. But suffre not thou hym to be vngylty, for thou art a wyse man, and shalt well knowe what thou oughtest to do vnto hym, that thou mayest bryng his graye heer downe to the graue with bloude. B 2.Re.17.a. and.19.c 1.Re.16.b 2.Re.19.b

* So Dauid slept with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid. The tyme that Dauid was kynge ouer Israel, is forty yeare. * Seuen yeare was he kynge at Hebron and thre and thirtye yeare at Jerusalem. * And Salomon sat vpon the seat of Dauid his father, and his kyngdome was made very sure. Iosu.23 and.13.b 2.Reg.5.a. 1.par.30.a.

But Adonias the sonne of Hagith cam in to Bethsheba Salomōs mother. And she sayd: Is thy cōmynge peaceable? He spake: yee, and sayd: I haue somwhat to say to ỹ. She sayde: Saye on. He sayde: Thou knowest that the kyngdom was myne, and that al Israel had set them selues vpon me, that I shuld be kynge, but now is the kyngdom turned, and becom my brothers, for he hath it of the LORDE. C

Now desyre I one peticiō of the: Make not my face ashamed. She sayd vnto hym: Say on. He sayd: Speake vnto kynge Salomon (for he shall not shame thy face) ỹ he maye geue me Abisag to wyfe. Bethsheba sayd: Wel, I wyl speake to ỹ kynge for the. That is: He shall not denye the thy peticyon.

And Bethsheba came in to kynge Salomon to speake with hym. And ỹ kinge stode vp, and wente to mete her, and worshipped her, and sat hym downe vpon his seat. And ther was a chayre set for ỹ kynges mother, so that she sat at his right hande. And she sayd: One peticyō desyre I of the, make not my face ashamed. The kynge sayde: Are O my mother, I wyl not shame thy face. She sayde: Let Abisag of Sunem be geuen thy brother Adonias to wyfe.

D Then answered kynge Salomon, and sayd vnto his mother: Why desyrest thou Abisag of Sunem for Adonias? Are ꝑ kingdome for hym also, for he is my greater brother, * and hath Abiathar the preest. And Joab the sonne of Zeruia. And the kynge sware by the LORDE, and sayde: God do this and that vnto me, Adonias shall haue spoken this worde agaynst his lyfe. And now as truly as the LORDE lyueth whych hath ordeyned me, and made me to syt vpon the seat of my father Dauid, and hath made me an house (* accordynge as he sayd) this daye shall Adonias dye.

And kynge Salomon sent thyther by Benaia the sonne of Joiada, which smote hym that he dyed. And to ꝑ preest Abiathar sayd the kynge: Go thy waye vnto Anathot to thy lande, for thou art a man of death. Neuertheles I wyl not slaye the this day, for thou hast borne the Arke of the LORDE God before my father Dauid, and hast suffred trouble also where my father suffred.

Thus Salomon put forth Abiathar, that he must nomore be the preest of the LORDE, that the worde of the LORDE myghte be fulfylled, * which he spake ouer ꝑ house of Eli at Silo.

E And this rumoure came before Joab: for Joab cleued vnto Adonias, and not vnto Salomon. Then fled Joab in to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, that Joab was fled in to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and behold, he stondeth at the altare.

Then sent Salomon Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and sayde: Go slaye hym. And whan Benaia came to ꝑ Tabernacle of the LORDE, he sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the kynge: Come forth. He sayd: no, I wyll dye here. And Benaia tolde this vnto the kynge agayne, and sayd: Thus hath Joab spoken, and thus hath he answered me.

The kynge sayde vnto hym: Do as he hath spoken, and slaye hym, and bury hym, that thou mayest put from me and my fathers house ꝑ bloude which Joab hath shed without a cause, and that the LORDE maye recompense hym his bloud vpon his head, because he smote two mē, which were more ryghteous and better then he, and slewe thē with the sweard ꝑ my father Dauid knewe not of: namely, * Abner the sonne of [illegible] cheefe captayne ouer Israel and [illegible] sonne of Jether the cheefe captayne [illegible] da that they bloude maye be [illegible] vpon the heade of Joab and of [illegible] euer: But Dauid and his sede, [illegible] his seate haue peace for euermore of the LORDE.

And Benaia the sonne of Joiada [illegible] vp, and smote hym, and slewe hym: [illegible] was buried in his house in the [illegible] And the kynge set Benaia the sonne [illegible] da in his stead ouer the hoost. And [illegible] doc the preest dyd the kynge set in the [illegible] of Abiathar.

And the kynge sent, and caused [illegible] call Semei, and sayd vnto hym: [illegible] an house at Jerusalem, and dwell [illegible] departe not from thence, nother hyther [illegible] thyther. In what day soeuer thou departest forth, and goest ouer the broke Cedron, [illegible] thou sure, that thou shalt dye the death: [illegible] bloude be vpon thyne owne heade. [illegible] sayd vnto the kynge: This is a good [illegible] kynge, as my lorde the kynge hath [illegible] shall thy seruaunt do. So Semei [illegible] Jerusalem a longe season. But [illegible] yeare it fortuned that two seruaunts [illegible] awaye from Semei vnto Achis the [illegible] Maecha kynge of Gath.

And it was tolde Semei: behold, [illegible] uauntes are at Gath. Thē Semei [illegible] vp, sadled his asse, and wente vnto [illegible] Achis, for to seke his seruauntes. [illegible] he came thyther, he brought his [illegible] from Gath.

And it was tolde Salomon, that [illegible] mei went from Jerusalem vnto Gath, [illegible] was come agayne. Then sent the kynge [illegible] caused for to call Semei, & sayd vnto [illegible] Sware not I to the by the LORDE, [illegible] assured ꝑ, and sayd: Loke what day [illegible] thou departest out, and goest hyther [illegible] ther, be sure that thou shalt dye the [illegible] And thou saydest vnto me: I [illegible] good meanyng. Why hast thou not [illegible] then accordynge to the oth of the LORDE [illegible] & commaundent that I cōmaunded [illegible]

And the kynge said vnto Semei: [illegible] remembrest all the wickednesse, which [illegible] harte knoweth * that thou dyddest [illegible] father Dauid. The LORDE hath [illegible] the thy wickednesse vpon thy heade. [illegible] kynge Salomon is blessed, and the [illegible] Dauid shalbe stablyshed before the LORDE [illegible] forever. And the kynge cōmaunded [illegible] ꝑ sōne of Joiada, which went forth, [illegible] hym that he dyed. And the kyngdome was stadlyshed by Salomons hand.

The.iij. Chapter.

AND Salomon made mariage with Pharao the kynge of Egypte, & toke Pharaos doughter, and brought her in to the cite of Dauid, tyll he had buylded his house, and the LORDES house, and the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. But the people offered yet vpon the hye places: for as yet ther was no house buylded vnto the name of the LORD vnto that tyme. But Salomon loued the LORDE, and walked after the ordinaũces of Dauid his father: excepte onely that he offred and brent incense vpon hye places.

* And the kynge wente vnto Gibeon to do sacrifice there: For that was a goodlye hye place. And Salomõ offred a thousande burntofferinges vpõ the same altare. * And the LORD appeared vnto Salomon at Gibeon by a dreame in the nyghte, and God sayde: Aske what I shall geue the. Salomõ sayde: Thou hast done great mercy vnto my father Dauid thy seruaũt. Lyke as he walked before the in faythfulnesse and righteousnesse, and in a trew harte with the, and this greate mercy haste thou layed vp for hym, and geuen hym a sonne to sytte vpon hys seate as it is now come to passe.

* Now LORDE my God, thou hast made thy seruaunt kynge in my father Dauids stede: As for me, I am but a small yonge man, knowyng nother my outgoynge nor ingoynge. And thy seruaunt is among the people whom thou hast chosen, which is so greate, that noman can nombre thẽ nor declare thẽ for multitude. Geue thy seruaũt therfore an obedient harte, that he maye iudge thy people, and vnderstonde what is good and bad: for who is able to iudge this thy myghtye people?

This pleased the LORDE well, that Salomon ared such a petityon. And God sayd vnto hym: For so much as thou aresk this, and dalyrest not lõge lyke, nother ryches, no ther the soules of thyne enemies, but vnderstondynge to heare iudgemẽt, beholde, ther fore haue I done accordige to thy wordes. * Beholde, I haue geuen the an hart of wysdome and vnderstondynge, so that suche one as thou art, hath not ben before the no ther shall ryse vp after the.

Yee and that thou haste not prayed for, haue I geuen the also, namely, ryches, and honoure, so that amonge the kynges in thy tyme ther is not suche one as thou. And yf thou wylt walke in my wayes so that thou kepe myne ordinaũces and lawes, * as Dauid thy father hath walked, thẽ wyl I geue the a longe lyfe. 1.Re.15.a

And whan Salomon awaked, beholde, it was a dreame, * and he came to Jerusalẽ and stode before the Arke of the LORDES cõuenaunt, and offred burntofferynges, and thãkofferynges, and made a great feast vnto his seruauntes. 2.Per.1.b

At the same tyme came ther two harlottes vnto ỹ kynge, an stode before hym. And the one woman sayde. Oh my lorde, I and this womã dwelt in one house, and I was delyuered of a chylde in the house with her: and on the thyrde daye after that I was delyuered, she was delyuered of a childe also. And we were together, so that ther was no straũger with vs in the house, but we two: and this womãs sonne dyed in the nyghte (for she smored hym in ỹ slepe) and she rose vp in the nyght, and toke my sonne fro my syde (wher thy handmayden slept) and layed it in hir arme, and hir dead sonne layed she in myne arme. And whan I rose vp in the mornynge to geue my sonne sucke, beholde, he was dead. But in the mornynge I loked wel vpon hym, and behold, it was not my sonne, whome I had borne.

The other womã sayde: Not so, my sõne liueth, and thy sonne is dead. But she sayd: Not so, thy sonne is dead, and my sonne lyueth. And thus spake they before the kynge. And the kynge sayd: This woman sayeth: my sonne lyueth and thy sõne is dead. yonder womã sayth: Not so, thy sonne is dead, and my sonne lyueth. And the kynge sayde: Fetch me a sweard. And whã ỹ sweard was brought before the kynge, the kynge sayde: Parte the lyuynge chylde in two partes, & geue this womã the one halfe, and yonder woman the other halfe.

Then sayde the woman whose sonne lyued, vnto the kynge: (for hyr motherly hart was kyndled with pytye ouer hyr sõne) Oh my lorde, geue her the chylde alyue, & kyll it not. But the other sayde: Let it nother be myne nor thyne, but let it be parted. Then answered the kynge, and sayde: Geue this woman the lyuynge childe, and slay it not, for she is his mother. And all Israell herde of thys iudgemẽt that the kynge had geue, and they feared ỹ kyng, for they sawe ỹ the wysdom of God was in hi to kepe iudgmẽt.

The.iiij. Chapter.

THus was Salomon kynge ouer all Israell: And these were his prynces: Asaria ꝑ sonne of Sadoc the prest: Elihoreph, & Iht Ja the sonnes of Sisa, were prestes: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was chaunceler: Benaia the sonne of Joiada was the cheke captayne: Sadoc and Abiathar were prestes: Asaria the sonne of Nathan was ouer the officers: Sabud the sonne of Nathan the prest was the kynges 3.Re.12.c frende: Ahiasar was steward: * Adoniram the sonne of Abda was rentgatherer.

And Salomon had twelke officers ouer Israel, which made prouisyon of foode for the kyng and his house: One had a moneth longe in the yeare to make prouysion: And these were their names: The sonne of Hur vpon mount Ephraim. The sonne of Deber at Macaz & at Saalbaim, and at Beth sames, and at Elon, and Beth Hanan. The sonne of Hased at Aruboth and had therto Socho and all the londe of Hepher. The sonne of Abinadab all the lordshyppe at Dor, and had Taphath Salomōs doughter to wyfe, Baena the sonne of Ahilud at Thaenach and at Megiddo, and ouer all Beth Sean, which lyeth beside Zarthana vnder Jesraell from Beth Sean vnto the
B playne of Mehola, tyll ꝑ other syde of Jakneam. The sonne of Geber at Ramoth in Gilead, he had the townes of Jair the sōne of Manasse in Gilead, and had the coastes of Argob which lyeth in Basan, euen thre score greate walled cyties, and with brasen barres. Ahinadab ꝑ sōne of Iddo at Mahanaim. Ahimaas in Nephtali, & he also toke Basmath Salomons doughter to wyfe. Baena the sonne of Husai in Aser and at Aloth. Josaphat the sonne of Paruha in Issachar. Geber the sonne of Uri in the lande of Gilead, in the londe of Sihon kynge of the Ammorites, and of Og the kyng of Basan. One officer was in the same lande. As for Juda and Israell, they were in nombre as the sande of ꝑ see, and dyd eate & drynke, Gene.15.b and were mery. * Thus was Salomon Exo.23.b lorde ouer all the kyngdomes (from the wapſal.71.b ter of the lande of the Philystines, vnto the border of Egypte) which brought hym gyftes, and serued hym as lōge as he lyued.

And Salomōhad daylye to his vitailles thyrtye quarters of fyne meell. lx. quarters of other meel, ten fat oxē, & twētye smal cattell, & an hūdreth shepe, besydes hertes and roes, & wylde goates, & fat capōs, & foules. For he had the lordshyppe of all the lande on this syde the water, from Thipsa vnto Gasa, and ouer al the kynges on this syde the water: and he * hadde peace of all his subiectes rounde aboute, so that Juda and Israel were safe, euery one vnder his vyne and vnder his fygge tre, from Dan vnto Berseba, as longe as Salomon lyued.

* And Salomō hadde foure thousande carthorses, and twelke thousande horsemen. And the officers prouyded the kyng Salomon with vitayles: and what so euer longed to the kynges table, that brought euery man in his moneth, and mysled not. Barley also and strawe for the horses and coursers, and brought thē vnto the place where the kynge was, euery one after his charge.

* And God gaue Salomō maruaylous great wysedome and vnderstōdynge, and a large harte, as the sonde, that lyeth by the See shore: so that the wysedome of Salomon was greater then the wysedome of all the chyldren towarde the east, and all the Egipcyans. And he was wyser then all men, yee wyser then Ethan the Ezrahite, Heman, Chalcall, and Darda, the sonnes of Maholi: and had a greate name among all the Heythē on euery syde. And he spake thre thousande * prouerbes, and his songes were a thousande & fyue. And he spake of trees, from the Ceder and Libanon vnto the ysope that groweth out of the wall. He talked also of cattell, of foules, of wormes, of fyshes. And ther came of all nacions to heare the wysedome of Salomon, and came of all the kynges of the earth, which had herde of his wysdome.

The.v.Chapter.

AND Hiram the kynge of Tyrus sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he had herd, that they had anoynted hym kyng in his fathers steade: For Hiram alwayes lued Dauid as lōge as he lyued. & Salomō sent vnto Hirā, sayeng: * Thou knowest ꝑ my father myght not buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE his God, be cause of the warre that was about him, tyll the LORD deliuered them vnder the soles of his fete: But now hath the LORDE my God geuē me rest on euery syde, so that there is no aduersary nor euell hynderaūce to holde, I am therfore aduysed to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, accordynge as the LORDE spake vnto Dauid my father and sayd: * Thy sonne, whom I shall set vpon thy seat in thy stede, he buylde an house vnto my name. Cõmaũde therfore that they hewe me downe Ceders out of Libanus, and that thy seruauntes be with my seruauntes, and the reward of thy seruauntes wyll I geue the, what so euer thou shalt are: for thou knowest, that with vs ther is nomã which can hewe tymber as the Sidonians.

B When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he was very glad, and sayde: Praysed be the LORDE this daye, which hath geuen Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this greate people. And Hiram sent vnto Salomõ sayenge: I haue herde what thou hast sent vnto me: I wyl do accordynge vnto all thy desyre with Ceders and Pynetrees. My seruauntes shall bryngе them downe from Libanus vnto the See, and I wyll make thẽ to flote vpõ the See, vnto the place which thou shalt shewe me, and there wyl I cause them to aryue, and thou shalt make thẽ to be fetched. But thou shalt fulfyll my desyre also, and geue foode vnto my housholde folkes. So Hiram gaue Salomõ Ceders and Pynetrees accordyng to all his desyre. But Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousand quarters of wheat to eate for his housholde, and twenty quarters of beaten oyle. This gaue Salomon yearly vnto Hiram.

C And the LORDE gaue Salomon wysedome accordyng as he had sayd vnto him, and ther was peace betwene Hiram & Salomõ, and they made a cõuenaunt both together. And Salomõ made an outcholsyng (of workmen) throw out all Israell. And the outcholsyng was thirtye thousande mẽ, and he sent them to mount Libanus euery two monethes ten thousande, so that they were one moneth vpon Libanus, and two monethes at home. And * Adoniram was ouer the outcholsynge.

And Salomon had three score thousand and ten that bare burthens, and foure score thousande ỹ hewed tymber vpon the moũt beside Salomons cheke officers, whiche were ordeyned ouer the worke: namely three thousande and three hundreth which ruled the people that laboured there in ỹ worke. And the kynge cõmaunded that they shuld breake out great and costly stones, namely hewe stone, for the fundacyon of the house. And Salomõs masons, and Hirams, and they that were in those coastes, hewed out and prepared tymbre and stones, to the buyldynge of the house.

The.vi. Chapter.

IN the foure hũdreth and foure score yeare, after ỹ departynge of the chyldren of Israell out of the londe of Egypte, in the fourth yeare of the raygne of Salomon ouer Israel, in the moneth Syf (that is the seconde moneth) was the house buylded vnto the LORDE. This house that kynge Salomon buylded vnto the LORD, was three score cubytes longe, twentye cubites brode, & thyrtynt cubites hye. And he buylded a * Porche before the tẽple of twẽtye cubytes longe after the bredth of the house, and ten cubytes brode before the house, and in the house he made wyndowes, whiche myght be opened and shutte with lydes. 1. Par. 3. a Actu. 7. c Aprill * Joh 10. c Actu 3. b and. 5. b

And rounde aboute by the wall of the house he buylded a compasse, so that it wẽt both aboute the temple and the quere, and made his outwarde wall rounde aboute. The nethermoost station was fyue cubites wyde, and the myddest sixe cubites wyde, & the thyrde seuen cubites wyde. For he layed balkes rounde aboute ỹ house, that they touched not the wall of the house.

And whã the house was buylded, it was buylded of whole and outbroken stones, so that ther was herde nother hamer, nor axe, nor ony other instrumentof yron, whan the house was a buyldynge. B

But on the ryght syde of the myddes of ỹ house ther was a dore, so that they might go vp to ỹ myddes stacyõ by a turne grese, and from the middest station vnto ỹ third. Thus buylded he the house, and fynished it, and syled the house both aboue and by ỹ walles with Ceder wood. He buylded a galery also aboue vpon the whole house fyue cubites hye, and couered the house with Ceder tymber.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Salomon, and sayde: Let this be the house that thou buyldeste. Yf thou shalt walke in myne ordynaunces, and do accordynge to my lawes, and kepe all my cõmaundementes, to walke therin, then wyll I stablyshe my worde with the (* as I sayde vnto Dauid thy father) and wyll dwell amonge the chyldrẽ of Israell, and wyll not forsake my people of Israell. 2. Re. 7. b

Thus Salomõ buylded the house, and C fynyshed it, and buylded ỹ walles on the inside with Ceder tymber from the grounde of the house vnto the roke, and syled it with tymbre on the inside, and ouerlayed the flore of the house with bordes of Pyne tre.

And behynde in the house he buylded a wall of Ceder tymber twenty cubites lõge, from the flore to the rofe. And theron buylded he the quere for the moost holy, but the house of the temple before ꝑ quere was foretye cubites lõge: on the inſyde was ꝑ whole house of Ceder with writhen knoppes and floures, ſo that ther was no stone ſene. As for the quere, he prepared it on the inſyde of the house, that the Arke of the cõuenaũt of the LORDE myght be ſet therin. And before the quere (which was twentye cubites longe, twentye cubites brode, and twentye cubites hye, and ouerlayed with pure gold) he ſyled the altare with Ceder.

D And Salomon ouerlayed the house on the inſyde with pure golde, and ſhot barres of gold before ꝑ quere, which he had ouerlayed with golde, ſo that the whole house was layed ouer with golde. And all the altare al ſo before the quere ouerlayed he with gold.

Exo.25.b * He made alſo in the quere two Cherubyns ten cubites hye, of Olyue tre: One wynge of ether of the Cherubyns had fyue cubites, ſo that frõ ꝑ edge of his one wynge to the edge of his other wyng ther were ten cubites. Euen ſo had the other Cherub ten cubytes alſo, & both the Cherubins were of one meaſure & of one quãtitye, ſo that ether Cherub was ten cubytes hye. And he putte the Cherubyns within the house. And the Cherubyns ſpred forth theyre wynges, ſo that the wynge of the one touched the one wall: and the other Cherubs wyng touched ꝑ other wall. But in the myddes of ꝑ house the one wynge touched another. And he ouerlayed the Cherubyns with golde.

E And on al the walles of the house roũde about, he cauſed to make carued worke, wt carued Cherubis, palmetrees, and floures. And the pauemẽt of the house ouerlayed he alſo with goldẽ plates. And at the entraũce of ꝑ quere, he made two dores of oliue tre, with fyue ſquared poſtes, & cauſed carued worke to be made therof with Cherubyns, palme trees, and floures, and ouerlaied thẽ with plates of golde. So made he alſo at ꝑ intraunce of the temple, foure ſquared poſtes of Olyue tre, & two dores of Pyne tre (ſo that ether dore had two ſyde dores one hãgynge to another) & made carued worke therof, palme trees and floures, ryght as it was appoynted.

And he buylded a courte alſo within wt thre rowes of fre ſtone, and with one rowe of playne Ceder tymber.

Anno. In the fourth yeare in the moneth Sif, was the fundacyon of the LORDES house layed, and in the Eleuenth yeare in the moneth Bul (that is ꝑ eyghte moneth) was the house fynyſhed as it ſhulde be, ſo that they were ſeuen yeare a buylduynge of it.

The.vii.Chapter.

But Salomõ was a buylding his owne house thirtene yeare & fynyſhed it, namely, he buylded an house of the wood of Libanus, an hundreth cubites longe, fyfftye cubytes wyde, and thyrtye cubytes hye, foure ſquared with rowes of pylers, and with carued Ceders. And the rofe aboue ſyled he alſo with Ceder wood from the fyue and forfye pylers, for one rowe was fyftene pylers: ſo that ther ſtode euen pylers one ryght ouer agaynſte another, that euery ſpace betwixte the pylers was one ouer agaynſte another, foure ſquare with the pylers.

And he made a porche wt pylers which was fyfftye cubites longe, and thyrtye cubites brode, and yet a porche before it with pylers and with a greate poſte. He made a porche alſo vnto the kynges ſeate (where the iudgement was kepte) and made it to be the porche of iudgement, and ſyled it of Ceder from the pauemẽt vnto the rofe. And agaynſt, & his owne house wherin he dwelt in the backe court made betwene the porche and the porch, lyke the other. And he made to the porche made he a house for Pharaos doughter, * whome Salomon had taken to wyfe.

All theſe were coſtly ſtones hewen after the meaſure, cut with ſawes on euery ſyde, from the grounde vnto the rofe. And the fundacyons, they were coſtly and greate ſtones, ten and eyght cubites greate, and aboue ly fre ſtones theron accordynge to the meaſure, and Ceders. But ꝑ great courte rounde aboute had thre rowes of fre ſtone, and a rowe of playne Ceders: Euen ſo alſo the courte by the house of the LORDE within, and the porche by the house.

And kynge Salomon ſent to fetch * Hyram of Tyre a wedowes ſonne of the trybe of Nephtali, and his father had been a man of Tyre, * which was a coũnynge man in metall, ful of wyſedome, vnderſtandynge and knowledge to worke all maner of metal worke. Whã he came to kynge Salomon he made all his worke, * & made two hundreth pylers, ether of them eyghtene cubites hye and a threde of.xii. cubites was ỹ measure aboute both the pylers: and he made two knoppes of brasse molten, to set aboute vpon ỹ pylers: and euery knoppe was fyue cubites hye: and on euery knoppe aboue vpon the pylers seuen wrythen roapes lyke cheynes. And vpon euery knoppe he made two rowes of pomgranates rounde about on the roape, wherwith the knoppe was couered. And the knoppes were lyke roses before the porche foure cubites greate. And the pomgranates in the rowes rounde aboute were two hūdreth aboue and beneth vpon the rope, which went rounde aboute the thyckenes of ỹ knoppe, on euery knoppe vpon both the pylers.

And he set vp ỹ pylers before the porche of the temple. And that which he set on the right hande, called he Jachin: and that whiche he set on the lefte hande, called he Boos. And so stode it aboue vpon the pilers euen lyke roses. Thus was the worke of the pylers fynyshed.

* And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes wyde from the one syde to other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye, and a threde of thyrty cubites longe was the measure rounde aboute: and aboute the same lauer that was ten cubytes wyde, ther went knoppes on the edge therof rounde aboute the lauer. Two rowes were ther of ỹ knoppes molten with the lauer.

And it stode vpō twelfe bullockes, wherof thre were turned towarde the north, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the south, & thre towarde the east, and the lauer aboue theron, so that al their hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the thyckenesse was an handbreth: and the edge of it was lyke the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose, and it contayned two thousande Bates.

And he made ten brasē seates, euery one foure cubytes longe and brode, and thre cubytes hye. The seate was made so, that it had sydes betwene the ledges. And on the sydes betwene the ledges ther were lyons, bullockes, and Cherubyns. And on the ledges whiche were aboue and beneth the lyons and bullockes were the sydes made, that they were set downwardes. And euery stoole had foure brasen wheles with brasen axeltrees. And vpon the foure corners ther were proppes moltē, euery one ouer against another, vnderset vnto the kettell.

And the soket vpon the stoole was a cubite hye and rounde, a cubyte and a halfe wyde: and on the soket ther were knoppes in foldes, which were four squared and not rounde. The foure wheles stode beneth by ỹ sydes, and the axeltrees of ỹ wheles were harde on the seate. Euery whele was a cubyte and a halfe hye, and they were wheles lyke carte wheles. And their axeltrees, spokes, naples, and the nauelstockes were all molten. And the foure proppes vpon the foure corners of euery seate were hard on the seate.

And on the soket aboue vpon the seate, a cubyte and an halfe rounde aboute, ther were ledges and sydes harde on the seate. And on the place of the same sydes and ledges, he caused to carue Cherubyns, lyons, and palme trees, one by another rounde about theron. After this maner made he ten molten seates, one maner of measure, and wydenesse was in all.

* And he made ten copper kettels, so that one kettell conteyned forty Battes, and was foure cubytes greate, and vpon euery seate was a kettell. And fyue seates set he on the right syde of the house, and the other fyue on ỹ lefte syde. But ỹ lauer set he before on the ryghthande towarde ỹ south. 2 par. 4.a

And Hiram made pottes also and shouels and basens, and so fynyshed he all the worke, that kynge Salomon caused to be made in the house of the LORD: namely the two pylers, & roūde knoppes aboue vpō ỹ two pylers, and the two wrythen ropes to couer the two rounde knoppes vpō the pylers. And the four hundreth pomgranates on the two wrythen ropes, euer two rowes of pōgranates vnto euery rope, to couer ỹ two rounde knoppes vpon the pilers. And the ten seates, and ten kettels theron, and the lauer, and twelue bullockes vnder the lauer. And the pottes, shouels, and basens. And all ỹ ornamentes which Hiram made vnto kynge Salomon for the house of the LORDE were of pure metal. In the contre by Jordane, caused the kynge them to be molten in thycke earth betwene Sucoth & Zarthan. And Salomon let al the apparel be vnweyed, because ỹ metal was so much. G

* Moreouer Salomon made all the apparell that belonged vnto the house of the LORDE: namely a golden altare, a golde table that the shewbreade laye on, fyue candelstyckes on the righthande, and fyue candelstyckes on the lefte (before the quere) of pure golde, wt floures, lāpes, & snoffers of gold therto, flat peces, chargers, bases, spones & censours of pure golde. And ỹ hokes of Exod. 25.c

the doores on the inside of the house in the moost holy, and in the doores of the house of the temple of the LORDE were of gold,.

Thus all the worke that kynge Salomon made in the house of the LORDE, was 2 Par. 5.a fynished. * And Salomō brought in that his father Dauid had sanctifyed, of syluer and golde and ornamentes, and layed it amonge the treasures of the house of the LORDE.

The.viii.Chapter.

Then * gathered kynge Salomon all the Elders in Israell
2.Par. 5.a together, al the rulers of ỹ tribes and princes of the fathers amonge the childrē of Israell, vnto Ierusalem, to bringe vp the Arke of 2.Re. 6.b the cōuenaunt of the LORDE, * out of the cyte of Dauid, ỹ is Sion. And ther resorted vnto kynge Salomon all the men of Israell, at the feast in the moneth Ethanim, that September is the seuēth moneth. And whan all the Elders of Israell came, the prestes toke the Arke of the LORDE, and brought it vp, and the Tabernacle of witnesse, and all the ornamentes of the Sanctuarye that were in the Tabernacle. This dyd the prestes and the Leuites. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacyon of Israell that were gathered vnto hym, wente with hym before ỹ Arke, and offered shepe and bullockes, so many, ỹ they could not be nōbred nor told.

So the prestes brought the Arke of the LORDES cōuenaunt vnto hir place: euē in to the Quere of the house in the mooste holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubyns: for the Cherubins spred out theyre wynges in the place where the Arke stode, and couered ỹ Arke and the staues therof frō aboue. And the staues were so long that the knoppes of them were sene from the Sanctuary before ỹ quere, but on ỹ out syde were they not sene, and they were there vnto this day.

B And in the Arke ther was nothynge but
Deu. 10.a onely the two tables of stone, * which Moses had layed therin at Horeb, whā the LORDE made a cōuenaunt with the children of Israell, what tyme as they were departed out of the londe of Egypte.

But whan the prestes wente out of the
Exo. 40.c Sanctuarye * a cloude fylled the house of
Exo. 9.f the LORD, so that ỹ prestes coulde not stōde and execute the office for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled ỹ LORDES house.
Then sayde Salomon: * The LORD sayd,
Leui. 16.a that he wolde dwell in a darke cloude. I haue buylded an house, to be an habitacion vnto the: a seat, that thou mayst dwell ther in for euer. And the kyng turned his face, and blessed all the cōgregacyon of Israell. And all the congregacyon of Israell stode: and he sayde:

Praysed be the LORDE God of Israell which promysed by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and by his hāde hath fulfylled it, and sayd: * Sence ỹ day that I brought my people of Israell out of Egypte, haue I cholen no cytye amonge all the trybes of Israell, to buylde me an house, ỹ my name myght be there. * But Dauid haue I chosen to be ouer my people of Israell.

And in dede my father Dauid had purposed to buylde an house vnto ỹ name of the LORDE God of Israell: Neuertheles the LORD sayde vnto my father Dauid: Whereas thou waste mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou haste done well, for thou art so aduised. Howbeit thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. And the LORDE hath performed his worde that he spake: for I am come vp in my father Dauids stede, and syt vpon the seat of Israell, as the LORDE sayde: and haue buylded an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israell, and there haue I ordeyned a place for the Arke, wherin is the LORDES couenaunt, which he made with oure fathers, when he broughte them out of the lande of Egypte.

And Salomon stode before the aulter of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacyon of Israel, and helde out his handes to warde heauen, and sayde: * O LORDE God of Israell, ther is no God lyke vnto ther aboue in heauē, nor beneth vpō the earth, thou that kepest couenaunt and mercy with all thy seruauntes that walke before the with all theyr harte, thou that haste kepte promyse with my father Dauid thy seruaunt: and with thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hāde haste thou fulfylled it, as it is come to passe this day. Now LORD God of Israell, shewe good vnto my father Dauid thy seruaunt, that which thou haste promysed him, and sayd: * Thou shalt not wante a man before me to syt vpon the seate of Israell, so that thy children kepe theyr wayes, so that they walke before me as thou haste walked before me. Now thou God of Israell, let thy worde be accomplysshed whiche thou haste promysed vnto my father Dauid thy seruaunt.

For thynkest thou that God dwell

vpon earthe: * Beholde, the heauen and the heauens of all heauens may not contayne the: how shulde then this house do it, that I haue buylded? But turne the vnto the prayer of thy seruaunt, and to his supplicacyon (O LORDE my God) that thou mayest hear the thankesgeuynge and prayer, which thy seruaũt maketh before the this daye, so that thyne eyes be open ouer this house nyght & daye, euen ouer this place (wherof thou saydest: * My name shall dwell there.) That thou mayest heare the prayer which thy seruaunt maketh in this place, and heare þ intercession of thy seruaunt and of thy people of Israel, which they shal make here in this place of thy habitacion in heauen: and whã thou hearest it, be gracyous.

* Whan ony man synneth agaynst his neyghbour, and taketh vpon hym an othe wherwith he byndeth hymselfe, and the oth commeth before thyne altare in this house, then heare thou in heauen, and se that thy seruaunt haue ryght, to condempne the vngodly, & to bringe his waye vpon his owne heade, and to iustifie the ryghteous, to geue hym accordynge to his ryghteousnesse.

* Whan thy people of Israel is smytte before theyr enemyes (whyle they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they turne vnto the and knowlege thy name and make theyr prayer & intercession vnto the in this house, then heare thou them in heauẽ, and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel, and bringe them agayne in to the lande, that thou hast geuen vnto theyr fathers.

* Whan the heauen is shut vp, so that it rayneth not (for so much, as they haue synned agaynst the) & yf they make theyr prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, & turne frõ theyr synnes whan thou troublest them, heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercyfull vnto the synnes of thy seruaũtes, and of thy people of Israell, that thou mayest shewe them the good waye, wherin they shulde walke, and let it rayne vpon the lande that thou hast geuen thy people to enherytaunce.

Whan a derth, or pestilence, or drought, or burnynge, or greshopper, or caterpiller, is in theyr lande, or whã his enemye layeth syege to his portes in the lande, or whan ony other plage or disease happeneth, who soeuer then maketh his prayer and peticyon, * whether it be ony other men or thy people of Israell (whiche then are aware of theyr plage) euery one in his harte, and spredeth out his handes vnto this house: Hear thou then in heauẽ, in the seate where thou dwellest, and be mercyful, and se that thou geue euery one accordynge as he hath walked, lyke as thou knowest his hart (for thou knowest the hart of the chyldren of men) þ they maye alwaye feare the, as longe as they lyue in the lande, whiche thou hast geuen vnto our fathers.

* And whan ony straunger, that is not of thy people of Israell, commeth out of a farre contre for thy names sake, (for they shall heare of thy great name, & of thy mighty hande, and of thy outstretched arme) & commeth to make his prayer in this house, hear thou hym then in heauen, euen in the seate of thy dwellyng, & do all for the which that straunger calleth vpon the, that all the nacyons vpon earth may knowe thy name, and that they maye feare the, as thy people of Israel do: & that they maye knowe, how that this house which I haue buylded, is named after thy name.

Whan thy people go forth to the battayl agaynst theyr enemyes, the waye that thou shalt sende them * and shall prayse vnto the LORDE toward the way of the cytie which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house þ I haue buylded vnto thy name: heare thou then theyr prayer and peticyon in heauen, & execute iudgement for them.

Whan they synne agaynst the (for * there is noman that sinneth not) & thou be wroth and delyuer them vnto theyr enemyes, so þ they cary them awaye captyue in to the enemyes lande farre or nye, and yf they remẽbre them selues in the lande where they are captyue, and turne, and make theyr intercession vnto the in the lande of theyr captyuite and say: We haue sinned, and done amisse, and haue ben vngodly, and so turne vnto þ with al theyr harte, and with all theyr soule in the lande of theyr enemyes (which led thẽ awaye captyue) and make theyr prayer vnto the towarde the way of theyr lande, that thou hast geuen to theyr fathers, euen towarde the cyte which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name: then heare thou theyr prayer & supplicacyon in heauen, * from the seate of thy dwellynge, and execute iudgement for them, and be mercyful vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all theyr trespasses, wherwith they haue trãsgressed agaynst the, * and graunt them mercy in the syght of them which led them awaye prysoners that theyr enemyes may be mercyfull vnto thẽ: for they are thy people, and thyne enheritaũce, whom thou broughtest out of H Egipte, from the yron fornace: that thyne eyes may be open vnto the peticyon of thy seruaunt, and of thy people of Israel, that Exo.19.a thou mayest hear the in all thynges for the

which they shall call vpon the * for thou (O LORDE LORDE) hast sundred them out to be an enheritaunce vnto thy selfe, from amonge all the nacyons vpon earth, accor-dyng as thou saydest by Moses thy seruãt, whan thou broughtest oure fathers out of Egipte.

2.Par.7.a * And whan Salomon hadde ended al
this prayer and peticion before the LORDE,
he rose vp from the altare of the LORDE,
and lefte of from kneelynge and holdynge out of his handes towarde the heauen, and stode and blessed all the congregacyon of Israel with loude voyce, and sayd: Praysed be the LORDE which hath geuen rest vn to his people, accordynge as he sayd. There hath not one fayled of all his good wordes, which he spake by his seruaunt Moses.
The LORD our God be with vs, as he hath ben with our fathers, and forsake vs not, nother withdrawe his hande from vs, but bowe oure hartes vnto hym that we maye walke in all his wayes and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes, which he commaunded our fathers. And these wordes wherwith I haue made my pe ticyon before ỹ LORDE, come nye vnto the LORDE our God daye and nyght, ỹ he may execute iudgement for his seruaunt and for his people of Israel, euery one at his tyme,
I that all nacyons vpon earth maye knowe, that the LORDE is God, and that ther is none other. And let your harte be perfect wt
the LORDE our God, to walke in his statu tes, and to kepe his commaundementes, as it is this daye.

And the kynge with all Israell his people offred sacrifice before the LORDE. And Salomon offred thankofferynges (whiche he offred vnto the LORDE) two and twenty thousande oxen, and an hundreth & twen ty thousande shepe. So ỹ kynge and al the chyldren of Israel dedicated ỹ house of the LORDE. The same daye dyd the kynge dedicate the myddelmost court, which was be fore the house of ỹ LORDE: that he myght
there perfourme the burntofferynges, meat offerynges, and the fat of the thankofferyn-ges: for ỹ brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, was to lytle for the burntofferyn ges, meatofferynges, and for the fat of the thankofferynges.

* And at the same tyme made [illegible]
a solempne feast, and all Israel, a great con
gregacyon with hym, from the [illegible]
Hemath vnto ỹ ryuer of Egipte, before the LORDE our God, seuen dayes, and yet an uen dayes, that were fourtene dayes. And on the eyght daye he let the people go. And they blessed the kynge, and went vnto their tentes reioycinge and with a merry harte be cause of all the good that the LORDE had done vnto Dauid his seruaunt, and to his people of Israel.

The.ix.Chapter.

AND * whan Salomon had fi-nyshed the buyldyng of ỹ house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all that his desyre pleasure was to make, the LOR DE appeared vnto hym the seconde tyme,
* euen as he appeared vnto hym at Gibeon.
And the LORD sayd vnto hym: I haue hea thy prayer & peticyon, that thou hast made before me, and haue sanctified this house which thou hast buylded that I may set my name there for euer: and myne eyes and my hart shalbe there alway. And yf thou walke before me (as thy father Dauid walked) in a perfecte and true harte, so that thou do that I haue commaunded the, & kepe my ordynaunces and lawes: then will I sta blyshe the seat of thy kyngdom ouer Israel for euer, accordynge as I promysed thy fa ther Dauid, & sayd: * Thou shalt not want a man from the seate of Israel.

But yf ye turne backe fro me, ye & your chyldren, and kepe not my commaunde-mentes & ordynaunces which I haue layd
before you, but go and serue other goddes, and worshippe them, then will I cut Is raell out of the lande that I haue geuen
* And ỹ house ỹ I haue halowed vnto my name, will I put away fro my face. And Israell shall become a byworde and fable amonge all nacyons, and so shall this fayre house: so that euery one that goeth by, shall be astonyed, and make an hissynge and say
* Wherfore hath ỹ LORDE done thus vn to this lande and to this house? Then shall it be answered: Because they forsoke ỹ LOR DE theyr god, (which brought their fathers out of the lande of Egipte) and haue main tayned other goddes, and worshipped them & serued them. Therfore hath the LORDE brought all this euell vpon them.

* Now whã the twety yeares were [illegible]

wherin Salomon buylded ꝑ two houses, ꝑ LORDES house and the kynges house, 5.b * where vnto Hiram the kynge of Tyre brought Salomon Ceder trees and Pyne trees, and gold after al his desyre: thē gaue kynge Salomon vnto Hiram twenty cyties in the contre of Galile. And Hiram departed from Tyre to visite the cities which Salomon had geuen hym and they pleased hym not, and he sayd: What maner of cyties are these (my brother) that thou hast geuen me? And he called them the lande of Cabul vnto this daye. And Hirā sent vnto ꝑ kynge syxe score hūdreth weyght of gold. And the same is the summe of the tare, that kynge Salomon raysed to the buyldynge of the house of the LORDE, and his owne house, and Millo, and the walles of Jerusalem, and Hasor, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

D For Pharao the kynge of Egipte cam vp, and wāne Gaser, and brent it with fyre, and slewe the Canaanites that dwelt in ꝑ cyte, and gaue it for a gyfte vnto his doughter Salomons wyfe. So Salomon buylded Gaser, and the lower Bethorō, and Baelath and Thamar, in ꝑ wyldernesse, in the lande, and all the cyties of the corne houses that Salomon had, and al the cyties of the charrettes, and all the cyties of the horsemē and what it pleased hym to buylde at Jerusalem, in Libanus, and in euery contre of his dominion.

And all the remnaunt of the people of the Ammorites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israell, their children whiche they lefte behynde them in the lande (whom the children of Israel coulde not vtterly destroye) those dyd Salomon make tributaries vnto this daye.

*But of the children of Israel he made no bondmen, but let them be * men of warre and his seruāntes, and princes and knyghtes, and ouer his charrettes and horsemen.

E And ꝑ officers which were ouer Salomōs dalynesse, were fyue hundreth and fyftye, which ruled the people, and perfourmed the worke.

And Pharaos doughter wente vp from the cyte of Dauid, in to hir house * which 7.a he buylded for her. * Then buylded he Mil 11.a lo lyke wyse. And thre tymes in ꝑ yeare dyd Salomon offre burntofferynges, & thanke 12.a offerynges vpon ꝑ altare * that he had buylded vnto the LORDE, and burnt incense vpō it before the LORDE, and so was ꝑ house ended and fynyshed.

* And Salomon made shippes also at 3.Re.22.g. Ezeon Geber, which lyeth by Eloth beside 2.Pa.8.b the Reed see shore in the lande of the Edomites. And Hiram sent his seruauntes by shippe, which were shipmen, and had experience of the See, with Salomons seruaūtes, and they came vnto * Ophir, & fetched Jere.10.b. from thence one and twenty score hundreth weyght of golde, and brought it vnto kyng Salomon.

The.x. Chapter.

AND * whan kynge Salomons I fame of the name of the LORD 2 Pa.9.a came to the eares of ꝑ Quene Mat.12.b of syche Arabia, she came to proue hym with darke sentences. And she came to Jerusalem with a marualous great traine vō camels which bare spyces, and much golde, & precyous stones. And whan she came in to kynge Salomon she spake vnto hym al that was in hir hart. And Salomon told her euery thynge, and the kynge had nothynge in secrete, but he tolde it her. But whan the Quene of syche Arabia sawe al the wysedome of Salomō, and the house that he had buylded, and the meates of his table, and the dwellynges of his seruauntes, and the offices of his mynysters, and their garmentes, and his butlers and the burntofferynges which he offred in the house of the LORDE, she wondred exceadyngly, and coulde no longer refrayne, but sayd vnto the kynge: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behaueour and of thy wysedome. And I wolde not beleue it, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes: & beholde, the halfe hath not ben tolde me.

Thou hast more wysedome and good, B then the fame is that I haue herde. Happy are thy people and thy seruauntes, that alwaye stande before the, and heare thy wysedome: Praysed be ꝑ LORDE thy God, which had such a pleasure vnto the, that he set the vpon the seat of Israel: because he hath alwaye loued Israell, and hath set the to be kynge, that thou shuldest mantayne iustice and equite.

And she gaue the kynge fyre score hundreth weyght of golde and very muche spice, and precious stones. Ther came neuer so much spyce thyther, as the Quene of syche Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salomon. And Hirams shippes, * which caryed golde out 1.Reg.9.b. of Ophir, brought maruelous much costly tymber and precyous stones from Ophir. And of the costlye tymber the kynge caused to make pilers in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and harpes, and C Psalteries for the musicias. Ther came no more such costly tymber, nother was it sene vnto this daye. And kinge Salomon gaue the Quene of ryche Arabia, all that she desyred and ared, besydes that, which he gaue her of a fre hande. And she returned, and departed in to hir lande with hir seruauntes.

The golde that came to Salomō in one yeare was in weyght sixe hundreth, & sixe & thre score talentes, besyde ỹ which came of chapmen, marchauntes, and apoticaries, & of the nerre kynges, and of the myghtie mē in the lande. And kynge Salomō caused to make two hūdreth speares of beaten gold, sixe hūdreth peces of golde put he to euery

2 Par. 9. a ry shylde. And ỹ kynge put thē * in ỹ house of the wood of Libanus.

D And the kynge made a great seate of yuery, and ouerlayed it with the moost precious golde. And the seat had sixe steppes, and the head of the seat was roūde behynd. And ther were two postes to leane vpon on both the sydes of the seate, and two Lyons stode vpon the leanynge postes, and twelfe lyons stode vpon ỹ sixe steppes, on both the sydes. Such one hath not ben made in ony kyngdome. Al kynge Salomōs drynkyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels in the house of the wood of Lybanus were of pure golde also: for syluer was not regarded in Salomons tyme. * For the kynges

* Thus was kynge Salomon greater

And the kynge brought it to passe, that ther was as muche syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders as ther were wylde sygge trees in the valleys. And Salomons horses were brought out of Egipt, and from Kcua: for the kynges marchantes fetched them frō Kcua for money. And charrette came vp out of Egipte for sixe hundreth sycles of syluer, & an horse for an hundreth and fyftye. Thus were they brought also vnto all the kynges of the Hetites and to the kynges of Syria by their handes.

The.xi. Chapter.

BUt kynge Salomon loued many outlandyshe wemen, as Pharaos doughter, and wemen of Moab, of Ammon, of Edom, of Sydon, and of Hyth, out of those nacyons, that the LORDE spake vnto the chyldren of Israell: * Go not ye in to them, and let not them come vnto you, they shal surely bowe your hartes after their goddes: Unto these dyd Salomon cleue with affeccyon. And he had seuen hundreth wemen to wyues, and thre hundreth concubynes, & his wyues turned his harte. And whan he was nowe olde, his wyues wowed his harte after straūge goddes, & his harte was not whole with the LORDE his God, as was the harte of Dauid his father.

So Salomon walked after Astaroth God of the Sidontans, and after Melchom the abhominacyon of the Ammonites. Salomon dyd that whiche displeased the LORDE, and folowed not ỹ LORDE vttermoost as dyd his father Dauid. Then buylded Salomon an hye place vnto Chemos the abhominacyon of the Moabites (vpon the mount that lyeth before Jerusalem) and vnto Moloch the abhominacyon of the Ammonites.

Thus dyd Salomon for all his outlandysh wyues, which brent incese, and dyd vnto their goddes. But the LORDE was wroth at Salomon, because his harte was turned aside frō the LORDE God of Israel, * which had two tymes appered vnto him, and commaunded hym, that he shulde not walke after other goddes: and yet kept he not that the LORDE cōmaunded hym. Wherfore sayd the LORDE vnto Salomon: Forasmuch as this is done with the, and thou hast not kepte my couenaunt and myne ordinaunces, which I cōmaunded the, I will I also plucke thy kyngdome from the, and geue it vnto thy seruaut: Neuertheles in thy tyme will I not do it, for thy father Dauids sake, * but from the hande of thy sonne will I plucke it. Howbeit I will not plucke the kyngdome cleane away, tryde wyll I geue vnto thy ſonne, for Dauid my ſeruauntes ſake, and for Jeruſalems ſake which I haue choſen.

And the LORDE rayſed vp an aduerſary vnto Salomon, euen Hadad the Edomite of the kinges ſede, which was in Edō. For whā Dauid was in Edom, & Joab the chefe captayne wente vp to bury the ſlayne, he ſmote all the males in Edom. (For Joab remained there ſixe monethes and al Iſrael, tyll he had roted out all the males that were in Edom.) Then fled Hadad & certain men of the Edomites with hym, of his fathers ſeruauntes. As for Hadad, he was a ponge man.

And they gat them vp fro Madian, & came vnto Paran, and toke mē with them out of Paran, and came in to Egipte, vnto Pharao the kynge of Egipte: which gaue hym an houſe and certayne vytayles appoynted & gaue hym a contre. And Hadad founde great fauoure in the ſyght of Pharao, ſo that he gaue hym to wyfe euen the ſyſter of his owne wyfe Thaphenes ꝑ Quene And Thaphenes ſyſter bare hym Genubath his ſonne, and Thaphenes norſhed hym vp in Pharaos houſe, in ſo much that Genubath was in Pharaos houſe amonge Pharaos chyldren.

Now whan Hadad herde in Egipte ꝑ Dauid was fallē on ſlepe with his fathers, and that Joab the chefe captain was dead, he ſayd vnto Pharao: Let me go in to my contre. Pharao ſayd vnto hym: What lacketh thou with me, that thou wylte go in to thy contre? He ſayd: Nothynge, but yet let me go.

God rayſed hym vp another aduerſary alſo, one Reſon the ſonne of Eliada, which fled from his lorde Hadad Eſer the kynge of Zeba, and gathered men agaynſt hym, & was a captayne of the men of warre whan Dauid ſlewe them: & they wente vnto Damaſcus and dwelt there, & raygned at Damaſcus & he was Iſraels aduerſary as lōg as Salomon lyued. This is ꝑ harme that Hadad ſuffred: therfore had he euell wyl at Iſrael, & was kynge ouer Syria.

Moreouer Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat an Ephratte of Sareda Salomōs ſeruaunt (and his mothers name was Zeruga, a wedowe) lyft vp his hāde alſo againſt kynge. Whā Salomon buylded Mſillo, he ſhut vp a gappe in the cyte of Dauid his father. And Jeroboā was a man of armes. And whan Salomon ſawe that it was a meete ponge man, he ſet hym ouer al the burthens of the houſe of Joſeph.

But at the ſame tyme it fortuned, that Jeroboam wente out from Jeruſalem, and the prophet Ahias of Silo foūd him by the way & he had a newe cloke vpon him, & they two were alone in the felde. And Ahia toke holde of ꝑ newe cloke that he had on, & rente the ſame in to twelfe peces, and ſayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thou ten peces vnto the.

For thus ſayeth the LORDE God of Iſrael: Beholde, euen thus wyl I rent ꝑ kyngdome from the hande of Salomon, & wyll geue the ten trybes. One tryde ſhal he haue for my ſeruaunt Dauids ſake, and becauſe of the cytte of Jeruſalem, * whiche I haue choſen out of al ꝑ trybes of Iſrael: for they haue forſakē me, and worſhipped Aſtaroth the god of the Sidoniās, Chamos the god of the Moabites, and Malcon ꝑ god of the chyldren of Ammō, and haue not walked in my wayes, to fulfyll my pleaſure, myne ordynaunces, and lawes, as dyd Dauid his father. 2 Sa.7.c.

Notwithſtandynge I wyll not take the whole kyngdome from out of his hāde, but wyll make hym a prynce as longe as he lyueth for my ſeruaunt Dauids ſake, whom I dyd chooſe, which kept my commaundementes and ordynaunces. * From out of ꝑ hande of his ſonne wyll I take the kyngdome, and wyll geue ten trybes vnto the, and one vnto his ſonne, * that Dauid my ſeruaunt maye alwaye haue a lanterne before me in my cytie of Jeruſalem, whiche I haue choſen, that I maye ſet my name there. Therfore wyll I take the now, to raygne ouer all that thyne harte deſyreth, & thou ſhalt be kynge ouer Iſrael. ¶ If thou folowe now al that I cōmaunde the, & walke in my wayes, & fulfyl my pleaſure to kepe myne ordynaunces and commaundementes, as dyd my ſeruaunt Dauid, then wyll I be with the, and buylde the a ſure houſe, as I buylded vnto Dauid, and wyll geue Iſrael vnto ꝑ, and therwith wyl I ſubdue the ſede of Dauid, but not for euermore, 3.Re.12.f. 3.Re.15.a. pſal.132.b.

But Salomon ſought to kyll Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam gat hym vp, and fled in to Egipte to Siſak the kynge of Egipte, & remayned in Egipte, tyll Salomon dyed.

What more ther is to ſaye of Salomō, and all that he dyd, and his wyſedome, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of Salomō. The tyme that Salomon was kinge at Jeruſalē ouer al Iſrael, is forty yeares. And Salomon fell on ſlepe with his fathers, & was buried in the cyte of Dauid his father, and Roboā his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xii. Chapter.

AND * Roboam wente vnto Sychem, for all Israel was come vnto Sichē to make him kyng
2.Par.10.a And whan Jeroboam the sōne of Nebat herde that, whyle he
3.Re.11.g. was yet in Egipte, * (whether he was fled for Salomō) he cam agayne out of Egipt. And they sent for him, and called hym. And Jeroboam with al the congregacyon of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayd: Thy father made our yocke to harde, therfore make thou now the harde bōdage and the sore yock lyghter, that he layed vpō vs, and we wyll submytte our selues vnto the. He sayd vnto thē: Go your waye vnto the thyrde daye, and then come to me agayne. And the people wente theyr waye.

And Roboam the kynge helde a councell with the Elders that stode before Salomon his father whyle he lyued, and sayd: What is your councell, that we maye geue this people an answere? They sayde vnto hym: yf thou do this people a pleasure to daye, and folowe theyr mynde, and heare them, and geue them good wordes, thē shal they be obedient vnto the as longe as thou lyuest. Neuertheles he forsoke the coūcell that the Elders had geuen hym, and ared councell at the yonge men which were growen vp with hym, and stode before hym.

B And he sayd vnto them: What is your councel that we maye answere this people which haue sayd vnto me: Make the yocke lyghter that thy father hath layed vpō vs. And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, sayd vnto hym: Where as ꝑ people haue sayd vnto the: Thy father hath made our yocke to sore, make thou it easyer for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lytle fynger shalbe thycker then my fathers loynes.

Now, my father layed a sore yock vpō you, but I wyl yet laye more theron. My father correct you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions.

So vpō the thyrd day came Jeroboam wt all the people vnto Roboā, as the kynge had appoynted & sayd: Come to me agayne on the thyrde daye.

And the kynge gaue the people an hard rough answere, and forsoke the councell ꝑ the Elders had geuē hym, and talked with them after the councell of the yonge men, & sayd: My father made your yocke sore, but I wyll make it yet sorer vpon you. My father correct you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions.

The kynge folowed not the peoples mynde, for he was turned so from the LORDE, for he myght stablyshe his worde * which he spake by Ahias of Silo vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

But whā al Israel sawe that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people gaue the kynge an answere, and sayd: * What portion haue we thē in Dauid, or enheritaūce in the sonne of Isai? Get the to thy tentes O Israell. Loke thou now to thy house thou Dauid. So Israell went vnto their tentes. As for Roboam, he raygned ouer the chyldren of Israel, which dwelt in the cyties of Juda. And kynge Roboam sent thyther * Adoram the rentgaderer, and all Israel stoned hym to death. But kynge Roboam strengthed hymselfe, and got vp in a charrette, to flye vnto Jerusalem. Thus departed Israell from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

Now whan all Israel herde, that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent for hym to the whole congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer all Israel. And none followed the house of Dauid, saue only the tryde of Juda. * And whan Roboam came to Jerusalem, all the house of Juda with the tryde of Ben Jamin (euen an hundreth and foure score thousande chosen men of warre) gathered them selues together to fyght agaynst ꝑ house of Israel, and to bryng the kyngdome agayne to Roboam the sonne of Salomon.

But the worde of God came to Semei the man of God, and sayd: Speake thou to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to all the house of Juda and Jamin, and to al the other people, and say: Thus sayeth the LORDE: ye shall not go vp and fyght agaynst your brethren the children of Israel. Let euery man go home agayne, for this is my dede. And they obeyed vnto the worde of the LORDE, and turned backe, to go theyr waye, as the LORDE sayd. But Roboam buylded Sichem vpon mount Ephraim, and dwelt there, and departed thēce, and buylded Phanuel.

Jeroboā thought in his hart: The kyngdome shall fal agayne now vnto the house of Dauid, yf this people go vp to offer in the LORDES house at Jerusalem, and so shall the hart of this people turne to their lorde Roboam kynge of Juda, and thē shal they lay me, & fall agayne to Roboā kynge of Juda. And the kynge helde a coūcell * and made two golden calues, and sayde vnto them: It is to much for you to go vp to Jerusalem: beholde, * there is thy God (O Israell) which brought ꝓ out of Egypte. And the one set he at Bethel, and the other set he in Dā. And this dede turned to synne, for the people went before the one vnto Dan.

He made an house also in the hye places * and made prestes of the smalest in the people, which were not of the children of Leui. And vpon the fyfteenth day of the eyght moneth he made an holye daye, lyke as the solempne feast in Juda, and offered vpon the altare. Thus dyd he at Bethell, in doynge sacrifice vnto ꝓ calues which he had made: and at Bethell he ordeyned the prestes of ꝓ hye places that he had made, and offred vpon the altare (which he had made) at Bethel the fyfteenth day of the eyght moneth which he inuented of his owne hart. And he made the chyldren of Israell an holy daye, & wēt vp to the altare to burne incense.

The.xiii. Chapter.

AND beholde ther came a man of God from Juda, (thorow the worde of the LORDE) vnto Bethell, and Jeroboam stode by ꝓ altare to burne incense. And he cryed agaynst the altare thorow the worde of the LORDE, and sayde: O altare, altare, thus sayeth the LORD: Beholde, ther shalbe borne vnto the house of Dauid a sonne, Josias by name * which on the shall offre prestes of the hye places, that burne incense vpō ꝓ, & mēs bones shalbe burnt on the. And he gaue a wonder token the same daye and sayde: This is the tokē that the LORD hath spoken it beholde, the altare shal rytue, and the ashes, ꝓ are theron, shalbe powred out.

But whan the kynge herde the worde of the man of God, that cryed agaynst the altare at Bethell, he stretched out his hande by the altare, and sayd: Lay hādes on him. And his hāde that he stretched out agaynst hym, withered, and he coulde not drawe it vnto hym agayn. And the altare dyd rytue, and the ashes were powred out from the altare, accordynge to the wonder token that the man of God had geuen by the worde of the LORDE.

And the kynge answered, and sayd, to ꝓ man of God: * O praye the face of the LORDE thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande maye be restored vnto my agayne. Then prayed the man of God vnto the face of the LORD. And the kynges hāde was restored hym agayne, & became as it was afore. And ꝓ kynge sayde vnto ꝓ man of God: Come home with me, and dine, and I wyll geue the a rewarde.

But the mā of God sayd vnto ꝓ kyng: yf thou gauest me halfe thy house, I wyll not come with the: for in this place wyll I nother eate breade, nor drynke water. For thus am I cōmaunded, and thus is it sayd vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate no bread, & drynke no water, nother returne the waye that thou wentest.

And he departed another waye, and returned not agayne the way that he came to Bethell. But at Bethell ther dwelt an olde prophete, vnto whom his sōnes came, and tolde hym all the wordes ꝓ the man of God had done that day at Bethell, & the wordes that he had spoken vnto the kynge. And they father sayde vnto them: Which waye is he gone? And his sonnes shewed him the waye that ꝓ man of God was gone: which came from Juda. He sayde vnto his sōnes: Sadle me the asse. And whan they had sadled hym the asse, he rode theron, and went after the man of God, and founde hym sytynge vnder an Oke tre, & sayd vnto him: Art thou the man of God that came frō Juda? He sayde: yee.

He sayde vnto hym: Come home with me, & eate bread. He sayd: I maye not turne backe with the, and come with the, nother wyll I eate bread, nor drynke water with ꝓ in this place: for it is spokē vnto me by the worde of the LORD: Thou shalt nother eate breade there, nor yet drynke water, nother shalt thou go agayne by the waye whyche thou wētest. He sayde vnto hym: I my selfe am a prophete as well as thou, and an angel hath spoken with me by the worde of ꝓ LORDE, and sayde: Bringe hym agayne wt the, that he maye eate breade, and drynke water. But he lyed vnto hym, and brought hym agayne, so that he dyd eate bread, and dranke water in his house.

And whā they sat at the table, the worde of the LORDE came to the prophet that had brought hym agayne, and cryed vnto ꝓ mā which was come frō Juda, and said: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, and haste not kepte the commaundement that the LORD thy God commaunded the, but hast turned backe, and hast eatē bread, and dronken water in the place wherof he sayd vnto the: Thou shalt nother eat bread nor drynke water, therfore shall not thy body come in to thy fathers graue.

And whan he had eaten breade and dronken, the asse was sadled vnto the prophete
3 Re.20.f whom he had brought agayne.* And whan he was gone, a lyon founde him by the waye and slew hym, and his body was cast in the waye. And the asse stode by hym, and the lyon stode by the body. And whan men were by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon stondynge beside the body, & they came and tolde it in the cytye, where ỹ olde prophete dwelt.

¶ Whan the prophet which had brought hym agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORD, therfore hath ỹ LORDE delyuered hym vnto ỹ lyon, which hath rente hym, and slayne him, accordyng to the word that the LORD spake vnto hum. And he sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddel me the asse. And whan they had sadled it, he went, and founde his body cast in the way, and the asse and the lyon stondynge beside the body. The lyon had eaten nothynge of the body, nother had he torne the asse. The toke the prophete the dead coarse of the man of God, and layed it vpon ỹ asse, & brought it agayne in to ỹ cytye of the olde prophet, to mourne, and to burye hym.

¶ And he layd ỹ coarse in his owne graue and they mourned for hym: Alas my brother. And whan they had buryed hym, he sayd vnto his sonnes: Whan I dye, burye me in the graue where the man of God is buryed, and lay my body beside his bones.
4.Re.23.b * For it shall come to passe, that he cryed (throw ỹ worde of ỹ LORD) against ỹ altar at Bethel, & against all the houses of the hye places, which are in ỹ cytyes of Samaria.

Howbeit after this acte dyd not Jeroboam turne from his euell waye, but was peruerted, and made prestes of the hye places, euen of the smalleste of the people: Loke whom it pleased him, his handes he fylled and he was prest of ỹ hye places. And this turned to synne vnto the house of Jeroboã, to destroye hym, and to brynge hym to naught, from of the earth.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ AT the same tyme was Abia the sonne of Jeroboam sycke, and Jeroboam sayd vnto his wyfe: Get the vp, and dysguyse the, so that noman perceaue ỹ thou art Jeroboams wyfe, and go vnto Silo: beholde there is the prophete Ahias, * which promysed me that I shulde be kynge ouer this people: and take with the ten loaues of bread and cakes, and a cup wyth honye, and go to hym that he maye tell the what shall go with the chylde. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so, and gat her vp, and went to Silo, and came in to the house of Ahias. But Ahias coulde not se for his eyes were dymme for age. Neuertheles the LORDE sayde vnto Ahias: Behold, Jeroboams wyfe commeth, to axe a matter at the for hir sonne, for he is sycke. Speake thou the fore vnto her thus and thus. Now when she came in, she shewed her selfe straunge. But whan Ahias herde the noyse of her feet entynge in at the dore, he sayde: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam. Why shewest thou thy selfe so straunge? I am sente vnto the harde messaunger.

Go thy waye and tell Jeroboam: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: I exalted the from among the people, and set the to be prynce ouer my people of Israel, and haue rent the kyngdome fro the house of Dauid, and geuen it the. But thou hast not bene as my seruaũt Dauid, which kept my cõmaundementes, and walked after me with all his harte, so that he dyd only that thynge that was right in my sight: & thou hast done worse thẽ all they ỹ haue been before ỹ: thou hast gone thy waye & made the other goddes, & molten ymages, to prouoke me to wrath, & hast cast me behynd the back.

Beholde therfore, wyl I brynge euyll vpon the house of Jeroboam, & wyl rote out from Jeroboam euẽ hym that pisseth water agaynst the wall, the preserued forsaken in Israell: & the posterite of the house of Jeroboam wyll I swepe out, as dõge is swept out, tyll he be cleane brought to naught. * He that dyeth (of Jeroboam) in the cytye, ỹ dogges shall eate hym vp. And hym that dyeth in the felde, shal ỹ foules of the ayer eate vp, for ỹ LORDE hath spoken.

Get the vp therfor, and go home, & when thy fete entre in to the cytye, the chylde shall dye. And all Israel shall bewayle hym, and burye hym. For he only of Jeroboam shall come to ỹ graue because ther is some good founde in hym before the LORD God of Israel in Jeroboams house. * But the LORDE shall rayse hym vp a kynge ouer Israel which shall rote out the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is it, that is now in hande all readye? And the LORDE shall smyte Israell, lyke as a rede is moued

in the water: and shall rote out Israell frō this good londe, that he gaue vnto their fathers, and shal scater them beyonde the water, because they haue made theyr groues to prouoke the LORD vnto wrath. And Israell shalbe genē ouer because of the synne of Jeroboam, which had synned hymselfe, and made Israell to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe gat her vp, went hir waye, and came vnto Thirza. And whā she came vpon the treshold of the house, the childe dyed, and they buryed hym, and all Israell made lamentacyon for him, * accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruaunt Ahia the prophete. * What more ther is to say of Jeroboam, how he fought and raygned, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. The tyme that Jeroboam raygned was two and twentye yeare. And he slepte with his fathers. And Nadab his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Roboā the sonne of Salomō was kyng in Juda. * One and fortye yeare olde was Roboam whan he was made kynge, and seuentene yeare raygned he at Jerusalem, in the cytye that the LORDE had chosen out of all tribes of Israell, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naema an Ammonityssе. And Juda dyd that which displeased the LORD, and prouoked hym to indignacyon more than al that theyr fathers had done with theyr synnes which they dyd: for they lykewyse buylded them hye places, pyllers, and groues vpon euery hye hyll, and amonge al grene trees. Ther were whoremongers also in the londe, and they dyd all the abhominacions of the Heythen, whom the LORDE droue out before the chyldren of Israell.

* But in the fyfthe yeare of kynge Roboam weute Sisack the kynge of Egypte vp agaynst Jerusalē, and toke the treasure out of the house of the LORDE, and out of the kynges house, and al that might be gotten, & toke all the shyldes of golde, * which Salomō caused to be made. In stead wher of the kynge Roboam caused for to make shyldes of stele, and cōmytted the vnder the handes of the cheefe footemē, which kepte ye dore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kynge wente in to the house of the LORDE, the footemē bare them, and broughte them agayne in to the footemēs chamber.

What more ther is to saye of Roboam, and all that he dyd, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. But bet wene Roboam and Jeroboam ther was warre as lōge as they lyued. And * Roboā slepte with his fathers, and was buryed vi his fathers in ye cytie of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naema an Ammonityssе. And his sōne Abia was kyng in his steade. 2.par.12.c

The.xv. Chapter.

ANn the * eyghteenth yeare of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, was Abia kynge in Juda, and raygned three yeare at Jerusalē, his mothers name was * Maecha, the doughter of Abisalon & he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before him, and his hart was not perfecte with the LORDE his God as was ye harte of Dauid his father. * For because of Dauids sake dyd the LORDE his God geue hym a lanterne at Jerusalem, so that he rayled his sonne after hym, and mātayned hym at Jerusalem, because Dauid dyd the thynge that was ryght in the syght of the LORDE, and departed not frō all that he cōmaunded him as longe as he liued (saue vnge in the matter * with Urias the Hethite). But ther was warre bet wene Roboam and Jeroboam, as longe as he lyued. 2.par.11.g 3.Reg.11.f 2.Re.11.d

What more ther is to saye of Abia and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of ye kinges of Juda. There was warre also bet wene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in to the cytye of Dauid. And Asa his sōne was kynge in his steade. * In the twētyeth yeare of kynge Jeroboam ouer Israel, was Asa kynge in Juda, & raygned one and fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His graundmothers name was Maecha the doughter of Abisalō. And Asa did ye which was right of the sight of the LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. And he remoued ye * whoremongers out of the lāde, and put downe all the Idols ye his fathers had made * And put his mother also from the ministracion, that she made vnto Mipleseth in ye groue. And Asa roted out hir Mipleseth, and brēt it in the broke of Cedrō, but the hye places put he not downe. Yet was the hart of Asa perfecte with the LORDE as longe as he lyued. And ye syluer & golde, and vessels ye his father had halowed, & such as was sanctified vnto the house of the LORD, ye brought he in. And ther was warre bet wene Asa & Baesa ye kynge of Israel, as lōge as they lyued. B 2.par.14.a 3.Re.22.a 2.par.15.b C

3.Re.20.a to * Benadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sone of Hesion kyng of Siria, which dwelt at Damascon, & let saye vnto hym: Ther is a conuenaunt betwene me and the, and betwene my father & thyfather: therfore sende I the a presente of syluer and golde, that thou shuldeste breake the conuenaut which thou hast with Baesa the kynge of Israell, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadad agreed vnto kynge Asa, and sent his captaynes agaynst the cyties of Israell, and smote Iton, and Dan, and Abell Bethmaecha, and all Cineroth wyth the whole lãde of Nephtali. Whã Baesa herde that, he lefte of from buildynge Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thirza.

D Kynge Asa caused it be proclamed in all Juda: Here may noman be excepted. And they toke awaye the stones and tymber frõ Rama, wherwith Baesa had buylded. And kynge Asa buylded Geba Ben Jamin, and Maspa therwith.

What more ther is to saye of Asa & of al his power, and all that he dyd, and of the cytes which he buylded, beholde, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda: sa uynge that in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa slepte with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cy-

E But Nadab ỹ sonne of Jeroboam was kynge of Israell in the seconde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, and raygned ouer Israel two yeares, and dyd euel in the syght of the LORD, & walked in the way of hys father, and in his synnes, wherwith he made Israell to sinne. Howbeit, Baesa the sonne of Ahia of the house of Issachar conspyred agaynst hym, and smote hym at Gibbethon, which was the Philistynes: for Nadab and al Israell layed syege to Gibbethon. So Baesa slewe hym in the thirde yeare of Asa kynge
3.Re.14.c of Juda, & was kyng in hys steade. * Now whan he was kynge, he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and let nothynge of Jeroboam remayne that had breth, tyll he had destroyed it accordige to ỹ worde of the LORD which he spake by his seruaũt Ahia of Silo, because of Jeroboãs synnes, whiche he dyd, & made Israell to synne withall, euen with the prouokynge wherwith he prouoked the LORDE God of Israel.

What more ther is to saye of Nadab, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell, & ther was warre betwene Asa & Baesa ỹ kyng of Israell, as longe as they lyued.

In the thyrde yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, was Baesa ỹ sonne of Ahia kynge ouer all Israel at Thirza foure & twenty yeare, and dyd that which was euell in the syght of the LORD, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, & in his sinnes, wherwith he made Israell to synne.

Neuertheles the worde of the LORDE came vnto Jehu the sone of Hanani agaynst Baesa, and sayde: For so much as I haue the out of the dust, and made the prynce ouer my people of Israell, and thou walkest in the waye of Jeroboam, and makest my people of Israell for the synne, to prouoke me vnto wrath thorowe theyre synnes, beholde, therfore wyll I take away the posterite of Baesa, & the posteritye of his house, and wyll set thyne house euen as the house of Jeroboam ỹ sonne of Nebat. * Him of Baesa dyeth in the cite, ỹ dogges shall deuoure hym: & who so beyng of hym dyeth in the felde, ỹ foules of ỹ ayre shall eate hym.

What more ther is to say of Baesa and what he dyd, and of his power, beholde, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Baesa slept wt his fathers and was buried at Thirza: and his sonne Ela was kynge in his steade. And the worde of the LORDE came by the prophete Jehu sonne of Hanani ouer Baesa, and ouer his house, & agaynst al the euell ỹ he dyd in the syghte of the LORDE, to prouoke hym to wrath thorow the workes of his handes, that he became as the house of Jeroboam, and because he slew [illegible] this man.

The.xvi.Chapter.

IN the xxvi and twentyth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, began Ela the sonne of Baesa kyng ouer Israel at Thirza thre yeares. Neuertheles his seruaũt Simri, the prynceppal man ouer ỹ halfe of the charrettes cõspyred agaynst hym. And Ela, he was at Thirza, dranke & was dronken in the house of Arza ỹ ruler of Thirza. And Simri came in, and slewe hym in the seuen and twentyeth yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, and was kynge in his steade. & Ju whan he was kynge and sat vpõ his [illegible]

he smote al the house of Baesa, and left not so much as one to make water agaynst the wall: his blonde auenger also & his frendes.
21 * Thus dyd Symri destroye all the house of Baesa, accordynge to the worde of ỹ LORDE, which he spake ouer Baesa by the prophete Jehu, because of all ỹ synnes of Baesa and of Ela his sonne, which they dyd, & made Israel for to synne, to prouoke ỹ LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath thorow their vanityes. What more ther is to saye of Ela, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.

B In the seuen and twentyeth yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, was Simri kynge seuē dayes at Thirza, and the people laye before Gibbethō of the Philistynes. But whā the people in the hoolde herde saye that Simri had conspyred and slayne the kynge, thē all Israel the same daye made Amri the chefe captayne kyng ouer al in ỹ hoost. And Amri went vp and all Israell with hym from 22 Gibbethō, & layed syege vnto Thirza. * But whan Simri sawe that the cytye shulde be wonne, he went in to the palace in the kynges house, and brēt it vp the kynges house, and dyed because of his synnes whiche he had cōmytted, in that he dyd euel in ỹ sight of the LORD, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes whiche he dyd, wherwith he made Israell to synne.

What more ther is to saye of Simri, & how he conspyred, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. At the same tyme were the people deuyded in two partes: ỹ one parte helde with Thibni the sonne of Ginath that they myght make hym kynge: the other halfe helde with Amri. But ỹ people that held with Amri, were mightier then the people which holde with Thibni the sonne of Ginath. And Thibni dyed, and Amri was kynge.

C In the one & thirtteth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Amri kynge ouer Israel. xii. yeares, and raygned at Thirza sixe yeares. He bought the mount of Samaria of Semer for two hundreth weight of syluer, and buylded vpon the mount and called the cytye which he buylded, after the name of Semer the owner of the mount of Samaria. And Amri dyd that which was euell in the sight of the LORDE, and was worse then al they that were before hym, and walked in al the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & in his synnes, wherwith he made Israell to synne, so ỹ they prouoked the LORD of Israell vnto wrath in theyre vanityes.

What more ther is to saye of Amri, and all that he dyd, and his power that he exercysed, beholde, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Amri slept with his fathers, & was buryed i Samaria. And Achab his sonne was kynge in his steade.

D In the eyght and thyrtyeth yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, was Achab the sonne of Amri kynge ouer Israell, and raygned ouer Israell at Samaria two and twentye yeare, and dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, more thē all they that were before him. And he thoughte it but a small matter to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sōne of Nebat: * & toke Jesabel the doughter of Deut. 7.a Eth Baall kynge of Sidon to wyfe, and went and serued Baall, and worshypped him. And vnto Baall he set vp an altare in Baals house, which he buylded him in Samaria, & made a groue: so that Achab dyd more to prouoke the God of Israell vnto wrath, then all the kynges that were before hym in Israell.

At the same tyme dyd Hiell of Bethell buylde Jericho: * It cost hym his first sōne Josue. 6. a Abiram, that he layed the fundacion: and his yongest sonne Segub, that he set vp ỹ portes: accordynge to the worde of LORD, whiche he spake by Josua ỹ sonne of Nun.

The.xvii. Chapter.

ELIAS the Thesbite, one of the inhabiters of Gilead, sayd vnto Achab: * As truly as the LORDE God of Israell lyueth, whose seruaunt I am, ther shal nother rayne nor dewe come this yeare, excepte I speake it. 3. Reg. 18. f. 4 Reg. 3. c. Jacob. 5. c. Luce. 4. c

And the worde of the LORD came vnto hym, and sayde: Get the hence, and turne ỹ toward ỹ east & hyde the by the ryuer Crith whiche is ouer agaynst Jordane, and thou shalt drynke of the ryuer: And I haue commaūded ỹ rauēs, that they shal fede ỹ there. He departed, & dyd accordynge to ỹ worde of ỹ LORD, and went his way, and sat hym downe by the ryuer Crith, whiche is ouer agaynst Jordane. And the rauens brought hym breade and flesh in the mornynge, and in the euenynge, and he dranke of the ryuer.

And it forturned after certayne dayes, ỹ ỹ riuer was dryed vp: for ther was no raine in the lāde. Thē came ỹ word of ỹ LORD vnto hym, & sayd: * Get the vp, & go vnto Sarepta, which lieth by Sidō: for ther haue I cōmaūded a wedow to make prouisiō for repta, And whan he came to the gate of the cytye, beholde, the wedowe was there, and gathered stykes. And he called her, and sayde: Fetche me a lytle water in a vessell, that I may drynke. And as she was goyng to fetch it, he cryed vnto her, & sayd: Bryng me a morsell of breade also in thyne hande. She sayde: As truly as the LORD thy God lyueth, I haue no bread, but an handfull of floure in a pitcher, and a cruselye oyle in a cruse; and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two stykes, and wyll go and prepare it for me and my sonne, þ we maye eate & dye.

And he gat him vp, and wēte vnto Sa-

Elias sayde vnto her: Feare not, go thy waye, and do as thou hast sayde: yet make fyrst a morsell of breade therof, and bryng it me forth: & afterwarde shalt thou make it for the, and thy sonne. For thus sayth the LORDE God of Israell: The meell in þ pitcher shall not be spente, and the oyle in the cruse shall not fayll, vntyl the daye that the LORDE shal cause it for to rayn vpon earth. She wente and dyd as Elias sayd. And he dyd eat, and she also, & hir house a certayne season. The meel in the pitcher was not mynshed and the oyle in the cruse fayled not, accordyng to the worde of the LORD which he spake by Elias.

C ✠ And after these actes the sonne of the wyfe of the house was sycke: and his sycknesse was so exceadynge sore, that ther remayned no breth in hym. And she sayd vnto Elias: What haue I to do with þ, thou mã of God? Art thou come in vnto me, that my synne shulde be kepte in remẽbraunce, and that my sonne shuld be slayne? He sayd vnto her: Geue me thy sonne. And he toke hym from hir lappe, and caryed hym vp in to the chamber where he hymselfe dwelt, & layd hym vpon his bed, and called vpõ the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE my God hast thou dealt so euell with the wedowe with whome I dwell, that thou woldest slay hir sonne? ✠ And he stretched out himselfe ouer

the chylde thre tymes, and called vpon the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE my God, let þ soule of this childe come agayne in to hym. And the LORDE herde the voyce of Elias. And the soule of the childe came agayne to hym & he reuyued. And Elias toke þ chyld, brought hym downe from the chamber in to þ house, and delyuered him vnto his mother, and sayde: Beholde thy sonne lyueth. And þ womã sayd vnto Elias: Now know I, that thou art a mã of God, and that the worde of the LORDE is in thy mouth of a treuth.

The.xviii. Chapter.

AND after a longe season came the worde of the LORD vnto Elias in the thyrde yeare, sayd: ✠ Go thy waye & shew thy vnto Achab, that I may sen it for to rayne vpon earth. And Elias to shewe hymselfe vnto Achab. was a greate derthe in Samaria, Achab called Abdia his chefe officer. Abdia he feared þ LORDE greatly: for Jesabell roted out the prophetes of þ DE, Abdia toke an C. prophetes and them in caues, here fyftye, and there and prouyded for them with breade and ter. Achab now sayde vnto Abdia: Go row the lande, vnto all the welles and ryuers, yf happlye we maye fynde to saue the horses and mules, that all tell perysshe not. And they parted the in to the lãde, to go thorow it. Achab ted the one waye alone, and Abdia the waye alone.

Now whan Abdia was on the Elias met hym. And whan he knewe he fell downe vpon his face, and sayde not thou my lorde Elias? He sayde: ye, thy waye, and tell thy lorde: beholde, is here: But he sayde: What haue I ded, þ thou wylt delyuer thy seruaunt þ hãdes of Achab, that he may slaye truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, no people nor kyngdom. But my lord sent thether to seke the. And whã they he is not here, he toke an oth of the kyngdome & naciõ, that they had not the. And now thou sayest: Go tell thy behold, Elias is here. Now wyl I from the, the spyrete of the LORD shulde the away, I cã not tel whither: and I came and tolde Achab, and founde he shulde slaye me: But thy seruaut the LORD frõ his youth vp. Hath it tolde my lorde what I dyd, whan Iesabel slew the prophetes of the LORDE, I hyd an hundreth of the LORDES pro tes, here fyftye, and there fyftie in the and prouyded for them with breade and ter. And thou sayest now: Go thy thy lorde, Elias is here: that he maye me. Elias sayde: As truly as the LORDE baoth lyueth, before whome I stode, I shewe my selfe vnto hym this daye. went Abdia to mete Achab, and told Achab wente for to mete Elias.

And whan Achab sawe Elias, Ach

sayd vnto hym: Art thou he that troublest Israel? He sayd: I trouble not Israel * but it is thou and thy fathers house, because ye haue forsaken the cõmaundementes of the LORDE, and walke after Baall. Go to, sende forth now, and gather me all Israell together vnto mount Carmel, and þ foure hundreth and fyfty prophetes of Baall, & the foure hũdreth prophetes of the groue, which eate of Jesabels table. So Achab sente vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

Then stepte Elias vnto all the people and sayde: How longe halte ye on both the hoes? If the LORDE be God, then walke after hym: but yf Baall be he, then folowe hym. Then sayd Elias vnto the people: I onely am lefte a prophet of the LORDE: but Baals prophetes are foure hundreth & fyfty men. Geue vs now two bullockes, & let them chose one bullocke, and hewe hym in peces, & layed hym vpõ þ wood, & put no fyre theron: so wyll I take the other bullock, and laye hym vpon the woode, and put no fyre theron also: call ye then vpon the name of your god, and I wyll call vpon þ name of þ LORDE: Loke which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered and sayde: That is ryght. And Elias sayd vnto Baals prophetes: Chose ye one bullocke, and do ye it first (for ye are many) and cal ye vpon the name of your god, and laye no fyre theron.

D And they toke þ bullocke which he gaue them, and prepared it, and called vpon the name of Baall from the mornyng vnto the noone daye, and sayd: O Baal heare vs. But ther was nother voyce nor answere. And they hopped about the altare, as their vse was to do. Now whã it was noone day, Elyas mocked them, and sayd: Crye loude, for he is a god, peraduenture he is musynge, or hath som what to do, or is gon some iourney, or haply he slepeth, so that he wolde be waked vp. And they cryed loude, and prouoked thẽselues with knyues, and bothes (as their maner was) tyll the bloude folowed. But whan the noone daye was past, they prophecied vntyl the tyme that þ meat offeryng shuld be offred, & ther was nother voyce, nor answere, nor one to regarde thẽ.

Then sayd Elyas vnto all the people: Come hyther all ye people vnto me. And whan all the people came to hym, he repayred * the altare of the LORDE that was broken, * toke twelfe stones accordynge of the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Jacob (vnto whom the worde of the LORDE spake and sayd: * Thy name shalbe Israel) and of þ stones he buylded an altare in the name of the LORDE, and made a ppt round aboute the altare, lyke two forowes in the corne lande, and prepared the wood, and hewed the bullocke in peces, and layed hym vpon the woode, and sayd: Fetch foure pitchers full of water, and poure it vpon the burntofferynge, and vpon the wood. And he sayd: Do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd it the thyrde tyme. And the water rãne about the altare, and the ppt was ful of water also.

And whã the tyme was to offer þ meat offeryng, Elias stepte forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Israel, let it be knowen this day, that thou art God in Israel, and I thy seruaũt, and that I haue done all this accordynge vnto thy worde. Heare me O LORDE, O heare me: that this people may knowe how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayst afterwarde turne their hartes. * Then fell downe the fyre of the LORDE, and cõsumed the burntofferynge, the wood, the stones, & the earth and lycked vp þ water that was in the ppt. Whan all the people sawe that, they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: The LORDE is God, the LORDE is God. Elias sayd vnto them: * Lay hãdes vpon Baals prophetes, that none of them escape. And Elias sayd vnto Achab: Go vp, eat & drynke, for it soundeth as though it wold rayne sore. And whan Achab went vp to eate and drynke. He went vp and loked, and sayd: Ther is nothynge. He said: Go agayn seuen tymes. And at the seuenth tyme he sayd: Beholde, ther goeth vp a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke a mans hande. He sayde: Go vp, and saye vnto Achab: Bynde thy charrette, and go downe, that the rayne ouertake the not. And or a man coulde turne hym, the heauen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, & ther came a great rayne. But Achab rode his waye & departed vnto Jesrael. And the hande of the LORDE came vpō Elias, and he gyrded his loynes, and rāne before Achab, tyl he came vnto Jesrael

The.xix. Chapter.

AND Achab tolde Jesabell all ỹ Elias had done, & how he had slayne all Baals prophetes wt the sweard. Then sent Jesabel a messaunger vnto Elias, sayenge. The goddes do this & that vnto me, yf I tomorowe aboute this tyme, make not thy soule as one of these. Then was he afrayed, and gat him vp, and went where he wolde, + & came vnto Berseba in Juda, and lefte his lad there. But he hymselfe wēt a dayes tourney in to ỹ wyldernesse, & came in, & sat hym downe vnder a Juniper tre, and wyshed vnto his soule that he myghte dye, and sayd: * It is now ynough LORDE, take my soule, for I am no better then my fathers. And he layed him downe and slept vnder the Juniper tre. Jone.4.a

And beholde, the angell touched hym and sayd vnto hym: Stonde vp, and eate. And he loked aboute hym, and beholde, at his heade ther was a bread baken on the coles, and a cruse with water. And whā he had eaten & dronken, he layed hym downe agayne to slepe.

B And the angel of the LORDE came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched hym, and layd: Stonde vp, and eat for thou hast a great waye to go. And he arose, and dyd eate and drynke, and went on thorowe the strength of that meat * foure dayes & foure nyghtes, euē vnto Horeb ỹ mount of God. Exo.34.b. Mat.4.a

+ And there he came to a caue, and abode there all nyght. And beholde ỹ worde of the LORDE, came to hym, and said vnto hym: What doest thou here Elias? He sayde: I haue ben zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the chyldren of Jsrael haue forsaken thy conuenaunt & broken downe thyne altares, and slayne thy prophetes with the sweard, and I am left onely, and they seke to take a waye my lyfe. He sayd: Go forth, & stande vpon the mount before the LORDE. And beholde the LORDE wente ouer, and a great myghtye wynde, which dyd rent the mountaynes and brake the harde stones, cam before the LORDE: but the LORDE was not in ỹ wynde. After the wynde came there an earthquake: but the LORDE was not in the earthquake.

And after the earthquake there came a fyre: but the LORDE was not in ỹ fyre. And after the fyre came there a styl softe lyssyng. Whā Elias herde that he couered his face with his cloke, and went forth and stode in the doore of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto hym, & sayd: What hast thou here to do Elias.

He sayd: I haue ben zelous for ỹ LORDE God Zebaoth: * for the chyldren of Jsrael haue forsaken thy cōuenaunt, broken downe thyne altares, slayne thy prophetes with the sweard, and I onely am left, and they seke to take awaye my lyfe. But the LORDE sayd vnto him: Go thy waye agayne thorow the wyldernesse vnto Damascon, and goo in: * and anoynte Hasael kynge ouer Syria, * and Jehu the sone of Nimsy kynge ouer Jsrael, and Eliseus the sonne of Saphat of Abelmehola to be prophet in thy stede. And it shall come to passe, that who so escapeth the sweard of Hasael, Jehu shall slay him: and who so escapeth the sweard of Jehu, Eliseus shall slaye hym. * And I haue reserue vnto me. vii. M. men in Jsrael, euery al ỹ knees which haue not bowed themselues vnto Baal, and euery mouth ỹ hath not kyssed hym.

And he departed thence, & founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, plowynge with twelfe pocke of oxē before him, and he him selfe was amonge the twelfe. And Elias wente vnto hym, and cast his cloke vpon hym. And he lefte the oxen and ranne after Elias, and sayd: * Let me kysse my father and my mother, and so wyll I folowe the. And he sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye and come agayn, for I haue somwhat to do with the. And he ranne agayne from hym, and toke a pocke of oxen, and offred it, and boyled the flesche with the woode of the oxen plowes, and gaue it vnto the people to eate, and gat hym vp, and folowed Elyas, and ministred vnto hym.

The.xx. Chapter.

AND * Benadad the kynge of Syria gathered al his power, and ther were two and thirty kynges with hym, and horses and charrettes, & he went vp by,& layed lege vnto Samaria,& fought agaynst it. And he sent messaungers vnto Achab the kynge of Israel in to the cytie,& caused to saye vnto hym: Thus sayeth Benadad: Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and thy wyues and thy beste chyldren are myne also. The kynge of Israel answered, and sayd: My lorde O kynge, euen as thou hast sayd, I am thyne, and all that I haue.

And the messaungers came agayne,& sayd: Thus sayeth Benadad: For so muche as I haue sent vnto the, sayenge: Thy syluer and thy golde, thy wyues and thy chyldren shalt thou geue me, to morowe aboute this tyme wyll I sende my seruaũtes vnto the, that they maye searche thyne house,& the house of thy subiectes:& loke what pleasaunt thynge thou hast, that shall they take in their handes, and carye it awaye. So the kynge of Israel called al the Elders of the londe, and sayd: Marke well and se, what myschefe this man seketh: He sent vnto me for my wyues, and chyldren, for syluer and golde, and I haue not sayd him naye. Thẽ sayd all the Elders, and all the people vnto hym: Thou shalte not consente nor agree vnto hym. And he spake vnto Benadads messaungers. Say vnto my lorde the kynge: Al the thynges wherfore thou dyddest sẽde vnto me thy seruaunt at the fyrst, wolde I haue done: but this can I not do. And the messaungers went, and told this agayne. Then sent Benadad vnto hym sayenge: The goddes do this and that vnto me, yf the dust of Samaria shalbe ynough, for euery one of my people to bynge me an handfull therof. But the kynge of Israel answered, and sayd: Tell hym: Let not hym that putteth on the harnesse make his boast lyke him that hath put it of. Whan Benadad herde that, (euen as he was drynkynge with the kynges in the pauylion) he sayd vnto his seruauntes: Set your selues in araye. And they set thẽ selues in araye agaynst the cytie.

And beholde, ther came a prophete vnto Achab the kyng of Israel,& sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sene all this great multitude? Beholde, this daye wyll I delyuer them in to thy hãde, so that thou shalt knowe, how that I am the LORDE. Achab sayd: By whom? He sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Euen by the yonge men of the rulers of the lande. He sayd: Who shall order the battayll? He sayd: Thou. Then mustered he the yonge men of the rulers of the lande, and ther were two hundreth and two & thyrty of thẽ,& after thẽ mustered he of the whole people of al the childrẽ of Israel euen thousande men, and they wente out in the noone daye. As for Benadad, he dranke and was dronken in the pauilion with the two and thyrty kynges which wer come to helpe hym. And the yonge mẽ of the rulers of the lande wente forth fyrst.

Benadad sent forth, and they brought hym worde and sayde: Ther come men out of Samaria. He sayd: Take them alyue, whether they be come forth for peace, or for warre. But whan the lande rulers yonge men were gone forth, and the hoost behynd them, euery one smote hym that cam in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and Israel followed after them. And Benadad the kyng of Syria escaped with horses and horsemẽ. And the kyng of Israel wẽt forth,& smote horses and charrettes,& dyd a great slaughter on the Syrians.

Then cam ther a prophete vnto the kyng of Israel, and sayd vnto him: Go thy waye and strength the,& take hede and loke well what thou doest: for whan the yeare is about the kynge of Syria shall come vp agaynst the. For the kynge of the Syrians seruaun tes sayd vnto hym: Their goddes are gods des of the mountaynes, therfore haue they gotten the victorye.

But let vs fyght wt them on the playne, & thou shalt se that we shall ouercome thẽ. Do thus, put awaye the kynges euery one frõ his place, and let dukes in their steades, and appoynt the an hoost as was that which thou hast lost, and horses and charrettes as the other were, and let vs fyght agaynst them in the playne, and thou shalte se that we shall haue the victorye. He consented vnto their voyce, and dyd so.

Now whan the yeare was gone aboute, Benadad appoynted the Syrians & wente vp towarde Aphek, to fyght agaynst Israel, and the chyldren of Israel mustered, and prouyded them selues with vytailes, and went to mete them, and pitched their tẽtes ouer agaynst them, lyke two lytle flockes of goates but the lande was ful of the Syriãs.

And ther came a man of God, and sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: Thus sayeth the LORDE: because the Syrians haue sayd, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes & not a God of the valleys, therfore haue I geue all this great heape in to thy handes, that ye may knowe how that I am the LORDE. And they pitched their tentes tyght ouer agaynst them seuen dayes. But vpon the seuenth daye they went together in the battayl and the chyldren of Israel smote of the Syrians an hundreth thousande foote men in one daye, and the remnaunt fled to Aphek in to the cytie, and the wall fell vpō ꝯ other seuen and twenty thousande men. And Benadad fled also vnto the cytie in to a lytle chamber.

Then sayd his seruauntes vnto hym: Beholde, we haue herde that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs therfor put sackcloth about our loynes, and halters about our neckes, and go forth to the kynge of Israel peraduenture he shall let thy soule lyue.

F And they put sackcloth about theyr loynes, and halters aboute theyr neckes, and came to the kynge of Israel, and sayd: Benadad thy seruaunt sayeth vnto the: O let my soule lyue. He sayde: ꝯ he be yet alyue, he is my brother. And ꝯ men toke him shortly at his worde, and expounded it for them selues and sayd: yee Benadad is thy brother. He sayd: Come and bringe hym. Then went Benadad forth vnto hym, and he caused hym to syt vpō the chartet, and sayd vnto hym: The cyties that my father toke frō thy father wyll I geue the agayne. And make thou stretes for thy selfe at Damascō as my father dyd at Samaria, so wyl I let the go with a bonde of peace. And he made a conuenaunt with hym, and let hym go.

Then spake ther a man amōge the chyldren of the prophetes vnto his neyghbour by the worde of the LORDE: I praye the smyte me. But he refused to smyte hym. Then sayd he vnto hym, because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORD, beholde, therfor shal ther a lyon smyte the, 3.Re.13.a. whan thou goest fro me. * And whan he went from hym, a lyon founde hym, and slewe hym.

G And he founde another man, and sayd: I praye the smyte me. And the man smote hym, and wounded hym. Then went the prophete and stepte vnto the kynge by the waye syde, and altered his face with asshes. And whan the kynge went by, he cryed vpon the kynge, and sayde: Thy seruaunt went forth in to the battayll, and beholde, ther went one aside and brought a mā vnto me, and sayd: kepe this mā: yf he be myssed, thy soule shalbe in steade of his soule, or els thou shalte wey downe an hundreth weyght of syluer. And whyle thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was awaye. The kynge of Israel sayd vnto hym: Je is thyne owne iudgemēt, thou hast geuē it thy selfe.

Then put he the asshes from his face all the haist. And ꝯ kynge of Israel knew him, that he was one of the prophets. And he sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast let the damned man go, therfor shall thy soule be for his soule, and thy people for his people. And the kynge of Israel departed vnto his, beynge troubled in his mynde and full of indignacyon, and came to Samaria.

The.xxi. Chapter.

After these actes it fortuned, Naboth the Jesraelite had a vyneyarde at Jesrael beside the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth, and sayd: Geue me thy vyneyarde, I wyll make me an herbgarden therof, because it is so nye myne house: I wyll geue the a better vynyarde for it: or yf it please the, I wyll geue the syluer for it, as much as it is worth. But Naboth sayd vnto Achab: * The LORDE let that be farre frō me, that I shuld geue the my fathers heritage. Then came Achab home, beynge moued and full of indignacyon, because of the worde ꝯ Naboth the Jesraelite had spoken vnto hym, and sayd: I wyl not geue the my fathers heritaunce. And he layed him vpō his bed, and turned his face aside, and dyd eate no bread. Then Jesabel his wyfe came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: What is the matter, that thy spret is so combred, and ꝯ thou eatest no bread? He sayd vnto her: I haue spoken vnto Naboth the Jesraelite, and sayd: Geue me thy vynyarde for money: or yf it please the, I wyll geue the another for it. But he sayde: I wyll not geue the my vynyarde.

Then sayd Jesabel his wyfe vnto him: What were ꝯ kyngdom in Israel, yf thou dyddest it? Stonde vp, and eate bread, I wyll get the the vynyarde of Naboth the Jesraelite. And she wrote a letter vnder Achabs name, and sealed it with his signet, and sent it vnto the Elders and rulers of his cytie, which dwelte about Naboth, and wrote thus in the letter: Proclame a fast, & set Naboth aboue in ꝯ people, and set two men of Belial before hym, to testifie and say: Thou hast blasphemed God and ꝯ kynge. And bryng hym forth & stone him to death.

And the Elders and rulers of his cytie, which dwelte in his cytie, dyd as Jesabel had commaunded them, according as it was wrytten in the letter that she sent vnto

ple: and they proclamed a fast, and caused Naboth to syt aboue amonge the people.
Then came the two men of Belial, & stode before hym, and testified agaynst Naboth in the presence of the people, and sayd: Naboth hath blasphemed God & the kynge.
* Then brought they hym out of the cytie, and stoned hym to death. And they sent Jesabell worde, sayenge: Naboth is stoned and put to death. Whan Jesabel herd that Naboth was stoned and dead, she sayd vnto Achab: Up, and take possessiō of ꝑ vyne yarde of Naboth the Jesraelite, which he denyed to geue the for money: for Naboth lyueth nemore, but is dead. And whan Achab herde that Naboth was dead, he rose to godowne vnto the vynyard of Naboth the Jesraelite, & to take possession of it.

But the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, and sayd: Get the vp, & go downe to mete Achab the kynge of Jsrael, which is at Samaria: beholde he is in Naboths vyneyarde, in to the which he is gone downe to take possession of it, & talke thou with hym, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou hast slayne, and taken in possession. And thou shalt talke moreouer vnto hym, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: * Euen in the place where the dogges lycked vp Naboths bloude, shall the dogges lycke thy bloude also. And Achab sayd vnto Elias: Hast thou euer founde me thyne enemye? He sayd: yee, I haue soūde the, because thou art euen solde to do euell in the syght of the LORDE. Beholde, * I wyll bynge myshorune vpon the, & take awaye thy posterite, and wyll rote out frō Achab, euen hym that maketh water agaynst the wall, and hym that is shut vp and lefte behinde in Jsrael: and thy house wyl I make as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & as the house of Baesa ꝑ sōne of Ahia, because of the prouocacion wherwith thou hast prouoked me vnto wrath, and made Jsrael to synne.

And ouer Jesabell spake the LORDE also and sayd: * The dogges shall deuoure Jesabell in the felde of Jesrael. * Who so of Achab dyeth in the cytie, hym shall the dogges eate vp: and who so dyeth in the felde, the fowles vnder the heauen shall eate hym vp. So cleane * solde to do myschefe in the syght of the LORDE hath no man ben, as Achab: for his Jesabel hath so deceaued him and he maketh hymselfe a great abhominacyon, ꝑ he goeth after Idols, accordyng vnto all as dyd the Ammorites, * whome the LORDE expelled before ꝑ chyldre of Jsrael.

But whan Achab herd these wordes, he rent his clothes, and put a sackcloth on his body, and fasted, and slepte in sackcloth, & wente aboute hangynge downe his heade. And the worde of the LORDE came to Eli as the Thesbite, and sayde: Hast thou not sene how Achab humbled hymselfe before me? For so muche now as he humbled hymselfe in my syght, I wyl not bryng ꝑ plage whyle he lyueth: but by his sonnes lyfe wyl I bynge myshortune vpon his house.

The.xxii.Chapter.

AND ther passed ouer thre yeares, that ther was no warre betwene the Sirians and Jsrael. * But in the thyrde yeare went Josaphat the kynge of Juda downe to the kynge of Jsraell. And the kynge of Jsrael sayd vnto his seruauntes: Knowe ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is oures? and we syt styll, and take it not out of the hāde of the kynge of Siria. And he said vnto Josaphat: Wylt thou go with me to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead? Josaphat sayd vnto the kynge of Jsrael: * I wyll be as thou, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And Josaphat sayd vnto the kynge of Jsraell: * Are this daye at the worde of the LORDE. Then the kynge of Jsrael gathered together the prophetes, aboute 4 * foure hundreth men, and said vnto them: Shal I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or shal I let it alone? They sayd: Go vp. The LORDE shall delyuer it in to the kynges hāde. But Josaphat sayde: Is ther not one prophet here more of the LORDE, that we may aske at hym?

The kynge of Jsrael sayd vnto Josaphat: Here is yet a man, one Micheas the sonne of Jemla, at whom we maye aske of ꝑ LORDE: but I hate hym, for he prophecieth me no good, but euel. Josaphat sayd: Let not the kynge saye so. Then called ꝑ kynge of Jsrael a chāberlayne, and sayd: Bynge hyther soone Micheas the sōne of Jemla. * As for the kinge of Jsrael, and Josaphat the kynge of Juda they sat eyther of them vpon his seat, arayed in theyr garmentes in the place at the doore of the porte of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophecied before them. And Sedechias the sonne of Cnaena had made hym hornes of yrō, and sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalte thou pushe at the Sirians, tyll thou bringe them to nought. And all ỹ prophetes prophecyed lykewyse, and sayd: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou shalt prosper rycht well, and the LORDE shal delyuer it into the kynges hande. And the messaunger that wente to call Micheas sayd vnto hym: Beholde, The wordes of the prophetes are vñ one accorde good before ỹ kinge, let thy worde therfore be as theyr worde, & speake thou good also.

C Micheas sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, lohe what the LORDE sayeth vnto me, that wyll I speake.

And whã he came to the kynge, ỹ kinge sayd vnto hym: Micheas shall we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fyght or shall we let it alone? He sayd vnto him: yee, go vp, thou shalte prosperе rycht well, the LORDE shall geue it in to the kynges hãde. But ỹ kynge sayd vnto hym agayne: I charge the that thou saye none other thynge vnto me but ỹ trueth, in the name of the LORDE. He sayd: I sawe all Israel scatered abrode vpon the mountaynes, as ỹ shepe that haue no shepherde. And the LORDE sayd. Haue these no lorde? Let euery one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Colde not I ỹ that he wolde prophecye me no good, but euell?

D He sayd: Heare now therfore the worde
2.par.18.c of the LORDE: * I sawe the LORDE syt vpõ his seate, and all the hoost of heauen standynge by hym at his rycht hande & at his lefte. And the LORDE sayd: Who wyll deceaue Achab to go vp, and fall at Ramoth in Gilead. And one sayd this, another that. Then went ther forth a spyrite, and stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll deceaue hym. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Wherwith? He sayd vnto hym: I wyl go forth, and be a false spyrite in the mouthe of all his prophetes. He sayd: Thou shalte deceaue hym, and shalte be able: go forth &
Esa.14.b do so. Beholde now, * the LORDE hath geuen a false spyrite in the mouthe of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spoken euell ouer the. Thẽ stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Chaena, and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayd: What is ỹ spyrit of the LORDE departed fro me, to speake vñ the? Micheas sayd: Beholde, thou shalt se it in that daye, whan thou shalt go frõ one E chamber to another to hyde the.

The kynge of Israel sayd: Take Micheas, and let hym remayne with Amon ỹ ruler of the cytie, and with Joas the kynges sonne, and saye: Thus sayeth ỹ kynge: Put this man in prison, and fede him with bread and water of trouble, tyll I come gayne in peace. Micheas sayd: If thou mest agayn in peace, thẽ hath not ỹ LORDE spoken thorow me. And he sayd: Herken all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel and Josaphat
the kynge of Juda went vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kyng of Israel sayd to Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes, and in to the battayl in thyne araye. The kyng of Israel chaunged his clothes and went in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria commaunded the rulers of his charrettes (of whom ther were two and thyrty) saying:
ye shall fyghte nother agaynst small nor great, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel. And whan the rulers of the charrettes saw Josaphat, they thought it had been the kynge of Israell, and fell vpon him to fyghtynge. But Josaphat cryed. So when the rulers of the charrettes saw that it was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe from hym.

A certayne man bended his bowe in and shot the kynge of Israell betwene the mawe and the longes. And he sayde vnto his charretman: * Turne thy hande, and me out of the hoost for I am wounded. And the battayll was sore ỹ same daye. And the kynge stode vpon the charret agaynst the Syrias, and dyed in the euenynge, and the bloude ranne from the wounde in to the des of the charrette. And whan the sunne went downe ther was a proclamacion made in the hoost, and sayde: Euery one get him in to his cytie, and to his contre. Thus the kynge dyed, and was brought vnto Samaria: and they buryed hym in Samaria.
And whan they washed the charret at the pole of Samaria, * the dogges licked his bloude (but the harlottes washed them) cordynge to the worde of the LORDE which he spake.

What more ther is to saye of Achab and all that he dyd, & of the ywery house that he buylded, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. So Achab slepte with his fathers, and his sonne Ochozia was kynge in his steade.

* And Josaphat the sonne of Asa became kynge ouer Juda in the fourth yeare of Achab kynge of Israel: and was fyue and thyrty yeare olde whã he was made kynge, and raygned fyue and twenty yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Azuba the doughter of Silhi, and he walked in waye of his father Asa, and departed not therfro. And he dyd that which was ryghte in the sight of the LORDE, yet put he not awaye the hye places, and the people offered and brent incense yet vpon the hye places, and he had peace with the kynge of Israel.

What more ther is to saye of Iosaphat and the mighte that he exercysed, and how he fought, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. * He put out of the londe also the whoremõgers that yet were lefte, which remayned ouer in ỹ tyme of his father Asa * and at that tyme ther were no kynges in Edom. And Iosaphat had caused to make shippes vpon the See, which shulde go to ketche golde in Ophir, but they wente not, for they were broken at Gezeon Gaber. At that tyme sayde * Ahasia the sonne of Achab vnto Iosaphat: Let my seruaũtes passe wt thy seruaũtes in the shippes. But Iosaphat wolde not. And Iosaphat slept wt his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in ỹ cytye of Dauid. And Joram his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Ahasia the sonne of Achab was kyng ouer Israell at Samaria in the seuẽth yeare of Iosaphat kynge of Juda, and raygned ouer Israell two yeares, & dyd that which was euel in the syght of the LORD, and walked in the waye of his father & of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam ꝑ sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne. And serued Baall, and worshipped hym, & displeased the LORDE God of Israell, euen as his father dyd. The * Moabites also fell awaye frõ Israell, whan Achab was dead.

2. Reg. 1. a
4 Reg. 3. a

And Ahasia fell thorow the grate in his chamber it Samaria, and was dead sycke, and sent messaungers, and sayde vnto thẽ: Go youre waye and are counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shall recouer from this syckenesse. But the angell of the LORD sayd vnto Elias the Thesbite: Up, & go mete the messaũgers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto thẽ: Is ther no God in Israell, that ye go to are counsel at the god of Ekron? Therfore thus sayeth ꝑ LORDE: Thou shalt not come from the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death.

And Elias went his waye. And whan the messaũgers came to * Ochosias agayn he sayd vnto them: Why come ye agayne? They sayde vnto hym. Ther came vp a mã in oure waye, and sayd vnto vs: Go agayn vnto the kynge that hath sent you, and say vnto hym: Thus sayth the LORDE: Is ther no God in Israell, that thou sendest to are counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron? Therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death. He sayde vnto them: What maner of man was it that met you, & sayde this vnto you? They sayde vnto hym: He had a * rough skynne vpon hym, and a letheren gyrdel aboute his loynes. He sayde: It is Elias the Thesbite.

mount. He sayde vnto hym: Thou man of God, the kynge sayeth: Thou shalt come downe. Elias answered the captayne of fyftye, and sayde vnto hym: If I be a man of God, the fyre fall downe then frõ heuen, and consume the and thy fyftye. & There fell fyre from heauen, and consumed hym and his fyftye. And agayne he sent another captayne ouer fyftye vnto hym, with his fyftye, which answered, and said vnto him: Thou man of God, thus sayeth the kynge: Come downe in all the hayst. Elias answered and sayde: If I be a man of God, the fyre fall downe from heauen, and consume and thy fyftye. Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed hym, and his fyftye. Agayne he sente vnto hym the third captayne ouer fyftye: with his fyftye.

Now whan he came to hym, he fell to Elias, and besought hym, and sayde vnto hym: Thou mã of God, let my soule and the soules of thy seruauntes these fyfty be somwhat worth in thy syghte. Behold, the fyre fell downe from heauẽ, and burnt the fyrst two captaynes ouer fyfty & theyr fyftyes: But now let my soule be what worth in thy syght. The sayde the angell of the LORD vnto Elias: Go downe with hym, and feare hym not. And he gat him vp, and went downe with hym vnto the kynge.

And he sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast sente messaungers, and caused to are counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, as though there were no God in Israel to are counsell of his worde, therfore shalte thou not come from the bed wheron thou hast layed ꝑ, but shalt dye the death. So he dyed accordyng to the worde of the LORD which Elias spake. And Joram (his brother) was kynge in his stede in the secõde yeare of Joram the sonne of Iosaphat kynge of Juda: for he had no sonne.

What more ther is to saye of Ochosias, that he dyd, beholde he is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.

The.ii. Chapter.

Whan the LORDE was mynded to take vp Elias in the storme, Elias & Eliseus went from Gilgal. And Elias sayde vnto Eliseus: Tary thou here (I pray) for ꝑ LORD hath sent me vnto Bethel. But Eliseus sayd: As truly as ꝑ LORD liueth, and as truly as thy soule liueth, I will not forsake the. And whan they came vnto Bethell, the prophetes chyldren that were at Bethell, wēte forth to Eliseus, and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not, that the LORDE wyll take thy lorde awaye frō thy heade this daye? He sayde: I knowe it wel, holde ye youre peace.

And Elias sayde vnto hym: Eliseus tarye thou here (I praye the) for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Jericho. Neuertheles he sayde: as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the.

And whan they came vnto Jericho, the prophetes childrē which were at Jericho, stepte forth to Eliseus and sayd vnto him: knowest thou not that the LORDE wyll take thy lorde awaye from thy heade this daye? He sayd, I wyl know it well, holde ye your peace. And Elias sayde vnto hym: I praye the tarye here, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto the Jordane. But he sayde: As truelye as the LORDE lyueth, & as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And they wente both together. But fiftye men of the prophetes chyldren wente forth, and stode ouer agaynst them afarre of: but they both stode vpon Jordane. Then toke Elias his cloke, and wrapped it together, and smote the water, which deuyded it selfe on bothe the sydes, so that they wente drye shod thorow it. And whan they were come ouer, Elias sayde vnto Eliseus: Are what I shal do for the, afore I be taken awaye frō the. Eliseus sayde: That thy spirite maye be vpon me to speake twyse as much.

He sayd: thou hast desyred an hard thing neuertheles yf thou shalt se me whā I am taken awaye frō the, it shalbe so: yf no, thē shall it not be. And as they were goyng together, and talked, ther came a fyrye charret with horses and fyre, & parted thē both asunder. * And so wente Elias vp to heauē in the storme. But Eliseus sawe it, & cryed: My father, my father, y charret mā of Israel & his horsmen. And he saw him nomore.

And he toke holde of his clothes, & rent thē in two peces, & toke vp Elias cloke that was fallen frō hym, & turned backe, & stode by the shore of Jordane, and toke the same cloke of Elias which was fallen from hym and smote it in y water, and sayde: Where is now the LORDE God of Elias? And he smote it in to the water, and then parted it asunder on both y sydes, and Eliseus wēte thorowe.

And whan the prophetes chyldre which were at Jericho ouer agaynst hym, saw him they sayde: The spirite of Elias resteth vpon Eliseus, and so they went forth to met hym, and worshypped him to the grounde, and sayde vnto hym: Beholde, ther are fyftye valeaunt men amonge thy seruauntes, let them go and seke thy lorde, peraduēture the spirite of the LORDE hath taken hym and cast hym vpon some mountayne or in some valleye. But he sayd: Sende them not. Neuertheles they cōstrayned hym, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: Let them go. And they sent fyftye men, which sought him thre dayes: but they founde him not, & came agayne vnto hym. And he abode at Jericho, & sayd vnto them: Tolde not I you that ye shuld not go? And the men of the cytye sayde vnto Eliseus: Behold, ther is good dwellyng in this cytie, as my lorde seyth, but the water is euell, and the lande vnfrutefull.

He sayde: Bringe me hither a new vessell, and put salt in it. And they broughte it hym. Then wente he forth vnto the well of water, and cast y salt therin, & sayde: Thus sayeth the the LORDE: I haue healed this water: from hence forth shal ther no death nor vnfrutefulnesse come of it. So the water was healed vnto this daye, accordynge to the worde of Eliseus which he spake.

And he wente vp towarde Bethell. And as he was goynge vp by y way, ther came lytle boyes out of the cytye, & mocked hym, and sayde: Come vp here thou balde beade. Come vp here thou balde head. And he turned hym aboute. And whan sawe them, he cursed them in the name of the LORDE. Thē came there two Beeres out of y wood, and rente two and fortye of the chyldren. From thence wente he vp vnto mount Carmell, & from it turned he backe from Samaria.

The.iii. Chapter.

IOram y sonne of Achab was kynge ouer Israell at Samaria in y eyghtenth yeare of Josaphat kynge of Juda, & raygned twelf yeares, and did that which was euell in the syght of the LORDE, but not as his father & mother: for he putte away y pilers of Baal, which his father caused to make. Neuertheles he cleued vnto y synnes of Jeroboā y sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to sine, & departed not ther frō.

Mesa the kynge of y Moabites had many shepe, and payed tribute vnto the kyng of Israell with the woll of an hundreth thousande lambes, and of an hundreth thousande rammes. * But whan Achab was deade, 4.Reg.1.a

the kynge of the Moabites fell away from the kynge of Israel. At the same tyme wēte kynge Joram from Samaria, and mustered all Israell, & sent vnto Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayenge: The kynge of the Moabites is fallen awaye fro me, come thou wt me to fyghte agaynste the Moabites. He 3.Re.22.a sayde: I wyl come vp, * I am euē as thou, and my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And sayde moreouer: Which way shall we go vp? He sayde: By the waye in the wyldernesse of Edom.

B So the kynge of Israell, the kynge of Juda, and the kynge of Edom went forth. And whā they had gone seuen dayes iourney about, the hoost & the cattell that were amonge them had no water. Thē sayde the kynge of Israell: Alas, the LORDE hath called these thre kynges, to delyuer thē in to ỹ hādes of ỹ Moabites. But Josaphat sayd:
3.Re.22.a * Is here no prophet of the LORD that we maye aske counsell at the LORD by him? Thē answered one of ỹ kynge of Israels seruaūtes, and sayde: Here is Elyseus the sonne of Saphat, which powred water vpon Elias handes. Josaphat sayde: The worde of the LORDE is with him. So the kynge of Israell and Josaphat, & the kynge of Edō went downe vnto hym.

C But Elyseus sayd vnto the kynge of Israell: What hast thou to do with me? go to the prophetes of thy father & to thy mothers prophetes. The kynge of Israell sayde vnto hym: No, for the LORD hath called these thre kynges, to delyuer thē in to the hādes of the Moabites. Elyseus sayd: As truly as the LORD Zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stonde, yf I regarded not Josaphat ỹ kyng of Juda, I wolde not regarde the, nor sette ought by ỹ. So bringe me now a minstrel. And whā ỹ mynstrell played vpō the instrumēt, ỹ hāde of ỹ LORD came vpō hym. And he sayde: Thus sayth ỹ LORD: make pyttes by this broke for thus sayth ỹ LORD: ye shal se nother wynde nor rayne yet shall ỹ broke be full of water, that ye & your housholdes, & your cattel may drynke. Yee & that is but a small thynge in the syghte of the LORDE.
D And ỹ Moabites shal he deliuer in to your handes, so that ye shall smyte all the stroge
Deut.20.c cytyes, and all the chosen cytyes, * & shal fel downe all the good trees, and stoppe al the welles of water and all the good feldes shall ye make wayst with stones.

On the morow, whan the meatofferyng is offred, beholde, ther came water the way from Edom, and fylled the lande with water. But whā the Moabites herde, that kynges came to fight agaynst the, they called all the harnessed men, and they rose and stode on the border. And whē they rose early, in the morynge, and the sonne went vp vpon the water, the Moabites thoughte the water ouer agaynst them to be euen as reed as bloude, & they sayde: It is bloude, the kynges haue destroyed them selues with the swearde, and one hath slayne ten another. Now Moab get the by the spoyles. But whan they came to the tente of Israell, the Israelites gat vp and smote the Moabites, & they fled before them.

Neuertheless they came in, and smote Moab, and brake downe the cities, & euery one cast his stone vpō all good feldes, and made them full, and stopped all the welles of water, and felled downe all the good trees, tyll ther remayned but the stones of the bryck wall, and they cōpassed them about with slynges, and smote them.

But whan the kynge of the Moabites sawe ỹ the battayl was to stronge for him, he toke to hym seuen hundreth men, that drewe the swearde, to fall vpon the kynge of Edō: neuertheless they were not able. Then toke he his fyrste sonne, which shulde haue ben kynge in his steade, and offred him for a burntoffrynge vpon the wall. Then was ther a great wrath ouer Israel, that they departed from hym, and turned agayne in to theyr londe.

The.iiij. Chapter.

AND ther cryed a woman of the wyues of ỹ prophetes vn to Elyseus, and sayde: Thy seruaunt my husbande is dead & thou knowest that thy seruaunt feared the LORDE. Now cometh the man that he was detter vnto, and wyl take awaye both my chyldren to be his seruauntes. Elyseus sayde vnto her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayde: Thy handmayde hath nothynge in the house but a pot of oyle. He sayd: Go thy waye, borow vessels of all thy neghbours empty vessels, take not a fewe, and go in and shut the dore behynde the with thy sonnes, and powre out into all the vessels: and whan thou hast filled them, delyuer them forth.

She wente, and shut the dore behynde her with hir sonnes, which brought her the vessels, & so she powred in. And whan ỹ vessels were full, she sayde vnto hir sonne: Bryng me yet one vessell. He sayde vnto her: There is not one vessel more here. Then stode the oyle styl. And she sent, & tolde ỳ mã of God. He sayde: Go thy waye, sell the oyle, & paye the creditour: but lyue thou and thy sonnes of the residue.

And it fortuned at the same tyme, that Eliseus wẽte vnto Sunem, and there was a ryche woman, which helde him to eate wt her: and as he passed oft thorow that way, he went in vnto her: and dyd eate with her. And she sayd to hir husbãde: Behold I perceaue ỳ this is an holy man of God, which goeth euer thorow this waye, let vs make hym a lytell chamber of bordes, and set a bed, a table, a stoole & a cãdelstycke therin, that whan he cõmeth vnto vs, he maye resorte thither.

And it fortuned vpon a tyme, ỳ he came in, and layed hym downe in the chamber, & slepte therin. And he sayde vnto Gehasi his childe: Call this woman of Sunem. And whã he had called her, she stode before him. He sayd vnto him: Speake thou vnto her, beholde, thou hast ministred vnto vs in all these thynges, what shal I do for the? Hast thou ony matter to be spoken for vnto the kyng, or for the chefe captayne of the hoost? She sayd: I dwell amonge my people. He sayde: What hast thou then to do? Gehasi sayde: Alas, she hath no sonne, and hir husbande is olde. He sayde: Call her. And whã he called her, she stode at the dore. And he sayde: * Aboute this tyme yͤ the frute can lyue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. She sayd: Alas, no my lord, thou man of God, lye not vnto thy handmayden. And the woman cõceaued, and bare a sonne, aboute the same tyme, whan the frute coulde lyue, accordige as Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

But whan the childe was growẽ, it fortuned, that he went forth to his father vnto ỳ reapers, and sayd vnto his father: Oh my heade, my heade. He sayde vnto his seruaunt: Bringe hym vnto his mother. And he toke hym, and brought hym to his mother: and she set hym vpon hir lappe vntyll the noone daye, and then he dyed. And she wente vp and layed hym vpon the bed of ỳ man of God, and shut the dore, and wente forth, and called hir husbande, and sayd vnto hym: Sende me one of the seruauntes, & an asse, I wyll go quyckly vnto the man of God, & come agayne. He sayde: Why wylt thou go vnto him? To day is it nother newe moone, nor Sabbath. She sayde: Well. And she sadled the asse, and sayde to ỳ põge man: dryue forth, & kepe me not backe with rydynge, and do as I byd the.

So she went, & came to the man of God vnto mount Carmell. Whã the mã of God sawe her ouer agaynst hym, he sayde vnto his childe Gehasi: Beholde the Sunamytisse is there, rũne now & mete her, and aske her yͤ it go well with her, & hyr husbande & hyr sonne. She sayde: Well. But whã she came to the man of God vpõ the mõt, she helde hym by his fete. And Gehasi stepte to her to put her away. But ỳ mã of God sayd: Let her alone, for hyr soule is in heynesse, and ỳ LORD hath hid it fro me, & not shewed it me. She sayd: Whã I desyred a sonne of my lorde: Sayde I not, that thou shuldest not mocke me.

He sayd vnto Gehasi: Girde vp thy lop D nes, & take my staffe in thy hande, & go thy way. * yͤ ony mã mete the, salute him not: Luce.10.a
and yͤ ony mã salute ỳ, thãke hym not: and laye thou my staffe vpõ ỳ childes face. But the childes mother sayde: As truly as the LORD lyueth, & as truly as thy soule liueth, I wyll not leaue the. Thẽ gat he vp, & wẽte after her. As for Gehasi, he went before thẽ, and layed ỳ staffe vpõ the childes face, but ther was nother voyce nor kelynge. And he went agayne to mete him, & shewed him, & sayde: The childe is not rysen vp.

And whã Eliseus came in to the house, beholde, the childe laye dead vpõ his bed. And he went in, & shut the dore on thẽ both and made his prayer vnto ỳ LORDE, & wẽte vp, and * layed hym selfe vpõ the childe, & 3 Re.17.f.
layed his mouth vpon the childes mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, & his hãdes vpon his hãdes, & so stretched himselfe forth vpon hym, so that the childes body was warme. And he rose vp, and wente in to the house once hether & thither, and wente vp, and layed hym selfe a longe vpõ hym. Thẽ syned the childe seuen tymes, & afterward the chyld opened his eyes. And he cryed vpon Gehasi & sayde: Call the Sunamitisse. And whã he had called her, she came in vnto hym. He sayde: take there thy sonne. Thẽ came she, and fell at his fete, & worshypped vnto ỳ groũde, & toke hir sõne, & wẽte forth.

But whan Eliseus came agayne vnto E
Gilgal, ther was a derth in the lãde. And ỳ prophetes childrẽ dwelt before hym, and he sayde vnto his seruaunt: Set on a great pot, and make pottage for the childrẽ of the prophetes. Then went ther one in to the felde, to gather herbes, and found a cucumbers stalke, and gathered wylde cucumbers therof his cotefull. And whan he came, he chapped it small for pottage to the potte, for they knewe it not. And they powred it forth for the mē to eate, and whan they dyd eate of the pottage, they cryed and sayde: O thou man of God, death is in the pot: for they might not eate it. Neuertheless he sayde: Bynge meell hither. And he put it in the pot, and sayde: Powre it out for the people, that they maye eate. And thē was it not bytter in the pot.

Ther came a man from Baall Salisa, and brought the man of God breade of the fyrst frutes, namely twentye barlye loaues, and new corne in his garmēt. But he sayd: Geue it vnto the people, that they may eate
Joh.6.a. His minister sayde: * How shall I geue an hundreth men of this? He sayde: Geue it vnto the people, that they maye eate. For thus sayeth the LORD: They shall eate, and ther shalbe left ouer. And he set it before them, so that they dyd eate, and they left ouer according to the worde of the LORDE.

The.v.Chapter.

A NAaman the chefe captayne of the kynge of Syria, was an excellent man in the syghte of his lorde, and muche sette by, (for thorow hym the LORDE gaue health vnto Syria) and he was a myghtye man, but a leper. And ther had mē of warre fallen out of Syria, and caryed away a lytle damsell out of the lande of Israell: the same was in seruyce with Naamans wyfe, and sayd vnto hyr mastresse: O that my master were with the prophete of Samaria, he wolde heale hym of the leprosye.

Then wente he in to hys lorde, & tolde hym, and sayd: Thus and thus hath the dāsell of the londe of Israel spokē. The kyng of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, and I wyll wryte a letter vnto ỳ kynge of Israel.

B And he went, and toke with hym ten hūdreth weyght of syluer and syre thousande guldens, and ten chaunge of rayment and brought the letter vnto the kyng of Israell with these wordes.

Whan this letter cōmeth vnto the, beholde, thou shalt vnderstonde that I haue sent my seruaunt Naaman vnto the ỳ thou mayest heale hym of his leprosye.

And whan the kynge of Israell red the letter, he rente his clothes, and sayde: am I God then, that I can kyll and quycke agayne, that he sēdeth vnto me, to heale the man from his leprosye. Cōsyder and se, how he seketh an occasyon vnto me.

Whan Eliseus the man of God [illegible] that the kynge of Israell had [illegible] thes, he sent vnto hym, sayenge: [illegible] thou rent thy clothes? Let hym [illegible] that he maye knowe, that ther is a [illegible] in Israell.

So Naamā came with horses and [illegible] rettes, and stode styll at the dore of [illegible] house. Then sent Eliseus a messenger [illegible] to hym, sayenge: Go thy waye, and [illegible] the seuē tymes in Jordane, so shall thy [illegible] be restored the agayne, and be clensed. [illegible] was Naaman wroth, and went his waye and sayde: I thought he shulde haue come forth vnto me, and to haue stonde [illegible] to haue called vpon the name of [illegible] his God, and to haue touched ỳ place [illegible] his hande, and so to haue putte [illegible] leprosye. Are not the waters of [illegible] Pharphar at Damascon better then [illegible] waters in Israell, that I myght [illegible] therin and be clensed? And he turned [illegible] and wente his waye in displeasure. [illegible] his seruauntes gat them to hym, and [illegible] Father, yf the prophet had cōmanded [illegible] ony greate thynge, shuldest thou not [illegible] done it? much more then yf he say vnto [illegible] Washe the, and thou shalt be clene. [illegible] wente he downe, and washed [illegible] Jordane seuē tymes (as ỳ mā of God [illegible] and his flesshe was restored hym [illegible] euen as the flesshe of a yonge chylde, [illegible] he was clensed.

And he turned agayne to ỳ man of God [illegible] with all his armye. And whan he came, he stode before hym, and sayde: Behold, I knowe that in all lādes ther is no God but in Israel. Take now therfore this blessing I praye the of thy seruaunt. Neuertheless he sayde: * As truelye as the LORDE liueth before whome I stonde, I wyll [illegible] And he wolde nedes haue hym [illegible] but he wolde not: Then sayde [illegible] Might ther not a burthen of this [illegible] geuen vnto thy seruaunt, as much as two mules may beare? For thy seruaunt [illegible] nomore sacrifyce and offre [illegible] vnto other goddes, but vnto ỳ LORDE [illegible] the LORDE maye be gracious [illegible] uaunt, yf I worshippe in the house [illegible] mon, whan my lorde goeth [illegible] house of Rimmō to worshippe, and [illegible] vpon my hāde. He sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace.

And as he was gone from him [illegible] hzedth in the lande, Gehasi the [illegible] Eliseus the man of God thought

my lorde hath spared Naaman the Syrian in that he hath not taken from him ỳ which he brought: As truly as the LORDE lyueth,
I wyll runne after hym, & take somthynge
of hym.

So Gehasi folowed Naamã. And whã Naaman sawe that he ranne after hym, he lyght downe from the charret to mete him, and sayd: Are all thynges well? He sayd:
yee. But my lorde hath sent me, and caused to say vnto the: Behold, ther are now come to me fro mount Ephraim two ponge men of the prophetes chyldrẽ, geue them a talẽt of syluer (I praye the) and two chaunge of rayment. Naamã sayd: Go to, take two ta-lentes. And he compelled hym, and bande two talentes in two bagges, & two chaunges of rayment, and delyuered it vnto two of his seruauntes, whiche bare it before hym. And whan he came in the darcke, he toke it from theyr hãdes, and layed it asyde
in the house, and let the men go.

And whan they were gone theyr waye
he stode before his lorde. And Eliseus sayd vnto him: Whence commest thou Gehasi?
he sayd: Thy seruaunt went nother hyther
nor thyther. But he sayd vnto hym: Wente not my harte with the, whan the man turned backe frõ his charrette to mete ỳe? Now thou hast takẽ the syluer and the rayment, oliue trees, vynyardes, shepe, oxen, seruaũ tes and maydens. But the leprosy of Naaman shal cleue vnto the and to thy sede for euer. * Then wente he forth from hym lepo rous as snowe.

The.vi. Chapter.

The chyldren of the prophetes sayd vnto Eliseus: Behold, the place where we dwell before ỳ,
is to narow for vs, let vs go vnto Iordane, and euery one fetch timber there, that we may there buyld vs a place to dwell in. He sayd: Go youre waye. And one sayd: Go to then, and come with thy seruauntes. He sayd: I wyll go vp.
And he wente with them. And whan they came to Iordane, they hewed downe timber. And as one was fellynge downe a tree, the yron fell into the water, and he cryed
and sayd: Alas my lorde, and it is borowed.
But the man of God sayd: Where fel it in?
And whan he shewed hym the place, he cut downe a sticke, and thrust it in there. Then swamme the yron. And he sayd: Take it vp.
So he put forth his hande, and toke it.

And the kyng of Syria warred against Israel, and toke councell at his seruaũtes, and sayd: There and there wyl we lye. But the man of God sent to the kyng of Israel, sayenge: Beware that thou go not vnto ỳ place, for the Syrians rest there. So the kynge of Israel sent vnto the place wherof
the man of God tolde hym, and kepte it, & helde watch there: and dyd that not once or twyse onely.

C Then was the kynge of Syrias harte vexed therfore, and called his seruauntes, & sayd vnto them: Wyll ye not tell me, which
of our mẽ is fled vnto the kynge of Israel?
Then sayd one of his seruauntes: Not so my lorde O kynge, but Eliseus ỳ prophete in Israel telleth the kynge of Israel al that thou speakest in thy chamber where thou lyest. He sayd: Go your waye then and loke where he is, that I maye sende and cause hym be fetched. And they shewed hym and sayd: Beholde he is at Dothan. Then sent he thyther horses and charrettes, & a great power. And whan they came thyther by nyght, they compassed the cytie about. And the myntster of the man of God arose early to get hym vp. And as he wente forth, be-holde, ther laye an hoost of mẽ about the cy-tie with horses and charrettes.

D Then sayd his chylde vnto hym: Alas herr, how wyll we now do? He sayd: * Feare 2.par.32.b not, for ther are mo of thẽ that are with vs, then of those that are with them. And Elise-us prayed, and sayd: LORDE opẽ his eyes, that he maye se. Then the LORDE opened the chyldes eyes, that he sawe, and behold,
the mount was ful of fyrie horses and cha-rettes round about Eliseus. And whã they came downe vnto hym. Eliseus made his prayer, and sayd: LORDE smyte this people with blyndnesse. * And he smote them with Gen.19.a blyndnesse accordynge to the worde of Eliseus. And Eliseus sayd vnto them: This is not the way nor the cytie, folowe me, I wyl bringe you to the man whom ye seke. And he brought them vnto Samaria.

And whan they came to Samaria, Eli seus sayd LORDE open these mẽs eyes, that E
they maye se. And the LORDE opened theyr eyes, that they sawe, and behold, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And whan the kynge of Israel sawe them, he sayd vnto E liseus: My father, shall I smyte them? He sayd: Thou shalt not smyte thẽ. Loke whõ thou takest with thy swearde & bowe, smyte those. Set bread and water before them ỳ they maye eate and drynke, and let them de parte vnto theyr lorde. Then was there a great dyner prepared. And whan they had eaté & dronké, he let thé go to departe vnto theyr lorde. From that tyme forth came the men of warre of the Sirias nomore in to the lande of Israel.

F After this it fortuned, that Benadad the kynge of Siria gathered all his hoost, and wente vp and layed sege vnto Samaria: and ther was a great derth at Samaria. But they layed sege to the cytie so lõge, tyll an asses heade was worth foure score syluer pens, & the fourth parte of a Cab of doues dounge worth fyue syluer pens.

A Cab is a certayne measure.

And whan the kynge of Israel wente vnto the wall, a woman cryed vnto hym, & sayd: Helpe me my lorde O kynge. He sayd: If ỹ LORDE helpe ỹ not, wherwith shal I help thee? with the barne or with the wynepresse? And the kynge said vnto her: What ayleth thee? She sayd: This womã sayd vnto me: Geue vs thy sonne, that we maye eate him, to morow shall we eate my sonne. So we sod my sonne and haue eaten hym, and I sayd vnto her on the nexte daye: Geue vs thy sonne and let vs eate hym, but she hath hyd hym awaye.

G Whan the kynge herde the womans wordes, he rente his clothes, whyle he was goynge to the wall. Then sawe al ỹ people that he had a sackcloth vnder vpon his body. And he sayd: * God do this and that vn to me, yf the heade of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat shall this daye stande vpon hym.

2.Re.19.a and.20.b

As for Eliseus, he sat in his house, and the Elders sat by hym. And he sent a mã before hym, but or euer the messaũger cam to him, he sayd vnto the Elders: Haue ye not sene how this chylde of murthure hath sent hyther to take awaye my heade? Take hede, whan the messaũger commeth, that ye shut the dore and hold hym at the dore. Behold, the noyse of his lordes fete foloweth hym. Whyle he was thus talkynge with them, beholde, the messaunger came to hym, and sayde: Beholde, this euell commeth of the LORDE, and what more shall I loke for of the LORDE?

The.vii.Chapter.

A Eliseus sayd: Heare ỹ worde of the LORDE. Thus sayeth the LORDE: * To morow about this tyme shal a bussel of fyne meele be solde for one sycle, and two bussels of barlye for one sycle vnder ỹ porte of Samaria. Then a knyght (vpon whose hande ỹ kynge leaned) answered the man of God, and sayd: And though ỹ LORDE made wyndowes in heauen, [illegible] such a thynge come to passe? He sayd: Beholde thou shalte se it with thyne eyes, but shalt not eate therof.

6.Re.7.b.

And ther were foure leperous men at dore before the port, and one sayd vnto another: Why tarye we here whyle we dye? Though we thought to come in to ỹ cytie, yet is ther derth in the cytie, & there shall we be fayne to dye. And yf we tary here we must dye also. Let vs go now, & fall to the hoost of the Siriãs. yf they let vs lyue, we shall lyue: yf they slaye vs, thé are we but dead. And so they gat thé vp early, to come vnto the hoost of ỹ Sirians. And whã they came to the vttemost ende of the tentes, behold, there was no body.

* For the LORDE had made the Sirians to hear a noyse of horses, charettes and of a myghtye great hoost, so that they sayd one to another amonge them selues: Beholde, ỹ kynge of Israel hath hyred the kynges of the Hethites and the kynges of the Egipcyans agaynst vs, to come vpon vs. And they gat them vp, and fled early in the twylyght, and left theyr houses, horses and asses in the tentes as they stode, & fled euery mã where he myght saue his life.

Now whan the leperes came to the vttemost of the tentes, they went in to the tente, dyd eate and dronke, and toke syluer, golde, and rayment, and wente and hyd it, and came ageyne and entred into another tente, and toke therout, and wente and hyd it. But one of thé sayd vnto another: Let vs not do thus, this daye is a daye of good tydynges. If we kepe this secret and abyde tyll the morowe, our trespasse wyl be found out. Let vs go now therfore, that we may come and tell it vnto the kynges house.

And whan they came, they cryed at the porte of the cytie, and tolde them, and sayde: We came to the tentes of the Siriãs, and behold, ther is noman there, nother yet any mãs voyce, but horses & asses bounde, & the houses as they stãde. Thé cryed ỹ porters & tolde it within in the kynges house. Then the kynge arose in the myght, and sayd vnto his seruauntes: I wyll tell you what the Siriãs deale with vs: they know ỹ we are honger, & are gone out of the tentes, to hyde thé selues in ỹ feld, & thynke thus: When they go out of ỹ cytie, we wyl take thé alyue, and come in to ỹ cytie. Thé answered one of his seruaũtes, and sayde: Let vs take fyue horses ỹ remayne, which yet are left in ỹ ryte(beholde,these are lefte therin of al the multitude in Israel,which is destroyed)let vs sende these and se. Then toke they two charrettes with the horses. And the kynge sent them vnto the tentes of the Syrians, & sayde:Go your waye and se.

And whan they wente after them vnto Jordane,beholde,the waye laye full of garmentes and vessels,which the Syriās had cast from them,while they made haist. And whā the messaūgers came agayne,& told ꝑ kynge,the people wente forth and spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And a busshel of fyne meel was solde for a Sycle, and two busshels of barlye for a Sycle also,*accordyng to the worde of the LORDE. But the kynge appoynted the knyght(vpon whose hande he leaned)to be at the gate,& the people trode vpon hym,so that he dyed,euē as the man of God sayd,whan the kynge cam downe vnto hym. And it came to passe euē as the man of God tolde the kynge, whan he sayd:To morowe about this tyme shal two busshels of barlye be sold for one sycle, and a busshell of fyne meel for one Sycle vnder the gate at Samaria. And ꝑ knyght answered the man of God, and sayde: Behold,though the LORDE made wyndowes in heauen,how coulde such a thynge come to passe? Neuertheles he sayde: Beholde, wt thyne eyes shalt thou se it,& shalt not eat therof. And euen so fortuned it vnto hym, for the people trode vpon hym in the gate, that he dyed.

The.viii.Chapter.

ELiseus spake vnto the womā, *whose sonne he had restored vnto lyfe agayne,& sayde: Get the vp,and go with thyn houshold,and be a straūger where thou canst:for the LORDE shall call for a derth, which shall come in to the lande seuen yeare longe. The woman gat her vp, and dyd as the man of God sayd,and went wt hir houshold,and was a straūger in the lande of the Philistines seuen yeare. But whā the seuen yeares were ended, the woman came agayne out of the Philistines lande,and went forth to crye vpon the kynge for hir house and lande. The kynge spake vnto Gehasi the seruaunt of the mā of God,and sayd:Tell me all the great actes that Eliseus hath done. And whyle he was tellynge the kynge how that he hadde made one that was dead, to lyue, beholde, the woman whose sonne he had caused to reuyue, came euen in the meane season, and cryed vnto the kinge for hir house,and lande. Thē sayd Gehasi:My lorde O king this same is the woman,& this is hir sonne whom Eliseus restored vnto lyfe agayne. And the kynge axed the woman,& she told hym. Then the kynge delyuered her a chāberlayne,and sayd: Restore her agayne all that is hirs,and al the increase of ꝑ lande, sence the tyme ꝑ she lefte ꝑ lāde vntyl now.

B * And Eliseus came to Damascon,and Benadad the kynge af Syria laye sycke. 3.Reg.19.d. And it was tolde hym,and sayd: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayd ꝑ kynge vnto Hasael:Take giftes with the,and go mete the man of God,and axe councell at ꝑ LORDE by hym,and saye: Maye I recouer frō this sycknesse? Hasael wente for to mete hym,and toke rewardes with hym, and of all the goodes at Damascon, as much as fortye Camels myght beare. And whan he cam,he stode before hym,and sayd:Thy sonne Benadad kynge of Syria hath sent me vnto the,sayenge: May I recouer from this sycknesse?

Eliseus sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye and tell hym: Thou shalt recouer. But the LORDE hath shewed me that he shal dye the death. And the mā of God loked earnestly, and made a troublous countenaunce, and wepte. Then sayd Hasael: Wherfore wepeth my lorde? He sayd: I know what euel thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt burne their stroge cyties with fyre,& slaye their yonge men wt the sweard, and kyll their yonge chyldre,and typpe vp their wemen with chylde.

C Hasael sayd: How so, is thy seruaunt a dogge,that he shuld do such a great thing? Eliseus sayde: * The LORDE hath shewed me,that thou shalt be kynge of Syria. 3.Reg.19.d. And he wente his waye from Eliseus,and came to his lorde,which sayd vnto hym: What sayde Eliseus,vnto the? He sayd: He tolde told me. Thou shalt recouer. But on ꝑ next daye he toke the bed couerynge, and dypte it in water,and spred it ouer him & he died, and Hasael was kynge in his steade.

In the fyfth yeare of Joram the sonne of Achab kynge of Israel, was Joram the sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda. * Two and thyrty yeare olde was he whan he was made kyng,and reygned eyght yeare at Jerusalem,and walked in the waye of ꝑ kynges of Israel,as ꝑ house of Achab dyd (for Achabs doughter was his wyfe) & he dyd ꝑ which was euel in the syght of ꝑ LORDE. 2.Par.21.a.

At the same tyme fell Libna awaye also.

What more ther is to saye of Joram, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Joram fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Da

The.ix. Chapter.

4.Re.4.b. Eliseus the prophete called one of the prophetes childzen, and sayd vnto hym: *Girde vp thy loynes, and take this cruse of
2.Re.1.c oyle with the, and go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: and whan thou cõmest thither, thou shalt se there one Jehu, the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nimsi, and go in and byd hym stand vp among his brethr̃e, and bringe hym in to the inmost chamber, and take thou the cruse of oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, and saye: Thus hath the LORDE: I haue anoynted þ to be kynge ouer Israel: and thou shalt open the doore, flye, and not tary. And the prophetes yong man, the childe wente his waye vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And whan he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hoost sat there, and he sayd, I haue somwhat to saye vnto the O captayne. Jehu sayd: Vnto whom amonge vs all? He sayde: Euen vnto the captayne.

Then stode he vp and wente in, and poured the oyle vpon his heade, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer the LORDES people of Israel, & thou shalt smyte thy lorde Achabs house, that I maye auenge the bloude of my seruauntes the prophetes, and the bloude of all LORDES seruauntes, from the hande of Jezabel, that all the house of Achab may perish. And I wyll rote out from Achab, euen him that maketh water agaynst þ wall, and him closed vp, and þ desolate in Israel: and the house of Achab wyll I make euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & as the house of Baesa the sonne of Ahia. *and the dogges shall eate vp Jesabel vpon the felde at Jesrael, and noman shall bury her. And he opened the doore and fled.

And whan Jehu came forth to his lordes seruauntes, they sayd vnto hym: Are thynges well? Wherfore came this madde felowe vnto the? He sayde vnto them: Ye knowe the man well, and what he hath spoken. They sayde: That is not true, but tell thou vs. He sayd: Thus and thus hath he spoke vnto me, and sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. Then made they haste, & euery one toke his garment and layed it vnder hym on in maner of a tudges seate, & blewe the trõpet, and sayd: Jehu is made kynge.

So Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nimsi, made a conferacy on agaynst Joram. As for Joram he laye before Ramoth in Gilead with all Israel agaynst Hasael the kynge of Siria. *But Joram þ kynge was turned backe, that he myght be healed of the woũdes wherwith the Sirians had wounded hym, whan he fought with Hasael the kynge of the Sirians.

And Jehu sayd: If it be youre mynde, ther shall noman escape out of the cyte, to go and tell it at Jesrael. And he rode, and departed vnto Jesrael: for Joz̃ laye there, and Ochosias þ kynge of Juda was come downe to vysite Jozam. But the watchmã that stode vpon the tower at Jesrael, sawe the company of Jehu commyng, and sayd: I se a company. Thé sayd Jozam: Take a charret, & sede to met thé, & say: Is it peace? And ỳ charretmã rode to met thé, and sayd: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayd: What hast thou to do wt peace? turne the behynde me. The watchman tolde it, & sayd: The messaunger is come vnto them, and commeth not agayne. Then sent he an other charretman, which whan he came to them, sayd: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me.

And the watchman tolde it, and sayde: he is come to them, and commeth not agayne, and the goynge is as it were the goynge of Jehu the sõne of Nimsi: for he dryueth on as he were madde. Then sayd Jozam: Bynde ỳ charret fast. And they bounde the charret, and so they wente forth Jozam the kynge of Israel, and Ochosias ỳ kyng of Juda, euery one vpõ his charret, to mete Jehu. And they founde hym vpon the feld of Naboth the Jesraelite. And whan Jozã sawe Jehu, he sayd: Jehu, is it peace? But he sayd: What peace? The whordome and wytchcrafte of thy mother Jesabell is not yet come to an ende.

Then turned Jozam his hande & fled, and sayd vnto Ochosias: Ther is treason Ochosias. But Jehu toke his bowe, & shot Jozam betwene the armes, that the arowe wente thorowe his harte, and he fel downe in his charret. And Jehu sayd vnto Bidekar the knyght. Take and cast hym in the pece of lande of Naboth the Jesraelite: for I remembre sence thou rodest with me in a charret after Achab his father, that ỳ LORDE wolde laye this heuy burthé vpon him. I holde (sayd the LORDE) I wyll recõpence the the bloude of Naboth and of his chyldren, euen in this pece of lande. Take hym now and cast hym in to that pece of lande, *accordynge to the worde of the LORDE.

*Whan Ochosias the kinge of Juda sawe this, he fled by the waye vnto the garden houle. But Jehu folowed after hym, & commaunded to smyte hym also vpon his charrette in the goynge vp towarde Gur, which lyeth by Jeblaam: and he fled vnto Megiddo, and dyed there. And his seruaũtes caused hym to be caried to Jerusalem, & there they buried hym in his owne graue with his fathers, in the cytie of Dauid. Ochosias regned ouer Juda in the eleuenth yeare of Jozam the sonne of Achab. And whan Jehu came to Jesrael, and Jesabell herde therof, she coloured hir face, and decked hir head, and loked out at ỳ wyndowe. And whan Jehu came vnder the gate, she sayde: *Prospered Symri well that slewe his lorde. 3.Re.16.B

And he lyfte vp his face to ỳ wyndowe, G and sayd: Who is with me? Then turned them two or thre chãberlaynes vnto hym. He sayd: Cast her downe headlynges: And they cast her downe headlinges, so that the wall and the horses were sprẽkled with his bloude, and she was trodden vnder fete. And whan he came in, and had eaten and dronken, he sayd: Loke vpõ ponder cursed woman, and bury her, *for she is a kynges doughter. Neuertheles whan they wente in to bury her, they founde nothyng of her, but the skul, and the fete, and the palmes of hir hãdes. And they came again & brought hym worde. He sayd: This is euen it that ỳ LORDE spake by his seruaunt Elias the Thesbite, and sayd: *In the feld of Jesrael shall the dogges eate Jesabels flesshe. So the dead carcase of Jesabel became eue as donge in the felde of Jesrael, so that a man coulde not saye: This is Jesabel. 3 Re.21.D.

The.x. Chapter.

Achab * had thre score and ten sõnes at Samaria. And Jehu wrote a letter, & sent it to Samaria, vnto the rulers of the cytie of Jesrael, euen vnto the Elders, and to Achabs tutors, sayenge these wordes: Whan thys letter commeth vnto you, with whom are your lordes sonnes, charrettes, horses, stronge cyties, and ordynaunce, loke which is ỳ best & mooste ryghteous amonge your lordes sonnes, set hym vpon his fathers seate, and fyght for youre lordes house. A Jud.8.D

Neuertheles they were sore afrayed, and sayd: Beholde, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how wyll we then endure? And they that were ouer the house and ouer the cytie, and the Elders and tutors sẽt vnto Jehu, sayeng: We are thy seruauntes, we wyll do al that thou sayest vnto vs: We wyll make no man kynge, do thou what pleaseth the. Then wrote he the secõde letter vnto them with these wordes: Yf ye be myne, and herken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the men your lordes sonnes, and bringe my them tomorow by this tyme vnto Jesrael.

B The kynges ſonnes were thre ſcore mē & ten, and the cheke mē of the cytie brought them vp. Now whan this letter came they toke the kynges ſonnes, and ſlewe them euen thre ſcore men and ten, and layed theyr heades in baſkettes, and ſent them to hym vnto Jeſrael. And whan the meſſaunger came, and tolde hym, and ſayd: They haue brought the heades of the kynges chyldrē, he ſayd: Laye them vpon two heapes at the of the porte tyll tomorow.

And on the morow whan he went forth, he ſtode, and ſayd vnto all the people: Are ye ryghteous? Behold, I haue made an appoyntement agaynſt my lorde and ſlayne hym, who hath ſlayne all theſe then? Vnderſtande ye now therfore, that ther is not fallen vpō the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he ſpake agaynſt ỹ houſe of Achab: 3.Re.21.c. & ỹ LORD hath done, euē * as he ſayd by his ſeruaūt Elias. So Jehu ſmote al ỹ remnāt of ỹ houſe of Achab at Jeſrael, al his great men, his kynſfolkes, & his prieſtes, tyll ther was not one lefte ouer, and he gat hym vp, wente his waye, and came to Samaria.

C By the waye ther was a ſhepherdes houſe, where Jehu founde the brethren of Ochoſis kynge of Juda, and ſayd: Whēce are ye? They ſayde: We are Ochoſias brethrē, and are goynge downe to ſalute ỹ kynges chyldren, and the quenes chyldren. He ſayd: Take them alyue. And they toke thē alyue, and ſlewe them by the welles ſyde at the ſhepherdes houſe, euen two and fortye men, and let not one of them remayne.

And whan he went frō thence, he foūde Jere.35.c. Jonadab the ſonne of * Rechab, which met hym, and ſaluted hym. And he ſayd vnto hym: Is thyne hart ryght, as myne hart is with thyne hart? Jonadab ſayd: yee. If it be ſo (ſayd he) then geue me thy hande. And he gaue hym his hande. And ſo he cauſed hym to ſyt beſyde him in the charret, & ſaid: Come with me, and ſe my zele for ỹ LORDE. And they caryed hym with hym vpon his charret. And whan he came to Samaria, he ſmote al that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyl he had deſtroyed hym, accordyng 3 Re.21.c. to the worde of the LORDE, * which he ſpake vnto Elias.

D And Jehu gathered all the people to- 3.Re.16.d gether, and ſayd vnto them: * Achab dyd Baal but lytle ſeruice, Jehu wyl ſerue him better. Cal vnto me now therfore al Baals prophetes, al his ſeruaūtes, and al his prieſtes, that ther be none wantyng: for I haue a great ſacrifice to do vnto Baal. Who ſo euer is miſſed, ſhal not lyue. But Jehu dyd it craftely, that he myght deſtroye all the miniſters of Baal. And Jehu ſayd: Sanctify the feaſt vnto Baal, and proclame it. And Jehu ſent in to al Iſrael, and cauſed all Baals mynſters to come ſo ỹ ther was not one left behynd, which cam not. And they came in to Baals houſe: ſo that ỹ houſe of Baal was full from one corner to another.

Then ſayd he vnto hym that had ỹ rule of the veſturye. Bryng forth raymēt for all Baals miniſters. And he brought forth raymēt. And Jehu went in to Baals houſe with Jonadab the ſonne of Rechab, & ſayd vnto Baals miniſters: Search and fynde ther be not here among you any ſeruaūt of the LORDE, but only Baals miniſters.

And whan they came in to offer ſacrifices and burntofferynges, Jehu appointed hym foure ſcore men without, and ſayd: If ony of theſe men eſcape whome I deliuer vnder your handes the ſhall the ſame mās ſoule be for his ſoule. Now whan he had made an ende of the burntofferynge, Jehu ſayd vnto the footemen and knyghtes: Go in, * & ſmyte euery man, let none go forth. And they ſmote them with the edge of the ſwearde. And the footemen and knyghtes threwe them awaye and wente vnto the cytie of Baals houſe, and brought forth the ſtatue in the houſe of Baal, and brake it, and brake downe Baals piler with the houſe of Baal, and made a priuy houſe therof vnto this daye. Thus Jehu deſtroyed Baal out of Jſrael. But Jehu lefte not of from the ſynnes of Jeroboā the ſōne of Nabath, which cauſed Jſrael to ſynne, namely, from the golden calues at Bethel and at Dan. And the LORDE ſayd vnto Jehu: Becauſe thou haſt done wyll ynge to do that which was right in my ſyght, & haſt don vnto Achabs houſe all that was in my harte, * Therfore ſhal thy chyldren ſyt vpon the ſeat of Jſrael vnto the fourth generacyon.

Neuertheleſſe Jehu was not to walke in the lawe of the LORDE God of Israell with all his harte: for he left not of from the synnes of Jeroboā which made Israell to synne. At the same tyme begāne the LORDE to be greued at Israell. * For Hasael smote them in all the borders of Israell from Jordane Eastwarde, and all the londe Gilead of the Gaddites, Rubenites, and Manassites, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer by Arnon, and Gilead, and Basan.

What more ther is to saye of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Jehu fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in Samaria. And Joahas his sonne was kynge in his steade. The tyme that Jehu raygned ouer Israell, is eyght and twentye yeares at Samaria.

The.xi.Chapter.

ATalia * the mother of Echoslias, whan she sawe that hir sonne was deade, gat her vp, & destroyed all the kynges sede. But Joseba kynge Jorams doughter ye syster of Ochoslas, toke Joas ye sonne of Ochoslas and stale hym awaye with his norse in the chamber from amonge the kynges chyldre which were slayne, and she hyd hym from Atalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in ye house of the LORDE sixe yeares. But Atalia was quene in the londe.

* Neuertheless in the seuenth yeare sent Joiada, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds with the captaynes and foote men, and caused them to come to hym in to the house of the LORDE, and made a conuenaunt with them, and toke an oth of them in the house of the LORDE, and shewed them the kynges sonne, and cōmaunded them, and sayd: This is it that ye shal do: One thirde part of you whiche enter on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watche in the kynges house, and one thyrd parte shalbe at the porte of Sur, & one thyrd part shalbe at ye porte which is behynde the foote men, & ye shall kepe the watch at the house of Walla. But two partes of you all that go of in the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the house of ye LORDE about the kynge, and euery one with his weapen in his hande: and who so euer commeth within the wall let hym dye, so that ye be with the kynge, whan he goeth out and in.

* And the rulers ouer the hundreds dyd all as Joiada the preste had commaunded them, and toke vnto them theyr men, which entred vpon the Sabbath, with those that wente of on the Sabbath, and came to Joiada the prest. And the prest gaue the captaynes speares and shyldes which had ben kynge Dauids, and were in the house of the LORDE. And the foote men stode aboute the kynge, euery one with his weapen in his hāde, from the corner on the right syde of the house, vnto the corner of ye lefte syde, euen vnto the altare and to the house. And he brought forth the kynges sonne, and set a crowne vpō his heade, and toke the * witnesse, and made hym kynge, and they were glad, and clapped theyr handes together, and sayde: God saue the kynge. 2.par.23.a Deu.17.b

* And whan Athalia herde the noyse of the people that rāne together, she came to the people in to the house of the LORD, and loked, and beholde, the kynge stode by the pyler, as the vse was, and the syngers, and trompettes by the kynge: and all the people of the londe were glad, and blewe with trompettes. But Athalia rente hir clothes, and sayde: Uproure, vproure. Neuertheles Joiada the prest cōmaunded the rulers ouer hundreds, which were appoynted ouer the hoost, and sayde vnto them: Bringe her without the wall, and whosoeuer folowethher, let hym dye with the swearde (for the preste had sayde, that shulde not dye in the house of the LORDE.) And they layde hādes vpon her, and she went in by ye waye where the horses go in to the kynges house, and there was she slayne. 1.par.23.b

* Then made Joiada a conuenaunt be twene the LORDE, and the kynge, and the people, that they shulde be the people of the LORDE. Lykewyse also betwene the kynge and the people. Then wente all the people of the lande in to the house of Baall, and brake downe all the altares, and destroyed his ymages righte well. And Mathan the preste of Baal slewe they before the altare: And the prest appoynted the officers in the house of the LORDE, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds, and the captaynes, and the foote men, and all the people of the lande, and broughte the kynge downe from the house of the LORDE, and came the waye frō the porte of the foote mē vnto ye kynges house, & he sat vpon ye kynges seate. And al the people of the lade were glad, & the cite 2.par.23.a

was at rest. As for Italia, they slewe her wt the sweard in the kynges house. And Joas was seuen yeare olde, whan he was made kynge.

The.xii.Chapter.

2.par.24.a his mothers name was Zibea of Berlaba. And Joas dyd that which was right in the sight of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada the prest taught hym. But they put not downe the hye places: for the people offred and burnt incense yet vpō the hye places.

And Joas sayd vnto the prestes: All the moneye ỹ is sanctyfyed to be bestowed vpon the house of the LORD, namely, the moneye that euery man geueth vnto the treasury. * And the money that euery man ge-

But whan the prestes repayred not the decaye in the house, vnto the thre and twenty eth yeare of kynge Joas. Joas the kyng called Joiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye not repayre the decaye of the house?

B Therfore shal ye not take the money vn to you now euery one his porcyon, but shal geue it to the decaye of the house. And ỹ prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repayre the decaye of the house. Thē
2.par.24.b * Joiada the prest toke a cheste, and bored an hole aboue therin, and set it on the right hande beside the altare, at the entrynge in to the house of the LORDE. And the prestes that kepte the tresholde, put all the money therin that was brought vnto the house of the LORDE. Whan they saw then that ther
4.Re.22.a was much money in the cheste, * the kynges scrybe came vp with the hye preste, and bouńde the money together, and tolde it as much as was founde in the house of ỹ LORDE. And so the ready money was geuen vn to them that wrought and were appoynted to the house of the LORDE, and they gaue it forth to the carpenters, and to them that buylded and wroughte in the house of the
C LORDE, namely, to pdawbers and masons, and to them that boughte tymber and fre stone, to repayre the decaye in the house of the LORD, and all that they founde to be nede of repayrynge in the house.

Howbeit ther were no syluer charges, flat peces, baleus, trompettes, nor ony other vessell of golde and syluer made in the house of the LORDE, of the money that was brought vnto the LORDES house: but it was geuen vnto the workmen to repayre the decaye in the house of the LORDE ther with. The men also that the money was delyuered vnto, for to geue the workmen, neded not to make ony acomptes: but ỹ they were busynes vpon credence. But the money of trepasse offerynges, and synne offerynges was not brought vnto the house of the LORDE: for it was the prestes.

At the same tyme went Hasaell the kyng of Syria vp, and foughte agaynste Gath, and wanne it. * And whan Hasaell set his face to go vp to Jerusalem, kynge Joas * toke all that was sanctifyed, which his fathers Josaphat, Joram, and Ochozias the kynge of Juda hadde halowed, and what he hymselfe hadde sanctifyed, and all the golde that was founde in the treasure of the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hasaell ỹ kyng of Syria. And so he departed from Jerusalem.

What more ther is to saye of Joas and all that he dyd, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And * his seruauntes made insurrecyon, and conspyred, and smote hym in the house of Mello, as the goynge downe vnto Silla. For Jozabar the sonne of Simeath, and Jozabad the sonne of Somer, his seruauntes smote hym to death: and he was buryed with his fathers in the cytye of Dauid. And Amasias his sonne was kyng in his stede.

The.xiii.Chapter.

IN the thre and twentyeth yeare of Joas the sonne of Ochozias kynge of Juda, was Joahas the sonne of Jehu kynge ouer Israell at Samaria, seuētene yeare: and dyd that whych was euell in the sight of the LORDE, and walked after the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which caused Israel to synne) and lefte not of from them. And the wyath of the LORDE ware whote vpon Israell, and he delyuered them ouer vnder the handeof Hasaell kynge of Syria, and vnder the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasaell, as long as they lyued.

And Joahas besoughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORD herde hym, for he cō sydered the mysery of Israell, how ỹ kyng of Syria oppressed them. And the LORDE gaue Israell a saueoure, whiche brought them out of the power of the Syrians, so that the chyldren of Israell dweit in theyre tentes, lyke as afore tyme.

But yet left they not of from ỹ synnes of the house of Jeroboam, which caused Israell to sinne, but walked in them. The groue at Samaria stode styll also. For of the people of Joahas ther were no mo left but fyftye horsmen, ten charrettes, and ten thousande fotemen: * For the kynge of Syria had destroyed them and made them as the dust in the barne.

What more ther is to saye of Joahas, and all that he dyd, and his power, behold, it is wrytte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Joahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, & Joas his sonne was kynge in his steade.

In the seuen and thyrtyeth yeare of Joas kynge of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Joahas, kynge ouer Israell at Samaria sixtene yeare. And he dyd that whiche was euell in the syghte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, whiche made Israell for to synne, but walked in them. What mo ther is to saye of Joas, and what he dyd, and his power, how he fought with Amasias kynge of Juda, behelde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buryed at Samaria with the kynges of Israell.

As for Eliseus, he fell in to a syckenesse wherof he dyed. And Joas the kyng of Israell came downe vnto hym, and wepte for hym, and sayde: * My father, my father, the charret man of Israell, and his horsmen. Eliseus sayde vnto hym: Take the bowe and the arowes. And whan he had taken the bowe and the arowes, he sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: Bende the bowe with thyne hande. And he bent it with his hande. And Eliseus layed his hande vpon the kynges hande, and sayd: Open the wyndowe towarde the East. And he opened it. And Eliseus sayd: Shute. And he shot. He sayde: One arowe of ỹ saluacyon of ỹ LORDE one arowe of saluacyon agaynst the Syrians: and thou shalt smyte the Syrians at Aphek, tyll they be brought to nought.

And he sayde: Take ỹ arowes. And whā he had taken them, he sayd vnto the kynge of Israell: Smyte the earth. And he smote thre tymes and stode styll. Then was ỹ mā of God wroth at hym, and sayde: yf thou haddest smittē fyue or sixe tymes, thou shuldest haue smytten the Syrias, tyll thou hadest brought them vtterly to naught. But now shalt thou smyte them thre tymes.

Whan Eliseus was dead and buryed, the men of warre of the Moabites fel in to the lande the same yeare. And it fortuned that they buryed a certayne man. But whā they sawe the mē of warre, they cast the mā in to Eliseus graue. * And whan he was therin, and touched Eliseus bones, he reuyued, and stode vpon his fete. 4.Reg.13.d

So Hasael the kynge of Syria oppressed Israel, as longe as Joahas lyued. But the LORDE was gracious vnto them, & had mercy vpon them, and turned hym to them for his cōuenauntes sake with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and wolde not destroye them * nother dyd he cast them out frō his presence vnto this houre. 4.Reg.14.a

And Hasael the kynge of Syria dyed, and Benadad his sonne was kynge in his steade. But Joas turned backe, & toke out of the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael the cytyes * which he had taken in bat tayll out of the hāde of his father Joahas: Thre tymes dyd Joas smyte hym, & brought the cytyes of Israell agayne. 4.Reg.13.b

The xiii. Chapter.

In the seconde yeare of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israel, was Amasias the sōne of Joas kynge of Juda made kynge. * fyue and twētye yeare olde was he, whā he was made kynge, and raygned xxix yeare at Jerusalē. His mothers name was Joadan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which was righte in the syght of the LORD: yet not as his father Dauid, but euen as his father Joas dyd, so dyd he also: for the hye places were not put downe, but the people offred & brent incēse yet vpon the hye places. Now whā he had gotten the power of ỹ kyngdome, he smote his seruauntes, * which had smytten ỹ kyng his father: but the chyldren of the dead slayers slew he not: accordyng to that which is wrytte in the boke of ỹ law of Moses, wher the LORDE hath commaunded and sayde: * The fathers shall not dye for the chyldre, 2.Reg.25.a 4.Reg.12.b Deu.24.c

Jere.31.b. Ezec.17.c. and the chyldre shal not dye for the fathers: but euery one shall dye for his owne synne.

B Ten thousande of the Edomites smote he also in the Salt valley, and wane Sela in battayll, & called it Jactheell vnto this daye. * Then sente Amasias messaungers vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israell, sayenge: Come hither, let vs se one another. But Joas the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias ỳ kyng of Juda, sayenge: * The hawthorne that is in Libanus, sente to the ceder tre in Libanus, sayenge: Geue thy doughter vnto my sonne to wyfe. But a wylde beast of ỳ feide in Libanus ranne ouer the hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou hast smyttē the Edomites, and therfore is thyne harte waren proud. Take the prayse, and byde at home. Why stryuest thou for myshortune, ỳ thou mayest fall, and Juda with the? Howebeit Amasias consented not.

2.par 25.c. Judi 9.b 4.Reg.14.b

C Then wente Joas the kynge of Israell vp, and they saw one another, he and Amasias the kynge of Juda at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytten before Israell, so that euery one fled in to his tente. And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias the kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas the sonne of Ochosias at Beth Semes & came to Jerusalē, and brake downe the wal of Jerusalem, from the porte of Ephraim vnto the corner porte, euē foure hūdreth cubytes longe, and toke al the golde, and syluer, and ornamentes ỳ were founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren also to pledge, and departed agayne to Samaria.

What more ther is to saye of Joas, what he dyd, and of his power, and how he fought with Amasias the kynge of Juda, beholde, it is wryttē in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed at Samaria amonge the kynges of Israell. And Jeroboā his sōne was kynge in his steade.

D But Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israell, fyftene peare. What more ther is to saye of Amasias, it is wryttē in the Cronicles of ỳ kynges of Juda. And they conspyred agaynste him at Jerusalem, but he fled vnto Lachis. And they sent after hym vnto Lachis, and slewe hym there, and they brought hym vpon horses, and he was buryed at Jerusalem with his fathers in the cyte of Dauid

* And all the people of Juda toke [illegible] in his sixteenth peare, and made hym kyng in stead of Amasias his father. He buylded * Eloth, and brought it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen a slepe with his fathers.

In the fyftenth peare of Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Joas kynge ouer Israell at Samaria, one and fortye peare. And he dyd that whiche was euell in the syght of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israell to synne.

But the borders of Israell brought [illegible] agayne from Hemath vnto the see of Araboth in the playne feilde, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE God of Israell, which he spake by his seruaunt * Jonas the sonne of Amithai that the prophete whiche was of Gath Epher. For the LORDE consydered the mysserable affliction of Israell, how that euen they which were shut vp and bounden were awaye, and that ther was no helpe in Israel. * And the LORDE sayde not that he wolde destroye the name of Israell vnder heauen. And he helped them by Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

What more ther is to say of Jeroboam, and all that he dyd, and of his power, how he fought, and how he brought Damascon and Hemath agayne vnto Juda in Israell, beholde, it is wryttē in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Jeroboam fell on slepe with his fathers, with the kynges of Israell. And Zacharias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xv. Chapter.

IN the seuen & twentyth yere of Jeroboam kynge of Israell raygned Azarias the sonne of Amasias kyng of Juda. He was sixtene yeare olde when he was made kynge, and raygned two and fyftye peare at Jerusalē. His mother was Jechalia of Jerusalem. And he was right in the sight of the LORDE, according to all as dyd Amasias his father, saue that they put not downe the hye places, for the people dyd sacrifyce and brent yet vpō the hye places. * Howbeit the LORDE smote the kyng, so ỳ he was leper vnto his death, * and dwelt in a sere house. But Jotham the kynges sonne ruled the house and iudged the people in the londe.

What more ther is to saye of Azarias and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda.

And Asarias fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cyte of Dauid, and Jotham his sonne was kynge in his steade.

In the eyght and thyrtyeth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam kynge ouer Israell at Samaria sixe monethes. And he dyd that which was euell in the syghte of LORDE, euen as his fathers dyd. He departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israell for the synne. And Sellum the sonne of Jabes conspyred agaynst hym, and smote hym in the presence of the people, and slew hym, and was kynge in his steade. What more ther is to saye of Zacharias, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.
* And this is it, that the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Thy children shall syt vpon the seate of Israell vntyll the fourthe generacyon. And euen so came it to passe.

Sellum the sonne of Jabes raygned in the nyne and thyrtyeth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, and raygned one moneth at Samaria. For Manahē the sonne of Gadi went vp from Thirza, and came to Samaria, and smote Sellum the sonne of Jabes at Samaria, and slew hym, and was kynge in his steade.

What more ther is to saye of Sellum, and his sedicion, whiche he steered vp, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. At the same tyme dyd Manahem smyte Tipsa, and all that were therin, and the coastes therof frō Thirza be cause they wolde not let hym in, and smote all theyre wemen with chyld, and rypte them vp.

In the nyne and thirtyeth yeare of Asarias the kynge of Juda, beganne Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne ouer Israell ten yeares at Samaria, and dyd that which was euell in the syghte of the LORDE. As longe as he lyued, departed he not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israell for to synne.
* And Phul the kynge of Assiria came in to the lande. And Manahem gaue vnto Phul a thousāde talētes of syluer to holde with hym, and to confyrme hym in ꝑ kyngdome. And Manahem rayled vp a tare in Israell vpon the ryches, fyfty Sycles of syluer vpon euery man, to geue vnto the kynge of Assiria. So the kynge of Assirya went home agayne, and taried not in the lande.

What more ther is to saye of Manahem, and all that he dyd, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Manahem fell on slepe with his fathers. And Pecahia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

In the fyfty eth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, beganne Pecahia ꝑ sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Israell at Samaria two yeare, and dyd that which was euell in ꝑ syght of the LORD: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israell for to synne. And Pecah ꝑ sonne of Romelia his knight conspyred agaynst hym, and smote hym at Samaria in the palace of ꝑ kynges house with Argob and Ariah, and fyfty mē with hym, of the chyldren of Gilead, and slewe hym, and was kynge in his steade. What more ther is to say of Pecahia, and all that he dyd, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.

In the two and fyfty eth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, beganne Pecah the sonne of Romelia to raygne ouer Israell at Samaria, twentye yeare, and dyd that which was euell in the syght of the LORDE: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, whiche caused Israell for to synne.

In the tyme of Pecah the kynge of Israell, came Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assiria, and toke Eion, Abelbethmaecha, Janoha, Kedes, Hasor, Gilead, Galile, and all the lande of Nepthali, and caryed them awaye in to Assiria.

And Osea the sonne of Ela conspyred agaynste Pecah the sonne of Romelia, and slewe hym, and was kynge in his steade in the twentyeth yeare of Jotham the sonne of ꝯ Osias. What more ther is to saye of Pecah, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.

That is Asarias whome he me call Azia.

In the seconde yeare of Pecah the sonne of Romelia kynge of Israel, was * Jothā the sonne of Osias kynge of Juda, ꝙ was fyue and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, his mothers name was Jerusa the doughter of Sadok. And he dyd that whiche was righte in the syghte of the LORDE, accordynge vnto all as dyd Osias his father, saynge that he putte not downe the hye places: for the people offred and brent incēse yet vpon the hye places. He buylded the hye porte of the house of the LORDE. What more ther is to saye of Jotham and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda.

At the same tyme beganne the LORD to sende Rezin ꝑ kynge of Syria, and Pecah the sonne of Romelia in to Juda. And Jotham fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed with his fathers in the cytye of Dauid his father. And Achas hys sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xvi.Chapter.

A 2.par.28.a

IN the seuenth yeare of Pecah the sonne of Romelia, * was Achas the sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda. Twētye yeare olde was Achas whan he was made kynge, and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd not ꝑ which was right in the sight of the LORDE his God, as dyd Dauid his father: for he walked in ꝑ waye Deu.18.b 4.Re.21.a of the kynges of Israell. * yee and caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, after ꝑ maner of the abhominacyons of the Heythen, whome the LORDE drove awaye before the chyldren of Israell. And he dyd sacrifyce, & burnt incense vpon the hye places, and vpō Esa.7.a all hylles, amonge all grene trees. * Then wente Rezin the kynge of Syria, and Pecah the sonne of Romelia kynge of Israell vp to Jerusalem to fyghte agaynst it, & layed sege to Achas: but they coulde not wynne it. At the same tyme dyd Rezin the 4.Re.14.b kynge of Syria, bryng * Eloth agayne vnto Syria, and thrust ꝑ Jewes out of Eloth. But the Syriās came and dwelt therin vn to this daye.

B 2.par.28.c

* Neuertheless Achas sent messaūgers vnto Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assiria sayenge: I am thy seruaunt and thy sonne, come vp and helpe me out of the hande of ꝑ kynge of Syria, and of the kyng of Israell which are rysē vp agaynst me. And Achas toke the syluer and golde that was founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house, and sent a present Esa.8.a to the kynge of Assiria. * And the kynge of Assiria consented vnto hym, and wente vp to Damascon, and wanne it, and caried the awaye vnto Cira, and slewe Rezin. And kynge Achas went to Damascō for to mete Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assiria. And whan he sawe an altare that was at Damascon, kynge Achas sent a patron and a similitude of the same altare vnto the prest Urias, euē as it was made. And Urias the prest buylded an altare, and made it accordynge as kynge Achas had sent vnto hym from Damascon, tyll Achas the kyng came from Damascon.

And whan the kynge came frō Damascon and sawe the altare, he offred therō, kyndled his burntofferynges and meatofferynges, & powred his drynkofferynge theron, and caused the bloude of the thanckofferynges which he offred to be sprenkled vpon the altare. But the brasen altare that stode before the LORD, put he away, so that it stode not betwene the altare and ꝑ house of the LORDE, but set it in the corner on the northsyde of the altare.

And Achas the kynge cōmaunded Urias the prest, and sayde: Upon ꝑ great altare shalt thou kyndle the burntofferyng in the mornynge, and the meatofferynge in the nynge, and the kynges burntofferynge and his meatofferynge, and the burntofferynge of all the people in the lande, with their meatofferynge and drynkofferyng. And all the bloude of the burntofferynge, and all bloude of the other offerynges shalt thou sprenkle theron: but with the brasen altare will I deuyse what I can. Urias the prest dyd all accordynge as Achas the kynge commaunded hym.

* And kynge Achas brake downe the sides of the seates, and put awaye the bekē from aboue, and toke the lauer from the brasen bullockes that were there vnder, & set it vpon the pauemēt of stone. And the pulpet for the Sabbath whiche they had buylded in the house: and the entrye of the kynges house turned he vnto ꝑ house of the LORDE for the kynge of Assirias sake.

What more ther is to saye of Achas, what he dyd, behold, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Achas fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed with his fathers in ꝑ cytye of Dauid. And Ezechias his sōne was kyng in his steade.

The.xvii.Chapter.

IN the twelfth yeare of Achas the kynge of Juda, began Oseas the sonne of Ela to raygne ouer Israell at Samaria nyne yeare, and dyd that which was euel in the syghte of the LORD, but not as the kynges of Israel ꝑ were before hi. Against hym dyd Salmanasar the kynge of Assiria com vp. And Oseas was subiect vnto hym & gaue hym trybutes. But whā the kynge of Assyria perceaued that Oseas had conspyred and sent messaungers to Sua the kynge of Egipte, & payed not trybute yearly to the kynge of the Assyrians, he besieged hym and put hym in prison. * And þ kynge of Assyria went vp in to al the lāde, and to Samaria, and laied syege vnto it thre yeat. * And in þ nyenth yeare of Oseas dyd the kynge of Assiria wynne Samaria, and caryed Israel awaye in to Assyria, and set thē at Halah and at Habor by the water Gosā, and in the cyties of the Medes.

For whan the children of Israel synned agaynst the LORDE theyr God * (þ brought them out of the lande of Egipte, from the hande of Pharao kynge of Egipte) and serued other goddes: and walked after the costumes of the heythen, whom the LORDE had dryuen out before the chyldrē of Israel and dyd as the kynges of Israel, and prouoked the LORDE theyr God, and dyd secretly þ thynges that were not rycht in the syght of the LORDE theyr God: namely in that they buylded them hye places in al cyties, both in castels and stronge cyties, and set vp pylers and groues vpon all hye hylles, and amonge all grene trees, and brent incense there in all the hye places, euen as dyd the heythē, whom the LORDE had cast out before them, and wrought wycked thynges, wherwith they prouoked the LORDE vnto wrath, and serued the Idols, wherof the LORDE sayd vnto them: * ye shall not do such thynge.

And whan the LORDE testified in Israel and Juda by all the prophetes & Seyers, sayenge: * O turne agayne from your euell wayes, and kepe my commaundemētes and ordynaunces, accordynge to al the lawe which I gaue vnto your fathers, and that I sent vnto you by my seruauntes the prophetes: they wold not herken, * but hardened theyr neckes, accordynge to the hard necke of theyr fathers, which beleued not on the LORDE theyr God. Yee they despysed his ordynaunces and his conuenaūt which he made wt theyr fathers, & his testimonies which he witnessed amōge them, & walked in theyr owne vanyties, and became vayne folowynge the heythen, which dwelt roūde about them, concernynge whom the LORDE had commaunded them, that they shuld not do as they dyd. Neuertheiesse they forsoke all the commaundementes of þ LORD theyr God * and made them two molten calues and groues, and worshipped al þ hoost of heauen, and serued Baal, and * caused theyr sonnes and doughters to go thorowe the fyre, and medled with soythsayers and wytches, and gaue them selues ouer to do that which was euel in the syght of the LORDE, to prouoke hym vnto wrath. Deu. 18. b

Then was the LORDE very wroth at Israel, and put them awaye from his presence so that ther remayned nomo * but one ly þ tryde of Juda. Nother dyd Juda kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE theyr God, but walked after the costumes of Israel, which they dyd. Therfore dyd the LORDE cast awaye all the sede of Israel, & troubled them, and delyuered thē in to the handes of the spoylers, tyl he had cast them out of his presence: for Israel was deuyded frō the house of Dauid. And they made them a kynge, one Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which turned Israel backe from the LORDE, and caused them to synne sore. Thus walked the chyldren of Israel in all the synnes of Jeroboam, which he had done, they departed not from them, vntyll the LORDE put Israel out of his presence, accordynge as he had spoken by all his seruauntes the prophetes. * So Israell was caryed awaye out of theyr owne lāde to Assyria vnto this daye, 3. Reg. 12. c. Jere. 25. a.

* The kynge of Assiria caused men to come from Babilon, from Cutha, frō Aua, from Hemath, and Sepharuaim, and caused them to inhabite the cities in Samaria in steade of the children of Israel. And they toke possession of Samaria, and dweite in the same cyties. But whan they beganne to dwell there, and feared not the LORDE, the LORDE sent lions amonge thē, which slewe them. And they caused it be sayd vnto the kynge of Assyria: The heythē whom thou hast brought hether, and caused them to inhabyte the cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the lande: Therfore hath he sent lyons amonge them, & behold they slaye them, because they knowe not the ordynaunce of the God of the lande. 1. Esd. 4. d

The kynge of Assiria commaunded & sayd: Bryng hether one of the preistes that were caryed away from thence, and let him go thyther and dwel there, and teach them the ordynaunce of the God of the lande. Then came one of the preistes which were caryed awaye from Samaria, and dweite at Bethel, and taught them how they shuld feare the LORDE. But euery people made them goddes, and put them in the houses vpō the hye places, which þ Samaritanes hadde made, euery people in theyr cyties wherin they dwelt. They of Babilō made Sochoth Benoth. They of Chut made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. They of Iua made Nibehas & Tharthak. They of Sepharuaim burnt theyr sonnes vnto Adramelech and Anamelech the goddes of them of Sepharuaim.

¶ And whyle they feared the LORDE, they made prestes in the hye places of ꝑ lowest amonge them, and put them in the houses of ꝑ hye places: Thus they feared ꝑ LORD and serued the goddes also, accordynge to the costume of euery nacyon, from whence they were brought. And vnto this daye do they after the olde fashion, so that they nother feare the LORDE, nor yet kepe theyr owne ordynaunces and lawes, after ꝑ law and commaundement that the LORDE cōmaūded ꝑ children of Jacob, * vnto whom he gaue the name of Israel, and made a cōuenaunt with them, and commaunded thē, and sayd: * Feare none other goddes, & worshippe them not, and serue thē not, and offer not vnto them: but the LORDE which brought you out of the lande of Egipte, wt great power and outstretched arme, hym feare, hym worshippe, and vnto hym do sacrifyce: and the statutes, ordynaunces, law and commaundement which he hath caused to be written vnto you, those se that ye kepe, that ye alwaye do therafter, and feare none other goddes. And forget not the conuenaunt which he hath made with you, lest ye feare other goddes. But feare the LORD your God, he shal delyuer you from al your enemyes. Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but dyd after theyr olde costume.

Jerr.10.a

Thus these Heythen feared the LORD, and serued theyr Idols also, & so dyd theyr chyldren and chylders chyldren lykewyse. Euē as theyr fathers haue done before thē, so do they vnto this daye.

The xviii. Chapter.

IN the thyrde yeare of * Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, regned Ezechias ꝑ sonne of Achas kynge of Juda. And he was fyue and twenty yeare olde whan he was made kynge & regned nyne and twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi ꝑ doughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the LORDE accordynge vnto al as dyd Dauid his father. * He put awaye the hye places, and brake down the pylers, and roted out the groues, and brake ꝑ brasen serpent * which Moses had made, for vnto that tyme had the chyldren of Israel burnt incēse vnto it. And it was called Nehusthan. He put his trust in the LORDE God of Israel, so that after him ther was not his lyke amōge all the kynges of Juda neither had ben before hym. He cleued vnto ꝑ LORDE, departed not backe from hym, but kept his commaundementes, which the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And the LORDE was with hym. And whether soeuer he went forth, he behaued hymselfe wysely. He rebelled the kynge of Assyria, and was not subdued vnto hym. * He smote the Philistines also vnto Gasa, and theyr borders, bothe castels vnto the stronge cyties.

Deu.7.a
4.Reg.23.a

* In the fourth yeare of Ezechias kynge of Juda (that was the seuēth yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israel) came Salmanasar ꝑ kinge of Assyria vp against Samaria, and layed sege vnto it, & wanne it after thre yeares in the sixte yeare of Ezechias, that is in the nyenth yeare of Oseas kynge of Israel, then was Samaria taken and the kynge of Assyria caryed Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and sent them at Hala and Habor by the water Golan, and in the cyties of the Medes. And all because they herkened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE theyr God, and had transgressed his commaunant. And as for all that Moses ꝑ seruāt of the LORDE had commaunded them, they had nother herkened vnto ony of them, nor done them.

* In the fourtenth yeare of kynge Ezechias dyd Sennacherib the kynge of Assyria come vp agaynst all the stronge cyties of Juda, and conquered them. Then sent Ezechias the kynge of Juda to the kynge of Assyria vnto Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended, turne backe fro me: loke what thou layest vnto me, I wyll beare it. Then the kynge of Assyria layed vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda, thre hundreth talentes of syluer, and thyrtye talentes of golde. Then Ezechias gaue all the syluer that was found in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At ꝑ same tyme brake Ezechias the kynge of Juda the pyllers of the temple of the LORDE, and ꝑ plates of golde which he hymselfe had caused to be layde ouer them, & gaue them vnto ꝑ kynge of Assyria.

* And the kyng of Assyria sent Thartha and the cheefe chamberlayne, & the cheefe butler from Lachis to kynge Ezechias with great power vnto Jerusalem. And they went vp: and whan they came there, they stode styll at the condyte by the ouer pole, which lyeth in the waye vpon the fullers lande, and called vnto the kynge. Thē cam ther forth vnto them Eliachim the sōne of Helchias the stewarde, and Sobna þ scribe, & Joah the sonne of Assaph the secretarye.

D And the chefe butler sayd vnto them: Tell kynge Ezechias: Thus sayeth the great kynge, euen the kynge of Assyria: What presumptyon is this that thou trustest vnto? Thynkest thou, that thou haste yet counsell and power to fyght? Whervnto trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of frō me? Beholde, puttest thou thy trust in this broke staffe of rede, in Egipte? which who so leaneth vpon, it shall go in to his hande, and pearse it thorow. Euen so is Pharao the kynge of Egipte vnto all them that put they? trust in hym. But yf ye wold saye vnto me: We put our trust in þ LORDE our God. Is not that he, whose hye places and altares Ezechias hath take downe and sayd vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before this altare which is at Jerusalem, shal ye worshippe?

Make a multitude therfore vnto my lorde the kynge of Assiria, and I wyl geue the two thousande horses, let se yf thou be able to man them: how wylt thou then endure before the smallest prince of my lordes subiectes? And trustest thou vnto Egipt be cause of the charrettes and horsemen? But thynkest thou that I came vp vpt her with out the LORDE to destroy these cyttes? The LORDE hath commaunded me: Go vp in to that lande and destroye it.

E Then sayd Eliachim the sonne of Helchia, and Sobna, and Joah vnto the chefe butler: Speake to thy seruauntes in the Syrians language, for we vnderstande it, and speake not vnto vs in the Jewes spethe before the eares of the people that are vpon the wall. Neuertheleslle the chefe butler sayde vnto them: Hath my lorde then sent me vnto thy lord, or to þ, to speake these wordes? nee euen vnto the me, which syt vpon the wall, that they maye eate they? owne dounge and drynke they? owne stale with you. So the chefe butler stode & cried with loude voyce in the Jewes language, and sayd: Heare þ worde of the great kyng, the kynge of Assyria: Thus sayeth þ kyng: Let not Ezechias deceaue you, for he is not able to delyuer you fro my hande: and let not Ezechias make you to trust in the LORDE, sayenge: The LORDE shall delyuer vs, and this cytte shall not be geuen in to the handes of the kynge of Assyria. Folowe not ye Ezechias, for thus sayeth the kynge of Assyria.

Do me this diesynge, and come forth F vnto me, so shall euery mā eat of his vyne, and of his fygge tre, and drynke of his wel, tyll I come my selfe & fetch you in to a lāde, which is lyke your owne lande, wherin is corne, wyne, bread, vynyardes, oyle trees, oyle, and hony, so shal ye lyue and not dye. Folowe not ye Ezechias, for he deceaueth you, whan he sayeth: The LORDE shall delyuer vs. * Haue the goddes of the Heithen Esa.10.b delyuered euery one his lande from þ hāde of the kynge of Assiria? Where are the goddes of Hemath and Arphad? Where are þ goddes of Sepharuaim Hena and Jua? Haue they delyuered Samaria from my hande? Where is ther one God among the goddes of al landes, which hath delyuered his lande fro my hande, that the LORDE shulde delyuer Jerusalem fro my hande.

As for the people they held they? peace, & gaue hym no answere: for the kynge had commaunded and sayd: Answere hym nothynge. Then came Eliachim the sonne of of Helchia the stewarde, & Sobna þ scribe, and Joah the sōne of Assaph the secretary vnto Ezechias with rente clothes, and told hym the wordes of the butler.

The.xix. Chapter.

When Ezechias the kynge herde A this, he rente his clothes, & put Esa.37.a on a sackcloth, and wente into the house of the LORDE, and sent Eliachim the stewarde, and Sobna the scrybe with the eldest prestes, clothed in sackcloth, vnto the prophete Esay the sonne of Amos, and they sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth Ezechias: This is a daye of trouble, and of delyaunce and blasphemy. The children are come to the byrth, and ther is no strength to be delyuered of them. yf haply the LORDE thy God wyll heare the wordes of the chefe butler, whom his lorde the kynge of Assyria hath sent, to blaspheme the lyuynge God, and to defye hym with suche wordes as the LORDE thy God hath herde, therfore lyfte thou vp thy prayer for the remnaunt, which are yet left behynde.

And whan kynge Ezechias seruauntes came to Esay, Esay sayd vnto the: Speake thus vnto your lorde: Thus sayeth þ LORD

Be feare not thou the wordes that thou haste herde wherwith the kynge of Assirias seruauntes haue blasphemed me. Beholde, I wyll put hym in another mynde, so that he shall heare tydynges, and go agayne in to Esa.37.c his owne contre, * and in his owne lande
2.Pa.32.d wyl I cause hym to fal thorow the sweard.

And whan þ chefe butlar came agayn, he founde the kynge of Assiria fyghtynge agaynst Lybna: for he had herde þ he was departed frō Lachis. And he herde of Tharacha the kynge of the Mozians: Beholde, he is gone forth to fyght with the. Thē turned he backe, and sent messaungers to Ezechias, and caused to saye vnto hym: Saye thus vnto Ezechias þ kynge of Juda: Let not thy God deceaue the, on whome thou trustest and sayest: Jerusalem shall not be geuen in to the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast herde what þ kynges of Assyria haue done vnto all landes, & how they dāned them, and shalt thou be delyuered? Haue the Goddes of the Heythen delyuered them, whom my fathers destroyed, as Golan, Haran, Reseph, and the chyldren of Eden, which were at Thalassar? Where is the kynge of Hemath, the kynge of Arphad, and the kynge of the cytie Sepharuaim, Hena, and Jua?

C And whan Ezechias had receaued the letters of the messaūgers, and had red thē, he wente vp to the house of the LORDE, & layed them abrode before the LORDE, and made his prayer before the LORDE, and sayd: O LORDE God of Israel, thou that sytteste vpon the Cherubyns, thou onely art God amonge al the kyngdomes of þ earth, thou hast made heauen and earth. Encline thyne eare O LORDE, and heare: opē thyn eyes, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Sennacherib, whiche hath sent hyther to blaspheme the lyuynge God. It is true (O LORDE) that the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed the Heythen and their lande with the sweard, and haue cast their goddes in the fyre: for they were not goddes, but the worke of mens handes, woode and stone, therfore haue they destroyed thē. But now O LORDE helpe thou vs out of his hāde, that all the kyngdomes vpon earth maye knowe that thou LORDE art God alone.

D Then sent Esay the sonne of Amos vnto Ezechias, sayenge: Thus sayeth þ LORDE God of Israel: Where as thou haste made thy prayer vnto me concernyng Sēnacherib the kynge of Assyria, I haue herd it. This is it that the LORDE hath spoken agaynst hym. He hath despysed the, and mocked the O virgyn thou doughter Sion, hath shaked his head at þ O doughter Jerusalem. * Whom hast thou despyted & blasphemed? Ouer whom hast thou lyft vp thy voyce? Euen agaynst the holy one in Israel hast thou lyfte vp thyne eyes: thou hast blasphemed the LORDE by thy messagers and sayde: Thorowe the multitude of my charrettes haue I gon vp to the toppe of the mountaynes, vpon the sydes of Libanus. I haue hewen downe his hye Cedres and his chosen Pynetrees, and am come the vttermost habitacyon of the wodde of Carmel that belongeth vnto it. I haue digged and dronke vp the straunge waters, and with the soles of my fete haue I dryed vp the See.

But haste thou not herde how that I haue done this longe ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnynge? Now haue I caused it for to come, that couetous fortresses cyties myght fall in to a wayst heperous stones, and they that dwel therin, shalde hye and fearful, and ashamed, * and shalde as the grasse vpon the felde, and as the grene herbe, and haye vpon the houstoppes, that wythereth afore it be growen vp. I knowe thy habitacyon, thy out and ingoynge, and that thou rageste agaynst me. For so moche then as thou rageste agaynst me, and thy prelūpcyon is come vp to myne eares, therfore wyl I put a synge in thy nose, and a bridle bet in thy lyppes, and wyll bringe the againe, euen þ same waye thou camest.

And let this be a token vnto the O chias. In this yeare eate that which is fallen. In the seconde yeare suche as groweth of it selfe: In the thyrde yeare sowe, reape, and plante vynyardes, & eate the frute of. And the doughter Juda which is escaped and remayneth, shall from henceforth take rote vpward, and bear frute above. For the remnaunt shal go forth from Jerusalem, and they that are escaped, shal go out of mount Sion. The gelousy of the LORDE Zebaoth shall bringe this to passe.

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE concernynge the kynge of the Assyrians: He shal not come in to this cytie, & shal shote no arowe therin, nother shal there come a shylde before it, nother shall he bringe a banke about it, but shall go agayne by the same waye that he came, and shall not come in to this cytie, sayeth the LORDE: and I wyl defende this cytie, to helpe it for myne owne sake, and for my seruaunt Dauids sake.

And in the same nyght wente the angel of the LORDE, and smote in ỹ hooste of the Assyrians, an hundreth and fyue and foure score thousande men. And whan they gat them vp in the morynge, beholde, all laye full of dead coarses. *So Sennacherib ỹ kynge of Assyria brake vp, and departed, & returned, and abode at Ninive. And as he worshipped in ỹ house of Nesrach his God, his owne sonnes Adramalech, and Sarazer smote hym with the sweard, and fled in to the lande of Ararat. And Assarhadon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xx. Chapter.

In ỹ tyme was Ezechias dead sycke. And the prophet Esay ỹ sonne of Amos, came to hym, & sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth ỹ LORDE: Set thyne house in ordre for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And he turned his face to the wall, and prayed vnto the LORDE, and sayde: Remembre (O LORDE) that I haue walked faythfully before the, and with a perfecte hart, & haue done that which is good in thy syght. And Ezechias wepte sore. But whan Esay was not gone out of halfe the cytie, the worde of the LORDE came to hym, and sayd: Turne backe, and tell Ezechias the prynce of my people: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of thy father Dauid: I haue herde thy prayer, & consydered thy teares. Behold, I wil heale the. On the thyrde daye shalt thou go vp in to the house of the LORDE, and fyftene yeares wyll I adde vnto thy lyfe, and wyl deliuer the and this cytie from the kynge of Assyria, and this cytie wyll I defende for myne owne sake, & for my seruaũt Dauids sake. And Esay sayd: Bringe hether a quãtite of fygges. And whan they brought thẽ, they laied thẽ vpõ the sore, & it was healed.

*Ezechias sayd vnto Esay: Which is the token, that the LORDE wyll heale me, & that I shall go vp in to ỹ house of the LORDE on the thyrde daye? Esay sayd: This token shalt thou haue of the LORDE, that the LORDE shal do accordyng as he hath sayd: Shal the shadow go ten degrees forward, or shall it turne ten degrees backwarde? Ezechias sayd: It is an easy thynge for ỹ shadowe to go ten degrees downewarde, that is not my mynde: but that it go ten degrees backwarde. Then cryed the prophete Esay vnto the LORDE, *and the shadowe went backe ten degrees in Achas dyal, which he was descended afore.

*In the same tyme Merodach Baladã the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon, sent letters and presẽtes vnto Ezechias, for he had herde that Ezechias had ben sycke. And Ezechias reioyced with them, and shewed them all the house of rotes, the syluer, golde, spyces, and the best oyle, and the house of ordynaũce, and all that was foũde in his treasures. Ther was nothyng in his house and in all his dominion, but Ezechias shewed it them. Isa.39.a

Thẽ came Esay the prophet vnto kyng Ezechias, and sayd vnto hym: What haue these men sayd? and whence came they vnto the? Ezechias sayde: They came to me out of a farre contre, euen from Babylon. He sayd: What haue they sene in thy house? Ezechias sayde: They haue sene all that is in my house, & ther is nothynge in my treasures but I haue shewed it them. Thẽ sayd Esay vnto Ezechias: Heare the worde of the LORDE: *Beholde the tyme commeth, that it shalbe caryed awaye vnto Babylon, and what soeuer thy fathers haue layed vp vnto this daye: and ther shal nothynge be left, sayeth the LORDE. *Yee and the childzen which come of the, whom thou shalt beget, shalbe taken awaye, to be chãberlaynes in ỹ kynge of Babylons palace. Ezechias sayd vnto Esay: It is good that the LORDE hath spoken. And he sayd more ouer: Let ther be peace yet & faythfulnesse in my tyme. 4.Re.24.c and.25.b Ier.20.b Dan.1.a

What more ther is to saye of Ezechias, and all his power, and what he dyd, and of the pole and water condupte, wherby he cõueyed water in to ỹ cytie, behold, it is written in the cronicles of the kynges of Juda. *And Ezechias fell on slepe wt his fathers, and Manasses his sonne was kynge in his steade. 2.Pa.32.f

The.xxi. Chapter.

Manasses *was twelfe yeare olde whan he was made kynge, & reygned fyue and fyfty yeare at Jerusalẽ. His mothers name was Hephziba. And he dyd ỹ which was euel in the syght of the LORDE (euen after the abhominacyons of the Heithen, whom the LORDE expelled before ỹ childzen of Israel) and wared frowarde, & buylded vp ỹ hye places *which his father Ezechias had destroyed, and set vp Baals altares, and made groues (as Achab the kynge of Israel dyd) and worshipped all ỹ hoost of heaue, and serued them. And buyl- 2.Pa.33.a 4.Re.18.a

and so much dyd he of this which was euel in the syght of the LORDE that he prouoked hym vnto wrath.

B A groue Idol also which he had made,
set he in ỹ house, wherof the LORD sayd vn to Dauid & to Salomō his sonne: In this 3.Reg 9.c house, and at Jerusalē (* which I haue cho sen out of all the trybes of Israel) wyl I set my name for euer, & wyll not cause ỹ foote of Israel to be remoued ony more from the land, which I gaue vnto theyr fathers, yee
so that they obserue and do accordynge vn to all that I haue charged them, and after all the lawe that my seruaunt Moses com maunded them. Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but Manasses deceaued them, so ỹ they dyd worse then the Heythē, whom the LORDE expelled before the chyldren of Israel.

Then spake the LORDE by his seruaūtes
the prophetes, and sayd: Because ỹ Ma
nasses ỹ kynge of Juda hath done these ab hominacyons, which are worse then all the abominacyons that the Ammorites haue
C done which were before thē, and hath caused Juda also to synne agaynst theyr God:
therfore, thus sayeth the LORDE God of Is Jere.19.a. rael: * Beholde, I wyl bringe such a plage
vpon Jerusalem and Juda, ỹ who soeuer heareth it, both his eares shall glowe, and ouer Jerusalem wyll I stretch forth ỹ lyne of Samaria, and the weyght of the house of Achab, and wyll wype out Jerusalem, euen as one wypeth a platter, and I wyll ouerthrowe it. And the remnaūt of myne en-herritaunce wyll I cast out, and scatter thē abrode, and wyll delyuer them in to the hādes of theyr enemyes, to be spoyled & rente
of theyr enemyes: because they haue done that which is euell in my syght, and haue
D prouoked me vnto wrath, sence ỹ daye that I brought theyr fathers out of Egipte, vnto this day. Manasses also shed exceadyng much innocent bloude, so longe tyll Jerusalem was full on euery syde, besyde ỹ syn-nes wherwith he caused Juda for to synne, so that they dyd that which was euel in the syght of the LORDE.

What more ther is to say of Manasses, and all that he dyd, and his synnes which he committed, beholde it is written in the Cronicles of ỹ kynges of Juda. And Ma-nasses fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in the garden besyde his house, namely, in the garden of Usa: and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

* Two & twenty yeare olde was Amon whan he was made kynge, and he reygned two yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesumelech, the doughter of Harus of Jatba, and he dyd euel in the syght of the LORDE, as Manasses his father had done, and walked in all the way which his father walked, and serued the Idols which his father hadde serued, and worshipped them, and forsoke the LORDE the God of his father, & walked not in ỹ waye of the LORDE.

And his seruauntes conspyred agayn
Amon, and slewe the kynge in his house.
But the people of the lande slewe all them
that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon.
And ỹ people of the lāde made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade. As for other thin ges that Amon dyd, beholde they are wryten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And he was buryed in his graue in Vs sas gardē. And Josias his sōne was kynge in his steade.

The.xxii. Chapter.

IOsias * was eyght yeare olde
whan he was made kynge, & reygned one and thyrty yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedida the dough ter of Adaia of Bascath, & he dyd ỹ which was ryght in the syght of the LORDE, and walked in al the way of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, nother to the ryght
hande, nor to the lefte.

* And in the eyghteenth yeare of kynge
Josias, the kynge sent Saphan the sonne of Asalia the sonne of Mesulam the scrybe
in to the house of the LORDE, & sayd vnto Helchias the hye preest, that ỹ money that is brought vnto the house of the LOR DE (which the tresholde kepers haue gath red of the people) maye be delyuered vn them, that they maye geue it to the worke whiche are appoynted in the house of the LORDE, and to geue it vnto the labourers in the house (that they maye repayre the decaye in the house) namely, vnto the carters, and buylders, and masons, and to bye that bye tymber and hewe stone for to repe

kynge of the house: but so that ther be no accompte taken of the concernynge the money that is vnder theyr hãde, but that they trade withall vpon credence.

And Helchias the hye preest sayde vnto Saphan the Scrybe: * I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And Helchias gaue ỹ boke vnto Saphan, that he might reade it. And Saphan the scrybe bare it vnto the kynge, and brought hym worde agayne, and sayde: Thy seruaũts haue gathered together the money that was founde in the house, and haue delyuered it vnto the workmẽ, which are appoynted in the house of the LORD. And Saphan the scrybe tolde the kynge and sayd: Helchias the hye preest hath delyuered me a boke, and Saphan red it before the kynge.

But whan the kynge herde the wordes of the boke of the law, he rente his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Helchias the preest, and Ahicam ỹ sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphã the scrybe, and Asia the kynges seruaunt, and sayde: * Go youre waye and aske counsell at the LORDE for me, for the people, & for all Juda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is founde: for greate is the wrath of the LORDE that is kyndled ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not herkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do all that is written vnto vs therin.

Then wente Helchias the hye preest, and Ahicam, Achbor, Saphan, and Asaia, vnto Hulda the prophetysse, the wyfe of Sellum, the sonne of Thecua, the sonne of Harham the keper of the clothes, and she dwelt at Jerusalem in the second porte, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: Tell the man that sent you vnto me. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wyll brynge euill vpon this place, and the inhabiters therof, euen all the wordes of the lawe which the kynge hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, and brent incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrath with all the workes of theyr handes. Therfore is my wrath kyndled against the cytye, and shall not be quenched.

But tell this vnto the kynge of Juda, B which hath sent you to aske councell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: because thyne harte is not departed from the wordes which thou hast herde and hast humbled thy selfe before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynste this place and the inhabiters therof (howe that they shall become a very desolacyon and curse) and hast rente thy clothes, and wepte before me, I haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: * therfore wyll I gather the vnto thy fathers, so that thou shalt be put into thy graue in peace, & thyne eyes shall not se al the euell ỹ I wyll brynge vpõ this place. And they brought ỹ kynge worde agayne. 4.Re. 23.f

The.xxiii.Chapter.

And * the kynge sent forth, and A all the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem resorted vnto him, and the kynge wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Juda, and all the inhabiters of Jerusalem with hym, the prestes and prophetes and al the people both small and great, * and all the wordes of the boke of the couenaunt that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in theyr eares. And the kynge stode vpon a pyler, and * made a cõnenaunt before the LORDE that they shulde walke after the LORDE, and to kepe his cõmaundementes, witnesses, and ordinaunces with all theyr harte and with all theyre soule, that they shuld set vp ỹ wordes of the couenaunt, which are writtẽ in this boke. And the kyng cõmaunded Helchias the hye preest, and ỹ prestes of the seconde course and the kepers of the tresholde, that they shulde put out of the temple all the vessels which were made for Baall, & for the groue and for al the hoost of heauen, and he burnt them without Jerusalem in the valleye of Cedron, and the duste of them was caryed vnto Bethell.

And he put downe the * kemurims whõ B the kynges of Juda had founded, to burne incense vpon the hye places, in the cytyes of Juda, and aboute Jerusalem. He putte down also thẽ ỹ burnt incẽse vnto Baall, to the Sõne, and the Moone, and the twolue Soph.1.a

And the groue caused he to be caryed from the house of the LORDE out of Jerusalem in to the valley of Cedron and brent it in the valleye of Cedrō, and made it to dust, and cast the dust vpō the graues of the cōmune people. And he brake downe the whorekepers houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherin the wemen made mansyons for the groue.

And he caused al the prestes for to come out of the cytes of Juda, and suspended the hye places, where the prestes burnt incense from Geba and Berseba. And brake downe ỹ hye places in the portes, that were at the doze of the gate of Josua the shreue of the cyte, at the lefte hande as one goeth in the cyte porte. yet had not the prestes of the hye places offered vpon the altare of the LORDE, at Jerusalem, but dyd eate vnle uended breade amonge their brethren.

And he sayde: What tytell is this, that I se here? And the men of the cytye sayd vnto hym: It is the graue of the man of God, which came frō Juda, and cryed out this ỹ thou hast done agaīst the altare of Bethell. And he sayde: Let hym lye, noman touche his bones. Thus were his bones delyuered with the bones of the prophete that came from Samaria.

He put awaye also all the houses of the hye places in ỹ cyties of Samaria, (which the kynges of Israel had made to prouoke the LORDE vnto wrath) and dyd with them accordyng to all as he had done at Bethell. and al ỹ prestes of the hye places that were there, offered he vpon the altares, and dyd burnt he mens bones theron, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

* And the kynge cōmaunded the people and sayd: Kepe Easter vnto the LORDE your God * as it is wrytten in the boke of this conuenaunt. * For ther was no Easter kepte as this, sence the tyme of the iudges which iudged Israel: and in all the tymes of the kynges of Israel and of ỹ kynges of Juda: but in the eyghteenth yeare of kynge Josias, was this Easter kept vnto the LORDE at Jerusalem.

And Josias expelled al soothsayers, wōnders of tokens, ymages and Idols, and all the abhominacyōs which were sene in the londe of Juda and at Jerusalē, that he myghte sette vp the wordes of the lawe, which were wrytte in the boke, ỹ Helchias the preste founde in the house of the LORDE.

Ther was no kynge before hym, which so conuerted vnto the LORDE with all his harte, with all his soule, & with all his strength, accordynge to all the lawe of Moses. And after hym came ther not by such another. yet turned not the LORDE from the indignacyon of his greate wrath, wherwith he was displeased ouer Juda, be cause of al the prouocacyon wherwith Manasses had prouoked hym. And the LORDE sayde: * I wyll put out Juda out of my sight also, euē as I haue put away Israel, & this cytye which I haue chosen, wyll I cast out, namely, Jerusalē, and ỹ house wherof I said: My name shalbe there. What more ther is to saye of Josias, and al ỹ he dyd, behold, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda.

The.xxv.Chapter.

AND it fortuned, that * in the Jerr.39.a and 52.a

And they layed lege vnto it, and buylded stronge holdes rounde aboute it. Thus was the cytye beseged vnto the eleuenth yeare of kynge Zedechias. * But on the nyenth day of the Ezec.4.c. and.5.d fourth moneth was the honger so stronge in the cytye, that the people of the lōde had nothynge to eate. And ỹ cytye was broken vp, and all the men of warre fled in ỹ night by the way of the porte betwene ỹ two walles, which goeth to the kynges gardē. But the Caldees laye aboute the cytye. And Zedechias fled by the waye to the playne felde. Neuertheles the power of the Caldees folowed after the kynge, and toke hym in the playne felde of Jericho: and all the men of warre that were with hym were scattered abrode from hym. And they toke the kynge, and led hym vp to the kynge of Babylon vnto Reblatha. Here reade: And they talked with hym of iudgement. And he gaue iudgement vpon hym. And they slew Zedechias chyldrē before his eyes, and put oute Zedechias eyes, bounde hym with cheynes, and caryed hym vnto Babylon.

B Upon the seuenth daye of the fyfth moneth that is the nyententh yeare, of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylō, came Nabusaradā the cheke captayne, the kyng of Baaboute Jerusalem. As for the people that yet were left in the cytie and were fallen to the kynge of Babylon, and the residue mune people, Nabusarandan the cheke captayne caryed them awaye. And of the poreste people dyd the cheke captayne leue in the londe to be wynegardeners and plowmen.

But the brasen pilers in the house of the LORDE, and the seates, and the brasen lauer that was in the house of the LORDE, dyd the Caldees breake downe, and caryed the metal vnto Babylon. And the pottes, shouelstelhokes, spones, and all the brasen vessell that was occupyed in ỹ seruyce, caryed they awaye. And the cheke captayne toke away the censors and basens, that were of golde and syluer, two pylers, one lauer, and ỹ mates that Salomon had made for the house of the LORDE. The metall of all these instrumentes coulde not be weyed. * Eyghtene cubites hye was one pyler, and the knoppe theron was of brasse also, and three cubytes hye: and the rope and the pomgranates vpon the knoppe rounde aboute were all of brasse. After the same maner was the other pyler also with the rope.

And the cheke captayne toke Seraiah ỹ preest of the fyrst course, and Sophony the preest of the seconde course, and the dorkeepers, and one chamberlayne out of the cytye which was appoynted ouer the men of warre: and fyue men that were euer beforne the kynge, which were founde in the cyte, and Sophar the captayne, which taught the people of the lande to fyghte, and three score men of the people of the londe, ỹ were founde in the cytye: these dyd Nabusaradā the cheke captayne take, and brought them vnto the kynge of Babylō vnto Reblatha. And the kynge of Babylon slew thē at Reblatha in the lande of Hemath. Thus was Juda caried awaye out of his lande. * And ouer the remnaunt of the people in the lande of Juda, whom Nabuchodonosor ỹ kynge of Babylon lefte behynde, he set Godolias the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan. Now whan all the captaynes of the soldyers, & the men herde, that the kynge of Babylon had made Godolias gouernour, they came to Godolias vnto Maspha, namely Jsmaell the sonne of Nathanias, and Johanna the sonne of Carea, and Seraiah the sonne of Tanhometh the Netophathite, and Jesanias the sonne of Maechati with their men. And Godolias sware vnto them, and to theyr men, and sayde vnto them:

nat ye the officers of the Caldees, tarye in the lonte, and submitte your selfe vnto the kynge of Babylon, and ye shall prosperе.
* But in the seuēth moneth came Ismaell the sonne of Nathanias the sonne of Elisama (of ꝑ kynges kynred) and ten men with hym, and slewe Godolias, and the Jewes and Caldees that were with him at Maspa Then all the people gat thē vp, both small and great and the captaynes of the hoost, and came into Egypte, for they were afrayd of the Caldees.
* Howbeit in ꝑ seuē and thyrtieth yeare after that Joachim the kyng of Juda was caryed away on the seuen and twē tyeth day of the twelfthe moneth, Euylmerodah the kynge of Babylon in the fyrste yeare of his raygne, lift vp ꝑ head of Joachym ꝑ kynge of Juda out of prisō: and spake louyngly vnto hym, & set his troue aboue the tro nes of ꝑ kyn ges that wer with hym at Babylon, & chaūged ꝑ clothes of his cap tyue: And he dyd eate alway before hym as longe as he lyued. The.xi.Chapter.

THe * Philistynes fought gaynst Israell. And they of Israel fled befor the Philistines, and the woũded fell vpõ mẽ Gilboa. And the Philistynes folowed vpon Saull and his sonnes, and smote Jonathas, Aminadab, and Melchisua the sonnes of Saull. And the battayl was sore agaynst Saull. And the archers cam vpon him so, that he was wounded of the archers. Thẽ sayd Saull vnto his weapenbearer. * Drawe out thy swearde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not, and deale shamefully with me. Neuertheless his weapẽbearer wolde not, for he was sore afrayed. Then toke Saull his swearde, and fell theron. Whan his weapenbearer sawe that Saull was dead, he fell vpon his swearde also, and dyed.

Thus dyed Saull and his thre sonnes, and all his housholde together. And when the men of Israel which were in the valley saw, that Saul and his sonnes were dead, they left theyr cities and fled: and the Philistynes came and dwelt therin.

* On the morow came the Philistines to spoyle, the slayne, and founde Saul and his sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gelboa, & stryped the out, & toke his head, & his harneisse, and sent it aboute in to the lande of ỹ Philistynes, and caused it to be shewed before theyr Idoles and the people. And his weapens layed they in the house of theyr god, & fickte vp his head vpõ ỹ house of Dagõ.

* But whã all they of Jabes in Gilead herde of euery thynge, that the Philistines had done vnto Saul, they gat thẽ vp (as many as were men of armes) and toke the body of Saul and of his sõnes, & brought thẽ vnto Jabes, & buryed theyr bones vnder ỹ Oke at Jabes, and fasted seuẽ dayes.

Thus dyed Saul in his trespasse which he cõmitted agaynst the LORD, because * he kepte not the worde of the LORDE: & because he axed cõsell at the soythsayer, and axed not at the LORDE, therfore slew he him and turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid.

The.xii. Chapter.

And all Israell resorted to Dauid vnto Hebron, and sayde: * Beholde, we are thy bone & thy flesh. And afore tyme whã Saull raygned, thou leddest Israell out and in. So the LORD thy God hath sayde vnto the: Thou shalt kepe my people of Israell, & thou shalt be the prynce ouer my people of Israell. And all the Elders of Israell came to the kynge vnto Hebron, And Dauid made a conuenaũt with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anoynted Dauid to be kynge ouer Israel * accordynge to the worde of the LORDE by Samuell.

And Dauid and Israell wente vnto Jerusalem, that is Jebus: for the Jebusites dwelt in the lande. And the cytesyns of Jebus sayde vnto Dauid: Thou shalt not come in hyther. Howbeit, Dauid wanne the castell of Sion, which is the cittie of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: * who so euer smyteth ỹ Jebusites fyrst, shall be a prynce and captayne. Thẽ Joab the sonne of Zeruia clymed vp fyrste, and was made captayn. So Dauid dwelt in the castell, therfore was it called the cytye of Dauid. And he buylded the cytye rounde aboute, fro Millo forth on euery syde. As for the remnaũt of the cyttie Joab buylded it, and repayred it. And Dauid wente forth and grewe, and the LORDE Zebaoth was with hym.

These are the chefe amonge the myghtye men of Dauid, which dealte valeauntly with hym in his kyngdome with all Israell, to make hym kynge, accordynge to ỹ worde of the LORDE ouer Israel. And this is the nombre of Dauids mightye men: Jesabeam the sonne of Hachmoni the chefest amonge thyrtye. He lyft vp his speare, and smote thre hundreth at one tyme.

After hym was Eleasar the sonne of Dodo the Ahohite, and he was amonge ỹ thre myghtye. This mã was with Dauid whã they blasphemed, & the Philistines had gathered theselues there to the battayll. And Dauid was desyrous, and sayd: O that some wold geue me to drinke of the water out of ỹ well at Bethleem vnder the gate. Then brake those thre in to ỹ Philistines hoost, & drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder ỹ gate, and caryed it, & brought it vnto Dauid. Neuertheles he wolde not drynke it, but powred it vnto the LORD, and sayde: God let this be farre fro me, that I shulde do it, and drynke the bloude of these men in the parell of theyr lyfe: for with the parel of theyr lyfe haue they brought it: therfore wolde he not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthyes.

Ibisai the brother of Joab, he was the chefest amonge thre. And he lyfte vp his speare and smote thre hũdreth. And he was famous amonge thre, and before the thirde more honorable then the two, yet came he not vnto the thre.

He smote a man of Egipte also, which was fyue cubytes greate of stature, and had in his hãde a speare lyke a weuers lome, yet went he downe to hym with a staffe: & toke the speare out of his hande and slewe hym with his owne speare. This dyd Benaia the sonne of Jotada, & was a famous man

These also came to Dauid vnto Siclag * whan he was yet kepte alyde because of Saull the sõne of Cis: And they were lykewyse amonge the Worthies that helped in ỹ battayl, and could hãdle bowes with both theyr handes, and couide cast stones, & shout arowes with the bowe.

Of Sauls brethren which were of Ben Jamin: The chefest Ahieser and Joas the chyldren of Samaa the Gibearhite. Jesiell and Pelet the chyldren of Asmaueth, Beracha & Jehu the Anathothite, Jesmaia the Gibeonite, valeaunt amõge thyrtye and ouer thyrtye, Jeremia, Jahasiel, Johanan Josabad the Gederathite, Eleusai, Jerimoth, Bealia, Samaria, Saphatia ỹ Haraphite, Elkana, Jesia, Asarecil, Joeser, Jasabrã the Corahite, Joela and Zebadia the chyldren of Jeroham of Gedor.

Of the Gadditres reserted ther vnto Dauid to the castell in the wildernesse, myghtye Worthyes and men of armes, bare hãdled speares & swearder, and were lyke lyons, and were as swyfte as the roes vpon the mountaynes. The fyrst Ezer, the conde Obadia, the thirde Eliab, the fourth Masmanna, the fyfte Jeremia, the sixte Jthai, The seuenth Eliel, the eyghte Johanan, the nyenth Elsabad, the tenth Jeremia, the eleuenth Machbanai. These were of the chyldren of Gad, heades in the hoost: And ouer an hundreth and the greatest ouer a thousand. These are they which in the first moneth wente ouer Jordane whan it was full on both the shores, for that all the valeyes were euen both towarde the East & towarde the west.

There came of the chyldren of Benjamin also and of Juda vnto ỹ castell vnto Dauid. But Dauid went forth vnto them, and answered and sayde vnto them: yf ye come in peace, and to helpe me, my hart shalbe with you. But yf ye come vpon deceite, to be myne aduersaryes (where as there is yet no vnryght in me) the God of our fathers loke vpon it and rebuke it. Forasmuche as the spyrite endued Amasai the chefest amonge the thyrtye, and he sayde: We are thyne O Dauid, and holde with the sonne of Jsai. Peace, peace be with the, and peace be with thy helpers, for thy God helpeth the. Then Dauid receaued them, & made them captaynes ouer the men of warre.

And of Manasses ther fell certayne to Dauid, whan he came to the battayl of the Philistynes agaynst Saul, and helped them not, * for the pryuces of the Philistynes counceled to let hym go from the, and sayde: yf he fell vnto his lorde Saul, it myght cost vs our neckes. * Now whan he departed vnto Siclag, ther fell vnto him of Manasses, Adna, Josabad, Jediael, Michael, Josabad, Elihu, Zilthai heades ouer thousandes in Manasses. And they helped Dauid agaynst the men of warre: for they were all valeaunt Worthies and were captaynes ouer the hoost. And euery day came ther some to Dauid, to helpe him, vntyl ther was a great hoost as an hoost of God.

And this is the nombre of ỹ heades that resorted vnto the warre, which came to Dauid vnto Hebron, for to turne the kyngdome of Saull vnto hym, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE.

The chyldren of Juda, whiche handled speares and sweardes, were sixe thousand,
and eyght hundreth ready harnessed vnto ỹ warre. Of the chyldren of Symeō noble mē of armes for the battayle, seuen thousande and fyue hūdreth. Of the chyldre of Leui foure thousand and sixe hundreth. And Jotada ỹ prynce among thē of Aaron with thre thou

valeaunt man of armes with his fathers house, two and twentye rulers. Of the chyl dren of Ben Jamin Sauls brother, thre

of them yet with the house of Saull.

Of the chyldre of Ephraim, twētye thou sande and eyght hūdreth valeaunt men of armes, and famous in the house of theyr fa thers. Of ỹ halfe tryde of Manasses, eyght= tene thousāde, named by name to come and make Dauid kynge. Of the chyldren of Is char (which were men of vnderstōdynge, whom nede requyred to knowe what Israel shulde do) two hundreth captaynes, and all theyr brethren folowed theyr worde. Of Za bulon, such as wente forth in the hoost to ỹ warre, ready with all maner of weapēs for the battayll, fyftye thousād, beynge of one mynde to kepe themselues in ordre.

Of Nephtali, a thousande captaynes, and with them suche as handled shylde and speare, seuen and thyrtye thousand. Of Dā ites harnessed to the battayll, eyghte and twentye thousande, and sixe hundreth. Of Aser such as wente forth in the hoost, rea= dy harnessed to the battayl, fourtye thousād.
From beyonde Jordane, of the Rubenites, Gadites and the halfe tryde of Manasses
with all maner of weapens to the battayll,
an hundreth and twentye thousande.

All these men of warre, ready harnes= sed to the battayll, came with a whole hart vnto Hebron, to make Dauid kynge ouer all Israell. And all Israell beside were of one hart, that Dauid shuld be made kyng.
And there were they with Dauid thre day
es, eatynge and drynkynge: for theyr bre= thren had prepared for thē. And such nepgh bours as were about them vnto Issachar, Zabulō and Nephtali, brought bread vpō
asses, camels, mules and oxē to eate: meell, figges, raisens, wyne, oyle, oxen, shepe very many: for ther was ioye in Israell.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

And Dauid helde a councell with the captaynes ouer thousandes, &
ouer hundreds and with all ỹ prin ces and sayde vnto all the congregacion of Israell: yf it lyke you, and yf it be of ỹ LOR
DE our God, let vs sēde forth on euery syde to oure other brethren in all the contrees of Israel, and to the prestes and Leuites in the cytyes where they haue suburbes, that they maye be gathered together vnto vs, & let vs set ỹ Arke of our God agayne vnto vs: for by Sauls tyme we ared after it. Thē sayd ỹ whole cōgregacō, that ỹ same shuld
be done, for it pleased all ỹ people well.

So Dauid gathered al Israel together
from Sihor of Egypte tyll a man come vn to Hemath, to fetch the Arke of God from Kiriath Jearim. And Dauid went vp with all Israell to Kiriath Jearim, which lyeth in Juda to bryngе from thence the Arke of God the LORDE, that sytteth vpon the Che

Usa and his brethren droue the cart. As B for Dauid and al Israel, they played w all theyr strēgth before God with songes, with harpes, with psalteries, with tabrettes, w Cymbales and trompes.

But whan they came to the barne floor of Chidon, Usa stretched out his hande to holde the Arke: for the oxen went out aside.
Then waxed the wrath of the LORDE fearce
ouer Usa, and smote hym, because he stret= ched out his hande to the Arke, so that he dyed there before God. Then was Dauid sory, because the LORDE had made suche a rente vpon Usa, and called the place Perez Usa, vnto this daye. And Dauid stode in feare of God the same day and sayde: How shall I bryngе the Arke of God vnto me?
Therfore wolde he not let the Arke of God
be brought vnto hym in to the cytye of Da
uid, but caried it in to ỹ house of Obed Edō
the Gathite. So the Arke of God abode w Obed Edom in his house thre monethes.
And the LORDE blessed Obed Edōs house,
and all that he had.

The.xv. Chapter.

And * Hirā the kynge of Tyre A

that ỹ LORD had cōfirmed him kynge ouer Israell: for his kyngdom encreased for his

Sammua, Sobad, Nathã, Salomon, Iebhar, Elisua Elpalet, Noga, Nepheg, Iaphia, Elisamma, Baall, Iada, Elipholet.

B And whan the Philistynes herde, that Dauid was anoynted kynge ouer all Israell, they wente vp all to seke Dauid. Whã Dauid herde that, he wente forth agaynste them. And the Philistines came, and scatered themselues beneth in the valleye of Rephaim. And Dauid axed councell at God, and sayde: Shall I go vp agaynst the Philistynes? and wylt thou delyuer them in to my hande? The LORD sayde vnto hym, Go vp, I wyl delyuer thẽ in to thy hande. And whan they were gone vp to Baal Perasim, Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayd: God hath deuyded myne enemyes thorow my hande, euen as the water parteth asunder: therfore called they ỹ place Baal Perasim. And there left they their goddes. Thẽ

And God sayde vnto hym: Thou shalt not go vp behynde thẽ, but turne the from them, that thou mayest come vpõ thẽ ouer agaynst the Perrtrees. So whan thou heatest aboue vpon the Perrtrees the noyse of the goynge, go thou forth thẽ to the battayl: for God is gone forth then before the to smyte the hoost of the Philistynes. And Dauid dyd as God cõmaunded hym. And they smote the hoost of the Philistynes frõ Gibeon forth vnto Gaser. And Dauids name was noysed out in all landes. And the LORDE caused the feare of him to come vpon all the Heythen.

The.xvj.Chapter.

A And he buylded hym houses in the cytye of Dauid, and made ready a place for ỹ Arke of God and pitched a Tabernacle for it. At that tyme sayde Dauid: The Arke of God is not to be borne, but o-
Num.4.b ney of the Leuites: * for thẽ hath the LORD chosen to beare the Arke of the LORDE, and to mynister vnto him for euer. Therfore gathered Dauid all Israell together vnto Ierusalẽ, to bringe vp the Arke of the LORDE vnto ỹ place which he hath prepared for it.

And Dauid brought the children of Aaron and the Leuites together. Of the children of Kahath: Uriell the chefe with his brethren, an. C. and twentye. Of the children of Merari: Asaia the chefe with his brethrẽ two hundreth and twentye. Of the children of Gerson: Joell the chefe with his brethren. C. and thyrtye. Of the children of Elizaphan: Semaia the chefe with his brethren, two hundreth. Of the children of Hebron Eliel the chefe, with his brethrẽ, foure score. Of the children of Uziel: Amminadab ỹ chefe, with his brethren, an hundreth and twelue.

And Dauid called Sadoc and Abiathar that the prestes and ỹ Leuites, namely Uriell, Asaia, Joell, Semaia, Eliel, Amminadab, and sayde vnto thẽ: ye are the heades of the fathers amonge the Leuites: sanctifye youre selues therfore and youre brethren, that ye may bringe vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israel, to the place that I haue prepared for it. * For afore when ye were not there, the LORDE our God made a rent amonge vs, because we sought hym not, as we shulde haue done, And the prestes and the Leuites halowed themselues, that they myght bringe vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israell. And the children of Leui bare the Arke of God the LORDE vpon their shulders with the staues therin * as Moses cõmaunded accordynge to the worde of the LORDE.

And Dauid spake vnto the rulers of the Leuites, that they shulde ordeyne their brethrẽ to be syngers with pleasaunt harpes and loude instrumentes, and cymbales, to synge loude with ioye.

Then the Leuites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joell: and of his brethren Asaph the sonne of Barachias: and of the children of Merari their brethren, Ethan the sonne of Cusaia: and with them their brethren of the seconde courte, namely Zacharias, Jaziell, Semiramoth, Jehiell, Unni, Eliab, Benaia, Maaseia, Mathathia, Elipheleh, Mikneia, Obed Edom, Jeiel, the porters: For Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were syngers vñ brasen belles makynge a loude noyse: but Zacharias, Jaziell, Semiramoth, Jehiell, Unni Eliab, Maaseia, Benaia vñ plaiterties to Alamoth: Mattathia, Elipheleh, Mikneia, Obed Edom, Jeiel, Asasia, with harpes to synge aboue the hye. Chenania the ruler of the Leuites in the matter of musycke to teache them for he was a man of vnderstandynge.

And Barachias and Elkana were dorekepers of the Arke. But Zacharias, Jesaphat, Nathanaell, Amasai, Zacharias, Benaia, Eliezer the prestes blewe with trompettes before the Arke of God. And Obed Edom & Jehaia were dorekepers of the

So Dauid & the Elders of Israell and the captaynes ouer thousandes wente vp to fetch the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the house of Obed Edom with ioye. And whan God had holped the Leuites that bare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, ther were offred seuen bullockes and seuen rammes. And Dauid had a lynen garment vpon hym, and so had all ỹ Leuites that bare the Arke, and ỹ syngers, and Chenania the master of Musicke with the syngers. Dauid had an ouerbody cote of lynen vpon hym also.

Thus all Israel brought vp the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE w̃ myrth, with trompettes, tabrettes, and loude Cymbales, with psalteries and harpes. * Now whan the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE cam in to the cytie of Dauid, Micholl the doughter of Saull loked out at a wyndowe: & whan she sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playenge, she despised hym in hir hart.

The.xvii. Chapter.

And * whã they brought in the Arke of God, they set it in the Tabernacle, that Dauid had pitched for it, and offred burnt offerynges and thankofferynges before God. And whan Dauid had ended the burntofferynges and thankofferynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE, and distributed vnto euery man in Israel (both vnto man & woman) a cake of brede, and a pece of flesshe, and a measse of potage.

And he appointed before the Arke of the LORDE certayne Leuites to ministre, that they shulde geue prayse, thankes and lowynges vnto the LORDE God of Israel: namely Assaph the fyrst, Zacharias the seconde, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Mathithia, Eliab, Benaia, Obed Edom, and Jeiel, with psalteries & harpes. But Assaph with loude cymbales, Benaia and Jehaziel the prestes with trompettes, alwaye before the Arke of the couenaunt of God.

At the same tyme ordeyned Dauid first of all to geue thankes vnto the LORDE by Assaph and his brethren.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, call vpon his name, tell the people what great thinges he hath done.

O let your songes be of hym: prayse hym, and let your talkinge be of his wonderous

Geue his holy name a good reporte: let the harte of them reioyce, that seke the LORDE.

O seke the LORDE and his strength, seke his face for euermore.

Remembre his maruaylous workes that he hath done, his wonders, and the iudgementes of his mouth.

Ye sede of Israel his seruaunt, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

He is the LORDE our God, his iudgementes are in all landes.

Be myndfull euer of his couenaunt C what he hath cõmaunded in to a thousand generacions.

* Which he made with Abraham, and Gen. 22 & & Ge. 26. & his oth vnto Isaac.

And * confirmed the same vnto Jacob Ge. 28. & for a perpetuall lawe, and to Israell for an euerlastynge couenaunt.

And sayde: Vnto the wyll I geue the lande of Canaan, the meetynge of youre enheritaunce.

Whan they were yet but small & fewe in nombre, & straungers in the same lande.

And they wente frõ one nacyon to another, & from one realme to another people.

He suffred noman to hurte them, and reproued euen kynges for theyr sakes.

* Touche not myne anoynted, and do Psa. 104 b my prophetes no harme.

* O synge vnto the LORDE, let all the Psal. 95. a earth be tellynge of his saluacyon frõ daye to daye.

Declare his holynes amonge the Heythen, and his wonderous workes amonge the people.

For the LORDE is great, and can not worthely be prayed, & is more to be had in awe then al goddes.

As for al the goddes of the Heythe they are but Idols: & but it is the LORDE that Gene. 1. & made the heauens.

Thankesgeuinge and worshippe are be- D fore hym, strength & ioye is in his place.

Ascribe vnto the LORDE ye kyndredes of nacyons: ascribe vnto the LORDE worshippe and strength.

Ascribe vnto the LORDE the honoure of his name: bringe presentes and come before hym, and worshippe the LORDE in the beautye of his holynesse.

Let the whole earth stande in awe of him he hath made the compasse of the worlde so fast, that it can not be moued.

Let the heaues reioyce, & let the earth be glad: and let it be tolde amonge the Heythen

then, that the LORDE reygneth.

Let the Sea make a noyse, and the fulnesse therof: let the felde be ioyfull, and all that therin is.

Let al trees in the wood leape for ioye before the LORDE, for he commeth to iudge the earth.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE for he is gracyous: and his mercy endureth for euer.

And saye: Helpe vs O God our Saue our, and gather vs together, & delyuer vs from the Heythen, that we maye geue thankes vnto thy holy name, and synge prayses vnto the in thy Psalmes.

Praysed be the LORDE God of Israel from euerlastynge to euerlastynge: & let all the people say: Amen. And prayse be vnto the LORDE.

So he left Assaph & his brethren there before the Arke of the conuenaunt of ꝑ LORDE, to mynister alway before the Arke, euery day his dayes worke. But Obed Edom and theyr brethre, eyght and thre score, and Obed Edom the sone of Jedithun, & Hosa to be dore kepers, And Sadoc the prest, & his brethren the prestes, left he before ꝑ habitacyō of the LORDE vpō the hye place at Gibeon, to offre burntsacrifices dayly vnto the LORDE vpon the altare of burntoffrynges in the morynge and in the euenynge, Exo.29.g. Nu.28.d as it is wrytten in the * lawe of the LORDE, which he commaunded vnto Israel. And with them Heman and Jedithun, and the other chose, which were named by name to geue thākes vnto the LORDE, because his mercy endureth for euer. And with thē Heman and Jedithun to stryke vpon ꝑ tabret es and Cymbales, and the musycall instrumentes of God. As for the chyldren of Jedithun, he made them dorekepes. So all the people departed, euery one to his house And Dauid returned also to bielle his house.

The.xviii. Chapter.

2.Reg.7.a IT * fortuned ꝑ whan Dauid dwelt in his house, he sayd vnto the prophet Nathā. Behold I dwell in a house of Ceder, & the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE is amonge the curtaynes.

Nathan sayd vnto Dauid: What soeuer is in thyne harte, that do: for God is wt the. But the same nyght came the worde of God vnto Nathan, and sayd: Go & speake to Dauid my seruaunt: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not buylde me an house to be an habitacō. For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I haue brought forth the chyldren of Israel, vnto this daye But where the Tabernacle and habitacyō hath ben, there haue I ben, where soeuer I haue walked in all Israel. Spake I ought to ony of the iudges in Israel (whom I commaunded to kepe my people) and sayde: Wherfore do ye not buylde me an house of Ceder tymber?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruaunt Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: I toke the from the pasture behynde the shepe, that thou shuldest be the prynce ouer my people: and haue ben with the whether soeuer thou wentest, and haue rooted out all thyne enemyes before ꝑ, and haue made the a name accordynge to the name of the great men ꝑ are vpon earth. And as for my people of Israell, I wyll appoynte them a place, and wyll plante them, that they may dwell there, and nomore to be remoued. And the chyldren of wyckednesse shall oppresse thē nomore, lyke as afore tyme, whē I commaūded the iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyll subdue all thyne enemyes, and do declare vnto the, that ꝑ LORDE wyll buylde the an house.

* But whan thy dayes are fulfylled ꝑ thou departest hence with thy fathers, I wyll after the rayse vp thy sede, which shall be euen one of thy sonnes: his kyngdome wyll I stablyshe, * he shall buylde me an house, and I wyl make his seate sure for euer. I wyll be his father, and he shalbe my sonne. And I wyll not withdraw my mercy from him, * as I haue withdrawen it from hym that was before ꝑ: But I wyl set him in my house and in my kyngdome for euer, so that his seate shalbe sure for euermore.

And whā Nathan had spoke vnto Dauid accordynge vnto all these wordes and this vision, kynge Dauid came & sat him downe before the LORDE, & sayd: O LORDE God who am I, & what is my house, ꝑ thou hast brought me thus farre? And this (O God) hast thou thought yet to lyte, but hast spoken of thy seruauntes house yet longe to come. And thou LORDE God hast looked downe vpon me from aboue, euen as a man loketh vpō another. What more can Dauid saye vnto the, that thou hyghest thy seruaunt vnto suche honoure? Thou knowest thy seruaunt O LORDE, for thy seruauntes sake and accordynge to thy owne hart thou done al these great thynges, thou myghteſt ſhewe all great thynges vn

the Heythen before thy people, whom thou haſt delyuered out of Egipte? And the peo

Now LORDE, let the worde be ve-

He ſmote Hadadeſer alſo the kynge of Zo ba in Hemath, whan he wente to ſet vp his power by the water Euphrates.

And Dauid toke from hym a thouſād charrettes, ſeuen thouſande horſemen, and fourty thouſande footemen. And Dauid lamed all the charrettes, and kepte an hun dyth charrettes ouer. And the Syrias cam from Damaſcon, to helpe Hadadeſer the kynge of Zoba. How be it Dauid ſmote two and twenty thouſande of the ſame Sy rians, and layed men of warre at Damaſcon in Syria: ſo that the Syrias were ſub-dued vnto Dauid, and brought hym trybute. For the LORDE helped Dauid, whether ſoeuer he wente.

And Dauid toke the ſhyldes of gold that Hadadeſers ſeruaūtes had, and brought them to Ieruſalem. And out of Tibehath and Chun the cyties of Hadadeſer, toke Dauid very much braſſe, * wherof Salo- 3. Reg. 7. b mon made the braſen lauer, and pilers, and braſen veſſels.

* And whan Thogu the kynge of He- 2. Reg. 8. b math herde, that Dauid had ſmytten al the power of Hadadeſer, he ſent his ſonne Ha
doram vnto kynge Dauid to ſalute hym,
and bleſſe hym, becauſe he had foughten wͤ Hadadeſer, and ſmytten hym (for Thogu had warre wͤ Hadadeſer). And al yͤ ſame veſſels of golde, ſyluer, and of braſſe, dyd kynge Dauid conſecrate vnto the LORDE, with the ſyluer and golde that he had take from the Heythen, namely from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, Philiſtines and Amalechites.

*And Abiſai the ſōne of Zeruia ſmote C

Salt valleye, and layed mē of warre in Edomea, ſo that all the Edomites were ſub-dued vnto Dauid: for the LORDE helped Dauid, whether ſoeuer he wente.

Thus Dauid reygned ouer all Iſrael,
and executed iudgemēt and ryghteouſnes vnto all his people. Joab the ſōne of Zeruia was captayne ouer the hooſt. Joſaphat the ſonne of Ahilud was chaunceler. Sa-doc the ſonne of Achitob, and Ahimelech yͤ ſonne of Abiathar, were prieſtes. Saueſa was ſcrybe. Benaia yͤ ſōne of Joiada was

The xx. Chapter.

And * after this dyed Nahas yͤ I and his ſōne was kynge in his ſtеade. Then ſayd Dauid: I wyll do mercy vpon Hanun yͤ

ſonne of Nahas, for his father dyd mercy
vpon me: and ſo he ſent meſſaungers to cōfor te hym ouer his father. And whan Da-uids ſeruauntes came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon vnto Hanun to cōfor

ſayd vnto Hanun: Thinkeſt thou that Da uid honoureth thy father in thy ſyght, that he hath ſent cōforters vnto the? ſee his ſer uauntes are come vnto the, to ſearche and ouerthrowe, and to ſpye out the lande. Thē toke Hanun the ſeruauntes of Dauid, and ſhaue them, and cut the half of their gar-

go. And they went their waye: and ſent mē

B to tel Dauid. Neuertheleſſe he ſent to mete them (for the men were put to great ſhame) and the kynge ſayd: Abyde at Jericho, tyll youre beerdes be growen, and then come agayne.

Whan the chyldren of Ammon ſawe þ they ſtynked in the ſyght of Dauid, both Hanun and the chyldren of Ammon ſent a thouſande talentes of ſyluer, to hyre charrettes and horſemen out of Meſopotamia, and out of Maecha and out of Zoba: and hyred two and thyrtye thouſande charrettes, and the kynge of Maecha with his people, which came and pitched theyr tentes before Medba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them ſelues together out of theyr cyties, and came to the battayll. Whā Dauid herde that, he ſent Joab thether with al the hooſt of the men of armes. And the chyldren of Ammon were gone forth, and prepared them ſelues to the battayll before the gate of the cytie. But the kinges þ were come, kepte them alyde in the felde.

C Now whan Joab ſawe that the battayl was agaynſt hym both before and behynd, he chooſe of al the beſt yonge men out Iſrael, and prepared hymſelfe agaynſt the Syrians. As for the reſidue of the people, he put them vnder the hāde of Abiſai his brother, that they ſhulde prepare thē ſelues agaynſt the chyldren of Ammon, and he ſayd: yf the Syrians be to myghtye for me, helpe thou me: but yf the chyldrē of Ammō be to ſtrōge for the, I ſhall help the: take a good corage vnto the, and let vs quyte our ſelues māly, for our people and for þ cyties of our God: neuertheleſſe the LORDE do what pleaſeth hym. And Joab made him forth with þ people that was with hym, to fyght agaynſt þ Syrians: and they fled before hym. And whan the chyldren of Ammon ſawe that þ Syrians fled, they fled alſo before Abiſai his brother, and wente in to the cytie. And Joab came to Jeruſalem.

D But whan the Syrians ſawe that they were ſmytten before Iſrael, they ſent meſſaungers, and brought forth the Syrians which were beyonde the water. And Sophach þ cheefe captayne of Hadad Eſer wēt before them. Whan this was tolde Dauid he gathered all Iſrael together, and wente ouer Jordane. And whan he came at them, he ſet the battayll in araye agaynſt them. And Dauid prepared hymſelfe to þ battail againſt the Syrians, and they fought wt hym but the Syrians fled before Iſrael. And Dauid ſlewe of the Syrias ſeuē thou ſande charrettes, and forty thouſand horſmen. And Sophach þ cheefe captayne ſlewe he alſo. And whan Hadad Eſers ſeruauntes ſawe that they were ſmytten before Iſrael, they made peace with Dauid and his ſeruauntes. And the Syrians wold helpe the chyldren of Ammon nomore.

The. xxi. Chapter.

AND * whā þ yeare came about what tyme as the kynges vſe to go forth, Joab brought the power of the hooſt and deſtroyed the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, and came & layed ſege vnto Rabba. But Dauid abode at Jeruſalem. And Joab ſmote Rabba, and brake it downe. And Dauid toke theyr kynges crowne of his his heade, and founde the weyght of a talent of golde theron, and precyous ſtones. And it was ſet vpon Dauids heade. And very much ſpoyle caried he out of the cyte. As for the people þ were therin he brought them forth, and parted them in ſunder wt ſawes, and hokes & beytels of yron. Thus dyd Dauid vnto al the cyties of the chyldren of Ammon. And Dauid departed agayne, with the people vnto Jeruſalem.

* Afterwarde aroſe there warre at Geſer with the Philiſtynes. Then Sibechai the Huſathite ſmote Sibai, which was one of the chyldren of Rephaim, and he ſubdued hym. And there aroſe warre agayne wt the Philiſtynes. Then Elhanah the ſonne of Jahir ſmote Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gathite, whoſe ſpeares ſtaffe was lyke a weuers lome. Afterward was there a battayll at Gath where there was a man of a great ſtature, that had ſixe fyngers and ſixe toes: which make foure and twenty. And he was borne alſo of Rapha, and ſpake deſpytefully vnto Iſrael. But Jonathas the ſōne of Simea Dauids brother ſmote him. Theſe were the chyldrē of Rapha at Gath, and fell thorow the hande of Dauid, and of his ſeruauntes.

The. xxii. Chapter.

AND Sathan ſtode agaynſt Iſrael, and * entiſed Dauid to nōbre Iſrael. And Dauid ſayd vnto Joab and the rulers of the people: Go your wayes and nōbre Iſrael from Berſeba vnto Dan, and brynge me the nombre of them, that I may knowe it. Joab ſayde: The LORDE make his people an hundreth tymes mo then they are now. But my lorde O kynge, are they not all my lordes seruauntes? Why doth my lorde then axe therafter? Wherfore shall ther a trespalle come vpon Israel?

Neuertheless the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab wente forth, and walked thorow all Israel, & came to Jerusalem, and deliuered vnto Dauid the nombre of the people that was tolde. And of all Israel ther were a thousand tymes a thousande, and an hundreth thousande men, that drewe out the swearde: and of Juda foure hundreth thousande and seuenty thousande men, whiche drue out the swearde. As for Leui and Ben Jamin, he nombred them not amonge these: for ỳ kynges worde was abominable vnto Joab.

But this displeased God rycht sore: for he smote Israel. And Dauid sayde vnto God: I haue synned greuously, ỳ I haue done this: But now take away the trespalle of thy seruaunt: for I haue done very vnwysely. And the LORDE spake vnto Gad Dauids seer, and sayd: Go speake to Dauid, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thre thynges laye I before the, chose the one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. And whan Gad came to Dauid, he spake vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Chose the ether: thre yeare derth: or thre monthes to flye before thyn aduersaryes, and before the swearde of thyne enemyes, that it may ouertake the: or thre dayes ỳ sweard of the LORDE, and pestilence in the lande ỳ the angell of the LORDE maye destroye in all ỳ coastes of Israel. Loke now, what answere I shall geue vnto hym that sent me. Dauid sayde vnto Gad: * I am in great trouble: yet wyll I rather fall in to ỳ hande of the LORDE, for his mercy is exceadynge great, and I wyll not fall in to the handes of men.

Then dyd the LORDE cause pestilence to come in to Israel, so that ther fell of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sent the angel to Jerusalem for to destroye it. And euen in the destruccyon the LORDE considered, and he repented of the euell, and sayd vnto the angell ỳ destroyer: It is ynough holde now thy hande.

The angel of the LORDE stode beside the barne of Arnan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe the angell of the LORDE standynge betwene heauen & earth, and a naked swearde in his hande stretched out ouer Jerusalem. Thē Dauid and the elders beynge clothed w̄ sackcloth, fell vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Am not I he that caused the people to be nōbred? I am he that hath synned and done euel: as for these shepe, what haue they done? LORDE my God, let thyn hāde be against me & against my fathers house, and not agaynst thy people to plage them.

And the angell sayd vnto Gad, that he shulde speake vnto Dauid, ỳ Dauid shuld go vp, & set vp an altare in the barne of Arnan the Jebusite. So Dauid went vp according to the worde of Gad, which he spake in the name of the LORDE. But whā Arnan turned hym, and sawe the angell (& his foure sonnes with hym) they hyd themselues for Arnan threshed wheate.

Now whan Dauid came to Arnan, Arnan loked and was aware of Dauid & went forth out of the barne, and worshipped Dauid with his face to the grounde. And Dauid sayd vnto Arnan: Geue me rowme in the barne, to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE therin: for ỳ full money shalt thou geue it me, that the plage maye ceasse from the people.

But Arnan sayd vnto Dauid: Take it vnto the, and let my lorde the kynge do as it pleaseth hym. Beholde, that ore geue I for a burntofferynge, and that harnesse to the ore, and wheat for the meatofferinge, I geue it all. Neuertheless the kynge sayde vnto Arnan: Not so, but for the full money wyl I bye it: for that which is thyn wyl not I take for the LORDE and offer a burntofferynge for nought.

So Dauid gaue Arnan for the rowme sixe hundreth sycles of golde in weyght. And there buylded Dauid an altare vnto ỳ LORDE, and offred burntofferynges & thāk offerynges. And whan he called vpon the LORDE, he herde hym thorow the fyre frō heauen vpon the altare of the burntofferynge. And the LORDE sayd vnto the angel that he shulde put his swearde in to his sheeth.

At the same tyme whan Dauid sawe ỳ ỳ LORDE had herde hym vpō ỳ corne floore of Arnā the Jebusite, he dyd sacrifice there. For the habitacyon of the LORDE * which Moses had made in the wylderneese, and the altare of burntofferynges, was at that tyme in the hye place at Gibeon. But Dauid coulde not go thether to seke God before it, for he feared the swearde of the LORDES angel. And Dauid sayd: * Here shalbe the house of God the LORDE, and this the

The.xxiii.Chapter.

AND Dauid commaunded to gather together ꝑ straūgers that were in the lande of Israel, and appoynted masons to hew stone for the buyldyng of the house of God. And Dauid prepared much ꝓuision before naples in ꝑ dores of ꝑ porches, & for such thinges as wer to be naped toge ther, & so much brasse, that it was not to be weyed: & Cedre trees innumerable: for they of Zydon and Tyre brought Dauid much Cedre tymbre. For Dauid thought Salomon my sonne is but a chylde and tender: But ꝑ house that shalbe buylded vnto the LORDE, shalbe great, that his name and prayse may be exalted in al landes, therfore wyll I prouyde for hym. So Dauid made great prouision before his death.

And he called Salomon his sonne, & commaunded hym to buylde the house of the LORDE God of Israel, and sayd vnto
2.Reg.7.a hym: My sonne * I was mynded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, but the worde of the LORDE came vn-
3.Reg 5.a. to me, and sayde: * Thou hast shed muche bloude, and stryke many battayls, therfore shalte thou not buylde an house vnto my name, for as muche as thou haste shed so much bloude vpon the earth before me. Beholde, the sonne which shalbe borne vn to the, shalbe a quyete man: & I wyll cause hym to be in rest from all his enemyes on euery syde, for his name shalbe Salomon: for I wyl geue peace and rest vpon Israel as longe as he lyueth. He shall buylde an house vnto my name. He shalbe my sonne and I wyll be his father. And I wyll stablyshe the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israel for euer.

Now my sonne, the LORDE shalbe with the, & thou shalt prosper, that thou mayest buylde an house vnto the LORDE thy God,
1.Reg.2.c. according as he hath spoken of the. * The LORDE also shall geue the wysedome and vnderstandynge and shall cōmytte Israel vnto the, that thou mayest kepe the law of the LORDE thy God. But then shalte thou prosper, yf thou take hede to do after the ordynaunces and lawes which the LORDE
3.Reg. 2.a commaunded Moses vnto Israell. * Be stronge, & take good corage vnto the, feare not, and be not faynt harted. Beholde I haue in my pouerte prouyded for the, houle of the LORDE, an hundreth thousād talentes of golde. And a thousande tymes a thousande talentes of syluer, and braſſe ꝑ weyght without nōbre: for ther is so much of it.

And tymber and stone haue I prepared, thou mayest get more therof. Thou hast many workmen also, masons and carpenters in stone and tymber, & all maner of men that haue vnderstandyng in al werke of golde, syluer, brasse, and ꝑ weyght without nōber, aryse get the vp and be doynge, and the LORDE shalbe with the.

And Dauid commaunded al the rulers of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, & sayd: Is not the LORDE your God with you, and hath geuen you rest on euery syde? for he hath delyuered the inhabiters of this lande in to your hādes, and the lande is subdued before the LORDE and before his people. Geue ouer your harte now therfore & your soule, to seke the LORDE your God, and get you vp, and buylde a sanctuary vnto the LORDE God, that the arke of the cōuenaunt of the LORDE and the holy vessels of gode may be brought in to the house, which shal be buylded vnto the name of the LORDE. So Dauid made Salomō his sōne kyng ouer Israel, whan he hymselfe was olde, & had lyued ynough.

The xxiiii. Chapter.

AND Dauid gathered all the rulers in Israel together, and the prestes and Leuites, to nōbre the Leuites from thyrty yeare olde and aboue. And the nōbre of them (which were stronge men) fro poll to heade, was eyght and thyrtye thousande of whom ther were foure and twenty thousande, which dyd their diligēce in ꝑ werke ouer the house of the LORDE, and sixe thousande officers and Judges, and foure thousande porters, and foure thousand ꝑ songe prayses vnto the LORDE with instrumentes, which he hadde made to synge prayse withall.

And Dauid made the ordynaunce amonge the chyldrē of Leui, namely amōge Gerson, Kahath and Merari. The Gersonites were: Laedan and Simei. The chyldren of Laedan: the fyrst, Jehiel, Setam, and Joel, these thre.

23 The chyldren of Kahath were: Amrā. Jezehar, Hebron & Uſiell, these foure. The 24 chyldren of Amram were: Aaron & Moſes. * As for Aarō, he was separated to be sanc 25 tified for the moost holy, he and his sōnes for euer, to burne incense before the ℣ LORD and to mynister and bleſſe in the name of ℣ LORD for euermore. And the chyldrē of Mo ſes the man of God were named amonge ℣ 26 tribes of the Leuites. * The chyldren of Moſes were Gerſon, and Eliezer.

27 The chyldren of Gerſon, the fyrſte was Sebuell. The chyldren of Eliezer, the fyrſt was Rehabia: and Eliezer had none other chyldren. But the chyldrē of Rehabia were many ther ouer. These are the chyldren of Leui a 32 monge their fathers houſes, and the cheſe of the fathers, which were coūted after the nombre of the names heade by heade: which executed the worke of the offices in 33 the house of the LORDE * frō thirtye yeare olde and aboue. For Dauid sayd: The LOR DE God of Iſrael hath geuen his people rest, and shall dwell at Jeruſalē for euer, 34 Amōge the Leuites also were ℣ chyldrē of Leui nōbred from thirtye yeare olde and 35 aboue, * that they neded not to beare ℣ ha bitacyon with al the veſſels of their office, but accordynge to ℣ laſt wordes of Dauid, that they shulde stōde vnder the hāde of the chyldren of Aaron, to minister in the house of the LORDE in the courte, and to the cheſes, and for purifyenge, and to all maner of 36 sanctifyeng, and to euery worke of ℣ office in the house of God. And for the shewbread 37 for the fyne floure, for the meatofferynge, for the vnleuended wafers, for the pannes, for the frienge, & for all maner of weyghte 38 and meaſure. And in ℣ mornynge to stonde for to geue thankes and to prayse ℣ LORD, and in the euenyng lykewyſe. The. xxv. Chapter.

THis was the ordinaunce of the chyldren of Aaron. * The chyl dren of Aaron were, Nadab, Abihu, Eleaſar & Ithamar. But Nadab and Abihu dyed before their fathers, and had no chylden. And Eleaſar and Ithamar were prieſtes. And Da uid ordred thē after this maner: Sadoc out of ℣ chyldrē of Eleaſar, and Ahimelech out of the chyldren of Ithamar, accordynge to their nōbre & office. And ther were mo cheſe ſtronge men foūde amonge the chyldren of Eleaſar, then the chyldrē of Ithamar. And he ordeyned them after this maner: nameſy, sixtene out of the chyldren of Eleaſar to be rulers thorow out their fathers house, & eyght of the chyldren of Ithamar thorowe out their fathers house. Neuertheleſſe he ordeyned thē by lot, because that both the prynctipall of the chyldren of Eleaſar and Ithamar were in the Sanctuarye, & cheſe before God. And ℣ scrybe Semeia the sōne of Nethaneell one of the Leuites, wrote thē vp before the kyng, and before the rulers, & before Sadoc the prieſt, and before Ahimelech the sonne of Abiathar, and before the cheſe of the fathers amōge the prieſtes and Leuites: namely one fathers house for Eleaſar, and the other for Ithamar.

This is their course after their office, to go in to ℣ house of the LORD, according to their maner vnder their father Aarō, as the LORDE God of Iſrael cōmaūded him.

C Of the chyldrē of Leui amonge the chil

uid and Sadoc and Ahimelech, and before the chefe fathers amonge the prestes & Le-

The.xxvii.Chapter.

1 Of the ordinaunces of the dorekepers amonge the Korahites was Meselemia of the childrē of Asaph. The childrē of Meselemia were these: ꝑ fyrstborne Zacharias, the seconde Jediael, the thirde Zebadia, the fourth Jathniell, the fyfth Elam, the sixte Johanan, ꝑ seuenth Elioenai. The childrē of Obed Edom were these: ꝑ fyrstborne Semaia, the seconde Josabad, the thirde Joah, the fourth Zachur, ꝑ fifth Nethaneell, the sixte Ammiell, the seuenth Jachar, the eyght Peguilthai, for God had blessed hym. And vnto Samaia his sonne ther were sōnes borne also, which bare rule in the house of their fathers: for they were mightye valeaūt men. The childrē of Semaia were, Athni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad, whose brethren were valeaunt men, Elihu and Semachia: all these were of the childrē of Obed Edom. These, with their childrē & brethrē were valeaunt mē, mete for the offices, were three score and two of Obed Edō. Meselemia had childrē & brethrē which were stronge men, euen eyghtene.

2 Holla of the childrē of Merari had childrē, Simri the chefest: for ꝑ fyrstborne was not there, therfore dyd his father appoynte hym to be chefest, the seconde Helchias, the third Tebalia, the fourth Zacharias. All ꝑ childrē & brethrē of Holla were thirtene.

This is the ordinaunce of ꝑ dorekepers amonge the heades of the valeaunt men in the office beside theyr brethren, to minister in the house of the LORDE. And the lot was cast for the small as for the greate thorowe out the house of their fathers at euery dore. The lot towarde the East fell vpon Meselemia. And the lot was cast for Zacharias his sonne, which was a man of prudēt cōsell, and vnto hym it fel toward the North: But vnto Obed Edom toward the South, and to his sonnes beside the house of Esupim. And vnto Supim and Holla toward the West by the gate of Salechet in ꝑ stret of the burntofferynges, where the Tabernacles stōde together.

C Towarde the East were ther sixe of the Leuites. Towarde ꝑ north foure on to day ward. Towarde the south foure on the day season lykewyse. Beside Esupim two and two. By Parbar west ward were ther foure in the strete, and two beside Parbar. These are the ordinaunces of the dorekepers amonge the childrē of the Korahites, and childrē of Merari. Of the Leuites, was Ahia ouer ꝑ treasures of the house of God & ouer the treasures that were sanctifyed.

Of the childrē of Laedan, the childrē of ꝑ Gersonites. Of Laedan were these the heades of the fathers: namely, the Jehielites. The childrē of the Jehielites were, Sethan and his brother Joel ouer the treasures of the house of the LORDE. Amonge the Amramites, Jezeharites, Hebronites & Uslielites, was Sebuell the sonne of Gerson the sonne of Moses, prynce ouer ꝑ treasures. His brother Eliezer had a sonne Rehabia, whose sonne was Jesaia, whose sōne was Joram, whose sonne was Sichri, whose sonne was Selomith: the same Selomith and his brethren were ouer all ꝑ treasures of the thynges that were halowed, which kynge Dauid halowed, & the princi pall of the fathers amonge the rulers ouer thousandes and ouer hūdreds, and rulers in ꝑ hoost (of warres and spoyles had they halowed it, to repayre the house of the LORDE) and ouer all that Samuell the Seyer, and Saull the sonne of Cis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of Zeruia had halowed: whatsoeuer was sanctifyed, it was vnder the hande of Selomith and his brethren. Amonge the Jezeharites was Chenaia with his sōnes for the worke without ouer Israell, officers and iudges. Amonge the Hebronites was Hasabia and his brethren, valeaunt men, a thousande & seuen hundreth, ouer the offices of Israell on this syde Jordane westwarde for al maner worke of the LORDE, and to serue the kynge.

But amonge the Hebronites was Jeria the chefest amonge the Hebronites of his kynred among the fathers. And search was made amonge them, and in the fortieth yeare of kynge Dauid ther were foūde valeaunt men at Jaeser in Gilead, & theyr brethren myghtye men, two thousande and seuen hundreth principall fathers, & Dauid set them ouer the Rubenites, Gaddites and ouer the halfe tribe of Manasses for all suche busynesse as belonged vnto God and the kynge.

The.xxviii.Chapter.

But Dauid toke not the nombre of thē that were twenty yeare olde and therunder: for the LORDE had promyſed to multiplye Iſraell as ỹ ſtarres of the ſkye. Notwithſtandyng beit Joab the ſonne of Zeruia had begon to nombre them, and perfourmed it not, therfor came wrath vpon Iſraell for the ſame cauſe, therfore came not the nombre in the Cronicles of kynge Dauid.

The.xxix.Chapter.

AND Dauid gathered vnto Ierusalē all the rulers of Israell, namely the prynces of the trybes, the rulers ouer the courses which wayted vpon the kinge,
the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hun dreds, the rulers ouer the goodes & cattell of the kynge & of his sonnes, with the cham berlaynes, warryers & valeaunt men. And Dauid the kynge stode vp vpon his fete, and sayd: Heare me my brethrē and my peo ple: * I was mynded to buylde an house, where the Arke of the conuenaunt of the LORDE shulde rest, and a footestoole for the fete of oure God, and prepared my self, for to buylde. But God sayd vnto me: * Thou shalt not buyld an house vnto my name, for thou art a man of warre, & hast shed bloud.
* Now hath the LORDE God of Israell chosen me out of all my fathers house, that I shulde be kynge ouer Israell for euer: for
* Juda hath he chosen to be the prince, and in the house of Juda amōge my fathers chyl dren hath he had pleasur vnto me, to make me kynge ouer all Israell: and amonge all my sonnes (for the LORDE hath geuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to syt vpon the seate of the kyngdme of the LORDE ouer Israell, and hath sayde
vnto me: * Salomon thy sonne shal buyld me an house & my courtes: for I haue chosen hym to be my sonne, And I wyll be his father, and wyl stably the his kyngdom for euer, yf he be cōstant to do after my cōmaū dementes & lawes, as it is this daye. Now in the syght of all Israell the cōgregacyon
of the LORDE, and in the eares of our God, se that ye obserue & seke all the cōmaundemētes of the LORD your God, that ye maye possesse this good londe and that ye and youre chyldren maye haue the enheritaūce therof for euer.

And thou my sonne Salomon, knowe
thou the God of thy father, and serue hym with all thy harte, and with a desyre of thy soule: for the LORD searcheth all hartes, & vn derstondeth al thoughtes & ymaginaciōs.
yf thou seke him, thou shalt fynde him: but yf thou forsake him, he shal refuse the for e-uer. Take hede now, for the LORDE hath chosen the, to buylde an house to be a San ctuary: be stronge, and make it.

And Dauid gaue Salomō his sonne a patrone of the porche, and of his house, and of the celles and parlers & pynnermer cham bers, and of the house of the Mercyseate, & of all that he had in his mynde, namely of the courte of the LORDES house, and of all the oratories rounde aboute the treasures in the house of God, and of the treasures of such thynges as were halowed, of the ordi naūces of the prestes, & Leuites, & of al the bu
synesse of the offices in the house of the LORDE.

Gold (gaue he him) after the gold weight D for all maner of vessels of euery office, and all syluer ornamētes after the weight for al maner of vessell of euery office: & weyghte for the golden candelstyckes and goldē lā-pes, for euery candelsticke and his lampes his weight. Lykewyse for the siluer cādelstic kes gaue he the weyghte to the cādelstycke & his lāpes, accordynge as was requyred for euery cādelstycke. He gaue golde also for the tables of the shewbread, for euery table his weyght: and syluer lykewyse for the syluer tables. And pure gold for the fleshokes, ba sens and cēsers: and for the goldē cuppes, vnto euery cuppe his weyghte: and for the syluer cuppes, vnto euery cup his weight:
and for the altare of incense his weyghte,
of the moost pure golde.

And a patrone of the charret of the gol- E den Cherubyns, that they might spreade out themselues, and couer the Arke of the con-naūt of the LORD. Al this is geuē me in wry-tynge of the hāde of the LORD, to make me
vnderstonde all the workes of the patrone.

And Dauid sayde vnto Salomon his sonne: Be thou māly and strōge, and make it, feare not, and be not faynthearted, the LOR-DE God my God shalbe with the, and shall not withdrawe his hande, nor fayle
the, tyll thou haue fynished euery worke for the seruyce in the house of the LORDE. Be-holde, the courses of the prestes and Leui-tes to all the offices in the house of God are with the in euery worke, and are wyllynge, and haue wysedome to all the offices: and so haue the prynces and all the people for euery thynge that thou hast to do.

The.xxx. Chapter.

AND kynge Dauid sayde vnto A
all the cōgregacyō: God hath chosen Salomō one of his son nes, which is yet ponge and tē
der. But the worke is greate:
for it is not a mans palace, but the LORDE Gods. yet haue I after al myne abilite pre pared vnto the house of God, golde for the vessels of golde, syluer for thē of syluer, brasse
for thē of brasse, yron for thē of yron, wood for thē of wood, Onix stones, set Rubies, & stones of dyuerse coloures & all precyous

stones, and Marble stones in multitude. Beſydes this, for ỹ good wyll ỹ I haue to the house of God, I haue of mine owne pro per good thre M. talētes of golde of Ophir & seuē M. talētes of pure syluer, whiche I geue vnto the holy house of God, beſyde al that I haue prepared, to ouerlaye the walles of the house, that the same which ought to be of golde, maye be of golde: and that it which ought to be of syluer, maye be of syluer: and for all maner of worke by the hāde of the craftesmen. And who is now fre wyllynge, to fyll his hande this daye vnto the LORDE?

B Then were the prynces of the fathers, ỹ prynces of the trybes of Israell, the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, the rulers ouer ỹ kynges buſynes fre wyllynge, and gaue to the ministracyon in the house of God fyue M. talentes of golde, & ten thousande guldens, and ten M. talētes of syluer, eyghtene M. talētes of brasse, and an hūdred M. talētes of yron. And by whō so euer were founde stones, they gaue them to ỹ treasure of the house of ỹ LORD, vnder the hande of Iehiell the Gerſonite.

And ỹ people were glad that they were fre wyllynge: for they gaue it with a good wyll (euen with all their harte) vnto ỹ LORDE. And Dauid also ỹ kyng reioyced greatly, and prayſed God, and sayde before the whole congregacyon: Prayſed be thou O LORD God of Israell oure father, vnto the belōgeth worshippe and power, glory, victory and thankes: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thyne: thyne is the kyngdom, & thou art exalted aboue al prynces. Thine are ryches and honour before ỹ, thou raygnest ouer all, in thy hande consisteth power and myght, in thy hāde is it to make euery man greate, and stronge.

C Now thanke we the oure God, & prayse ỹ name of thy glory: For who am I? What is my people? that we shulde be able with a fre wyll to offre, as this is done? For of the cōmeth all, and of thy hande haue we geuē it the: * For we are but pilgrems and straūgers before the, as were all oure fathers. & Oure lyfe vpon earth is as a shadowe, & here is no abydynge. O LORDE oure God, all this abundaūce that we haue prepared to buylde ỹ an house vnto thy name, came of thy hande, & is thine altogether. I know my God, that thou tryest the harte, and that vnfaynednesse is acceptable vnto the: ther fore haue I geuen all this with an vnfayned harte, euen with a good wyll, and now haue I had ioy to se thy people (which here are present) offer with a fre wyll vnto the. O LORDE God of oure fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, kepe thou euermore such purposes and thoughtes in ỹ hartes of thy people, and prepare thou their hartes vnto the. And graunt my sonne Salomon a perfecte harte, that he maye kepe thy cōmaundemētes, thy testimonies, and thy statutes, that he maye do all, and buylde this place, which I haue prepared.

Gen.47.b Hebr.11.c & Sap.2.b and.5.b

And Dauid sayde vnto the whole congregacyon: O prayse the LORD your God. And all the cōgregacion prayſed the LORD God of their fathers, and bowed thēſelues, and worshipped the LORDE, and thē the kyng, and offred sacrifyces vnto the LORDE. And on the nexte morowe offred they burnofferynges, a M. bullockes, a M. rāmes, a M. lambes with their drynkofferynges, & plenteously offred they amonge all Israel. And they dyd eate and drynke the same daye before the LORDE with greate ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge the seconde tyme, and anoynted hym to be ỹ prince for the LORDE, * and Sadoc to be ỹ preest.

* Thus sat Salomō vpon the seate of the LORDE a kynge in his fathers steade, and prospered. And all Israel obeyed hym, and all the rulers and mightie men, & all kynge Dauids chyldre submitted thēſelues vnto kynge Salomon. And the LORD made Salomon excellēt & great in the syght of al Israel, * and gaue him such a glorious kyngdome, as none had before hym ouer Israel.

So had Dauid the sonne of Isai, none bene kynge ouer all Israell. And the tyme that he was kynge ouer Israell, is fourty yeares: At Hebron raygned he seuē yeares, & at Ieruſalē thre and thirty yeares, & dyed in a good age, ful of dayes, ryches, and honoure. And Salomon his sonne was kyng in his steade.

These actes of kynge Dauid (both the fyrst and laste) beholde, they are written amonge the actes of Samuell the Seer, & amonge the actes of the prophete Nathan, and amonge the actes of Gad the Seer, with all his kyngdome, power, and tymes, which passed vnder him, both vpon Israel and vpon all the kyngdomes of the earth.

AND * Salomon the

And Salomon spake vnto al Israel, to the captaynes ouer thousãdes and ouer hundreds, to the Judges, and to all the prynces in Israel, and to the chefest fathers, so that they wente (Salomon and the whole congregacyon with hym) vnto

2.Reg.6.a had made in the wylderneſſe. * For Dauid had brought vp the Arke of God from Kiriath Jearim, whan he had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalẽ.
Exo.38.a. As for the brasen altare * which Bezaleel ỹ sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur had made, it was there before the habitacyon of the LORDE: and Salomon and the congregacyon sought God. And Salomon offred a thousande burntofferynges vpon the brasen altare before the LORDE that stode before the Tabernacle of wytnesse.

B In the same nyght appeared God vnto Salomõ, and sayd vnto hym: Aske, what shall I geue the? And Salomon sayd vnto God: Thou hast done great mercy vnto my father Dauid, and hast made me kyng in his steade. Now LORDE God, let the worde that thou hast promysed vnto my fa

3.Reg.3.b * Then sayd God vnto Salomon: For so muche as thou art so mynded, and haste not desyred ryches nor good, nor honour, nor the soules of thyne enemyes, nor longe lyfe, but hast requyred wysdome and knowlege, to iudge my people, ouer whõ I haue made ỹ kyng: Wysedome therfore & knowlege be geuen ỹ. Moreouer, ryches & good, and honoure wyll I geue the, so that suche one as thou, hath not bene before ỹ amõge the kynges, nother shalbe after the.

So came Salomon from the hye place (which was at Gibeon) vnto Jerusalẽ fro the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and raygned ouer Israel. * And Salomõ gathered hym chariottes and horsemen, so that he had a thousande and foure hundreth chariottes, and twelfe thousande horsemen: and those appointed he to be in the charriot cities, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And ỹ kyng brought it so to passe, ỹ ther was as much syluer and gold at Jerusalem, as stones: as many Ceders, as the Wolberye trees, ỹ are in the valleys. And ther were horses brought vnto Salomon out of Egipte, & the kynges marchauntes fetched them for Keua for money. And they came vp, and brought out of Egipte a charriotte for six hundreth syluer pens, and an horse for an hundreth and fyfty. Thus brought they also vnto all the kynges of the Hethites, and to the kynges of the Syrians.

The.ii. Chapter.

AND Salomon thought to buylde an house vnto ỹ name of the LORDE, and an house for his kyngdome: and toke out thre score & ten thousande men to beare burthes, and foure score thousande that hewed tymber vpon the mount, and thre thousande and fyre hundreth ouerseers ouer them. * And Salomon sent vnto Hiram the kynge of Tyre, sayenge:
Is * thou dyddest with my father, and sendest hym Ceder trees, to buylde an house for to dwell in (euen so do thou with me also.) Beholde, I wyll buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before hym, and alwaye to prepare the shewbread, and burntofferynges in ỹ morynge and in the euenynge, on the Sabbathes & new Mones, and solempne feastes of the LORDE our God euermore for Israel.

And the house that I wyll buylde, shall be great: for our God is greater the all gods. But who is able to buylde hym an house? For heauen and the heauens of all heaues may not comprehende hym. Who am I then, ỹ I shuld buylde him an house? But onely for this intent to burne incense before hym?

Sende me now therfore a wyse man to worke with golde, syluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, purple, palow sylke, and suche one as can graue carued worke with the wyse mē that are with me in Jewry & Jerusalem, whom my father Dauid ordeyned. And sende me timber of Ceder, pyne tre, and costly wood from Libanus: for I knowe that thy seruauntes can hew tymber vpon Libanus. And beholde, my seruauntes shalbe wt thy seruaūtes, to prepare me much tymber: for the house that I wyll buylde, shalbe great and marueylous goodly.

And beholde, I wyll geue vnto ỹ carpenters thy seruauntes which hewe ỹ tymber, twenty thousande quarters, of beaten wheat, & twenty thousāde quarters of barlye, and twenty thousande battes of wyne, and twenty thousande battes of oyle.

Then sayde Hiram the kynge of Tyre by writynge, and sente it vnto Salomon: Because the LORDE loueth his people, therfore hath he made the to be kynge ouer thē. And Hiram sayd moreouer: Praysed be the the LORDE God of Israel, which made heauen and earth, that he hath geuen kynge Dauid a wyse and prudent sōne, and such one as hath vnderstandynge to buylde an house vnto the LORDE, and an house for his realme. Therfore sende I now a wyse man that hath vnderstandynge, *euen Hiram Abi (which is the sonne of a womā of ỹ doughters of Dā, & his father was of Tyre) which can worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone, tymber, scarlet, palowe sylke, lynnen, purple, and to carue all maner of thynges, and to make what connyng thynge so euer is geuen hym, with thy wyse men, and with the wyse men of my lorde kynge Dauid thy father. And now let my lorde sende the wheat, barly, oyle & wyne vnto his seruauntes, accordynge as he hath sayde, and so wyll we hewe the tymber vpō Libanus, as much as thou nedest, and wyll brynge it by floters in the see vnto Japho, frō whence thou mayest brynge it vp to Jerusalem.

And Salomon nombred all the straūgers in the lande of Israel, accordynge to the nombre whan Dauid his father nombred them, and ther were founde an hundreth and fyftye thousande, three thousande and fyue hundreth. And of ỹ same he made thre score and ten thousande bearers of burthens, and foure score thousande hewers vpon the mounte, and three thousande and fyue hundreth ouerseyers, which helde the people at theyr worke.

The.iiij. Chapter.

AND * Salomon beganne to buyld the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem vpon the moūt Moria, * that was shewed vnto Dauid his father, whiche Dauid had prepared for ỹ rowme vpō the corne floore of Arnan the Jebusite. In ỹ seconde daye ỹ seconde moneth in the fourth yeare of his raygne beganne he to buylde. And so layed Salomon the fundacyon to buylde the house of God: Fyrste the length three score cubytes: ỹ bredth twēty cubytes: and the porche before the wydnesse of the house was twentye cubytes longe, but the heyght was an hundreth and twentye, and he ouerlayed it on the inside wt pure golde. 3. Reg 6. a 1. Par. 22. b

But ỹ great house syled he with Pyne tre, and ouerlayed it with the best golde, & made palme trees, and thrownewerke theron, and ouerlayed the house with precyous stones to bewtifye it. As for the golde, it was golde of Peruaim. And the balkes & postes aboue, and the walles and ỹ dores of it ouerlayed he with golde, and caused Cherubyns to be carued on the walles. B

He made also the house of the moost holy, whose length was twenty cubytes accordynge to ỹ wydenesse of the house: and the bredth of it was twētye cubytes lykewyse, and he ouerlayed it with the best golde by sixe hundreth talentes. And for nayles he gaue fyftye sycles of golde in weyght, and ouerlayed the chambers with golde. He made also in the house of the moost holy, two Cherubins of carued worke, and ouerlayed them with golde: and the length on ỹ wynges of the Cherubins was twenty cubytes, so that one wynge had fyue cubites, and touched the wall of the house: and the other wynge had fyue cubytes also, & touched the wynge of the other Cherub.

Euen so had one wynge of the other Cherub fyue cubytes lykwyse, and touched the wal of the house: and his other wynge had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynge of the other Cherub: so that these wynges of the Cherubins were spred out twenty cubytes wyde. And they stode vpon theyr fete, and theyr face was turned towarde ỹ house. C

He made a vayle also of palowe sylke, scarlet, purple and lynē worke, & made Cherubyns theron. * And before the house he made two pylers fyue and thyrtye cubytes longe, and the knoppes aboue theron, fyue cubytes. And he made thrownewerke for 1. Reg. 7. a the quere, and put it aboue vpō the pylers: and made an hundreth pomgranates, and put them on the wrythen worke. And he set vp the pilers before the temple, the one on the ryght hande, and the other on ꝑ left: and that on the ryghte hande called he Jachin, & it on the leste hande called he Boas.

The.iiii. Chapter.

3 HE made a brasē altare also, twenty cubytes longe, and twēty cubytes brode, and ten
3.Reg.7. cubites hye.* And he made a moltē lauer tē cubytes wyde from the one syde to the other roūde about, and fyue cubytes hye. And a meetlyne of thyrtye cubytes myghte comprehende it aboute. And ymages of bullockes were vnder it. And aboute the lauer (whiche was ten cubytes wyde) ther were two rowes of knoppes, that were molten withall.

It stode so vpon the bullockes, that thre were turned towarde the North, thre towarde the West, thre towarde ꝑ South, and thre towarde the East, and the lauer aboue vpon them, and all theyr hynder partes were on the inside. The thycknesse of it was an hāde bredth, and the edge of it was lyke the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose. And it conteyned thre thousande battes.

1.Reg.7. * And he made ten kettels, wherof he set fyue on the ryghte hande and fyue on the lefte, to washe in them suche thynges as belonged to the burntofferynge, that they myghte thrust them therin: but the lauer (made he) for ꝑ priestes to wash in.

8 Ten golden candelstickes made he also as they ought to be, and set them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made ten tables, and set them in the temple: fyue on the ryghte hande, and fyue on the leste. And made an hundreth basens of golde. He made a courte lykewyse for the prestes, and a great court, and dores in the court, and ouerlayed the dores with brasse. And the lauer set he on the ryghte syde towarde the south east. And Hiram made cauldrons, shouels, and basens.

So Hiram kynished the worke which he made for kynge Salomon in the house of God: namely the two pylers with ꝑ roūdels and knoppes aboue vpon both the pilers, and both the wrythen ropes to couer both the roūdels of the knoppes aboue vpon the pilers, and the foure hundreth pomgranates on both the wrythen ropes, two rowes of pomgranates on euery rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were aboue vpon the pilers.

He made the stooles also and the kettels vpō the stooles, and a lauer, and twelf bullockes ther vnder. And pottes, shouels, & hokes, and all theyr vessels made Hiram Abif of pure metall for kynge Salomō vnto the house of the LORDE. In the coast of Jordane dyd the kynge cause them to be molten in thick earth betwene Suchoth & Zaredatha.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, that ꝑ weyght of the metall was not to be sought out. And Salomon made al the ornamentes for ꝑ house of God: namely the goldē altar, the tables, and ꝑ shewbreads theron, the cādelstickes with theyr lampes of pure golde, to burne before the Quere accordynge to the manner: and the floures and the lampes and the snoffers were of golde, and all these were of pure golde.

And the knyues, basens, spones & pottes, were of pure golde. And the intraunce & his dores within vnto the Moost holy, and the dores of ꝑ house of the temple were of golde. Thus was al the worke fynished which Salomon made in the house of the LORDE.

The.v. Chapter.

AND * Salomon brought in 1
all that his father Dauid had sanctified, namely, syluer and golde, and all maner of ornamentes, and layed them in the treasures of the house of God. * Then gathered Salomon all the Elders in Israell together, all the heades of the trybes, princes of the fathers amonge the children of Israell vnto Jerusalem, to bringe vp the Arke of the conuenaunt of ꝑ LORDE out of the cytie of Dauid, that is Sion. And ther resorted vnto the kynge all the men of Israell at the feaste, that is in the seuenth moneth, and al the Elders in Israel came.

And the Leuites toke the Arke, and brought it vp with the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all ꝑ holy vessels that were in the tabernacle: and the prestes and Leuites brought them vp. As for kynge Salomon and all the congregacyon of Israel ꝑ was gathered vnto hym before the Arke, they offred shepe and oxen, so many, that no man coulde nombre nor reken them.

Thus the prestes brought the Arke of the conuenaunt of ꝑ LORDE vnto hir place in the quere of the house, euē in to ꝑ Moost holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubins,
so that the Cherubins spred out theyr wyn
ges ouer the place of the Arke: and the Che rubins couered the Arke & the staues ther-of from aboue. And the staues were so lōge that ꝑ knoppes of them were sene from the Arke before the quere, but on the outsyde were they not sene. And it was there vnto this daye. * And ther was nothynge in the Arke, saue the two tables, whiche Moses put therin at Horeb, whā the LORDE made a conuenaunt with the chyldren of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of E
gipte.

And whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for al ꝑ prestes that were foūd sanctified them selues, because the courses were not kepte) the Leuites with all those that were vnder Asaph, Heman, Iedithun and theyr chyldren and brethren, beyng clo thed in lynnen, songe with Cymbales, psal teries and harpes, and stode towarde the eastparte of the altare, and an hūdreth and twentye prestes with them, which blewe vā trompettes. And it was, as ꝑ one dyd trōpet and synge, as though a voyce had bene herde of praysynge and geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE.

And whan the voyce arose from ꝑ trōpettes, cymbales and other instrumentes of musick, and from praysynge the LORDE, (because he is gracyous, & because his mer cy endureth for euer) the house of the LOR-DE was fylled on the vnsyde with a cloude,
so that the prestes coulde not stande to minister for the cloude: for the glorye of the LORDE fylled the house of God.

The. vi. Chapter.

Then sayde * Salomon: The LORDE sayde, that he wolde dwell in a darck cloud: I haue buylded an house to be an habitacyon vnto the: and a seate, that thou mayest dwell there for euer. And the kyng turned his face, and blessed al the cōgregacyō of Israel: for ꝑ whole cōgrega
cyon of Israel stode, and he sayde: Praysed be ꝑ LORDE God of Israel, which promised by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, & w
his hande hath fulfylled it, whan he sayde:
Sence the tyme that I brought my people out of the lande of Egipte, I haue chosen no cyte in al ꝑ trybes of Israel, to bupld
an house for my name to be there, nother haue I chosen ony man to be prynce ouer
my people of Israel. * But Ierusalē haue 2.Reg.7.c I chosen, for my name to be there: and Da
uid haue I elected, to be prynce ouer my peo ple of Israel.

And whan my father Dauid was myn B
ded to buylde an house vnto ꝑ name of the LORDE God of Israel, the LORDE sayd vnto Dauid my father: Where as thou wast mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou haste done well: howbeit thou shalte not buylde the house, but thy sonne whiche shall come out of thy loynes, shall buylde the house vnto my name.

Thus hath the LORDE now perfour med his worde, ꝑ he spake: for I am come vp in my father Dauids steade, and syt vp pon the seat of Israel, euen as the LORDE sayd, and haue buylded an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel, and in it haue I put the Arke, wherin is the con-uenaunt of the LORDE, which he made wā
the chyldren of Israel.

And he stode before the altare of ꝑ LOR C DE in the presence of the whole congregacy on of Israel, and spred out his handes: for Salomon had made a brasen pulpit, and set it in the myddes of the court, fyue cubyt tes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, and thre cubytes hye: vpō the same stode he, and fell downe vpon his knees in ꝑ presence of the whole congregacyon of Israell, and helde
out his handes towarde heauen and sayd:

* O LORDE God of Israell, ther is no 3.Reg.8.a God lyke the, nother in heauen nor vpon earth, thou that kepest conuenaunt & mercy for thy seruaūtes, that walke before the with al theyr hart. Thou hast kept promes with my father Dauid thy seruaunt: With thy mouth thou saydest it, & with thy hande hast thou fulfylled it, as it is come to passe
this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel, make good vnto my father Dauid thy ser-uaunt that which thou hast promysed hym & sayd: Thou shalt not wante a man before me, to syt vpō the seate of Israel: yf thy chyl dren kepe theyr waye, so that they walke in my lawe, lyke as thou haste walked before me: Now LORDE God of Israel, let thy worde be verified, which thou hast promy-sed vnto Dauid thy seruaunt.

Heare now therfore the intercession of thy seruaũt and of thy people of Israel: what so euer they shall desyre in this place, heare thou it from the place of thy habitacyon, euen from heauen: and whã thou hearest it, be mercyfull.

* And whan ony straũger which is not of thy people of Israel, commeth out of a farre contre because of thy great name, and mightie hande, and outstretched arme, and commeth to make his prayer in this house, heare thou hym then from heauen, euen out of the seate of thy habitacyõ: and do al that which that straunger calleth vpon the for, all the nacyons vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how this house which I haue builded, is named after thy name.

The. vii. Chapter.

AND whā Salomō had ended his prayer, ther fell a fyre from heauen, and consumed ꝑ burnt offerynge & the other offerynges. And the glory of ꝑ LORDE fylled the house, so that the prestes coulde not go in to ꝑ house of ꝑ LORDE, whyle the glorye of ꝑ LORDE fylled ꝑ LORDES house. And al ꝑ chyldrē of Israell sawe ꝑ fyre fall downe, & the glorye of the LORDE ouer the house: & they fell on theyr knees with theyr faces to the grounde vpon the pauement, and worshipped, and gaue thankes vnto the LORDE, because he is gracyous, and because his mercy endureth for euer. As for the kynge and all the people, they offred before the LORDE.

For kynge Salomō offred two & twenty thousande bullockes, and an hundreth thousande and twenty thousand shepe, and so both the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God.

But the prestes stode in theyr watches, & the Leuites with the musical instrumētes of the LORDE, which kinge Dauid had caused to make for to geue thankes vnto ꝑ LORDE, (because his mercy endureth for euer) with psalmes of Dauid thorow theyr hāde. And the prestes blewe trompettes ouer against them, and all Israel stode.

And Salomon halowed ꝑ middelmost court, which was before the house of ꝑ LORDE, for there prepared he the burntofferynges and the fat of the thankofferynges. For the brasen altare ꝑ Salomon made, myght not conteyne all the burntofferynges, and the fat.

* And at the same tyme helde Salomō a feast seuen dayes longe, & all Israel with hym a very great congregacyon, from Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egipte, and on the eyght daye helde he a conuocacion. For the dedicacyō of ꝑ altare helde they seuē dayes, and the feast seuen dayes also.

But on the thyrde and twentyeth daye of the seuenth moneth he let the people go vnto theyr tētes ioyfull and with mery hartes because of al the good, that the LORDE had done vnto Dauid, vnto Salomon, and to his people of Israel.

* Thus fynished Salomon the house of the LORDE, & the kynges house, & al ꝑ came in his harte to make in ꝑ house of the LORDE, & in his owne house, prosperusly. And the LORDE appeared vnto Salomō in the nyght season, and sayd vnto hym: I haue herde thy prayer * & chosen this place vnto my selfe for an house of sacryfice. 2.Par.6.a

Beholde whā I shut the heauē so that it rayne not, or commaunde the greshopper to consume the lande, or cause a pestilēce to come amonge my people, to humble my people, which is named after my name: & yf they praye, and seke my face, and turne frō theyr euel wayes, thē wyl I heare them from heauen, and wyll forgeue theyr synne, & heale theyr lāde. So shal myne eyes now be opē, and mine eares shalbe attente vnto prayer in this place. Thus haue I now chosē this house, & sanctified it, that myne name maye be there for euer: and myne eyes & my harte shall alwaye be there.

And yf thou walke before me, as thy father Dauid walked, so that thou do al that I commaunde the, and kepe myne ordinaūces and lawes, thē wyll I stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, accordynge as I promysed thy father Dauid, & sayd. * Thou shalt not wante a man to be lorde ouer Israel. 2.Reg.7.a

But yf ye turne backe and forsake myne or dynaunces and commaundementes which I haue layed before you, and go youre waye, and serue other goddes, and worshyp them, thē wyl I rote you out of my land that I haue geuen you: & this house which I haue sāctified vnto my name, wyl I cast awaye out of my presence, and geue it ouer to be a byworde & fabel amonge al nacyōs. And euery one that goeth by, shalbe astonnyed at this hye house, and shall hysse at it, and saye: * Wherfore hath the LORDE dealt thus vnto this lande & with this house? Then shall it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the LORDE God of theyr fathers (whiche brought them out of the lande of Egipte) and haue cleued vnto other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued them: therfore hath he brought all this euel vpon them. Domus reade: them. Deu.29.b Iere.22.b.

The. viii. Chapter.

AND * after twenty yeares (wher in Salomō buylded the house of the LORDE and his owne house) he buylded the cyties also whiche Hiram gaue vnto Salomon, and caused the chyldren of Israel to dwell therin. And Salomon wente vnto Hemath Zoba, and made it stronge. 3.Reg.9.a.

and buylded Thadmor in the wylderneſſe, and al the corne cyties which he buylded in Hemath. He buylded the vpper and lower Bethoron lykewyſe, ſo that they were ſtōge cyties with walles, portes and barres. And Baclath. And al the corne cyties which Salomon had, and all the cyties of the charrettes and of the horſemen, and all that Salomon had luſt to buylde, both at Jeruſalē and vpon Libanus, and in all the lande of his dominion.

8 All the remnaunt of the people of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites & Jebulites, which were not of the chyldren of Iſrael, & their chyldrē which they had lefte behynde them in the lāde, (whō ẏ chyldrē of Iſrall had not vtterly deſtroied) thoſe dyd Salomō make tributaries vnto this daye. As for the chyldren of Iſrael, Salomon made no bondmē of them vnto his worke, but they were men of warre, and chefe captaynes, and ouer his charrettes and horſemen. And the chefe of kynge Salomons officers were two hundreth and fyfty, which ruled the people.

9 And Salomō cauſed Pharaos doughter to be fetched vp out of ẏ cytie of Dauid, in to the houſe that he had buylded for her. For he ſayd: My wyfe ſhal not dwel in the houſe of Dauid the kynge of Iſraell, for it is ſanctified, in as much as the Arke of the LORDE is come into it.

10 Then offred Salomō burntofferynges vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES altare, which he had buylded before ẏ porche

12 And they departed not from the kinges commaundement ouer the preſtes and Leuites in euery matter and in the treaſures. Thus was all Salomons buſyneſſe made ready, from the daye that the foundacyon of the LORDES houſe was layed, tyll it was fynyſhed, ſo that the houſe of the LORDE was all prepared.

13 * Then went Salomō vnto Exion Geber, and vnto Eloth by the Seeſyde in the lande of Edomea. And Hirā ſent hym ſhippes by his ſeruauntes which had knowledge of the See, & they wente with Salomons ſeruauntes vnto Ophir, and fetched from thence foure hundreth and fyfty talentes of golde, and brought it vnto kynge Salomon.

The.ix.Chapter.

AND * whan the quene of tych Arabia herde the fame of Salomon, ſhe came with a very great treyne to Jeruſalē (with camels ẏ bare ſpyces & golde, & precyous ſtones) to proue Salomō with darke ſentences. And whan ſhe came vnto Salomon, ſhe ſpake vnto hym all that ſhe had deuyſed in hir mynde. And ẏ kynge told her all hir matters, and Salomon had no thynge in ſecrete, but he tolde it her.

2 And whā ẏ Quene of tych Arabia ſaw the wyſedome of Salomon, and the houſe that he had buylded, the meates of his table, the dwellinges of his ſeruauntes, ẏ offices of his miniſters and their garmētes, and his butlers and their apparel, and his parler where he wente vp in to the houſe of the LORDE, ſhe could no longer refrayne. And ſhe ſayde vnto the kynge: It is true ẏ I haue herde in my lāde of thy behauoure and of thy wyſedome: howbeit I wold not beleue their wordes, tyll I came my ſelfe, and ſawe it with myne eyes; and beholde, the halfe of thy great wyſedome hath not bene tolde me: ther is more in the then the fame that I haue herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes, that alwaye ſtande before the, and heare thy wyſedome. Prayſed be the LORDE thy God, whiche had ſuche pleaſure vnto the, that he hath ſet ẏ vpō his ſeate to be kynge vnto the LORDE thy God. Becauſe thy God loueth Iſrael, to ſet them vp for euer, therfore hath he ordeyned the to be kynge ouer them, that thou ſhuldeſt mantayne iuſtice and equyte.

3 And ſhe gaue the kynge an hundreth & twentye talentes of golde, & very much ſpycery & precious ſtones. Ther were no ſuch ſpyces as theſe ẏ the Quene of tych Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salomon. And Hirams ſeruauntes & the ſeruauntes of Salomon which brought golde frō Ophir, brought coſtly tymber alſo & precyous ſtones.

4 And of the ſame coſtly tymber dyd

lomõ cause to make stayers in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and harpes & plaiteries for the musicias. Ther was no suche tymber sene before in the lãde of Juda. But kynge Salomon gaue the Quene of tyche Arabia all that she desyred & ared, & muche more then she had brought vnto the kynge. And she returned, & departed into hir lande with hir seruauntes.

The golde that was brought vnto Salomon in one yeare, was fyre hundreth and fyre & thre score talentes, besydes ỳ the chapmen and marchauntes brought. And al the kynges of the Arabians, and the lordes in the lande brought golde & syluer vnto Salomõ. Of the which kynge Salomõ made two hũdreth speares of beatẽ golde, so that fyre hundreth peces of beaten golde came vpon one speare: and thre hundreth shyldes of beaten golde, so that thre hundreth peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the kinge put them in the house of the wood of Libanus.

D And the kynge made a great seate of yuery, and ouerlayed it with pure golde: & the seate had fyre steppes, and a footestole of gold fastened vnto the seate, & it had two leanynge postes vpon both the sydes of the seate, & two lyons stode besyde the leanyng postes, and ther stode twelfe lyons vpõ the fyre steppes on both ỳ sydes. In al realmes hath not such one bene made.

And all kynge Salomons drynkynge vessels were of golde, and all the vessels of the house of the wood of Libanus, were of pure gold: for syluer was rekened nothyng in Salomons tyme. For the kynges shippes went vpon the see with the seruauntes of Hiram, and came once in thre yeare, and brought golde, syluer, yuery, apes and pecokes.

Thus was kyng Salomõ greater thẽ al the kynges vpon earth, in ryches & wysdome. And al ỳ kynges of the earth desyred (to se) Salomons face, & to heare his wysdom, which God had geuẽ him in his hart. And they brought him yearly euery mã his present: Jewels of syluer and gold, raymẽt harnesse, spyces, horses and mules.

E *And Salomõ had foure thousãd charretheses, and twelfe thousande horsemen, & put thẽ in the charretecities, and with the kynge at Jerusalẽ. And he was lorde ouer all the kynges from the water vnto ỳ lãde of the Philistines, and to the coast of Egipt And the kynge brought it so passe, that ther was as muche syluer at Jerusalem as stones & as many Ceders, as ther were Wolbery trees in the valleys. And ther were horses brought vnto hym out of Egipte, & out of all contrees.

What more ther is to say of Salomõ, both of his fyrst and of his last, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the prophete Nathan, and in the prophecies of Ahia of Silo, and in the actes of Jeddi the Seyer against Jerobam the sonne of Nebat. And Salomon reygned at Jerusalem ouer all Israel foure yeares. And Salomon fel on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in ỳ cytie of Dauid his father. And Roboã his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The. x. Chapter.

ROboam * went vnto Sichem: for all Israell was come vnto Sichem, to make hym kynge. And whã Jeroboã ỳ sõne of Nebat herd ỳ, which was in Egipt (* whether he was fled for kinge Salomõ) he came agayne out of Egipte. And they sent for hym and called hym. And Jeroboã came with al Israel, & spake to Roboã, and sayd: Thy father made our yock greuous, make thou lyghter now ỳ hard bondage of thy father, & the heuy yocke ỳ he layed vpõ vs, & we wyl submytte our selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them: Come to me agayne ouer thre dayes. And ỳ people went their waye. 1. Re. 12. 3. Re. 11. g.

And Roboã the kynge ared coũsell at the Elders, which had stande before Salomon his father whyle he lyued, & he sayde: What is your counsell, that I maye geue this people an answere? They spake vnto hym, & sayd: If thou be louynge vnto this people, & deale gently with thẽ, & geue thẽ good wordes, thẽ shall they alwaye be obedient vnto the. Neuertheless he forsoke the counsel of the Elders ỳ they had geuẽ him, & toke coũsel at the yonge mẽ, which were growen vp with hym, & stode before hym. And he sayd vnto them: What is your coũsel, ỳ we maye answere this people, whiche haue spokẽ vnto me, & sayd: Make our yock lyghter, that thy father layed vpõ vs? The yongemen that were growen vp vnto hym, spake vnto hym, & sayd: Thus shalte thou saye vnto the people, that haue talked with the & spoken: Thy father made our yock to heuy, make thou our yocke lyghter. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lytle fynger shalbe thicker thẽ my fathers loines. If my father hath layed an heuy yock vpõ you, I B C wyl make your yocke the moze. My father chastened you with scourges, but I wyll beate you with scorpions.

Now whan Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam on the thyrde daye (according as the kynge sayd: Come to me agayne on the thyrde daye,) the kynge gaue them an harde answere. And Roboam the kynge forsoke the counsel of the elders, and spake vnto them after the yonge mens counsel, and sayd: yf my father haue made your yocke heuy, I wyll make it yet heuyer. My father chastened you with scourges, but I wyll beate you with scorpions. Thus the kynge folowed not the peoples mynde: for so was it determined of God, ℣ the LORDE

Thus fell Israel away from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

The.xi. Chapter.

3.Re.12.c. AND * whan Roboam came to Jerusalē, he gathered together the house of Juda and Ben Jamin (euen an hundreth & foure score thousande chosen men of armes) to fyght agaynst Israel, that they myght brynge the kyngdome agayne vnto Roboam. But the worde of the LORDE cam to Semaia the mā of God, & sayd: Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomō kynge of Juda, and to all Israel that are in Juda & Ben Jamin, and saye: Thus sayeth ℣ LORDE: ye shall not go vp, nor fyghte agaynst your brethre: let euery mā go home againe, for this is my dede. They herkened vnto the wordes of the LORDE, & went not forth agaynst Jeroboam. As for Roboam, he dwelt at Jerusalem, and buylded vp the stronge cyties in Juda, namely Bethleem: Etan, Tekoa, Bethzur, Socho, Adullam, Gath, Marela, Siph, Adoraim, Laches, Aseka, Zarega, Aialon, and Hebron (which were the fensed cyties in Juda and Ben Jamin) and he made them stōge, and set gouernoures therin, and prouyded them of victuayles, oyle and wyne, and in al cyties prepared ℣ shyldes and speares, and made them verye stronge. And Juda and Ben Jamin were vnder hym.

The prestes and Leuites also came in to hym out of all Israel and from all ℣ borders therof. And lefte theyr suburbes & possession, and cam to Juda vnto Jerusalem: * for Jeroboā and his sonnes expelled the that they shulde not execute the office of the presthode vnto the LORDE. * But for hym selfe he founded prestes to the hye places, & to felde deuels and calues, which he caused to make. And after them came ther out of al the trybes of Israel, which gaue their hartes to seke the LORDE God of Israel, and came to Jerusalem for to offre vnto the LORDE God of theyr fathers. And so strengthed they the kyngdome of Juda, & mantained Roboam the sonne of Salomon thre yeare longe: for they walked in ℣ way of Dauid and Salomon thre yeares.

And Roboā toke Mahelath the doughter of Jeremoth the sōne of Dauid to wyfe & Abihail ℣ doughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, which bare hym these sonnes: Jeus, Semaria and Saham. * After her toke he Maecha the doughter of Absalom, which bare hym Abia, Athai, Sila & Selomith. But Roboam loued Maecha the doughter of Absalom better then all his wyues & concubynes: for he had eyghtene wyues & thre score concubynes, and begat eyght and twenty sōnes, and thre score doughters. And Roboam set Abia the sonne of Maecha in the heade and prynce amonge his brethren: for he thought to make hym kynge: for he was wyse, and more myghtye then all his sonnes in al the contrees of Juda and Ben Jamin and in all the stronge cyties. And he gaue them plenteousnes of foode, and begat many wyues.

The.xii. Chapter.

BUt whan the kingdome of Roboam was confirmed and stablysshed, he forsoke the lawe of the LORDE and all Israel with hym. * And in the fyfth
peare of Roboā went Sisack the kynge of Egipte vp against Jerusalem (for they had transgressed against the LORDE) with a thousande and two hundreth charrettes, & sixty thre score thousande horsemen, & the people were innumerable that came with him out of Egipte, Libya, Suchim & out of Ethiopia, & he wanne the stroge cyties that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Thē came Semaia ꝑ prophet vnto Roboam & to the rulers of Juda (whiche were gathered together at Jerusalē for Sisack) & sayd vnto thē: Thus sayeth the LORDE: ye haue lefte me, therfore haue I lefte you also in Sisacks hāde. Then ꝑ rulers in Israel with the kynge submitted them selues and sayd: The LORDE is ryghteous.

3 But whan the LORDE sawe that they humbled them selues, the worde of the LORDE came to Semaia, and sayd: They haue humbled them selues, therfore wyll I not destroye them, but I wyl geue them a lytle delyueraunce, that my indignacyon fal not vpō Jerusalem by Sisack: for they shalbe subdued vnto hym, that they maye knowe what it is to serue me, and to serue ꝑ kyngdomes of the worlde.

Thus wente Sisack the kynge of Egipte vp to Jerusalem, and toke the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and ꝑ treasures in the kynges house, and caryed al awaye, and toke ꝑ shyldes of gold *that Salomō caused to make: in stead wherof kyng Roboam made shyldes of stele, and cōmytted them vnto the chefe footmē, which kept the dore of the kynges house. And as ofte as the kynge went in to the house of ꝑ LORDE, the footmen came & bare thē, & brought them agayne in to the footmens chamber. And for so much as he submytted himselfe, the wrath of the LORDE turned from him, so that all was not destroyed: for ther was yet some good in Juda.

C Thus was Roboam the kynge stablyshed in Jerusalem, and raygned. One and foure yere olde was Roboam whā he was made kynge, and raygned seuentene yeare at Jerusalem in the cytie, *which the LORDE had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naema an Ammonitysse: and he dyd euell, and prepared not his hart to seke the LORDE.

These actes of Roboam, both fyrst and last, are writtē in ꝑ actes of Semaia ꝑ prophet, and of Iddo ꝑ Seyer, and are noted, and so are the warres that Roboā & Jeroboam had together as longe as they lyued And Roboam fell on slepe with his fathers and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid, and Abia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The xiii. Chapter.

IN *the eyghteth yeare of kyng Jeroboam, was Abia kyng in Juda, and raygned thre yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michaia ꝑ doughter of Uriel of Gibea. And ther was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepared hymselfe to ꝑ battayll with foure hundreth thousande stronge chosen men of warre. But Jeroboā made hymselfe ready to fyght agaynst hym with eyght hūdreth thousande chosen men of strength. 3.Re.15.a

And Abia gat hym vp vpō the hyl Zemaraim, which lyeth vpon mount Ephraim, & sayd: Herken vnto me thou Jeroboā and al Israel: knowe ye not that the LORDE God of Israell hath geuen Dauid the kyngdome of Israel for euer, vnto hym & his sonnes wt a Salt cōuenaūt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat ꝑ seruaūt of Salomon Dauids sonne, gat hym vp and fell awaye from his lorde. And ther resorted vnto hym vagabundes & chyldren of Belial, and haue strengthed them selues agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was but ponge & of a fearfull hart, and coulde not resist them.

Now thynke ye to set youre selues agaynst the kyngdome of the LORDE amōge the sōnes of Dauid? for so much as ther is so great a multitude of you, & haue the goldē calues *that Jeroboā made you for gods? *Haue ye not expelled ꝑ prestes of the LORDE the chyldren of Aaron and ꝑ Leuites? & haue made you prestes of your owne, euen as the people of the landes? Who so euer commeth to fyll his hande wt a ponge bullocke and seuen rammes, shalbe preste vnto them that are not goddes. B 3.Re.12.b 2.Pa.11.b

But with vs is the LORDE our God, whom we forsake not: and the prestes ꝑ mynister vnto the LORDE, the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites in theyr busynes, & euery morynge and euery euenynge kyndle they the burntofferynges vnto the LORDE, and the swete incense, and prepare the shewbread vpon the pure table, and the golden candelsticke with his lampes, to be kyndled euery euenynge: for we wayte vpon the LORDE our God.

As for you, ye haue forsaken hym. Beholde, God is the captayne of oure hoost, and with vs are his prestes, and the *blowynge trompettes, to trompe agaynst you. ye chyldren of Israell, fyghte not agaynst the LORDE God of your fathers: for ye shal not prosper. C Nu.10.a

Neuertheleſſe Jeroboam made a preuy watch in euery ſyde, to come vpon them behynde, ſo that they were before Juda, and the preuye watche behynde. Now whan Juda turned them, beholde, ther was battayll before them and behynde. Thē cryed they vnto the LORDE, & the prieſtes trompeted wt the trōpettes, & whā euery man in Juda gaue a ſhoute, God plaged Jeroboam & Iſrael before Abia & Juda. And the chyldren of Iſrael fled before Juda, & God gaue them in to theyr handes, ſo that Abia and his people dyd a great ſlaughter vpō them, and ther fell wounded of Iſrael fyue hundreth thouſande choſen men.

D Thus were the chyldren of Iſrael ſubdued at ỹ tyme, but ỹ chyldrē of Juda were cōforted, for they put theyr truſt in the LORDE god of their fathers. And Abia folowed vpon Jeroboam, & wanne cyties frō hym, Bethel with ỹ vyllages therof, Jeſana wt hir vyllages, and Ephron wt the villages therof, ſo that Jeroboam came nomore to ſtrength, as longe as Abia lyued. And the LORDE ſmote hym that he dyed.

Now whan Abia was ſtrengthed, he toke fourtene wyues, & begat two & twētye ſonnes and ſixtene doughters. What more ther is to ſaye of Abia, and of his wayes & his doynges, it is wrytten in the ſtorye of ỹ prophet Jddo. And Abia fell on ſlepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in ỹ cytie of Dauid: and Aſa his ſonne was kynge in his ſteade. In his tyme was the lande in reſt ten yeares.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

A ND *Aſa dyd that which was 3.Re.15.b. good and rycht in the ſight of the LORDE his God, and put awaye the ſtraunge altares, & the hye places, and brake the pilers, and hewed downe ỹ groues, & ſayde vnto Juda, that they ſhuld ſeke the LORDE God of theyr fathers, and to do after ỹ law and commaundementes. And the hye places and Idols put he awaye out of al the cities of Juda: and the kyngdome had reſt before hym. And he buylded ſtronge cyties in Juda, whyle the lande was in quietnes, and whyle ther was no warre agaynſte hym in the ſame yeares: for the LORD gaue hym reſt.

B And he ſayd vnto Juda: Let vs buylde vp theſe cyties, & fenſe them rounde about with walles and towres, with portes & barres, whyle the lande is yet with vs: for we haue ſought the LORDE our God, and he hath geuen vs reſt on euery ſyde. So they builded, and it went proſperouſly with thē. And Aſa had an hooſt of men which bare ſhyldes and ſpeares, out of Juda thre hundreth thouſande, & out of Ben Jamin two hundreth and foure ſcore thouſande, ỹ bare ſhyldes and coulde ſhute with bowes, all theſe were myghtye ſtronge men.

But Serah the Moryan came out & gaynſt them with an hooſt of a thouſande tymes a thouſande, and with thre hundreth charrettes, and came vnto Mareſa. And Aſa wente forth agaynſt hym. And they prepared them ſelues to the battayll in ỹ valley Zephata beſyde Mareſa. And Aſa called vpon the LORDE his God, and ſayde: *LORDE, it is no differēce with the, to helpe by fewe or by many. Helpe vs O LORDE our God, for our truſt is in the, and in thy name are we come forth agaynſt this multitude. LORDE oure God, let noman preuayle agaynſt the.

And the LORDE ſmote ỹ Moryans before Aſa & before Juda, ſo ỹ they fled. And Aſa wt the people ỹ was by hym, folowed vpon thē vnto Gerar. And ỹ Moryās fell, ſo that none of thē remayned alyue, but were ſmyttē before ỹ LORDE & before his hoſt. And they caryed exceadynge muche ſpoyle frō thence. And he ſmote al ỹ cyties about Gerar, for a fearfulneſſe of ỹ LORDE came vpon thē. And they ſpoyled al ỹ cyties, for ther was much ſpoyle in them. They ſmote the tētes of ỹ cattel alſo, & toke many ſhepe and camels, & came agayne to Jeruſalem.

The.xv. Chapter.

AND the ſpyrete of God came vpon Aſarias the ſōne of Obed which went forth vnto Aſa, & ſayd vnto hym: Heare me Aſa and al Juda and Ben Jamin: The LORDE is with you, whyle ye are wt hym: and yf ye ſeke hym, he wylbe founde of you. But yf ye forſake hym, he ſhal forſake you alſo. Neuertheleſſe ther ſhalbe many dayes in Iſraell, that * ther ſhalbe no true God, no prieſt to teache, and no lawe. And whan they turne in theyr trouble vnto the LORDE God of Iſraell, and ſeke hym, he ſhalbe founde. At that tyme ſhall it not be well with hym that goeth out & in: for there ſhal be great byroures vpon all them that dwell on the earth. For one people ſhall ryſe to ſmyte another, one cyte another: for God ſhall vexe them with al maner of trouble.

But be ye stronge, and let not youre hande be feble: for youre worke hath his rewarde.

B Whan Asa herde these wordes, and the prophecyenge (of Asarias the sonne of Obed ꝑ prophet,) he toke a corage vnto him, and put awaye the abhominacyons out of all the londe of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cytyes that he had wonne vpon mount Ephraim: & renewed ꝑ LORDES altare, whiche stode before the porche of the LORDE. And all Juda and Ben Jamin gathered themselues together, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manasses and Simeon: for ther fell many vnto hym out of Israell, whan they sawe that ꝑ LORDE his God was with hym. And they resorted vnto Jerusalem in the thyrde moneth of the fyftenth yeare of the raygne of Asa, & the same daye offered they vnto the LORDE of the spoyle that they had broughte, seuen hundreth oxen and seuen thousande shepe.

C And they entred in to the conuenaunt, that they wolde seke the LORD God of their fathers, with all theyr harte and with all theyr soule. And who soeuer wolde not seke the LORDE God of Israell, shulde dye, both small and greate, both man and woman: & they sware vnto ꝑ LORD with loude voyce, with shoutynge, with trompettes, and with hawmes. And al Juda were glad ouer the othe: for they had sworne with al their harte and they soughte hym with a whole wyll: & he was founde of them, and the LORD gaue them rest on euery syde.

D And Asa the kynge put downe his mother Maecha from the mynistracyon, that she hadde founded in the groue vnto Mipleseth, and Asa roted out hyr Mipleseth and dyd beate it in sunder, and burnte it by the broke Cedron. But the hye places were not put downe out of Israel, yet was the harte of Asa perfecte as longe as he lyued. And loke what his father hadde halowed, and that he hym selfe had halowed, he broughte it in to the house of God, syluer, golde, and ornamentes. And ther was no warre vnto the fyue and thyrtyeth yeare of the raygne of Asa.

The.xvi. Chapter.

IN the sixe and thyrtyeth yeare of ꝑ raygne of Asa * went Baesa the kynge of Israell vp agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, to let Asa the kynge of Juda, that he shulde not go out & in: But Asa toke forth the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and the syluer and golde in the kynges house, & sent it vnto Benadad the kyng of Syria, which dwelt at Damascon, and caused to saye vnto hym: Ther is a conuenaunt betwene me and the, betwene my father and thy father, therfore haue I sent the syluer and golde, that thou mayest breake the cōuenaunt with Baesa the kynge of Israell, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadad herkened vnto kyng Asa, and sent his hooste agaynst the cytyes of Israell, which smote Eion, Dan and Abell Maim, and all the corne cityes of Nephtali. Whā Baesa herde that, he lefte of frō buyldynge Rama, and ceassed from his worke. But kynge Asa toke all Juda vnto hym, and caryed away the stones and tymber from Rama (wherwith Baesa buylded) and he buylded Geba and Mizpa withall.

At the same tyme came Hanani the Seer vnto Asa the kynge of Juda, and sayde vnto hym: Because thou hast trusted vnto the kyng of Syria, and not put thy trust in the LORDE thy God, therfore is the power of the kynge of Assiria escaped thy hand. B

* Were not the Moryans and Lybians a great multitude wᵗ exceadynge many chariottes and horsmen? yet gaue the LORDE them in to thy hāde, whā thou diddest put thy trust in hym: for the eyes of the LORDE loke rounde aboute all londes, to strengthe them that are in hym with all theyr harte. Thou hast done vnwyselp, therfore shalte thou haue warre from henceforth. But Asa was wroth at the Seyer, and put hym in prison: for he murmured wᵗ hym ouer this thynge. And Asa oppressed certayne of the people at the same tyme. 2.par.14.8

Theſe actes of Asa both fyrst and last, behold, they are written in the boke of ꝑ kynges of Juda and Israell. And Asa was diseased in his fete in the nyne and thyrtyeth yeare of his raygne, & his sycknesse increased. * Nother soughte he the LORDE in his syckenes, but trusted vnto Physicias. Thus fell Asa on slepe with his fathers, and dyed in the one and fortyeth yeare of his raygne & was buryed in his owne sepulcre whiche he had caused to be graue for hym selfe in ꝑ cytye of Dauid. And they layed hym vpon his bed, which was fylled with swete odoures and all maner of spyces (made after the Apotecaries crafte) and they made a very greate burnynge. C Eccl.38.b

The.xvii. Chapter.

AND Josaphat his sonne was kyng in steade, & wared mighty against Israell. And he put men of warre in all ỹ stronge cities of Juda, and set officers in the lãde of Juda, and in the cyties of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wonne. And the LORDE was with Josaphat: for he walked in the olde wayes of his father David and sought not Balaim, but the God of his father, and walked in his cõmaundementes, and not after the workes of Israel: therfore dyd the LORDE stablyshe the kyngdome in his hande. And all Juda gaue presentes vnto Josaphat, and he had greate ryches and worshyp. And whan his harte was coraged in the wayes of the LORDE, he put downe styll the hye places and groues of Juda.

B In the thirde yeare of his raygne sente he his prynces, Benhaill, Obadia, Zacharias, Nethaneell and Michaia, to teach in the cyties of Juda: and with them the Leuites: Semaia, Nethania, Hebadia, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adonia, Tobia and Tob Adonia, and with thẽ the prestes Elisama and Joram. And they taught in Juda, & had the boke of lawe of the LORDE with thẽ, and wente aboute in all the cyties of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the LORDE came vpõ all the kyngdomes in ỹ contrees that laye aboute: Juda, so ỹ they fought not agaynst Josaphat. And the Philistynes brought presentes and tribute of syluer vnto Josaphat. And the Arabians brought hym seuẽ thousande and seuen hundreth rãmes, and seuen thousand and seuen hundreth hegoates. Thus increased Josaphat, and grewe euer greater. And he buylded castels & corn cytyes in Juda. And dyd muche in the cytyes of Juda, and had valeaunt and mighty men at Jerusalem.

C And this was ỹ ordinaunce thorow out ỹ house of theyr fathers, which were rulers ouer the thousandes in Juda: Adna a captayne, and wt hym were thre hundreth thousande mightye men. Nexte vnto hym was Johanan ỹ chefe, and with hym were two hundreth and foure score thousande. Nexte hym was Amasia the sonne of Sichri ỹ frewyllynge of the LORD, and with hym were two hũdreth thousande valeaunt men. Of the chyldren of Ben Jamin was Eliada a myghtye man, and with hym were two hũdreth thousande readye with bowes & shyldes. Nexte vnto hym was Josabad, & with hym were an hundreth and four score thousande harnessed mẽ of warre. All these wayted vpon the kynge, besydes those that the kynge had layed in the stronge cyties throw out all Juda.

The.xviii.Chapter.

AND Josaphat had greate ryches and worshyppe, and made frendshyppe with Achab. * And after two yeares went he downe to Achab vnto Samaria. And Achab caused many shepe and oxen to be slayne for hym and for ỹ people that were with hym. And he counsell him to go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Achab the kynge of Israell sayde vnto Josaphat the kynge of Juda: Go with me vnto Ramoth in Gilead. He sayde vnto hym: I am as thou, & my people as thy people, we wyll go with the vnto the battayll.

But Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: Axe counsell (I prayethe) this day at the worde of the LORDE. And the kyng of Israel gathered the prophetes together, euen foure hũdreth men, and sayd vnto them: Shall we go to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, or shal I let it alone? They sayde: Go vp, God shall delyuer it in to the kynges hande. But Josaphat sayde: Is ther not yet one prophete of the LORD here, that we maye axe at hym? The kynge of Israell sayde vnto Josaphat: Ther is yet one man, at whome we maye axe at the LORDE: but I hate hym, for he prophecyeth neuer good, but alwaye euell, namely Micheas the sonne of Jemla. Josaphat sayde: Let not the kynge saye so. And the kynge of Israell called one of his chamberlaynes, and sayd: Bringe hither soone Micheas ỹ sonne of Jemla.

And the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat the kynge of Juda, sat eyther of them vpõ his seate, arayed in theyr garmentes. Euen in the place at the doore of the porte of Samaria sat they, and al the prophetes prophecyed before them. And Sedechias ỹ sonne of Cnaena had made hym hornes of yron, & sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalte thou pusshe at the Syrians: tyll thou bringe them to naught. And al the prophetes prophecyed lyke wyse, and sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, & thou shalte prospere, and the LORDE shall delyuer it in to the kynges hande.

And the messaunger that went to call Micheas, spake vnto hym, and sayde: Be hold, the wordes of the prophetes are with one accorde good before the kynge: let thy worde (I praye the) be as one of theyrs, and speake thou good also. But Micheas sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, loke what my God sayeth vnto me, that will I speake. And whan he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto hym: Micheas, shuld we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to ỹ battayll, or shuld we let it alone? He sayde: Go vp and ye shal prospere. It shalbe geuen you in your handes. But ỹ kynge sayd vnto him: I charge the yet agayne, ỹ thou tell me not hynge the but the truth in the name of the LORDE.

C Then sayde he: I sawe all Israel scatteryd abrode vpon the mouñtaynes, as ỹ shepe that haue no shepherde. And the LORDE sayde: Haue these no lorde? Let euery one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde ỹ kynge of Israell vnto Josaphat: Dyd not I tel the, that he wolde prophecye me no good, but euell?

And he sayde: Therfore heare ye ỹ word of the LORDE: * I sawe the LORDE syt vpō his seate, and all the hooste of heauen stondynge at his righte hande and at his lefte. And the LORDE sayd: Who will deceaue Achab the kynge of Israell, that he maye go vp and fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And whā one sayde thus, another so, ther came forth a spryte and stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I will deceaue hym. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Wherewith? He sayde: I will go forth & be a false spryte in ỹ mouth of all his prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt deceaue hym, and shalt be able: go thy waye, and do so. Beholde now, * the LORDE hath geuē a false spryte in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spoken euell agaynst the.

D Then stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Chaena, and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayde: Which waye is the spryte of the LORDE departed fro me, to speake thorow the? Micheas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it, whā thou cōmest in to the vnmost chamber to hyde the. But the kynge of Israell sayde: Take Micheas, and let hym remayne with Amon the ruler of the cytye, & with Joas the sonne of Melech, and saye: Thus sayeth ỹ kynge: Put this man in prison, and fede him with breade and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Micheas sayd: yf thou cōmest agayne in peace then hath not the LORDE spoken thorow me. And he sayde: Herken to all ye people.

E So the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat the kynge of Juda went vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israell sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes and came to the battaill in thyne arraye. And the kynge of Israell chaunged his rayment, & came in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria had cōmaunded ỹ rulers of his charrettes: ye shall fight nother agaynst small nor greate, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israell.

Now whan the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thought: It is ỹ kyng of Israell, and they wente aboute to fighte agaynst hym. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped hym. And God turned the from hym: for whan the rulers of the charrettes saw that it was not the kynge of Israell they turned backe from hym. But a certayne man bended his bowe harde, and shot the kynge of Israel betwene the mawe and the longes. Thē sayde he vnto his charretman: Turne thyne hande, and carye me out of the hooste, for I am woūded. And the battayll was sore the same daye. And the kynge of Israell stode vpon his charret agaynst the Syrians vntyll the euenynge, & dyed whan the sonne wente downe.

The. xix. Chapter.

BVt Josaphat the kynge of Juda A came home agayne in peace vnto Jerusalem. And Jehu ỹ sonne of Hanani the Seyer wente forth to mete hym, and sayd vnto kinge Josaphat: Shuldest thou so helpe the vngodlye, and loue them that hate the LORDE? And for this cause is the wrath vpon the from the LORDE: neuerthelesse ther is some good founde in the, that thou haste put the groues out of the londe and hast prepared thyne harte to seke God.

So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

* And he wente agayne amonge ỹ peo- B brought them agayne vnto the LORDE God of theyr fathers. And he set iudges thorowe out the londe, in all the stroge cytyes of Juda, and a certayne in euery cytye. And sayd vnto the iudges: Take hede what ye do: for ye execute not the iudgment of man, but of the LORDE, and he is with you in iudgmēt: therfore let the feare of the LORDE be with you, and beware, and do it: for with the LORDE oure God ther is no vnryghteousnesse, nor respecte of personnes, nor acceptynge of gyftes.

And at Jerusalē dyd Josaphat ordeyne C

certayne of the Leuites and prestes, and of the awncyēt fathers of Israell for the iudgment of the LORD, and ouer the matter of ꝑ lawe, and cause them to dwel at Jerusalē, and cōmaunded them, and sayde: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORDE, in kaythfulnesse and in a perfecte harte. In all causes that come vnto you from youre bre thren (which dwell in their cytyes) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinaunces ye shall enfourme them, that they synne not agaynste the LORDE, and so the wrath to come vpon you and youre brethrē. Do thus, and ye shall not offende.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is cheke ouer you in all causes of the LORDE: so is Sebadia the sonne of Ismael prynce in the house of Juda in all the kinges matters: ye haue officers lykewyse the Leuites before you. Take a good corage vnto you, and be doynge, and the LORDE shalbe with the good.

The.xx.Chapter.

AFter this came the chyldren of Moab, the chyldren of Ammō, and certayne of Amanim with them, to fight agaīst Josaphat And they came and tolde Josaphat, and sayde: Ther cōmeth a great multitude agaynste the from beyonde the See of Siria: and beholde, they are at Hazezon Thamar, that is Engaddi.

And Josaphat was afrayed, and set his face to seke the LORDE, and caused a fast to be proclamed in all Juda. And Juda came together to seke the LORDE. And out of all the cytyes of Juda came they to seke ꝑ LORDE. * And Josaphat stode amonge the congregacyō of Juda & Jerusalē in the house of the LORD before the new courte & sayde.

2.par.6.c

O LORDE God of our fathers, art not thou God in heauen, and hast dominion in all the kyngdomes of the heythen? And in thy hande is strength and power, and ther is no man that can withstōde the. Hast not thou oure God expelled the inhabiters of this londe before thy people of Israel? and hast geuen it vnto the sede of Abraham thy louer for euer: so that they haue dwelt in it, and haue buylded the a Sanctuarye vnto thy name therin, and sayde: * yf ther come ony plage, swearde, iudgement, pestilence, or derth vpon vs, we wyll stonde before this house, euen before the (for thy name is in this house) and wyll crye vnto the in our trouble, and thou shalte heare, & shalt saue vs. Beholde now, the chyldren of Ammon of Moab, and they of mount Seir, whome * thou woldest not suffre the chyldren of Israell to go, whan they went out of the londe of Egypte, but they were fayne to depart frō thē, and not to destroye them: and behold, they deale contrarely with vs, and come to thrust vs out of ꝑ enheritāce that thou hast geuē vs in possession. O our God, wylt thou not iudge them? For in vs is no strength to withstāde this great multitude that cōmeth agaynst vs. We know not what we shulde do, but oure eyes loke vnto the. And all Juda stode before ꝑ LORDE, with theyr childrē, wyues and sonnes.

But vpon Jehaziel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Benaia, the sonne of Jehiell, the sonne of Mathania the Leuite of the chyldren of Assaph, came the spyrit of ꝑ LORDE in the myddes of the cōgregacyon, and sayd: Geue hede all thou Juda, and ye inhabiters of Jerusalem, and thou kynge Josaphat: Thus sayth the LORD vnto you: Be not ye afrayed, nor feare ye this great multitude: for it is not ye ꝑ fyght, but God. Tomorow shal ye go down vnto them: and ye shal fynde them by the broke: And beholde they go vp by Cis, & ye shal fynde them before ꝑ wyldernesse of Jeruell: for ye shall not fight in this cause. Do ye but steppe forth, & stande, and se ꝑ health of the LORDE that is with you. Feare not O Juda and Jerusalem, and be not afrayed, tomorow go ye forth agaynst them, and the LORDE shall be with you.

Then Josaphat bowed hymselfe with his face to the earth, and all Juda, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem fell before ꝑ LORDE and worshypped the LORDE. And the Leuites of the chyldren of the Kahathites and of the chyldren of the Corahites arose to prayse the LORDE God of Israell with loude voyce on hye. And they gat them vp early in the morynge, and wente forth by ꝑ wyldernesse of Thekoa.

And whan they were goynge out, Josaphat stode, and sayd: Herken vnto me O Juda, and ye inwellers of Jerusalē: Put youre trust in the LORDE your God, and ye shalbe safe: and geue credence vnto his prophetes, and ye shall prosperr. And he gaue counsell vnto the people, and appoynted the syngers vnto the LORDE, and them that gaue prayse in the bewtye of the holynes, to go before the harnessed men, and to saye: O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, for hys mercye endureth for euer. And whanne they beganne to geue thanks and prayse, * the LORDE caused the hynder watche that was come agaynste Juda, to come vpon the chyldrẽ of Ammon, Moab, and them of mount Seir, and they smote them. Then stode the chyldren of Ammon and Moab agaynst them of mount Seir to damne them, and to destroye them. And whan they had destroyed them, of mount Seir, one helped another to destroye them selues also. And whan Juda came to Mispã vnto the wyldernesse, they turned them warde the multitude, & beholde, the dead bodies laye vpõ the earth, so that none was escaped.

And Josaphat came with his people to deuyde the spoyles of them. And they founde amonge them so much goodes and rayment and precious Jewels (which they toke from them) that they coulde not beare them. And three dayes were they deuydinge the spoyle, for it was so much. On ỹ fourth daye came they together in to the valley of blessyng: for there blessed they the LORDE. Therfore is the place called the valleye of blessynge vnto this daye.

So euery man of Juda and Jerusalem turned backe agayne, and Josaphat before them, to go to Jerusalem with ioye: for the LORDE had geuen them gladnesse on their enemyes. And they entred in to Jerusalem with psalteries, harpes and trompettes vn to the house of the LORDE. And ther came a feare of God ouer all the kyngdomes in the londes, whan they herde that the LORD had fought agaynst the enemyes of Israel. Thus was the kyngdome of Josaphat in quietnes, and God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

* And Josaphat raygned ouer Juda, & was fyue and thyrtye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, & raygned fyue & twentie yeare at Jerusalẽ. His mothers name was Asuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, and departed not a syde from doynge that whiche was right in the sight of the LORD: sauyng that the hye places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared their harte vnto God of their fathers. What more ther is to say of Josaphat, both the fyrst and the last, beholde it is wrytten in the actes of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, which he noted vp in the boke of the kynges of Israell.

* Afterwarde dyd Josaphat the kynge of Juda agre with Ahasia the kynge of Israell, which was vngodly in his doynges. And he agreed with hym to make shyppes, for to go vpon the see. And they made the shyppes at Ezeon Gaber. But Eliezer the sonne of Dodana of Maresa prophecyed a gaynst Josaphat, and sayde: Because thou hast agreed with Ahasia, therfore hath the LORDE broken thy workes. And so the shyppes were brokẽ, & might not go vpõ ỹ See.

The. xxi. Chapter.

AND * Josaphat fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytye of Dauid, and Joram his sonne was kyng in his steade. 3.Re.22.8
And he had brethrẽ the sonnes of Josaphat Azaria, Jehiell, Zacharias, Azaria, Michaell and Sephatia. All these were the chyldren of Josaphat kyng of Juda. And their father gaue thẽ many gyftes of syluer, and golde and Jewels, with stronge cytyes in Juda. But the kyngdõ gaue he vnto Joramã: for he was the fyrst borne.

But whã Joramã cam vp ouer his fathers kyngdome, & had gotten the power of it * he slewe all his brethren with the sweard, and certayne rulers also in Israell. * Two and thyrtye yeare olde was Joram whã he was made kynge, and raygned eyght yeare at Jerusalem, and walked in the waye of the kynges of Israell, euen as the house of Achab dyd (for Achabs doughter was his wyfe) and he dyd that which was euell in ỹ sight of the LORDE. Judic.9.a 4.Re.8.a

Neuertheless the LORDE wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, for the cõuenaũt sake, * which he made with Dauid, and according as he had sayde, ỹ he wolde geue hym and his chyldren a lanterne for euermore. 2.Reg.7.a

* At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, and made a kynge ouer themselues: for Joram had gone ouer with his captaynes and all the chartettes with hym, and had gotten hym vp in the nighte season, and slayne the Edomites on euery syde, and the rulers of the chartettes: therfore fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Libna away from hym also: because he forsoke the LORDE God of his fathers. He made hye places also on the mountaynes in Juda, & caused them of Jerusalẽ to go awhorynge, and deceaued Juda. 4.Re.8.a

But ther came a wrytynge vnto hym from the prophete Elias, sayenge: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of thy father Dauid: Because thou haste not walked in ỹ wayes of thy father Josaphat, nother in ỹ wayes of Asa the kynge of Juda, but walkest in the waye of the kynges of Israell, and makest Juda and them of Jerusalem to go a whorynge after the whordome of the house of Achab, and hast slayne thy brethren also of thy fathers house, which were better thē thou. Beholde, the LORDE shall smyte the with a greate plage on thy people, on thy childzen, and thy wyues, and on all thy substaūce. But thou thy selfe shalt haue much sycknesse in thy bowels, tyll thy bowels go forth from daye to daye for very payne.

So the LORDE raysed vp agaynst Jorā the spzete of the Philistines, and Arabiās, which lye beside the Morians, & they went vp in to Juda, and waysted it, and caryed awaye all the substaunce that was founde in the kynges house, and his sonnes, and his wyues, so ỹ ther was not one sonne left hym, saue Joahas his ynogest sōne. And after all this dyd the LORDE smyte him in his bowels, with such a sycknesse as coulde not be healed. And whyle that endured frō day to daye, whan the tyme of two yeares was erpyred, his bowels wente from hym with his sycknesse, and he dyed in euell diseases.

And they made not a burnyng ouer him as they dyd vnto his fathers. Two & thyrtye yeare olde was he whan he was made kynge, and raygned eyght yeare at Jerusalem, and walked not well. And they buried hym in the cytye of Dauid, but not amōge the sepulcres of the kynges.

The.xxii.Chapter.

4.Reg.8.b. 2.par.22.b

And * they of Jerusalem made Ochosias his ynogeste sonne kynge in his steade: * for the men of warre that came with the hoost of the Arabians, had slayne all the fyrst, therfore raygned Ochosias the sonne of Jozam kynge of Juda. Two and forty yeare olde was Ochosias whan he was made kyng, and raygned one yeare at Jerusalē. His mothers name was Athalia the doughter of Amri. And he walked also in ỹ wayes of the house of Achab: for his mother entysed hym so that he was vngodly. Therfore dyd he euell in ỹ syght of the LORDE, euen as the house of Achab: for they were his coūselgeuers after his fathers death, to destroye him, and he walked after theyr counsell.

And he wente with Jozam the sonne of Achab kynge of Israell, to the battayll vn Ramoth in Gilead, agaynst Hasael ỹ kyng of Syria. But the Syrians smote Jo so that he turned backe to be healed at Jezreell: for he had woundes that were gyu hym at Rama, whan he fought with Ha ell the kynge of Syria. And O the sonne of Jozam kynge of Juda wen downe to vyset Jozam the sonne of Ach at Jesreell, which laye sycke: For it was dey ned of God vnto Ochosias, ỹ he shuld come to Jozam, and so to go forth with Jo ram agaynste Jehu the sonne of Syrnsi * whome the LORDE had anoynted to roo oute the house of Achab.

How whan Jehu wolde be auenged the house of Achab, he founde certayne rulers of Juda, and the childzen of Ochos brethren which serued Ochosias, & he slew them. * And he sought Ochosias, and they ouertoke hym, whā he had hyd hym at Sa maria: and he was brought vnto Jehu which slewe hym, and they buryed hym, for they sayd: He is ỹ sonne of Josaphat, that sought the LORDE with all his harte. So ther was no mā more of the house of Ochos sias that might be kynge.

* Whan Athalia the mother of Ochos sias sawe that hyr sonne was dead, she ros her vp, and destroyed all the kinges seed of the house of Juda. But Josabeath the kynges sister toke Joas the sonne of Ochosias and stale hym awaye from amonge ỹ kynges childzen that were slayne, and put hym wt his norse in a chāber. Thus Josabeath kynge Jozams doughter the wyfe of Joiada the prest hyd hym frō Athalia, so that he was not slayne: for she was Ochosias sister. And he was hyd with thē in the house of God sire yeares, for so much as Athalia was quene in the londe.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

But * in the seuenth yeare Joiada bolde, and toke the rulers ouer hūdreds: namely Asaria the sōne of Jeroham, Ismael the sonne of Johanan, Asaria the sonne of Obed, Maasia ỹ sonne of Adaia, and Elisaphat the sonne of Zichri with hym, in to the conuenaunt: & they wente aboute in Juda, and brought the Lu uites together out of al the cytyes of Juda, and the cheke fathers of Israell, to come in to Jerusalē. And all the cōgregacion made a cōuenaūt with the kynge in the house of God, And he sayd vnto them: Beholde, the kynges sōne shalbe kyng, * euē as ỹ LORDE spake concernynge the childzen of Dauid.

This it therfore that ye shall do: The thyrde parte of you that entre on the Sabboth, shalbe amonge the prestes and Leuites, which are dorekepers at ỹ thresholdes, and one thyrde parte in the kynges house, & one thyrde parte at the fundament porte. But all the people shalbe in the courtes of the house of the LORDE, and that noma go in to the house of the LORDE, excepte ỹ prestes and Leuites that mynister there, they shall go in: for they are halowed. And let al the people watte vpon the LORDE. And the Leuites shall get them rounde aboute the kynge, euery one with his weapen in his hãde. And who so els goeth in to the house, let hym dye. And they shalbe with the kyng whan he goeth out and in.

* And ỹ Leuites & al Juda dyd as Joiada ỹ prest had cõmaunded, and euery one toke his mẽ ỹ entred on the Sabbath, with those ỹ went of on the Sabbath: for Joiada ỹ prest suffred not those two companies to parte asunder. And Joiada ỹ prest gaue the captaynes ouer hundred speares & shyldes, & kynge Dauids weapẽs, which were in the house of God, & set all the people eue ry one with his weapen in his hande, frõ ỹ right corner of the house, vnto the lefte corner of the altare, & to the houseward about the kynge. And they brought forth the kynges sonne, & set the crowne vpon his head, and gaue hym the * wytnesse, & made hym kynge. And Joiada with his sonnes anoin ted hym, and sayd: God saue the kynge.

But whã Athalia herde ỹ noyse of the people that rãne together & praysed ỹ kyng she went forth to ỹ people in to the house of the LORDE, and loked: & beholde, the kynge stode in his place at the intraunce, and the rulers and trompetters about the kynge: & all the people of ỹ lande were glad, & blewe the trompes, & ther were singers that could playe with all musicall instrumentes. But she rente hir clothes, and sayd: Sedition, sedition. Neuertheles Joiada ỹ prest gat hym forth with the captaynes ouer hundreds and rulers of the hoost, and sayd vnto them: Bynge her forth betwene the walles, and who soeuer foloweth her, shalbe slayne with the swearde: for the prest had cõmaunded, that she shulde not be slayne in ỹ house of the LORDE. And they layed hãdes on her. And whan she came at the intrasice of the horsgate of ỹ kynges house, they put her to death there.

And Joiada made a cõuenaũt betwene hym & all the people, & the kynge, that they shulde be the people of ỹ LORDE. Thẽ went all the people in to the house of Baal, & destroied it, & brake downe his altares & ymages, and slewe Mathã ỹ prest of Baal, before ỹ altare. And Joiada appoynted the officers in ỹ house of the LORDE amonge the prestes & Leuites * whõ Dauid had ordeyned for the house of ỹ LORDE, to offer burnt sacrifices vnto the LORDE, as it is writtẽ in the * lawe of Moses, with ioye & songes made by Dauid. And the porters set he at the gates of the house of the LORDE, that none shulde entre, which were defiled with ony maner of thynge. 1.pa.24.25 Num.28.

And he toke ỹ captaynes ouer hũdreds & the myghtye men & lordes of the people, and all the people of the lande, & brought ỹ kynge downe frõ the house of the LORDE, and brought hym thorow the hye porte of the kynges house, & caused the kyng to syt vpõ the seate royall. And all ỹ people of the lande were glad, and the cytie was at rest. But Athalia was slayne with the swearde.

The. xxiiii. Chapter.

A Joas * was seuen yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Berseba And Joas dyd that which was ryght in ỹ syghte of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada the prest lyued. And Joiada gaue hym two wyues, and he begat sonnes & doughters. 4.Re.12.a

Afterward deuysed Joas to renew ỹ house of the LORDE, and gathered together ỹ prestes and Leuites, and sayd vnto them: Go forth vnto all the cyties of Juda, & gather the money of all Israel, to repayre ỹ house of your God yearly, and do it ryght soone: but the Leuites made no haist.

Then the kynge called Joiada the principal, and sayd vnto hym: Why lokest thou not vnto the Leuites, that they bynge in from Juda and Jerusalem, * the collectyõ which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE appoynted to be gathered amonge Israell for the Tabernacle of wytnes? For that vngodly Athalia and hir sõnes haue waysted the house of god: and al that was halowed for the house of the LORDE, haue they bestowed on Baalim. Ex.30.b.c

* Then cõmaunded the kynge to make a chest, & to set it without at the intraunce of the house of the LORDE: and caused it to be proclamed in Juda and Jerusalem, that they shulde bynge in to the LORDE: the 4.Re.12.b

collecçyon, which Moses ỹ ſeruaũt of God appoynted vnto Iſrael in the wyldernesse. Then were all the rulers glad, and ſo were all the people, and brought it, and caſt it in to the cheſt, tyll it was full.

And whan the tyme was ỹ the Leuites ſhuld bringe the Arke at ỹ kynges cõmaũdement (whã they ſawe ỹ ther was muche money therin) then came ỹ kynges ſcrybe, & he ỹ was appoynted of the chefe preſt, & emptyed the cheſt and caryed it againe into his place. Thus dyd they euery day, ſo that they gathered much money together. And the kynge & Ioiada gaue it vnto ỹ worke-maſters of ỹ houſe of ỹ LORD, & they hyred maſons & carpẽters to repayre ỹ houſe of ỹ LORDE, and men that coulde worke in yron and braſſe, to repayre ỹ houſe of the LORD.

C And the labourers wrought, ſo ỹ the repayringe in the worke went forwarde thorow theyr hande, and they ſet the houſe of God in his bewyre, and made it ſtronge. And whan they had perfourmed this, they brought the reſydue of ỹ money, before the kinge and Ioiada, wherof ther were made veſſels for the houſe of the LORDE, veſſels for the miniſtracyon and burntofferynge, ſpones and ornamẽtes of gold and ſyluer. And they offred burntofferynges alway in the houſe of the LORDE, as longe as Ioiada lyued.

And Ioiada ware olde, and had lyued longe ynough, and dyed, and was an hundreth and thyrtye yeare olde whan he dyed: and they buried him in the cytie of Dauid, amonge the kynges, becauſe he had done good vnto Iſrael, and towarde God & his houſe. And after ỹ death of Ioiada, came ỹ rulers in Juda, & worſhipped the kynge.

D Then cõſented the kynge vnto thẽ. And they forſoke the houſe of the LORDE God of theyr fathers, & ſerued the groues & ymages. Thẽ came ỹ wrath of the LORDE vpon Juda & Ieruſalem becauſe of this treſpaſſe of theyrs. yet ſent he prophetes vnto them, that they ſhulde turne vnto the LORDE, & they teſtified vnto them: but they wold not heare.

Mat.23.c. And the ſpryte of God came vpon * Zachary the ſonne of Ioiada the preſt, which ſtode ouer ỹ people, & ſayd vnto thẽ: Thus ſayeth God: Wherfore do ye trãſgreſſe the cõmaũdementes of the LORDE, which ſhall 1.par.15.a. not be to your proſperite: for * ye haue forſaken ỹ LORDE, therfore ſhal he forſake you. Neuertheleſſe they cõſpyred agaynſt him, & ſtoned hym at the kynges cõmaundement in the court of the houſe of the LORDE. Ioas the kynge thought not on the mercy that Ioiada his father had done for hym, but ſlewe his ſõne. Notwithſtandyng whã he dyed, he ſayd: The LORDE ſhal loke vpon it, and requyre it.

And whã the yeare was gone about, the power of the Syrians wente vp, & came to Juda & Ieruſalẽ, and deſtroyed the rulers in the people, & ſent al the ſpoyles of them to the kinge at Damaſcõ. For the power of the Syrians came but wt a few mẽ, yet gaue the LORDE a very great power in to theyr hãde, becauſe they had forſaken the LORDE God of theyr fathers. They executed iudgment alſo vpon Joas. And whã they departed frõ hym, they left him i great ſickneſs.

* Neuertheles his ſeruaũtes cõſpyred gaynſt hym (becauſe of ỹ bloude of the chyldre of Ioiada ỹ preſt) & ſlewe hym vpon his bed, & he dyed, & they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid, but not amõge the ſepulchres of the kynges. They that cõſpyred againſt hym, were theſe: Sabad the ſõne of Semath ỹ Ammonitiſſe, and Iozabad the ſonne of Simrith the Moabitiſſe. As for his ſonnes, & the ſũme that was gathered vnto hym, and the buildyng of the houſe of God beholde, they are wrytte in the ſtorye in the boke of the kynges. And Amaſias his ſonne was kynge in his ſteade.

The.xxv.Chapter.

Fyue and twenty yeare olde was Amaſias whan he was made kynge, and raygned xxix and twenty yeare at Ieruſalẽ. His mothers name was Joadi of Ieruſalem. And he dyd ỹ which was right in the ſyght of the LORDE, but not with a whole hart. Now whan his kyngdom was in ſtrẽgth, he ſlew his ſeruaũtes which had ſlayne the kynge his father. But theyr children ſlewe he not, for ſo is it wrytten in the boke of the law of Moſes, * where the LORDE cõmaundeth, and ſayeth: The fathers ſhall not dye for the chyldren, nother ſhal the chyldren dye for the fathers, but euery one ſhall dye for his owne ſynne.

And Amaſias brought Juda together, and ſet them after the fathers houſes, ouer the rulers ouer thouſandes & ouer hundreth amonge al Juda and Ben Jamin. And numbred them from twenty yeare olde & aboue, and founde of thẽ thre hundreth thouſand choſen men, which were able to go forth to the warre, and caryed ſpeares and ſhyldes.

And out of Israel appointed he an hūdreth thousande stronge men of warre for an hūdreth talentes of syluer.

But ther came a mā of God vnto him, and sayde: O kynge, Let not the hoost of Israel come wt the: for the LORDE is not with Israel, nother with al the chyldrē of Ephraim. For yf thou cōmest to shewe thy boldnes in ỹ battail, God shal make ỹ to fall before thyn enemyes. For God hath power to helpe, & to cause for to fal. Amasias sayd vnto the mā of God: What shalbe done then wt the hundreth talentes ỹ I haue geuē the souldyers of Israel? The mā of God sayd: The LORDE hath yet more thē this to geue the. So Amasias separated out the men of warre whiche were come to hym out of Ephraim, ỹ they shulde departe vnto theyr place. Thē ware they wrath very whote agaynst Juda, & they wente agayne vnto theyr place in wrothfull displasure. And Amasias strēgthed hymselfe, and caryed out his people, & wente forth into the Salt valley, and smote ten thousande of the chyldrē of Seir.

And the chyldrē of Juda toke ten thousande of the same, whō they brought vp to the toppe of a mountayne, & cast thē downe headlonges from the toppe of the moūt, so that they al to barst in sunder. But the chyldren of yme of warre whom Amasias had sent away agayne (that they shulde not go to the battayl with his people) fell in to the cyties of Juda, from Samaria vnto Bethhoron, and smote thre thousande men, and toke much spoyle.

And whan Amasias came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the goddes of the chyldren of Seir, & made them his goddes, & worshipped before them and brent incense vnto them. Thē was the LORD very wroth at Amasias, and sent vnto hym a prophete, which sayde vnto hym: Why seketh thou the goddes of the people, which could not delyuer theyr folke frō thy hande? And whan he talked with hym, the kynge sayd vnto hym: Haue they made the of the kinges cōsell? Cease, why wilt thou be smytten? Then ỹ prophet ceassed & sayd: I perceaue, that the LORDE is mynded to destroye the, because thou hast done this, & hearkenest not vnto my counsell.

And Amasias the kynge of Juda toke cōsell, & sent vnto Joas ỹ sōne of Joahas the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, sayeng: Come, let vs se one another. But Joas the kynge of Israell sent sent vnto Amasias ỹ kynge of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne in Libanus sent vnto the Cedre tre in Libanus, sayēg: Geue thy doughter vnto my sonne to wyfe. But a wylde beast in Libanus rāne ouer the hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou thynkest: Beholde, I haue smytten the Edomites, therfore is thyne harte proude to boast. Now byde at home: why stryuest thou after myschefe, ỹ thou mayest fall and Juda with the? Judi.9.a 4.Esd.4.b

Neuertheless Amasias cōsented not: for so was it brought to passe of God, that they myght be geuen in to the handes of the enemyes, because they sought ỹ goddes of the Edomites. Then went Joas the kynge of Israel vp, and they sawe one another, he & Amasias the kynge of Juda, at Bethshemes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytten before Israell, and they fled euery one vnto his tent.

And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias the kynge of Juda, ỹ sōne of Joas the sonne of Joahas, at Bethshemes, and brought hym to Jerusalē, & brake downe ỹ wall of Jerusalem, frō ỹ porte of Ephraim vnto ỹ corner porte, euen foure hūdreth cubites longe: & toke with hym al the golde, & syluer, & al the ornamentes that were foūde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and in the treasures in ỹ kynges house, and the chyldren to pledge vnto Samaria. And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israel fyftene yeare.

What more ther is to saye of Amasias (both the fyrst & last) behold, it is written in ỹ boke of ỹ kinges of Juda & Israel. And frō the tyme forth ỹ Amasias departed frō the LORD, they cōspyred agaynst hym at Jerusalē. But he fled vnto Lachis. Then sent they after hym vnto Lachis, & slewe hym there. And they brought hym vpon horses and buried him beside his fathers in ỹ cities of Juda. 4.Re.14.b

The.xxvi. Chapter.

Then * all the people of Juda toke Osias, which was sixtene yeare olde, & made hym kynge in stead of his father Amasias, he buylded Eloth, & brought it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. * Sixtene yeare old was Osias whā he was made kyng, and raygned two & fyfty yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jechalia of Jerusalem. And he dyd ryght in ỹ syght, 4.Re.14.a 4.Re.15.a

of the LORDE, as his father Amasias had 4.Re.12.a done, * and sought God as lõge as Zacharias lyued, which taught in the visyons of God: & as longe as he sought the LORDE, God made hym to prospere.

For he went forth, and fought agaynst the Philistynes, & brake downe the walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, and the walles of Asdod, and buylded cyties about Asdod, & amõge the Philistines. For God helped hym agaynst ỹ Philistines, agaynst the Arabiãs, agaynst them of Gurbaal, & agaynst the Meunites. And ỹ Ammonites gaue Osias presẽtes, & his name came into Egipte: for he was exceadynge stròge. And Osias buylded towres at Jerusalem vpon the cornerporte, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, & made them stronge. He buylded castels also in the wyldernesse, and dygged many welles: for he had many cattel, both in the medowes and in ỹ playnes: husbandmen also and wyngardeners on ỹ mountaynes and on Carmel: for he delyted in husbandrye.

B And Osias had an hoost of mẽ of warre goynge forth to the battayl, which were nõ bred vnder the hãde of Jeiel the scrybe & of Maesa the officer, vnder ỹ hande of Hanania of the kynges rulers. And the nombre of ỹ chefe fathers amonge the stronge men of warre, was two thousande and fyue hundreth. And vnder the hãde of the hoost thre hundreth thousaunde, and seuen thousãde and fyue hundreth mete for the battayll, in the strength of an armye to helpe the kyng agaynst the enemyes. And Osias prepared e.11.2 for al the hoost, shildes, speares, helmettes, brestplates, bowes, and slyngstones. And at Jerusalẽ he made ordinaunce cõyngly, to be vpon the towres and in the pynnacles to shute arowes & great stones. And ỹ fame of hym came farre abrode, because he was specyally helped, tyll he became myghtye.

C And whan his power was great, his hart arose to his owne destruccyon: for he trespassed agaynst the LORDE his God, and wente in to the tẽple of the LORDE, to burne
2.Pa.7.a incense vpon the altare of incense. But * Asarias ỹ prest went after hym, & foure score prestes of ỹ LORDE with hym, valeaũt mẽ, & withstode kynge Osias, & sayd vnto him:
Nu.18.a * It belõgeth not vnto thyn office (Osias) to burne incense vnto the LORDE, but vnto the prestes belongeth it, euen vnto ỹ chyldren of Aaron, which are halowed to burne incense. Go forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shalbe no worshippe vnto the before God the LORDE.

And Osias was wroth and had a censure in his hande. * And whyle he murmured with the prestes, the leprosy sprange vp of his forehead in the presence of ỹ prestes in the house of the LORDE before the altare of incense. And Asarias the chefe prest turned his heade towarde hym, and so dyd all the prestes, and behold, he was leper in his forehead. And they put hym out from thẽce: yee he made haist hym selfe to go forth, for his plage came from the LORDE. Thus became Osias ỹ kynge a leper vnto his death and dwelt full of leprosy in a fre house: for he was put out of ỹ house of ỹ LORDE. But Jotham his sonne had the ouersyght of the kynges house, & iudged ỹ people in ỹ lande.

What more ther is to say of Osias (both fyrst and last) Esay the sonne of Amos hath written it. And Osias fell on slepe with his fathers, & they buryed hym with his fathers in the pece of grounde beside ỹ kynges sepulcres: for they sayd: He is leprous. And Jotham his sõne was kynge in his stede.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

IOtham * was fyue and twenty yeare olde whan he was made kynge, & raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. His mother was Jerusa the daughter of Sadoc: and he dyd ryght in the syght of the LORD, as dyd Osias his father: sauyng that he went not in to ỹ tẽple of the LORDE, and the people yet marred them selues. He buylded the hye porte of the house of ỹ LORDE, and on the wall of Ophel buylded he much, & buylded the cyties vpon the mountaines of Juda, and in the woodes buylded he castels and towres.

And he fought with the kinge of ỹ children of Ammon, & ouercame them, so that the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yeare an hũdreth talẽtes of syluer, ten thousande quarters of wheate, & ten thousande of barlye. So much dyd the chyldren of Ammon geue hym also in the seconde & thyrde yeare. Thus became Jotham myghty, for he gyded his waies before ỹ LORDE his God.

What more ther is to saye of Jotham, all his warres, and his wayes, behold, it is wrytten in ỹ boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda. Fyue & twentye yeare olde was he whan he was made kynge, and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. And Jotham fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cytie of David, and Achas his sonne was kynge in stede.

The.xxviii. Chapter.

Achas* was twenty yeat olde
2.Re.16.a whan he was made kynge, & raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was ryght in the syght of the LORDE, as dyd Dauid his father, but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israell, and made molten ymages vnto Baalim, & burnt incense in the valley of the chyldren of 2.Re.16.b Hennõ* & burnt his owne sõnes in the fyre after the abominacõs of ỹ Heythen, whõ ỹ LORDE expelled before the chyldren of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice & burnt incense vpõ the hye places & vpon the hilles, & amonge all grene trees.

7.a *Therfore dyd the LORDE his God deliuer hym in to ỹ hande of ỹ kynge of Syria, so that they smote hym, and caryed awaye a great multitude of his men presoners, and brought them to Damascon. He was geuen also vnder ỹ hãde of the kynge of Israel, so that he dyd great slaughter vpon hym. For Pecah the sonne of Romelia smote in Juda an hundreth & twenty thousande in one daye (which all were valeaũt men) eñ because they had forsakẽ ỹ LORD God of theyr fathers. And Sichri a myghtye mã of Ephraim slewe Maseia ỹ kynges sõne, & Asrikam the pynce of ỹ house, & Elkana the nexte vnto the kynge. And the chyldren of Israel caryed of theyr brethren presoners two hundreth thousande, wemen, sõnes and doughters, and toke a great spoile from them, and brought the spoyle vnto Samaria.

B But euen there was ther a prophete of the LORDE, whose name was Obed, which went out to mete the hooste that cam to Samaria, & sayd vnto them: Beholde, because the LORDE God of your fathers is wroth at Juda, therfore hath he geuen them ouer in your handes: but ye haue slayne them so abhominably, that it is come vnto heauen. Now thynke ye to subdue ỹ chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, to be bondmẽ and bondmaydens vnto you. Is not this a trespasse then ỹ you agaynst the LORDE your God? Herken now vnto me, & sende the presoners hence agayne, whom ye haue caryed away from your brethren: for the wrath of ỹ LORDE is fearce ouer you.

Then gat vp certayne of ỹ chefe of the chyldren of Ephraim, Asarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachias the sõne of Mesillemoth, Ezechias the sonne of Sallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, agaynst them that came from the battayll, and sayd vnto them: ye shall not brynge the presoners in hyther, for your mynde is but to make vs to trespasse before the LORDE, to make our synnes and offẽces greater: for the trespasse is to much already, and the wrath is fearce ouer Israel. So the hooste lefte ỹ presoners and the spoyle before the rulers and before the whole congregacyon.

C Then stode vp ỹ men (which now were rehearsed by name) and toke the presoners, and as many as were naked amõge them, clothed they vỹ the spoyles, & decke them, & put shues vpon theyr fete, and gaue thẽ to eate and drynke, and anoynted them, & caryed them vpon asses (as many as were feble) and brought them to Jericho to ỹ Palme cytie vnto theyr brethren, & came agayn to Samaria. * At the same tyme sent kyng
4.Re.16.b Achas vnto the kynge of Assur, that they shulde helpe hym. And the Edomites came agayne, and smote Juda, and caryed some awaye captiue. The Philistynes also fel in to the cities in the playne, & toward ỹ south parte of Juda, & wanne Beth Semes, Ialon, Gederoth, & Socho with the villages therof, Timna with the villages therof, & Ginso with ỹ villages therof, & dwelt therin. For the LORD subdued Juda for Achas sake ỹ kynge of Juda, because he made Juda naked, and rebelled agaynst the LORDE And Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assur came agaynst hym, and beseged hym, & he was not myghtye ynough for hym.

D For Achas spoyled the house of ỹ LORDE, and the kynges house, and of ỹ rulers, to geue vnto ỹ kinge of Assur, but it helped hym not. Moreouer kynge Achas trespassed yet more agaynst ỹ LORDE euen in his trouble, & dyd sacrifice vnto the goddes of them of Damascõ, which had smittẽ hym, & sayd: The goddes of the kynges of Syria helpe them, therfore wyll I offre vnto them, that they may helpe me also, where as the same yet were a fall vnto hym and to all Israel.

And Achas gathered ỹ vessels of ỹ house of God together, and brake ỹ vessels in the house of God, & * shut ỹ dores of ỹ house of 2.Pa.29.a the LORDE, and made him altares in al corners at Jerusalem, and euery where in the cyties of Juda made he hye places to burn incense vnto other goddes, & prouoked the LORDE God of his fathers vnto wrath.

What more ther is to saye of hym and of all his wayes (both fyrst and last) behold, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And Achas fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Jerusalē: for they brought him not amonge the sepulcres of the kynges of Israel. And Ezechias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The.xxix.Chapter.

4.Kin.18.a Ezechias * was fyue and twēty yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raigned nyne & twē ty yeares at Jerusalē. His mothers name was Abia ꝑ dought ter of Zacharye. And he dyd ꝑ which was ryght in the syght of ꝑ LORDE, as dyd his
2.Par.28.d father Dauid. * He opened ꝑ doores of the house of ꝑ LORDE in ꝑ fyrst moneth of the fyrst yeare of his raigne, & made thē strōge, and brought in ꝑ prestes & Leuites, and ga thered them together vnto the Easte strete and sayd vnto them: Herkē vnto me ye Le uites, sanctifye your selues now ꝑ ye maye halowe ꝑ house of the LORDE God of your fathers, and put fylthynes out of the Sāc tuary: for our fathers haue trespassed, and done ꝑ which was euell in the syght of the LORDE our God, & haue forsakē him. For they turned theyr faces frō the habitacyon of the LORDE our God, & turned theyr backes on it, & shut the doores of the porch, and put out the lampes, & burnt no incēse, and offred no burntsacrifices in the Sanctuary vnto the God of Israel.

25 Therfore is the wrath of the LORDE come ouer Juda and Jerusalem, & he hath geuen them ouer to be scatered abrode, desolate, & to be hyssed at, as ye se with youre eyes. For beholde, euen for the same cause fel our fathers thorow the sweard, our sonnes, doughters, & wyues were caried away captyue. Now am I mynded to make a cō uenaūt wt the LORDE God of Israell, that he may turne away from vs his wrath & indignacyon. Now my sōnes, be not ye negli
Num.18.a gent: * for the LORDE hath chosen you to stonde before hym, and to be his ministers and to burne incense vnto hym.

Thē rose the Leuites: Mahath ꝑ sōne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asaria of the chyldren of the kahathites. Of ꝑ chyldren of Merari: Cis the sonne of Abdi, and Asaria the sōne of Jehaleleel. Of the chyldren of the Gersonites: Joah the sonne of Simma, & Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the childrē of Elizaphan: Simri & Jeiel. And of the chyldrē of Asaph: Zachary and Mathania. And of the chyldren of Hemā: Jehiel & Simei. And of the chyldren of Jedithun: Semaia and Usiel.

And they gathered theyr brethren toge ther, and were sanctified, and went in ac cordynge to the kynges cōmaundement & the worde of the LORDE, to clense the house of the LORDE. And the prestes entred wt in ꝑ house of the LORDE to purifye, and put out al the vnclennes ꝑ was foūde in ꝑ tem ple of the LORDE, in the courte of the LOR DES house: and the Leuites toke it vp, & ca ryed it out in to the broke Cedrō. The fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth beganne they to sanctifie them selues, and on the eyght day of the moneth wente they in to the porch of the LORDE, and halowed the house of the LORDE eyght dayes, and kynyshed it on ꝑ sixtenth daye of the fyrst moneth.

And they went in to the kyng Ezechias and sayd: We haue clensed all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burntofferynges, and al his vessels, ꝑ table of the shewbred and all the apparell therof: and al the ornamentes that kynge Achas cast awaye wt he was kynge, what tyme as he transgressed, those haue we prepared and halowed. Beholde, they are before the altare of the LORDE.

Then the kynge Ezechias gat hym vp early, and gathered together the Elders of the cytie, & went vp vnto the house of ꝑ LOR DE, and they brought seuen bullockes, seue rammes, seuen lābes, and seuen begoats, to be the synofferynge, for the Sāctuary, & for Juda. And he spake vnto the prestes the chyldren of Aaron, that they shulde offer vpon the altare of the LORDE.

So they slewe the bullockes, and the prestes toke the bloude, and sprēkled it vpon the altare: & slewe the rammes, & sprā kled the bloude vpon ꝑ altare: and slewe the lambes and sprenkled the bloude vpon the altare. And the goates to the synofferynge brought they before the kynge and the congregacyon, and layed theyr handes vpon them: & the prestes slewe them, and sprenkled theyr bloude vpō the altare to make at tonement for all Israel: for the kynge cōmā ded to offer burntsacrifices and synofferynges for all Israel.

And he set the Leuites in ꝑ house of the LORDE with cymbales, psalteries and har pes, * as Dauid had commaunded, & Gad the kynges Seyer, and the prophet Nathā for it was the commaundement of the LOR DE by his prophetes. And ꝑ Leuites stode with the musicall instrumentes of Dauid, and the prestes with the trompettes. And Ezechias cōmaunded them to offre burnt-sacrifyces vpon the altare. And aboute the tyme that the burntsacrifice beganne to be offred the songe of the LORDE begāne also, and the trompettes, and dyuerse instrumēts of Dauid the kynge of Israell and all the cōgregacyon gaue prayse and thākes. And the songe of the Musicias, and ỹ blowynge of the trōpetters, endured all tyll the burntofferynge was fynyshed.

Now whan the burntofferyng was performed, the kynge and all they that were with hym, bowed thē selues, & gaue prayse and thankes. And Ezechias the kynge wt the rulers cōmaūded the Leuites to prayse the LORDE with the songes of Dauid and Asaph the Seyr. And they gaue prayse tyl they were ioyfull, and they bowed themselues, and worshypped.

f And Ezechias answered & sayde: Now haue ye fylled youre handes vnto the LORDE kepte forth, and brynge hither the sacrifyces and thankofferynges vnto the house of the LORD. And the cōgregacion brought sacrifyces and thankofferynges and euery man of a free wyllynge hart brought burnt offerynges. And the nombre of the burntofferynges that the congregacyon broughte, was thre score bullockes and ten, an hundreth rammes, and two hundreth lambes, and all these for the burntofferynge vnto the LORDE, and they sanctifyed fyue hundreth bullockes, and thre thousande shepe.

But the prestes were to few, and coulde not plucke of the skynnes of all the burntofferynges, therfore toke they theyr brethrē the Leuites, tyll the worke was fynyshed, & tyll the prestes were halowed (for the Leuites are easier to be halowed thē the prestes) and many of ỹ burntofferynges were with the fat of the thankofferynges and drynkofferynges to the burnt sacrifyces. Thus was the mynistracyon of the house of the LORDE prepared. And Ezechias reioyced with all the people, that they were prepared with God: for it was done ryghtly.

The.xxx.Chapter.

AND Ezechias sent into all Israell and Juda, and wrote letters vnto Ephraim and Manasses, that they shulde come to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, to kepe Easter vnto the LORD God of Israell. And the kynge helde a cōsell with his rulers, and all the congregacyon at Jerusalem, * to kepe Passeouer in the seconde moneth: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the prestes were not sāctified ynough, & the people were not yet come together at Jerusalē. And it pleased the kynge well, and all the congregacyon. And they appoynted it to be proclamed thorowe out all Israell from Berseba vnto Dan, that they shulde come to kepe Passeouer vnto the LORDE God of Israel: for they were not many that kepte it as it is wrytten. Num.9.b

And the postes wente with the letters from the hande of the kyng and his rulers thorow out all Israell and Juda, at ỹ kynges cōmaundement, and sayde: ye chyldrē of Israell, turne you vnto the LORDE God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and he shal turne to the escaped, which are lefte ouer amonge you from the hande of the kynge of Assur: and be not ye as youre fathers and brethren, which rebelled agaynst the LORD God of theyr fathers, and he gaue thē ouer in to desolacyon as ye se youre selues. Be not ye hardnecked now as were youre fathers, but offre youre hande vnto the LORDE, and come to his sanctuarye, whiche he hath sanctifyed for euer, and serue the LORDE youre God, and so shall the indignacyō of his wrath turne awaye from you. For yf ye turne vnto the LORD, thē shall your brethren and chyldren haue mercy in the sight of them, which holde thē in captyuyte, that they may come agayne in to this lōde: for ỹ * LORDE youre God is gracyous & mercyfull, and shall not turne awaye his face from you, yf ye conuerte vnto hym. B Exo.34.a

And the postes wente from one cytye to another in the londe of Ephraim and Manasses, and vnto Zabulon. But they mocked them and laughed them to scorne, yet were ther some of Asser & Manasses, and of Zabulon, that submitted themselues, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God came in to Juda, so that he gaue them one harte to do after the cōmaundement of the kynge and the rulers at the worde of ỹ LORDE. And ther came together vnto Jerusalem a greate people, to kepe the feast of vnleuended bread in the seconde moneth, a very greate congregacyon. C

And they gat them vp, and put downe the * altares that were at Jerusalem, and all the incense put they away, and cast it in to the broke Cedron, and slewe the Passeouer on the fourtenth daye of the seconde moneth. And the prestes and the Leuites were 2.par.28.b

ashamed, and halowed them selues, and brought the burntofferynges to the house of the LORDE and stode in theyr ordinaūce, as it was accordynge, after the law of Moses the man of God. And the prestes sprenkled the bloude from the hande of the Leuites: for ther were many in the congregacyō which were not sanctifyed, therfore dyd the Leuites kyll Passeouer for thē which were not clensed, that they myghte be sanctifyed vnto the LORDE.

D Ther were many people also of Ephraim, Manasses, Issachar and Zabulō, which were not cleane, but dyd eate ꝑ Easter lābe not as it is wrytte, for Ezechias prayed for them, and sayde: The LORD, which is gracious, shalbe mercyfull vnto all them that prepare theyr hartes vnto God, to seke the LORDE God of theyre fathers, though they be not clensed after the holye purificacyon.

And the LORDE herde Ezechias, and healed the people. Thus the chyldren of Israell that were founde at Jerusalem, helde the feast of vnleuended breade seuen dayes wt greate ioye. And the Leuites & prestes prayse the LORDE euery daye with the loude instrumentes of the LORDE. And Ezechias spake hartely vnto all the Leuites, whiche had good vnderstōdynge in the LORD, and they dyd eate the feast seuen dayes, & offred thankofferynges, and gaue thankes vnto the LORDE God of theyr fathers.

E And all the congregacyon deuysed to kepe the feast yet other seuen dayes, and so they helde it those seuendayes also with ioye: *for Ezechias ꝑ kyng of Juda gaue an heaueofferynge for the congregacyon, euē a thousande bullockes, and seuen thousād shepe. But ꝑ rulers gaue an heaueofferyng for the congregacyon, euen a thousand bullockes, and ten thousand shepe. And many of the prestes sanctifyed themselues.

2.Pa.36.a

And the whole congregacyon of Juda reioyced, the prestes and Leuites, and all the congregacyon came out of Israell: and the straungers that were come out of the londe of Israell, and they that dwelt in Juda, and greate ioye was ther at Jerusalem: for sence the tyme of Salomon ꝑ sonne of Dauid the kynge of Israell, was ther no such (ioye) at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Leuites stode vp and blessed ꝑ people, and theyr voyce was herde, and theyr prayer came in to his holy habitacyon in heauē.

The.xxxi.Chapter.

AND whan al this was fynyshed all the Israelites ꝑ were founde in the cyties of Juda, went out and *brake ꝑ pylers, and hewed downe ꝑ groues, and brake downe the hye places and altares out of al Juda, Ben Jamin, Ephraim and Manasses tyll they had destroyed them. And all ꝑ chyldren of Israel wente agayne euery man to his possessiō vnto theyr cyties.

But Ezechias set the prestes and Leuites in theyr ordinaūces, euery one after his office, both the prestes and Leuites, for the burntsacrifyces & thankofferynges, to mynister, to geue thankes and prayse in the gates of the hoost of the LORDE. And the kyng gaue his porcyon of his substaunce for the burntofferynges in the mornynge and euenynge, and for ꝑ burntofferinges of ꝑ Sabbath, and of the new mone, and of the festes, *as it is wrytte in the law of ꝑ LORD.

And he spake vnto the people which dwelt at Jerusalem, that they shulde geue porcyōs vnto the prestes and Leuites, that they myght the more stedfastly endure in the lawe of the LORDE. And whan the worde came forth, the chyldren of Israell gaue many fyrst frutes of corne, wyne, oyle, hony, & all maner increase of the felde, & brought in much of all maner tythes. And the chyldren of Israell and Juda which dwelt in the cytyes of Juda, brought the tythes also of oxen and shepe, and the tythes of such thynges as were sanctifyed, which they had halowed vnto the LORDE their God, and made here an heape, & there an heape. In the thyrde moneth beganne they to laye vpon heapes, and in the seuēth moneth dyd they fynyshe it.

And whan Ezechias & the rulers went in, and sawe the heapes, they praysed the LORDE, and his people of Israell. And Ezechias axed the prestes and Leuites concernynge the heapes. And Azaria the hyest the chefe in the house of Sador, sayde vnto hym: Sence the tyme that they beganne to brynge the heaueofferynges in to the house of the LORD, we haue eaten, and are satisfyed, and yet is ther lefte ouer: for the LORD hath blessed his people, therfore is this heape lefte ouer. Thē cōmaunded the kynge that they shulde prepare chestes in the house of the LORDE. And they prepared them, & put in the heaueofferynges, & tythes and thynges which was halowed faythfully.

And the ouersight of the same had Chonania the Leuite, and Simei his brother the seconde, and Jehiell, Asasia, Naglath, Asabell, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliell, Jesma chia, Maharth and Benaia, ordeyned of the hãde of Chananta & Simei his brother, according to the cõmaundement of kynge Ezechias. But Asaria was prynce in the house of God, And Core the sonne of Jemna the Leuite ỹ porter of the Eastgate was ouer the frewyllynge gyftes of God (which was geuẽ for heauenly offeryuges vnto ỹ LORDE) and ouer ỹ moost holy. And vnder his hande were, Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Semaia, Amaria & Sachania in the cityes of ỹ preistes vpõ credẽce, that they shulde geue vnto their brethrẽ accordyng to their courses, to the leest as to the greatest.

D And vnto thẽ that were coũted for men chyldren from thre yeare olde and aboue, amonge all them that went in to the house of the LORDE, euery one vpon his daye to their office in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened for preistes in the house of their fathers, and ỹ Leuites from twentye yeare & aboue, in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened amonge their chyldren, wyues, sonnes, and doughters among the whole congregacyon: for that whiche was halowed sanctifyed they vpõ credẽce. Ther were men also named by name amonge Aarons chyldren the preistes vpon the feldes of the suburbes in all the cytyes, that they shulde geue portyons vnto all the men children amonge the preistes, and to all thẽ that were nombred amonge the Leuites.

Thus dyd Ezechias in all Juda, & dyd that whych was good, right, and true in the sight of the LORDE his God. And in al the busynes that he toke in hande concernynge the seruyce of the house of God, according to the lawe and cõmaundement, to seke his God, that dyd he with all his harte, & therby prospered he well.

The.xxxii. Chapter.

After these actes and faythfulnesse came * Sennacherib the kynge of Assur, and went in to Juda, and pitched before the stronge cytyes, and thought to winne them vnto hym. And whan Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib came, and that his face stode to fyght agaynst Jerusalem, he deuysed wt his rulers and myghtye mẽ, to stoppe the waters of the welles that were without the cyte, and they helped him: and ther gathered together a greate people, & couered all the welles and water brokes in the myddes of the londe, and sayd: Lest the kynges of Assur fynde muche water whan they come. And he toke a corage vnto him, and buylded all the welles where they were in decaye, and made towres theron, and buylded yet another wall without, & strẽgthed Millo in ỹ cytye of Dauid. And made muche ordinaunce and shyldes, and set cap taynes of warre ouer the people.

And gathered them vnto hym vpon the B brode strete by the gate of the cytye, & spake hartely vnto them, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, feare not, and be not afrayed for the kynge of Assur, nor all the multitude ỹ is with hym: for ther is one greater with vs then with hym. With hym is a * fleshly Iere.17.b arme, but with vs is the LORDE oure God, to helpe vs, & to fighte for vs. And ỹ people trusted vnto the wordes of the Ezechias kynge of Juda.

* Afterwarde sent Sennacherib ỹ kyng 4.Re.18.c of Assur his seruauntes vnto Jerusalẽ (for he lay before Lachis, and all his hoost with hym) to Ezechias the kynge of Juda, and to all Juda that was at Jerusalẽ, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib the kynge Assur: Wherin put ye your trust ye that dwel in the beseged Jerusalem: Ezechias deceaueth you, that he maye delyuer you vnto death, honger and thyrst, and sayeth: The LORDE oure God shall delyuer vs from the hãde of the kynge of Assur. Is it not Ezechias, that hath put awaye his hye places and altares, and sayde vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before one altare shall ye worshyppe, and burne incense theron?

Knowe ye not what I and my fathers C haue done to all the people in the londes? Haue the goodes of the Heythen in the londes bene able to delyuer their contres fro my hande? What is he amonge al the goddes of these Heythen (whome my father dãned) that was able to deliuer his people fro my hande? that your God shuld be able to delyuer you fro my hande. Therfore let not Ezechias now deceaue you, and let him not persuade you ony suche thynge, and beleue hym not. For yt no god of all the Heythen and kyngdomes might delyuer his people fro my hãde, and from the hande of my progenitours, then shall not youre goddes be able to delyuer you fro my hande.

His seruauntes also spake yet more agaynst the LORDE God, and agaynst his seruaunt Ezechias. And he wrote a letter to blaspheme the LORDE God of Israell, and spake of hym, and sayde: Lyke as the goddes of the Heythen in theyr lōdes haue not bē able to delyuer theyr people fro my hāde euen so shall not the God of Ezechias delyuer his people fro my hande.

D And they cryed with loude voyce in the Jewysh langage vnto the people of Jerusalem that were vpon the wall, to make thē fearefull and to be fayntharted, that they myght wynne the cytye. And they spake agaynst ỹ God of Jerusalē, euen as agaynst the goddes of ỹ nacions vpon earth, which were but the wozkes of mens handes.

But contrary wyse the kynge Ezechias and the prophete Jsaye the sonne of Amos prayed and cryed vnto heauen. And ỹ LORDE sent an angell, whiche destroyed all the myghtye men of the hoost, and the prynces and rulers in the tentes of the kynge of Assur, so that he departed agayne with shame
4.Re.19.b in to his owne lond. * And whan he went in to his gods house, they that came of his owne bodye, slew him there with ỹ sweard: Thus the LORD, helped Ezechias and thē at Jerusalem, out of the hande of Sennacherib the kynge of Assur, and of all other, and mayntayned thē frō all on euery syde: so that many broughte presentes vnto the LORDE to Jerusalem, and Jewels vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda. And Afterwarde was he exalted in the syghte of all Heythen.

C * At the same tyme was Ezechias dead
4.Re.20.a sycke, and he prayed vnto the LORDE which Esai.38.a made hym promes, and gaue hym a wonder token. But Ezechias recompensed not accordynge as was geuē vnto hym, for his hart was lyfted vp: therfor came the wrath vpon him, and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Neuertheles Ezechias humbled hymselfe because his hart had bene exalted, with thē at Jerusalē, therfore came not the wrath of the LORDE vpon them, whyle Ezechias lyued.

And Ezechias had very greate ryches and worshippe, and made him treasures of syluer, golde, precious stones, spyces, shyldes, and all maner costly vessell, and corne houses for ỹ increace of corne, wyne & oyle, and stalles for all maner cattell, and foldes for the shepe, and buylded hym cytyes, and had many cattel of shepe and oxen: for God gaue hym very much good.

F It is the same Ezechias that couered ỹ hye water condyte in Gihon, and conueyed it vnder on the west syde of the cytye of Dauid: for Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But whan the interpreters the chefe of Babilon were sent vnto him, to aske counsell at hym (concernynge the wonderlode that had happened in the londe) God left hym * to be tempted, that it might be knowē whatsoeuer was in his harte.

What more ther is to saye of Ezechias, and of his mercyfulnes, beholde, it is wryten in the vysyon of the prophete Esay the sonne of Amos, and in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Jsrael. And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym ouer the sepulcres of the children of Dauid, and all Juda and they of Jerusalem dyd him worshyppe in his death. Manasses his sonne was kynge in ỹ steade.

The.xxxiii.Chapter.

Manasses was twelue yeare olde whā he was made kynge and raygned fyue and fyfty yeare at Jerusalē, and dyd ỹ which was euell in the syghte of the LORDE (euen after the abhominacions of the Heythen, whome the LORDE expelled fore ỹ children of Jsrael) and turned backe, and buylded the hye places, (* which his father Ezechias had broken downe) and set vp altares vnto Baalim, & made grouē, and worshypped all the hoost of heauē, and serued them. He buylded altares also in the LORDES house, wherof the LORD had sayde * At Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And vnto all the hoost of heauē buylded he altares in both the courtes in the house of the LORDE. And in the valley of the sonne of Hennon caused he his owne sones to go thorowe the fyre, and chose dayes, and regarded by dyscryenge, and witches, & hanted soothsayers and expounders of tokens, and dyd much that was euell in the syghte of the LORDE to prouoke hym vnto wrath.

Carued ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) set he vp in Gods house wherof the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: In this house at Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Jsrael, wyl I set my name for euer, and wyll nomore let the foote of Jsrael remoue from the loude that I appointed for theyr fathers, so farre as they take hede to do all that I haue cōmaunded them in all the lawe, statutes & ordinaunces by Moses. But Manasses deceaued Juda and the of Jerusalē so that they dyd worse then the Heythen, whome the LORDE destroyed before the chyldren of Israell. And ỹ LORD spake vnto Manasses and his people, and they regarded it not.

Therfore dyd the LORDE cause the rulers of the hoost of ỹ kyng of Assur to come vpon them, whichtoke Manasses presoner with bōdes, and bounde him with cheynes, and broughte hym vnto Babylon. * And whā he was in trouble, he made intercessiō before the LORDE his God, and humbled hymselfe greately before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besought hym. Thē herde he his prayer, & brought him agayne to Jerusalem to his kyngdome. And Manasses knewe that the LORDE is God.

Afterwarde buylded he ỹ vttemost wall of the cytye of Dauid, on the westsyde of Gihon by the broke, and at the intraunce of ỹ Fyshgate, & rounde aboute * Ophell, and made it very hye. And layed captaynes in the stronge cytyes of Juda, and put awaye the straunge goddes and Idols out of the house of the LORDE, & all the altares which he had buylded vpon the mount of ỹ house of the LORDE, and in Jerusalem, and caste thē out of the cytye, and buylded the altare of the LORDE, and offred slayne offerynges and thankofferynges theron, and cōmaunded Juda, that they shulde serue the LORD God of Israell. Neuertheless though the people offred vnto the LORDE their God, yet offred they vpon the hye places.

What more ther is to saye of Manasses and of his prayer to his God, and the wordes of ỹ Seyers that spake vnto hym in ỹ name of the LORD God of Israell, behold, they are amonge the actes of the kinges of Israell. And his prayer and intercessyon, & all his synne and offence, and the rowmes wherin he buylded the hye places & groues and founded ydols, afore he humbled hym selfe, beholde, they are wrytten among the actes of the Seyers. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed him in his house. And Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twentye yeare olde was Amō whan he was made kynge, & raygned two yeare at Jerusalē, and dyd euel in the sight of the LORDE, as Manasses his father had done. And Amon offred vnto all the Idols that his father Manasses had made, & serued them. Yet dyd not he humble hymselfe before the LORDE, as Manasse his father had submytted himselfe: but Amon trespassed euer more and more. And his seruaūtes conspyred agaynst hym, and slewe hym in his house. Then smote the people in ỹ lōde all them that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in the londe made Josias his sonne kyng in his steade.

The. xxxiiii. Chapter.

IOsias * was eyght yeare olde whā he was made kynge, and raygned one and thyrtye yeare at Jerusalē, & dyd that whiche was right in the sight of ỹ LORDE, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, nother to the ryghte hande nor to the lefte. For in ỹ eyght yeare of his raygne whan he was yet but a chylde, he beganne to seke the God of his father Dauid: and in the twolueth yeare beganne he to clense Juda and Jerusalem from ỹ hye places, and groues, and carued Idols, and molten ymages: and caused the altares of Baalim to be broken downe before hym, and the ymages that were theron hewed he downe. And the groues, and carued Idols, and molten ymages brake he in peces, and made thē to dust, and scattered it vpon the graues of them that had offred vnto thē. And the bones of the prestes brent he vpon the altares, and so clesed he Juda and Jerusalem, and in the cytyes of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon, and vnto Nephtali in their wyldernesses on euery syde. And whan he had broken downe the altares and groues, and smytten the Idols in peces, and hewed downe all the ymages in all the londe of Israell, he came agayne to Jerusalem.

* In the eyghteenth yeare of his raygne whan he had clensed ỹ londe and the house, he sent Saphan the sonne of Asalia & Maaseia the Shreue of the cytye, and Joath the sonne of Joahas the Chaūceler, to repayre the house of the LORD his God. And they came to Helchias the hye preste, & ther was delyuered vnto them: the moneye that was brought vnto the house vp God, which the Leuites (that kepte the tresholdes) had gathered, of Manasses, Ephraim, and of all ỹ residue in Israell, and of all Juda & Ben-Jamin, and of them that dwelt at Jerusalem, and they delyuered it vnto the handes of the workmen in the house of the LORDE, and gaue it vnto those that wroughte in ỹ house of the LORDE, where it was in decaye that they shulde repayre it. And the same gaue it forth vnto the carpenters and buylders, to bye fre stone and hewen tymber for the balkes in the houses, which the kynges had destroyed. And the men laboured faithfully in the worke.

C And ouer them were ordeyned, Jahath and Obadia the Leuites of the chyldren of Merari, Zachary and Mesullam of ỹ chyldren of the Kahathites, to further ỹ worke, and they were all Leuites that coulde play vpon instrumentes. But ouer them ỹ bare burthes and furthered all maner of worke in al the offices, there were scrybes, officers and doorekepers of ỹ Leuites. And whā they toke out the money that was brought vnto the house of the LORDE, Helchias the prest founde the boke of the lawe of the LORDE geuen by Moses. And Helchias answered, 4.Mo 22.b and sayde vnto Saphan the Scrybe: * I haue founde the boke of the law in ỹ house of the LORDE. And Helchias delyuered the boke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, & brought the kynge word agayne, and sayde: All that was geuen vnder the handes of thy seruaūtes, that make they: and the money that was founde in the house of the LORDE, haue they gathered together, and delyuered it vnto the officers, & to the workmen. And Saphan the Scrybe tolde the kynge, and sayde: Helchias ỹ prest hath delyuered me a boke.

D And Saphan red therin before ỹ kynge And whan the kynge herde the wordes of ỹ lawe, he rente his clothes. And the kyng cōmaunded Helchias and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, and Saphan the Scrybe, and Asaia the kynges seruaunt, and sayde: Go youre waye, aske councell at the LORDE for me and for the remnaunt in Israel, and for Juda, cōcernyng these wordes of ỹ boke ỹ is foūde. For great is the indignacyon of the LODRE that is gone forth ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of the LORDE, to do accordynge as it is wrytte in this boke. Then went Helchias (with the other that were sent from the kynge) vnto the prophetisse Hulda the wyfe of Sallum ỹ sōne of Thecoath the sonne of Hasra the keper of the clothes, which dwelte at Jerusalē on the other syde, & they spake this vnto her.

E And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: Tell the man ỹ sent you vnto me, Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde I wyll brynge plages vpon this place and the inhabiters therof, euen all ỹ curses whiche are wrytten in the boke, that was red before the kynge of Juda: because they haue forsaken me, and brent incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me with all the workes of theyr hādes. And myn indignacyon shall go forth vpon this cyte, & shall not be quenched,

And after this maner shall ye saye vnto the kynge of Juda, that sent you to aske counsell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel cōcernynge the wordes that thou hast herde: Because thyne harte is moued, and because thou hast hūbled thyselfe in the sight of God, whan thou herdest his wordes agaynst this place, and the inhabiters therof, and hast submytted thyselfe before me, and rent thy clothes, and wepte before me, therfore haue I herde ỹ, sayeth the LORDE. Beholde, I wyll gather the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be layed in thy graue with peace, so that thyne eyes shall not se all the euell that I wyll brynge ouer this place and the indwellers therof. And they brought the kynge worde agayne.

* Thē sent the kynge, and caused all the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kynge went vp into the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Juda & inhabiters of Jerusalē, the prestes, the Leuites, and all the people both small and great: and all the wordes in the boke of the couenaunt that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in theyr eares. And the kynge stode in his place, and made a couenaunt before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, to kepe his cōmaundemētes, his testimonies, and his statutes with all theyr harte and with all theyr soule, to do accordynge vnto all the wordes of the couenaunt that are wrytten in this boke.

And there stode all they that were found at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And the inhabiters of Jerusalem dyd accordyng to ỹ cōuenaūt of God ỹ God of theyr fathers. And Josias put away all ỹ abhominacyons out of all the londes that were the chyldren of Israell, and caused all them that were founde in Israell, to serue the LORDE theyr God. * As longe as Josias lyued, departed they not from the LORDE the God of theyr fathers.

The.xxxv.Chapter.

AND * Josias kepte Passeouer vnto the LORDE at Jerusalē, and slewe the Passeouer on the fourtenth daye of the fyrst moneth, & set the prestes in their offices, and strengthed thē to theyr ministracyon in the house of the LORDE, and spake vnto the Leuites that taught in all Israel, and were ſanctified vnto the LORDE: Put the holy Arke in the houſe that Salomon ꝑ ſone of Dauid kyng of Iſrael dyd buyld. a ye ſhall beare it nomore vpon youre ſhulders. Se that ye ſerue now the LORDE youre God, and his people of Iſraell, and prepare the houſe of youre fathers in your courſes, as it was appoynted by Dauid the kynge of Iſrael, and by Salomon his ſonne: and ſtonde in the Sanctuarye after the courſe of the fathers houſes amonge youre brethren the chyldren of the people. And after the courſe of the fathers houſes amonge the Leuites, and kyll Paſſeouer, ſanctifye and prepare youre brethrẽ, ꝑ they maye do accordynge to the worde of ꝑ LORDE by Moſes.

b And Joſias gaue lãbes and yonge kydes which were males, to ꝑ heaueofferynge for the comunety (all to the Paſſeouer for euery one that was founde) in the nombre thyrtye thouſande, and thre thouſande oxẽ, all of the kynges good. And his prynces of theyr owne good wyl gaue to the heaueofferynge for the people, and for the prieſtes & Leuites (namely, Helchias, Zacharye and Jehiell the prynces in the houſe of God amonge the prieſtes) for the Paſſeouer, two thouſande and fire hundreth: and thre hundreth oxen. But Chanania, Semaia, Nathaneel and his brethren, Gaſabia, Jeiel & Joſabad the cheke of the Leuites, gaue the Leuites to the heaueofferyng for the Paſſeouer, fyue thouſande ſhepe, and fyue hundreth oxen.

Thus was the Gods ſeruyce prepared, and the prieſtes ſtode in theyr place, and the Leuites in theyr courſes accordynge to the kynges commaundement. And they kylled the Paſſeouer, & the prieſtes toke it of theyr handes, and ſprenkled it: and the Leuites toke the ſkynnes of them, and remoued the burntofferinge ther from, to geue it amõge the partyons of the fathers houſes in the multitudes of theyr congregacyon to offre vnto the LORDE, * as it is wrytten in the boke of Moſes. Euen ſo dyd they with the oxen alſo. And they dreſſed the Paſſeouer at the fyre accordynge to the lawe. And ſuch ſpyche was halowed, dreſſed they in pottes, kettels, and pãnes, and made haſte to the comune people. Afterwarde prepared they for them ſelues alſo and for ꝑ prieſtes: For the prieſtes the chyldren of Aaron were occupyed in the burntofferynges and fat vntyll the nyght. Therfore muſt the Leuites prepare for them ſelues and for ꝑ prieſtes the chyldren of Aaron.

And the ſyngers the chyldren of Aſaph c ſtode in theyr place (accordyng to * Dauids 1 pa.26.27 commaundement) and Aſaph and Heman, and Jeduthun the kynges Seyer, and the porters at al the gates. And they departed not from theyr office. For the Leuites theyr brethren prepared for them. Thus was all the Gods ſeruice prepared the ſame daye, that the Paſſeouer myght be kept, and the burntſacrifices offred vpon the altare of ꝑ LORDE, accordyng to the commaundemẽt of kynge Joſias.

So the chyldren of Iſraell that were at hande, helde Paſſeouer at that tyme, and ꝑ feaſt of vnleuended bread, ſeuen dayes. Sence the tyme of Samuel the prophet, was no Paſſeouer kept in Iſrael lyke this: and no kynge in Iſrael had holden ſuche a Paſſeouer as Joſias dyd, and the prieſtes, Leuites, all Juda, and ſuch as were fouñde of Iſrael, and the inhabiters of Jeruſalẽ. In the eyghteth yeare of the raygne of Joſias was this Paſſouer kepte.

After this, whan Joſias had prepared d the houſe, Necho the kyng of Egipte went vp to fyght agaynſt Carcamis beſyde Euphrates. And Joſias wente forth agaynſt hym. But he ſent meſſaungers vnto hym, ſayenge: What haue I to do with the e kynge of Juda? I am not come now agaynſt the, but I fyghte agaynſt another houſe: & God hath ſayde, that I ſhall make haſte. Ceaſſe frõ God which is with me, ꝑ he deſtroye the not. Neuertheleſſe Joſias turned not his face from hym, but prepared hymſelfe to fyght with hym, and herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght with him vpon the playne beſyde Mageddo. But the archers ſhot at kynge Joſias. And the kynge ſayd vnto his ſeruauntes: Cary me awaye, for I am ſore wounded. And his ſeruauntes toke hym frõ the charret, & caryed hym vpon his ſecond charret, and brought hym to Jeruſalem. And he dyed, and was buryed amonge the ſepulcres of his fathers.

And all Juda and Jeruſalem mourned for Joſias, and Jeremy bewayled Joſias, and all the ſyngynge men & wemen, ſpake theyr lamẽtacyons ouer Joſias vnto this daye, and made a coſtume therof vnto this daye. Beholde, it is wrytten alſo amonge the lamentacyons. What more ther is to ſaye of Joſias, and his merry accordyng to the ſcripture in the lawe of the LORDE, and of his actes (both fyrst and last) behold it is wrytte in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

4.Re.23.f. 2.Esd.1.d.
And * the people of ỹ lāde toke Joahas the sonne of Josias, & made hym kyng in his fathers steade at Jerusalem. Thre and twenty yeare olde was Joahas whan he was made kynge, & raygned thre monethes at Jerusalem. For the kynge of Egipte deposed hym at Jerusalem, and cō demned the lande in an hundreth talentes of syluer, and one talent of golde. And the kynge of Egipte made Eliachim his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem, and turned his name Joachim. But Necho toke his brother Joahas, and caryed hym into Egipte.

Fyue and twentye yeare olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, & raygned eleuē yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd ỹ which was euell in the syght of the LORDE his 4.Re.24.a God. * And Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon went vp agaynst hym, and boūde hym with cheynes, to carye hym vnto Babilon. And Nabuchodonosor brought certayne vessels of the house of the LORDE vnto Babilon, and put them in his temple at Babilon. What more ther is to saye of Joachim, & of his abhominacyons which he dyd, & that were founde in hym, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel & Juda. And Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Eyght yeare olde was Joachym whan he was made kynge, and raygned thre monethes and ten dayes at Jerusalem, & dyd that which was euel in the syght of ỹ LORDE. But whan the yeare came about, Nabuchodonosor sent thyther, and caused him be fetched vnto Babilon with ỹ costly vessels and Jewels of the house of the LORDE, and made Zedechias his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

4.Re.24.b
* One and twentye yeare olde was Zedechias whan he was made kynge, & raygned eleuen yeare at Jerusalē, and dyd that which was euel in the syght of the LORDE his God, and submytted not hymself before the face of ỹ prophet Jeremy, which spake out of the mouth of the LORDE. He fell awaye also from Nabuchodonosor ỹ kynge of Babilon (which had taken an oth of hym by God) and was stiffnecked, and hardened his hart that he shulde not conuerte vnto ỹ LORDE God of Israel. And all the chefe amonge the prestes, and the people, multiplied theyr synnes, accordynge to all the abhominacyons of the Heythen, and defyled the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem.

* And the LORDE God of theyr fathers sent vnto them early by his messaungers (for he spared his people & his habitacyon) but they laughed the messāgers of God to scorne, and despysed his wordes, & had his prophetes in derision, so longe tyll ỹ indignacion of the LORDE increased ouer his people, and ther was no remedye of healynge.

* For he brought the kynge of the Caldees vpon them, and caused for to slaye all theyr yonge men with the sweard in the house of theyr Sanctuary, and spared nother yōg man nor virgin, nother aged nor grandfather, but gaue them all in to his hande. And all the vessels in ỹ house of God, great and small, the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and the treasures of the kynge and of his prynces, all this caused he to be caried vnto Babilō. And they burnt ỹ house of God, and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, and al the palaces ther of burnt they with fyre, so that all the costly ornamentes of it were destroyed.

And loke who escaped the sweard, him caryed he away vnto Babilon, and they became his seruauntes, and the seruauntes of his sonnes, tyl the Persians had ỹ empyre.

* that the worde of the LORDE by the mouth of Jeremy myght be perfourned, euen tyll the lande had ynough of hir Sabbathes: for all the tyme of the desolacyon had it Sabbath, vntyl the seuenty yeares were fulfylled.

* But in the fyrst yeare of Cirus ỹ kyng of Persia (that the worde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myght be fulfylled) the LORDE raysed vp the spirite of Cyrus the kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclamed thorow out all his empyre and by writynge also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyrus the kyng of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath geue me al ỹ kyngdomes in the lande, and hath commaunded me to buylde hym an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Who so euer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with hym, and let hym go vp.

Who ſo euer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with hym, and let him go vp to Jeruſalem in Juda, and buylde the houſe of the LORDE God of Iſrael. Then gat vp the pryncipall fathers of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the preſtes and Leuites, and al they whoſe ſpyrite God had rayſed to go vp, and to buylde the houſe of the LORDE at Jeruſalē. And all they that were aboute them, ſtrengthed theyr hande with veſſels of ſyluer and golde, with good and cattel, and Jewels, beſydes that which they gaue of theyr owne frewyl. And kyng Cyrus brought forth the veſſels of ỹ LORDES houſe, *which Nabuchodonoſor had taken out of Jeruſalē, and put in his gods houſe. But Cyrus the kynge of Perſia brought them forth by Mithredath ỹ treaſurer, and nombred them vnto Seſpazar the prince of Juda. And this is the nombze of them: thyrtye baſens of golde, & a thouſande baſens of ſyluer, and nyne and twentye knyues, thyrtye cuppes of golde, and of other ſyluer cuppes foure hūdreth and ten, and of other veſſels a thouſande. So that all the veſſels both of gold and ſyluer, were fyue thouſande and foure hundreth. The.iii. Chapter.

AND * whā the seuenth moneth came, & the chyldren of Israel were now in their cyties, the people came together euē as one mā, vnto Jerusalem. And ther stode vp Jesua the sonne of Josedec & his brethren the prestes, and Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel and his brethre, & bupl ded the altare of the God of Israel, to offer burntofferynges theron, as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses the mā of God, and the altare set they vpon his sokettes (for ther was a fearfulnes amonge them because of the nacyōs and landes) and offred burntof ferynges theron vnto the LORDE * in ỹ mor nynge and at euen. And helde the feast of Tabernacles * as it is wrytten, and offred burntsacrifices dayly after the nombre as accordynge was, euery daye his sacrifice.
Hereward the dayly burntofferynges also,
and of the new Moones and of al the feast
dayes of the LORDE that were halowed, & all maner of free wyllyng offerynges, which they dyd of their owne free wyll vnto the LORDE.

* Vpon the fyrst daye of the seuenth mo
neth beganne they to offer burntsacrifices vnto the LORDE. But the fundacyon of the temple of the LORDE was not yet layed.
Neuertheiesse they gaue money vnto ỹ ma sons and carpēters, and meate and drynke
and oyle vnto them of Zidon and of Tire, to bringe thē Cedre tymbre from Libanus
by see vnto Joppa, accordynge to the cō
maūdement of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yeare of their comminge vnto the house of God at Jerusalem in the second moneth, beganne Zorobabel ỹ sōne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Jose dec, and the remnaunt of their brethren the prestes and Leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuite vnto Jerusalem, and appoynted the Leuites from twentye yeare olde and aboue, to se that the worke of the house of the LORDE went forwarde.
And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiel with his sōnes, and the chyldren of Juda, to further the workmen of the house of God, namely the chyldren of Henadad with their chyldren and their brethren the Leuites.

And whan the buylders layed the fun- C dacyon of the temple of the LORDE, the prestes stode in their araye, with trompettes.
And the Leuites the chyldren of Asaph wt cymbales, to prayse the LORDE * with the 1.Par.17.b dytie of Dauid kynge of Israel. And they sange together, geuynge prayse and thank-es vnto ỹ LORDE, because he is gracyous, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israell. And all the people shouted loude in praysynge the LORDE, because the fundacyon of the house of the LORDE was layed. Neuertheiesse many of the olde prestes & Leuites and aūcyent fathers, which had sene the house afore in his fundacion,
and this was now before their eyes, wepte loude. But many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a great sounde, in so muche that the people could not knowe the ioyful sounde for the noyse of the weyynge in the people: for the people shouted loude, so that the noyse was herde farre of.

The.iiii. Chapter.

BUt * whan the aduersaries of I Juda and Ben Jamin herde, 3.Esd.5.g.
that the chyldren of the captyuite buylded the temple vnto
the LORD God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel and to the pryncipal fa thers, and said vnto them: We wyl buylde with you: for we seke the LORDE your God lyke as you do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto him, * sence ỹ tyme ỹ Assar Hadon the 4.Re.17.a kynge of Assur brought vs vp hyther. But Zorobabel and Jesua & the other auncient fathers of Israel, answered them: It is not mete for vs and you to buylde the house of our God, but we wyl buyld alone vnto ỹ LORDE God of Israel, * as Cyrus ỹ kynge 1.Esd.1.a of Persia hath commaunded vs.

Then the folke of the lande hyndered the people of Juda, and made them afrayed to buylde, and hyred counselers against them and hyndered theyr deuyse, as longe as Cy rus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntyll the raygne of Darius kynge of Persia. But whan Ihasuerus was kynge, in the begyn
nynge of his raygne wrote they vnto hym
a complaynte agaynst the of Juda and Je rusalem.

B And in the tyme of Artarerses, wrote Bi sellam, Mithridath, Tabeell and the other of theyr counsell vnto Artarerses the kyng of Persia. But the scripture of ỹ letter was wrytten in the Syrias speche, and was interpretated in the langage of the Syrians.
Rehum the chaunceler, & Simsai ỹ scrybe, wrote this letter agaynst Jerusalem to Artarerses the kynge:

We Rehum the chaūceler, and Simsai
the scribe, & other of the coūsell of Dina, of Aphatsath, of Tarpiat, of Persia, of Arach of Babilon, of Susan, of Deha, and of, Elā 4.Re.17.a and other of the people * whom the great & noble Asnaphar brought ouer, and set in ỹ cyties of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Canaan. And this is the sūme of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artarerses.

C Thy seruauntes the men on this syde ỹ water and in Canaan. Be it knowē vnto ỹ kynge, that the Jewes which are come vp from the to vs vnto Jerusalē in to that sedi cious & wicked cytie, buyld ỹ same, & make vp the walles of it, & bynge it out of ỹ fun dacion. Be it knowē now therfore vnto the kynge, ỹ yf this cytie be buylded & ỹ walles made vp agayne, thē shal not they geue try bute, tol, and yearly costume, and theyr deuyse shall do the kynge harme. But now ỹ
we all are therby which destroyed the temple, we wold no longer se the kynges disho nour. Therfore sent we out, and caused the kynge to be certified therof: That it maye be sought in the Cronicles of thy progeni-tours, and so shalte thou fynde in the same Cronicles, and perceaue, that this cytie is seditious & noysome vnto kynges and lon
des, and that they cause other also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cy tie destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kyng, that yf this cytie be buylded, and the walles therof made vp, thou shalte kepe nothynge on this syde the water by reason of it.

D Then sent the kynge an answere vnto
Rehum the chaūceler, and Simsai ỹ scrybe and to the other of theyr counsel that dwell in Samaria, & vnto the other beyonde the water. Peace and salutacyon. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath ben openly re
before me, & I commaūded to make search:
and it is founde, that this cytie of olde hath made insurrecyon agaynst kynges, & hath that vprour and rebellion hath bene com-mytted therin. Ther haue bene myghty kinges also at Jerusalem, which haue rained ouer all that is beyonde the water, and toll, trybute and yearly costume was gey vnto them. Do ye now after this commaū dement, forbyd the same men, that the cyte be not buylded, tyll I haue geuen commaū dement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent herin, lesse ỹ kyng haue harme ther thorow.

Now whan kynge Artarerses letter was red before Rehum the chaunceler and Simsai the scrybe and theyr counsell, they went vp in all the haist to Jerusalem vnto
the Jewes, and forbad them with the arme and auctorite. Thē ceassed the worke of the house of God at Jerusalem, and continued
so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius kyng of Persia.

The.v.Chapter.

THe * prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary the sonne of Jdo, 1.Es.5.a prophecied vnto the Jewes ỹ
were in Juda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. * Then gat vp Zorobabell the sonne of Salathtel, and Jesua the sonne of Jo-dec, and beganne to buylde ỹ house of God
at Jerusalem, and with thē the prophets of God which strēgthed them. At the same tyme came to them Thathnai the debite in this syde the water, and Sethar of Bosai,
and theyr counselers, and sayde thus vnto them: Who cōmaunded you to buylde this house, and to make vp the walles therof?
Then tolde we them the names of the me, that made this buyldynge. But the eye of they God came vpon the Elders of ỹ Je-wes, that they were not inhybite, tyll ỹ matter was brought before Darius, & tyll then came a wrytynge therof agayne.

This is the sūme of ỹ letter that Thath nai the debite on this syde the water, & Se thar of Bosai, and theyr counselers of Apharsath (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kynge Darius. And these are the wordes that they sent vnto hym: Vnto Darius the kynge, all peace. Be it knowē

vnto the kynge, that we came in to Jewry to the house of ỳ greate God, which is buyld ded with all maner of stone, & balckes are layed in the walles, and ỳ worke goeth fast forth, & prospereth in theyr handes. Neuertheles we axed the Elders and sayde vnto them: Who hath cõmaunded you to buyld this house, and to make vp ỳ walles therof? We axed theyr names also, ỳ we myght certifye the, and haue wrytten the names of the men that were theyr rulers.

But they answered vs with these wordes, and sayde: We are the seruauntes of ỳ God of heauen and earth, and buylde the house that was buylded many yeates ago, which a greate kynge of Jsraell buylded and set vp. Howbeit whan our fathers prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, * he gaue them ouer in & the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon the Caldee, which brake downe this house, and caryed the people awaye vnto Babylon.

C * Neuertheles in the fyrst yeare of Cyrus the kynge of Babylon, the same kynge Cyrus cõmaunded to buylde this house of God: for the vessels of golde and the syluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Jerusalẽ, and brought them in to the temple at Babylon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of the temple at Babylon, * and delyuered them vnto Sesbazar by name, whome he made Debite, & sayde vnto hym: Take these vessels, go thy way and bryngе them vnto the temple at Jerusalem, and let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came ỳ same Sesbazar, and layed the fundacion of the house of God at Jerusalem. Sence that tyme hath it ben in buyldyng, and yet is it not fynyshed. ỳf it please ỳ kynge now let ther be searche made in the kynges treasure house which is at Babilon, whether it haue ben kynge Cyrus cõmaũdement, that the house of God at Jerusalẽ shuld be buylded: and sende vs the kynges mynde cõcernynge the same.

The.vi. Chapter.

Then * cõmaunded kynge Darius, that search shulde be made in the library of the kynges treasure house, whiche laye at Babylon. So at Egbathanis in a castell that lyeth in the londe of ỳ Medes, ther was founde a boke, and in it was ther an acte wrytten after this maner: In ỳ fyrst yeare of kynge Cyrus, cõmaunded the same kynge Cyrus to buylde the house of God at Jerusalem, in the place where the sacrifyce is made, and to laye the fundacyon to beare thre score cubites height, and thre score cubytes bredth, and thre walles of all maner of stones, and one wall of tym tymber, and the expences shalbe geuen of the kynges house. And the golden and syluer vessell of the house of God (which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought vnto Babylon) shall be restored agayne, ỳ they maye be brought vnto the temple at Jerusalẽ to theyr place in to the house of God.

Get you farre from them therfore, thou Thathnai Debyte beyonde the water, and Sethar of Bosen, & your counselers which are beyonde the water. Let them worke in the house of God, that the Debyte of the Jewes and theyre elders maye buylde the house of God in his place. J haue cõmaunded also, what shalbe done to the Elders of Juda for ỳ buyldynge of the house of God, that ther shall dylygently be taken of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyõde the water, and geuen vnto the men, & that they be not hyndered. B

And yf they haue nede of calues, lãbes, or goates for the burntofferynge vnto the God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne & oyle, after ỳ costume of the prestes at Jerusalẽ, ther shalbe geuen them daylye as is accordynge: and se that this be not done neglygently, that they may offre swete sauoures vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his chyldren. This cõmaũdement haue J geuen. And what man so euer he be ỳ altereth these wordes, ther shall a balke be taken from his house, and set vp, and he shalbe hanged theron, & hys house shalbe prysed for the dede doynge.

But the God that dwelleth in heauen, C destroye all kynges and people, that put to theyr hande to altere and to breake downe the house of God at Jerusalem. J Darius haue cõmaunded ỳ this be dilygẽtly done.

Then Thathnai the Debyte beyonde ỳ water, and Setharof Bosen with their coũselers (to whome kynge Darius had sente) dyd theyr dyligence. And the Elders of the Jewes builded, and they prospered thorow the prophecyenge of Aggeus the prophet & Zacharye the sonne of Jddo: and they buylded, and set vp the worke, accordyng to the cõmaundement of the God of Jsraell, and after the cõmaũdemẽt of Cyrus, Darius & Artaxerses kynges of Persia. And they per-fourmed the house vnto the thyrde daye of the moneth Adar, that was the sixte yeare of the raygne of kynge Darius.

2.par.7.a * And the chyldren of Israell, the prestes, the Leuites, and the other chyldren of the captyuite helde ỹ dedicacyon of ỹ house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedicacyon of the house of God, an hundreth calues, two hundreth lambes, foure hundreth goates: and for the synofferynge for all Israell, twolue hegoates, accordynge to the nombre of the trybes of Israell, and set the prestes in theyr courses, and the Leuites in theyr offices, to mynister vnto God whiche is at Ierusalem, as it is wrytte in the boke of Moses.

And the chyldren of the captyuite helde Passeouer vpon the fourtenth daye of the fyrst moneth: for the prestes & Leuites had purifyed themselues, so that they were all cleane as one man, and kylled Passeouer for all the chyldren of the captiuyte, and for theyr brethren the prestes, and for themselues. And the chyldrē of Israell which were come agayne out of captiuite, and all such as had separated themselues vnto thē frō the fylthynesse of the heythē in the lōde to seke the LORD God of Israel: dyd eate and helde the feast of vnleuended breade seuen dayes with ioye: for the LORDE had made them glad, and turned the harte of ỹ kynge of Assur vnto thē, so that theyr hādes were strēgthed in the worke of the house of God which is the God of Israell.

The.vii.Chapter.

1.Esd.8.a After * these actes in the raygne of Artarerses kynge of Perisa, ther wente vp from Babylon, Esdras the sonne of Serata, ỹ sonne of Asaria, ỹ sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Sallū, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amaria, ỹ sōne of Asaria, the sōne of Meraioth, ỹ sonne of Serahia, ỹ sonne of Vsi, ỹ sonne of Buki, the sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phineas, ỹ sonne of Eleasar, ỹ sōne of Aaron ỹ chefe prest, which was a quicke scrybe

Esa.30.a in the lawe of Moses, * which the LORDE God of Israell dyd geue. And the kynge gaue hym all that he requyred, accordynge to the hande of the LORD his God vpō him.

And ther wente vp certayne of the chyldren of Israel, and of the prestes, and of the Leuites, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Nethinims vnto Ierusalem, in the seuēth yeare of kynge Artarerses. And they came to Ierusalē in the fyfth moneth, that is the seuenth yeare of the kynge. For vpon the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth, dewyld he to go vp from Babylon: and on ỹ fyrst daye of the fyfth moneth came he to Ierusalem, accordynge to the good hāde of God vpon hym: For Esdras prepared his harte to seke the lawe of the LORDE, and to do it, and to teache the precepte and iudgement in Israell.

And this is the summe of the letter, that ỹ kynge Artarerses gaue vnto Esdras the prest, the scrybe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LORDE and of his statutes ouer Israell. Vnto Esdras the prest & scrybe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutacyon. I haue cōmaūded that all they of the people of Israel, and of the prestes & Leuites in my realme which are minded of theyr owne good wyll to go vp to Ierusalē, that they go wt the, beynge sent of ỹ kynge and of the seuē lordes of the counsell, to vyset Juda and Ierusalem, accordynge to the lawe of God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shuldest take with the, syluer and golde, which ỹ kynge and the lordes of his counsell geue of theyr owne good wyll vnto the God of Israell (whose habitacyon is at Ierusalem) and all the syluer and golde that thou canst fynde in al the contre of Babylon: with it that the people and prestes geue of theyr owne good wyll vnto ỹ house of God at Ierusalem.

Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, calues, lambes, goates, and meatofferynges and drynkofferynges, to be offered vpon the altare of ỹ house of your God at Ierusalē. And loke what lyketh the & thy brethrē to do wt the remnāt of ỹ money, ỹ do after the wyl of your God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the ministracyon in the house of thy God, thou delyuer thou before God at Ierusalem.

And what soeuer thynge more shalbe defull for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, let the same be geuen out of the kynges chamber. I kynge Artarerses haue cōmaunded all the treasurers beyonde the water, that loke what soeuer Esdras the prest and scrybe in the lawe of the God of heauē, requyreth of you, that ye fulfyll the same dilygently, vntyll an hundreth talentes of syluer, and tyll an hundreth quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundreth battes of wyne, and tyll an hundreth bates of oyle, & salt without measure. What so euer belongeth to the lawe of the God heauen, let the same be done with diligence for the house of the God of heauen, that ther come no wrath vpon the kynges realme and his chyldren.

D And knowne be it vnto you, that ye shal haue no auctorite to requyre tarynge and costume, and yearly rentes vpon ony of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Nethinims and ministers in ỹ house of this God. But thou Esdras (after the wysedom of thy God that is in thy hande) set thou iudges & arbiters, to iudge all the people that is beyonde Iordane, euen all such as know the lawe of thy God: and thé that know it not, those le that ye teach. And whso euer wyll not dilygently fulfyll the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, shall haue his iudgement for the dede, whether it be vnto death, or to be banished, or to be condéned in good or to be put in prison.

Prayse d be the LORDE God of oure fathers, whiche so hath ensyred the kynges harte to garnyshe the house of God at Ierusalem: and hath enclyned his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kynge, and his counsellers, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was conforted (according to the hande of the LORDE my God ouer me) and so gathered I the heades of Israell to gether, that they myght go vp with me.

The.viii.Chapter.

I Esd.1. THese are * the heades of their fathers ỹ were named, whiche went vp with me from Babylon, what tyme as kyng Artaxerses raygned. Of ỹ chyldré of Phinees, Gersō: of ỹ chyldré of Ithamar, Daniel: of ỹ childré of Dauid, Hattus: of ỹ chyldren of Pareos, Zachary, & the mé chyldren nombred with hym, an hundreth and fyftye: Of the chyldren of Pahath Moab, Elioenai the sonne of Serahia, and with hym two hundreth men chyldren.

Of the chyldren of Sechania, the sonne of Jehasiell, and with hym thre hundreth men chyldré. Of the children of Adin Ebed, the sonne of Jonathan, and with hym fyfty men children. Of the chyldren of Elam, Jesaia the sonne of Athalia, and with hym seuentye men chyldren. Of the chyldré of Sephatia, Sebadia the sonne of Michaell, & with hym foure score men chyldren.

Of the chyldren of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with him two hundreth and eyghtene men chyldren. Of the chyldré of Selomith, the sonne of Josiphia, and with hym an hundreth and thre score mé childré.

Of the chyldren of Bebai, Zachary the B
sonne of Bebai, and with hym eyght & twe tye men chyldren. Of the chyldré of Isgad, Johanan the yongest sonne, and with hym an hundreth and ten men chyldren. Of the last chyldren of Adonicam, and these were their names: Eliphelet, Jeiell & Semaia, and with them thre score men chyldren. Of the chyldré of Bigenai, Uthai and Sabud and with them seuen men chyldren. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth to ward Aheua, and there abode we thre dayes.

And whan I loked amonge the people and the prestes, I founde no Leuites there. Then sent I Eliezer, Ariel, Semaia, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathe, Zacharye and Mesullam the rulers, and Joiarib and Elnathan the teachers: and those sent I vnto Iddo the chefeste at Casiphia, that they shulde fetche vs mynysters for the house of oure God, & I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo and to his brethren the Nethinims at Casiphia.

And (according to the good hande of C oure God vpō vs) they brought vs a wyse mā frō amonge the chyldren of Maheli the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israell, euē Serebia with his sonnes and brethren, eyghtene. And Hasabia, and with him Jesaia of the chyldren of Merari, with his brethren and their sonnes, twentye. And of the Nethinims, whome Dauid and the princes gaue to mynistre vnto the Leuites, two hūdreth and twentye, all named by name.

*And euen there at the water beside Ahe- 3. Esd. 8. b ua, caused I a fastynge to be proclamed, ỹ we myght humble oure selues before oure God, to seke of hym a ryghte waye for vs, & oure chyldren and all oure substaunce. For I was ashamed to requyre of ỹ kynge, soudyers and horsmen, to helpe vs against the enemye in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of our God is for the best vpon all them that seke hym, and his violence and wrath vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and sought this at oure God, and he herde vs.

And I toke out twolue of the chefe prē- D tes, Serebia and Hasabia, and ten of their brethré wt thé, and weyed thé there ỹ syluer & golde and vessels for the heaueofferyng vnto the house of our God, which ỹ kynge, and the lordes of his counsell and princes, and all Israell that were at hande, had geuen to the heaueofferyng: and there weyed them vnder theyr hande fyre hundreth & fyfty talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessell an hundreth talentes, and in golde an hundreth talentes, twenty cuppes of golde of a thousande guldens, and two costly ornamentes of good brasse, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: ye are holy vnto the LORDE, therfore are the vessels holy also, & so is the syluer and golde that is geuen of a good wyll vnto the LORDE God of oure fathers: Watche ye therfore and kepe it, tyll ye wepe it downe before ỹ chefe prestes and Leuites, and awncyent fathers of Israell at Jerusalem in the chestes of the house of the LORDE. Then toke the prestes and Leuites the weyed syluer and golde and vessell, to bryngе it to Jerusalē vnto the house of oure God.

B So we brake vp, from the water of Ahena on the twolueth daye on ỹ fyrst moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hāde of oure God was vpon vs, and delyuered vs from the hande of the enemyes and preuye waytynges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on ỹ fourth daye was the syluer and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of oure God vnder the hāde of Meremoth the sonne of Urias the prest, and wt hym Eleasar the sōne of Phineas, and with thē Josabad the sōne of Jesua, and Noadia the sonne of Benui the Leuites, accordynge to the nombre and weight of euery one. And the weyghte was all wrytten vp at the same tyme.

And the chyldrē of the captyuite, whiche were come out of prison, offered burntofferynges vnto the God of Israel: twolue bullockes for all Israell, fyre and nyentye rāmes, seuen and seuētye lambes, and twolue goates for a synofferynge, all to the burntofferynge of the LORDE. And they delyuered the kynges cōmyssion vnto the kynges officers, and to the Debytes on this syde water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The.ix. Chapter.

A When al this was perfourmed, ỹ rulers cam to me, and sayd: The people of Israell, and the prestes, and Leuites are not separated from the nacyons in ỹ londes as touchynge theyr abhominacyōs namely of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusytes, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptyās, and Amorites. * For they haue taken the doughters, of the same, and theyr sonnes, and haue myxte the holy sede with the nacions in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of counsell hath bene pryncipall in this trespalle.

Dtne.7.a and.12.d Josu.23.c Judic.3.a

Whā I herde this, I rente my clothes and my rayment, and pluckt out the herr of my heade and of my beerd, and sat mournynge. And ther resorted vnto me all suche as feared ỹ LORD God of Israel because of ỹ great transgressiō. And I sat mournyng vntyll the euenynge sacrifice. And about the euenynge sacrifyce I rose vp fro my heuynes, and rente my clothes and my rayment, and fell vpō my knees, and spred out my handes vnto the LORDE my God, and sayde:

My God, I am ashamed, and dare not lyfte vp myne eyes vnto the my God: for oure wickednesses are growne ouer our heade, and oure trespalles are waxen great vnto the heauen. Sence the tyme of our fathers haue we bene in greate trespalle vnto this daye, * and because of our wyckednesses haue we and our kynges & prestes bene delyuered in to the hande of the kynges of the nacyons, in to the swearde, in to captyuite, in to spoyle, and in to cōfusion of face, as it is come to passe this daye.

But now is ther a litle and sodane grace come from the LORDE our God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he myght geue vs a nayle in his holy place, that our God maye lighte oure eyes, and geue vs a lytle lyfe in our bōdage. For we are bonde men, and oure God hath not forsaken vs thoughe we be bondmen, and hath enclyned mercy vnto vs in the syght of the kynges of Persia, that they shuld geue vs lyfe, and promote the house of oure God, and to set vp the desolacion therof, and to geue vs and hedge in Juda and Jerusalem.

O oure God what shal we saye now after this? that we haue forsaken thy commaundementes, which thou hast cōmaunded by thy seruauntes the prophetes, and sayde: The londe wherin ye shall come to possesse it, is an vncleane londe through the fylthynesse of the people of the londes, in theyr abhominacions wherwith they haue made it full of vnclennesse on euery syde. * Therfore shall ye not geue youre doughters vnto theyre sonnes, and theyr doughters shall ye not take vnto youre sonnes, & seke not their peace & welth for euer, that ye may be stronge, and enioye the good in the londe, and that ye and youre chyldren may haue the enheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after all this that is come vpon vs (because of oure euell dedes and great treſpaſſe) thou oure God haſt ſpared oure wickednelles, and haſt geuē vs a delyuerāūce as it is come to paſſe.

Is for vs, we haue turned backe, and haue let go thy cōmaundementes, to make contracte with the people of the abhominacyons. Wilt thou then be wroth at vs, tyll we be vtterly conſumed, ſo that nothynge remayne, & tyll ther be no delyueraunce? O LORDE God of Iſrael, thou art righteous, for we remayne yet eſcaped, as it is this day. Beholde, in thy preſence are we in oure treſpaſſe, for because of it is ther no ſtondynge before the.

The.x. Chapter.

AND whan Eſdras prayed after this maner, knowleged, wept, and lay before ỹ houſe of God, ther reſorted vnto hym oute of Iſrael a very greate congregacyon of men and wemen, and chyldren: for the people wepte very ſore. And Sachania the ſonne of Jehiell one of the chyldren of Elam, anſwered and ſayde vnto Eſdras: We haue treſpaſſed agaynſt the LORD our God, in that we haue take ſtraunge wyues of all the people of the lande. Now ther is no hope yet in Iſraell concernynge this, therfore let vs make a conuenaunt now vnto our God, that we ſhall put awaye all the wyues (and ſuch as are borne of thē) accordynge to the counſell of the LORDE, and of thē that feare ỹ cōmaundemēt of oure God, that we maye do accordynge to the lawe. Get the vp therfore, for the matter belongeth vnto the. We wyll be with the, be of good comforte, and do it.

Then roſe Eſdras, and toke an oth of ỹ rulers prieſtes, and Leuites, and of al Iſrael, that they ſhulde do accordynge to this worde: and they ſwore. And Eſdras ſtode vp before the houſe of God, and went in to the chamber of Johanan the ſonne of Eliaſab. And whan he came thether, he dyd eate no breed and drancke no water: for he mourned becauſe of the tranſgreſſyon of thē that had ben in captiuyte.

And they cauſed a proclamacyon be made throwout Juda and Jeruſalem, vnto all the chyldre which had bene in captiuyte, that they ſhulde gather thēſelues together vnto Jeruſalē: And that whoſoeuer came not within thre dayes accordynge to the decree of the rulers and Elders, all his ſubſtaūce ſhulde be forfeted, and he put out frō the congregacyon of the captyuite.

Then all the men of Juda and Ben Jamin gathered themſelues together vnto Jeruſalem in thre dayes, that is on the twentyeth daye of the nyenth moneth: and all ỹ people ſat in the ſtrete before the houſe of God, and trembled becauſe of the matter, and for ỹ rayne. And Eſdras the prieſt ſtode vp, and ſayde vnto them * ye haue tranſgreſſed, that ye haue take ſtraunge wyues, to make the treſpaſſe of Iſraell yet more: cōfeſſe now therfore vnto the LORDE God of your fathers, and do his pleaſure, and ſeparate your ſelues from the people of ỹ lōde, and from the ſtraunge wyues. Thē anſwered all the congregacyon, and ſayde with loude voyce: Let it be done as thou haſte ſayde. But the people are many, and it is a rayny wether, and they can not ſtonde here without, nother is this a worke of one day or two, for we are many that haue offended in this tranſgreſſyon. Let vs appoynte oure rulers therfore in all ỹ congregacyon, that all they which haue taken ſtraunge wyues in oure cytyes, maye come at the tyme appoynted, and the Elders of euery cytye and their iudges with thē, tyll the wrath of our God becauſe of this matter be turned away from vs.

Then were appoynted Jonathan the ſonne of Aſahell and Jehaſia the ſonne of Thecua ouer this matter. And Meſullam and Sabthai the Leuites helped thē. And the chyldren of the captyuyte dyd euen ſo. And Eſdras the prieſt, and the auncyent fathers, thorowe the houſe of theyr fathers, and all that were nowe rehearſed by name ſeparated themſelues, and ſat them downe on the fyrſt daye of the tenth moneth, to examen this matter. And on the fyrſte daye of the fyrſte moneth brought they the matter to a concluſyon concernynge al the men that had taken ſtraunge wyues.

And amonge the chyldren of the prieſtes ther were men founde ỹ had taken ſtraūge wyues, namely amonge the chyldren of Jeſua the ſonne of Joſedec and of his brethre, Maeſeia, Eliezer, Jarib and Godolia And they gaue their handes there vpō, that they wolde put away theyr wyues: and for their treſpaſſe offeryng to gene a ramme for theyr treſpaſſe. Amonge the chyldren of Immer, Hanani and Sabadia. Amonge the chyldrē of Harim: Maeſeia, Elia, Semaia Jehiell, and Uſia. Amonge the chyldren of Paſhur: Eltonai, Maeſeia, Iſmael, Nethaneel, neel, Josabad, and Eleasa. Amonge the Leuites, Josabad, Simei and Celaia, He is that Celita, Pethahia, Juda and Eleasar. Amonge the syngers, Eliasib. Amonge the porters, Sallum, Telem, and Uri.

Of Israell. Amonge the chyldzen Pareos, Ramia, Jesia, Malchia, Melamin, Eleasar. Malchia, and Benaia. Amonge the chyldzen of Elam, Mathania, Zachary, Jehiell, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elia. Amonge the chyldzen of Sathu, Elioenai, Eliasib, Mathania, Jeremoth, Sabad, and Aziza. Amonge the chyldzen of Bebai, Johanan, Hanania, Sabai, and Athlai. Amonge the chyldzen of Bani, Meslullam, Malluch, Adaia, Jasub, Seal, and Jeremoth. Amõge the chyldzen of Pahath Moab, Idna, Chelal, Benaia, Maasea, Mathania, Bezaleel, Benui, and Manasse. Amonge the chyldzé of Harim, Eliezer, Jesia, Malchia, Semaia, Simeon, Ben Jamin, Malluch, and Samaria. Among the chyldzen of Hasum, Mathnai, Mathatha, Sabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasse, and Simei. The fyrst Chapter.

THese are the actes of Nehemias the sonne of Hachalia. It hapned in the moneth * Chislen in the twentyeth peare, ỳ I was in the castell at Susan: and Hanani one of my bzethzen came with certayne men of Juda: & I axed them howe the Jewes ỳ that were delyuered and escaped from the captyuite, and how it went at Jerusalem. And they sayde vnto me: The remnaunt of the captyuite are there in the londe in great myskoztune & rebuke. * The walles of Jerusalem are bzoken downe, and the ports therof are bzent with fyze.

Whan I herde these wozdes, I sate me downe and wept, and mourned two dayes, and fasted and pzayed before ỳ God of heuen, and sayde: O LORDE God of heuen thou greate and terrybie God, * that kepest cõuenaunt and mercy foz them that loue the and obserue thy cõmaundementes: let thyn eares marke, and let thyne eyes be open, that thou mayest heare the prayer of thy seruaunt, which I praye now before the daye and nyght foz the chyldzen of Israell thy seruauntes, and knowlege the synnes of the chyldzen of Israel, which we haue synned agaynst the.

And I and my fathers house haue synned also. We haue bene cozrupte vnto the, in that we haue not kepte the cõmaundementes, statutes and lawes, which thou cõmandedest thy seruaũt Moses. Remember I pray the bzaũce the wozde ỳ thou cõmaundedest thy seruaunt Moses, and saydest: * ye shall gelle, thē wyll I scater you abrode āmōge the nacyons. But yf ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes and do them: though ye were cast out vnto the vtteremost part of heauen yet wyll I gather you from thence, and bringe you from thence, euē vn to the place, that I haue chosē for my name to dwel there. They are thy seruaūtes, and thy people, whom thou hast delyuered thorow thy great power and myghtye hande. O LORDE, let thyne eares marke ỹ prayer of thy seruaūt and the prayer of thy seruaūtes, whose delyre is to feare thy name, & let thy seruaunt prosperе this daye, & graunt hym mercy in ỹ sight of this mā: for I was the kynges butler.

The.ij. Chapter.

1 IN the moneth * Nisan of the twentyeth yeare of kynge Artaxerses, whan the wyne stode before hym, I toke vp ỹ wyne, and gaue it vnto the kynge, & I was heuy in his presence. Then sayd the kynge vnto me: Why lokest thou so sadly? Thou arte not sicke, ỹ is not ỹ matter, but thou art heuy harted. Neuertheles I was sore afrayed, & sayd vnto ỹ kyng: God saue the kynges lyfe for euer, shulde I not loke sadly? the cytie of my fathers burial lyeth waist, and ỹ portes therof are consumed wt fyre. Then sayd the kynge vnto me: What is then thy requeste? Then made I my prayer vnto ỹ God of heauē, and sayd vnto the kynge: yf it please the kynge, & yf thy seruaunt be fauoured in thy syght, I beseke the sende me in to Juda vnto ỹ cytie of my fathers burial, that I may buylde it.

2 And the kynge sayd vnto me, and so dyd the quene that sat by hym: How longe shall thy iourney cōtinue, & whā wylt thou come agayne? And it pleased ỹ kynge to sēde me: & I set hym a tyme, & said vnto ỹ kynge: yf it please the kynge, let hym geue me letters to the debites beyonde the water, that they maye conueye me ouer, tyl I come in to Ju dea: and letters vnto Asaph the lorde of the kynges wood, ỹ he may geue me wood for beames to ỹ gates of the palace, which are harde on ỹ house & harde on ỹ walles of ỹ cytie, & for ỹ house ỹ I shall entre into. And the kynge gaue me accordynge to the good hande of God vpon me. And whā I came to the debites beyonde ỹ water, I gaue thē the kynges letters. And the kynge sent cap taynes and horsemen with me.

3 But whan Sanaballath the Horonite, & Tobias the seruaunt of the Ammonites herde that, it greued them sore, ỹ ther was come a mā which sought ỹ welth of ỹ chyldren of Israel. And whan I came to Jerusalē, & had bene there thre dayes, I gat me vp in ỹ nyght season, & a fewe men wt me: For I tolde no mā what my God had geuē me in my harte to do at Jerusalem: & ther was not one beast wt me, saue it that I rode vpon. And I rode by night vnto the valley porte before the dragon well, & to the doūg porte, & cōsydered ỹ walles of Jerusalem ỹ were broken downe, & the portes therof consumed with ỹ fyre. And I went ouer vnto ỹ well porte, & to the kynges condyte, & ther was not rowme for my beast, that it coulde go vnder me. Thē went I on in the nyghte by ỹ broke syde, & cōsydered ỹ wal, & turned backe & cam home agayne to ỹ valley port.

D And ỹ rulers knew not whether I wēt, or what I dyd: for hitherto had I not tolde the Jewes & the prestes, ỹ counselers & the rulers, & the other ỹ laboured in ỹ worke, & I sayd vnto thē: ye se the myserye ỹ we are in, how Jerusalē lyeth waist, & how the gates therof are burnt with fyre: come, let vs buylde vp ỹ walles of Jerusalē, ỹ we be no more a rebūke. And I tolde them of ỹ good hande of my God which was vpō me: And the kynges wordes that he had spoken vnto me. And they sayd: Then let vs get vp. And we buylded, & they hādes were strēgthed to good.

But whā Sanaballat the Horonite, & Tobias the seruaūt of ỹ Ammonites, & Gosem the Arabiā herde it, they laughed vs to scorne, & despysed vs, & sayd: What is this that ye do? Wyll ye fall awaye agayne frō the kynge? Then answered I them, & said: The God of heauen shall cause vs to prosperе: for we his seruauntes are gotte vp, & are buyldynge. As for you, ye haue no porcyō nor rycht, nor remēbraūce in Jerusalē.

The.iiij.Chapter.

But whan Saneballat hard that we buylded the wall, he was wroth, & toke great indignacyon & mocked the Jewes & sayd before his brethren and myghty mē of Samaria: What do ꝑ impotent Jewes? shal they be thus suffred? shall they offre? shall they perfourme it in one day? shal they make ꝑ stones whole agayn that ar broke to dust, & burnt? And Tobias ꝑ Ammonite besyde him sayd: Let the buyldon, yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe theyr stony wall. Heare O thou our God, how we are despysed, turne they? shame vpon they? owne heade, ꝑ thou mayest gyue them ouer in to despysynge in the lande of they; captiuite. Couer not they; wickednes and put not out they; synne fró thy presẽce:

for they haue pzouoked the buylders. ¶ Yet
buylded we the wall, and ioyned it whole together, vnto the halfe heyght. And ỹ people were well mynded to laboure.

B But whan Saneballat, and Tobias, &
the Arabians, and Ammonites, & Asdodi-tes herde, that the walles of Jerusalẽ were made vp, & that they had begõne to stoppe vp the gappes, they were very wzoth, & cõspyred altogether, to come & fyght agaynst Jerusalem, and to make an hynderaunce therin. Neuertheless we made oure prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen vpon ỹ wal daye and nyght ouer agaynst thẽ. And Juda sayde: The strength of the bearers is to feble, & ther is to much dust, we are not able to buylde on the wal. And our aduersaries thought: They shall not knowe nother se,
tyll we come in the myddes amonge them, and slaye them, and hynder the wozke. But whan the Jewes that dwelt besyde them, came out of al the places where they dwelt about vs, & told vs as good as ten tymes, then set I the people after they; kynredes
by they; swearde, speares & bowes beneth
in the lowe places behynd the wall, & loked and gat me vp, & said vnto the chefe men & rulers, and to the other people: Be not ye a frayed of them, thynke vpon ỹ great LOR-DE which ought to be feared, & fyghte for your brethren, sonnes, doughters, wyues, & houses. Neuertheless whan oure enemyes herde ỹ we had gotte wozde of it, God bzou ght they; counsel to naught, & we turned al agayne to the wall, euery one vnto his labour. And fró ỹ tyme forth it came to passe that ỹ halfe parte of the yonge men dyd the labour, & the other halfe parte helde ỹ spea-res, shyldes, bowes, & brestplates, and ỹ rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda,
which buylded on the wall, & bare burthes,
from those that laded them. With one hãde dyd they the wozke, and with the other held they the weapen. And euery one that buyl-ded, had his sweard girded by his side, & so buylded they. And the trompettes stode besyde me.

And I sayd vnto the prynceppall mẽ, and rulers, and to ỹ other people: The wozke is great & large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place now ye heare the noyse of ỹ trompe, re syge ye thyther vnto vs. * Our God shall fyght for vs, & we wyll be labourynge in ỹ wozke. And the halfe parte of them helde ỹ speares fró ỹ mozmyngesprynge, tyl ỹ starr-es came forth. And at ỹ same tyme sayd I vnto ỹ people: Euery one abyde wt his seruaũt at Jerusalẽ, ỹ in the nyghte season we may geue attẽdaũce to ỹ watch, & to labour on the daye tyme. As for me & my brethren, and my seruauntes, & the men of the watch behynde me, we put neuer of our clothes, so much as to washe our selues.

The.v.Chapter.

AND ther arose a great cõplaint A of ỹ people, & of they; wyues &
gaynst they; brethrẽ ỹ Jewes.
And ther were some that sayd:
our sonnes & doughters are to many, let vs take corne for them, and eate, that we maye lyue. Some sayd: Let vs set our lãdes, vynyards and houses to pledge & take vp corne in the derth. But some said:
Let vs borowe money of the kynge vpõ vsury for our landes & vynyardes. Now are our brethrens bodies as our owne bodies, & they; chyldrẽ as our chyldrẽ: els shuld we subdue our sonnes & doughters vnto bondage, & some of our doughters are subdued alredy, and no strength is ther in our han-des, and other men shall haue oure landes and vynyardes.

But whan I herde they; cõplaynte and such wozdes, it displeased me sore, & I adui
sed so in my mynde, that I rebuked the cou selers, & the rulers, & sayd vnto thẽ: * Wyll Deu.23.a ye requyre vsury one of another? And I brought a great cõgregacyon agaynst thẽ,
and sayd vnto them: We (after our abilite)
haue bought our brethrẽ the Jewes, which were solde vnto the Heythẽ. And wyl ye sell your brethren, whom we haue bought vnto vs? Then helde they they; peace, & could fynde nothynge to answere.

And I sayd: It is not good that ye do, B Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the Heythen oure enemyes? I and my brethren, & my seruaũ-tes haue lent thẽ money & corne: but as for vsury, let vs leaue it. Therfore ỹ same dayes se that ye restore them they; landes agayn,
they; vynyardes, oylegardẽs, and houses,
and the hundreth parte of the money of the corne, wyne, & oyle ỹ ye haue wõne of thẽ.
Thẽ sayd they: We wyl restore thẽ again, &
wil requyre nothing of thẽ, & wil do as thou hast spokẽ. And I called ỹ prestes, & toke an oth of thẽ, ỹ they shulde do so. And I shoke my lappe, & sayd: God shake out euery mã

after ỳ ſame maner frō his houſe & laboure that mayntayneth not this woꝛde: euē thus be he ſhaken out, and voyde. And all the cōgre gacyon ſayd: Amen, & prayſed ỳ LORD. And the people dyd ſo.

C * And from the tyme forth that it was 2. Eſd. 2. 8. commytted vnto me to be a debite in ỳ lāde of Juda, namely from the twētieth yeare, vnto the two and thirtieth yeare of kynge Artarerſes (that is twelfe yeare) J and my bꝛethꝛen lyued not of ſuche ſuſtenaunce as was geuen to a debite: foꝛ the olde debites that were befoꝛe me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, and had taken of thē bꝛead and wyne, and foꝛty ſycles of ſyluer: yee & theyꝛ ſeruauntes had oppꝛeſſed the people. But ſo dyd not J, & that becauſe of the feaꝛ of God. J laboured alſo in the woꝛke vpon the wall, and bought no lande. And all my ſeruauntes came thether together vnto the woꝛke. Moꝛeouer ther were at my table an hundꝛeth & fyftye of the Jewes & rulers, which came vnto me frō amonge ỳ Heythē that are aboute vs. And ther was pꝛepared me dayly an ore, & ſixe choſen ſhepe, & bꝛydes, & euer once in ten dayes a great ſūme of wyne. yet requyꝛed not J the lyuinge of a debite: foꝛ ỳ bondage was greuous vnto 2. Eſd. 13. c the people. * Thynke vpon me my God vn to the beſt, accoꝛdynge to all that J haue done foꝛ this people.

The. vi. Chapter.

JAnd whan Saneballat, Tobi as and Goſem the Arabian, & the other of our enemyes herd, that J had buylded the wall, & that ther were no mo gappes therin (how be it at ỳ ſame tyme had J not hanged the doꝛes vpō the gates) Saneballat and Goſem ſent vnto me, ſayeng: Come and let vs mete together in ỳ vyllages vpon the playne of the cytie Ono. Neuertheleſſe they thought to do me euell. Notwithſtandynge J ſent meſſaungers vnto them, ſayenge: J haue a great buſynes to do, J can not come downe. The woꝛke ſhulde ſtande ſtyll, yf J were negligent, and came downe to you. Howbeit they ſent vnto me as good as foure tymes after the ſame maner. And J gaue the ſame anſwere.

B Then ſent Saneballat his ſeruaūt, vnto me the fyfth tyme, with an open letter in his hande, wherin was wꝛitten: Jt is tolde the Heythen, & Goſem hath ſayde it, ỳ thou & the Jewes thynke to rebell: foꝛ the which cauſe thou buyldeſt the wal, & wylt be their kynge in theſe matters, and haſt oꝛdeyned the pꝛophetes to pꝛeache of the at Jeruſalē, and to ſaye: He is kynge of Juda.

Now ſhall this come to the kynges eares: come now therfoꝛe, and let vs take our coūſel together. Neuertheleſſe J ſent vnto hym, ſayeng: Ther is no ſuch thynge done as thou ſayeſt: thou haſt fayned it out of thyne owne hart. Foꝛ they were all myn ded to make vs afrayed, and thought: They ſhal withdꝛawe theyꝛ hādes frō the woꝛke, that they ſhall not laboure. Howbeit J ſtrengthed my hande the moꝛe.

And J came vnto ỳ houſe of Semaia C ſonne of Delaia the ſōne of Mechetabeel, & he had ſhut hym ſelfe within, & ſayd: Let vs come together into ỳ houſe of God, mi vnto ỳ myddes of ỳ tēple, & ſparre ỳ doꝛes of the temple: foꝛ they wyll come to ſlaye ỳ, yee euen in the nyght wyl they come to put the death. But J ſayd: Shulde ſuch a man flye? Shulde ſuch a mā as J am, go in to ỳ temple, to ſaue his lyfe? J wyll not go in.

Foꝛ J perceaued, that God had not ſent hym: yet ſpake he pꝛophecye vpō me, neuertheleſſe Tobias and Saneballat had hyred hym foꝛ money. Therfoꝛe toke he ỳ money, that J ſhulde be afrayed, and ſo to do and ſynne, that they myght haue an euel report of me, to blaſpheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobias and Saneballat, accoꝛdyng vnto theſe theyꝛ woꝛkes, and of ỳ pꝛophet Noadia, & of the other pꝛophetes, that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynyſhed on ỳ fyue & twētyeth daye of the moneth, * Elul, in the & fyftye dayes. And whan all our enemyes herde therof, al the Heythē that were about vs, were afrayed, & theyꝛ cozage fayled them: foꝛ they perceaued, that this woꝛke cam of God. And at ỳ ſame tyme were ther many of the chefe of Juda, whoſe letters went in to Tobias, & from Tobias vnto them. Fur ther were many in Juda ỳ were ſworne in to hym: foꝛ he was the ſōne in lawe of Sechania the ſōne of Arah, & his ſōne Johanā had the doughter of Meſullam the ſōne of Barachia, and they ſpake good of hym be foꝛe me, and told him my woꝛdes. And To bias ſent letters, to put me in feare.

The.viij. Chapter.

A NOw whan the seuenth moneth drue nye, and ꝑ chyldren of Israel were in theyr cyties, all the people gathered them selues together as one mā vpon ꝑ strete before the watergate, and sayd vnto Esdras the scrybe, that he shulde fetch the boke of ꝑ lawe of Moses, which the LORDE commaūded Israel. * And Esdras the prest brought Deu.31.c 4.Re.23.a the lawe before the congregacyon both of men and wemen, and of all that coulde vnderstande it, vpō the fyrst daye of the seuēth moneth, & red therin in the strete that is before the watergate, frō the lyght morynge vntyll the noone daye before men and wemen and suche as coulde vnderstāde it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the boke of the lawe. And Esdras the scrybe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, which they had made for the preachynge, & beside hym stode Mathithia, Sema, Anania, Uria, Helchias, and Maseia on ꝑ tyght hande: And on his lefte hande stode Pedaia, Misael, Malchia, Hasum, Hasbadana, Zachary and Mesullam.

And Esdras opened the boke before al ꝑ people, for he stode aboue al ꝑ people. And whan he opened it, all the people stode by. And Esdras praysed the LORDE the great God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with theyr handes vp and bowed them selues, & worshipped the LORDE with theyr faces to the grouñde. And Iesua, Bani, Serebia, Iami, Acub, Sabthai, Hodeia, Maseia, Celita, Azaria, Iosabad, Hanā, Plaia & the Leuites, caused ꝑ people to gene hede vnto the lawe, and the people stode in theyr place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God distinctly and plancly, so that men vnderstode the thynge that was red. And Nehemias (which is Hathirsatha) and Esdras the prest and scrybe, and the Leuites ꝑ caused the people to take hede, sayde vnto all the people: This daye is holy vnto the LORDE your God, be not ye sory therfore, and wepe not. For all the people wept, whē they herde the wordes of the lawe.

Therfore sayd he vnto them: * Go your waye, and eat the fat, and drynke the swete, and sende parte vnto them also that haue not prepared them selues: for this day is holy vnto our LORDE, be not ye sory therfore: for the ioye of the LORDE is your strength. And the Leuites stylled all the people, and sayd: Holde your peace, for the daye is holy, vexe not ye your selues. And all the people wente theyr waye to eat and drynke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make great myrth, for they had vnderstand the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on the nexte day were gathered together the chefe fathers amonge al the people, & the prestes & Leuites, vnto Esdras ꝑ scrybe, that he shulde teache them the wordes of the lawe. And they founde wryttē in lawe, * how that the LORDE had cōmaūded by Moses, that the chyldrē of Israel shulde dwell in bothes in the feast of the seuenth moneth. And so they caused it be declared & proclamed in al theyr cyties, & at Jerusalē, sayeng: Go vp to the mount & fetch Olyue braunches, Pynebraūches, Myrtebraūches, Palmebraūches, & braūches of thicke trees, to make bothes as it is wrytten.

And the people wente vp, and fetched them, and made them bothes, euery one vpon the rofe of his houſe, and in their courtis, and in the courtes of the houſe of God, and in the ſtrete by the Watergate, and in the ſtrete by the Ephraims porte. And all ỹ congregacyon of them that were come agayne out of the captyuite, made bothes, & dwelt therin: for ſence ỹ tyme of Joſua the ſonne of Nun vnto this daye, had not the chyldren of Iſrael done ſo, and ther was very great gladneſſe. And euery daye from the fyrſt daye vnto the laſt, red he in ỹ boke of the lawe of God. And ſeuen dayes helde they the feaſt, and on the eyght daye the gathrynge together, accordynge vnto the maner.

The.ix. Chapter.

IN the foure and twentyeth day of this moneth came the chyldren of Iſrael together with faſtynge and ſackclothes, and earth vpon them, and ſeparated the ſede of Iſrael from all the ſtraunge chyldren, and ſtode and knowleged theyre ſynnes, and the wyckednelles of their fathers, and ſtode vp in theyr place, and red in the boke of the lawe of the LORDE theyr God foure tymes on the daye, & they knowleged, and worſhipped the LORD their God foure tymes on the daye. And the Leuites ſtode an hye, namely Jeſua, Bani, Cadmiell, Sebania, Buni, Serebia, Bani, & Chenani, and cryed loude vnto the LORDE their God. And ỹ Leuites, Jeſua, Cadmiell, Bani, Haſabenia, Serebia, Hodia, Sebania, Pethahia, ſayde: Stonde vp, prayſe ỹ LORDE oure God for euer: and let thākes be geuen vnto the name of thy glorye, which exalteth all thankeſgeuynge and prayſe, LORDE, thou art alone, thou haſt made heauen, and the heauen of all heaues, with all their hoſt, the earth and all that therin is, ỹ See and all that is therin: thou geueſt lyfe vnto all, and the hoſt of heauen bowe themſelues vnto the. * Thou arte ỹ LORD God, that haſt choſen Abram, and broughte hym out of Ur in Chaldea, * and called hym Abraham, and founde his harte faythfull before the, * and madeſt a conuenaunt with hym to geue vnto his ſede the londe of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Phereſites, Jebuſites, & Girgoſites, and haſt made good thy wordes: for thou art ryghteous. * And haſt conſydered the myſery of oure fathers in Egypte, & herde theyr cōplaynte by the reed See, and ſhewed tokens & wonders vpon Pharao, and on all his ſeruauntes, and on all his people of his londe: for thou kneweſt that they were prelūptuous and cruell agaynſt thē, and ſo madeſt thou the a name as it is this day. And ỹ reed See partedeſt thou in ſunder before them, ſo that they wente thorow the myddes of ỹ See drye ſhod: and theyr perſecuters threweſt thou in to the depe as a ſtone, in the mightye waters, and leddeſt them on the daye tyme in a cloudy pyler, & on the night ſeaſon in a pyler of fyre, to ſhew them light in the waye that they wente. Neuertheleſſe our fathers were proude & hardnecked, ſo that they folowed not thy cōmaundementes, and refuſed to heare, and were not myndefull of the wonders ỹ thou dyddeſt for them: but became obſtinate and headye, in ſo much that they turned backe to theyr bondage in theyr diſobedience. But thou my God forgaueſte, and walt gracyous, mercyfull, pacyent, and of great goodneſſe, and forſakeſt them not. * And though they made a molten calfe (and ſayde: This is thy God, that broughte the out of the londe of Egypte) and dyd greate blaſphemyes, yet forſakeſte thou them not in the wyldernelſe, accordynge to thy greate mercye. * And the cloudy pyler departed not from them on the daye tyme to lede them the waye, nother the pyler of fyre in ỹ night ſeaſon, to ſhewe them lyght in the way that they wente. mercies sake thou hast not vtterly cōsumed them, nother forsaken them: for thou arte a gracyous and mercyfull God.

¶ Now oure God, thou greate God, migh tye and terryble, thou that kepest cōuenaū and mercye, regarde not a lytle all the tra-uaylle that hath happened vnto vs, & oure kynges, prices, prestes, prophetes, fathers and al thy people, sence the tyme of the kyn ges of Assur vnto this daye. Thou art righ teous in all that thou hast brought vpō vs:
for thou hast done tyght. As for vs, we haue ben vngodly, and our kynges, princes, prestes and fathers haue not done after thy lawe, nor regarded thy cōmaundementes, & thy earnest exhortacyons wherwith thou hast exhorted them, and haue not serued the
in theyr kyngdome, and in thy great goo-

and plēteous londe whiche thou gauest thē wycked workes. Beholde, therfore are we in bondage this day: yee euen in the londe that thou gauest vnto our fathers, to enioy

there are we bonde men. And greate is the increase of it vnto the kynges, whom thou hast set ouer vs because of our synnes, and they haue dominion ouer oure bodyes and cattell, and we are in greate trouble.

And in all this made we a sure couenaunt, and wrote it, and let oure princes, Leuites and prestes seale it.

B *And they came to sweare, and to bynde themselues with an oth to walke in Gods lawe, which was geuen by Moses the seruaunt of God, that they wolde obserue and do accordynge vnto all the cōmaundements, iudgmentes and statutes of the LORD our God, * and that we wolde not geue oure doughters vnto the people in ỹ londe, nother to take theyr doughters for our sonnes. * And yf the people of ỹ londe brought ware on the Sabbath, and all maner of vytaylles to sell, that we wolde not take it of them on the Sabbath and on the holy dayes. * And that we wolde let ỹ seuenth yeare be free concernynge all maner of charge.

For the chyldren of Israel, and the chyldrē of Leui shall bynge vp the heaueofferynges of ỹ corne, wyne and oyle vnto the chestes, there are the vessels of the Sāctuary, and the prestes that mynister, and the porters and syngers, that we forsake not the house of oure God.

The.xi. Chapter.

A AND the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem. But the other people cast lottes therfor so that amonge ten, one parte went to Jerusalem in to the holy cytye to dwell, and nyne partes in the cytyes. And the people thanked all the men that were wyllynge to dwell at Jerusalē.

And Amassai the sonne of Asarell, the sonne of Ahusai, the sonne of Mesillemoth, the sonne of Immer: and his brethren were valeaunt men, of whom ther were an hundreth and eyght and twenty. And the Nethinims dwelt in Ophell: & Zipha and Gispa belonged vnto the Nethinims. The ouerseyer of ꝑ Leuites at Jerusalē, was Usi ꝑ sone of Bani, ꝑ sone of Hasabia, ꝑ sone of Mathania, ꝑ sone of Micha.

D Of the chyldren of Assaph ther were syngers aboute ꝑ busynes in the house of God for it was the kynges cōmaundement concernynge thē, that the syngers shulde deale kaythfully, euery daye as accordynge was.

The.xij. Chapter.

These are the prestes and Leuites that wente vp with Zorobabell the sonne of Sealthiel and with Jesua: Seraia, Jeremy, Esdras, Amaria, Malluch, Hattus, Sechania, Rehū, Meremoth Iddo, Ginthoi, Abia, Meamin, Maadia, Bilga, Semaia, Joiarib, Jedaia, Sallu, Amok, Helchias and Jedaia. These were the heades amonge the prestes & theyr brethren in the tyme of Jesua. The Leuites were these: Jesua, Bennui, Cadmiell, Serebia, Juda and Mathania, ouer the offyce of the thankesgeuynge, they and theyr brethren: Bacbuchia and Unni, and theyr brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Jesua begat Joachim. Joachim begat Eliasib. Eliasib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan. Jonathan begat Jaddua. And in the tyme of Joachim were these the chefe fathers amōge the prestes: namely of Seraia was Meraia, of Jeremy was Hanania, of Esdras was Mesullam, of Amaria was Johanan, of Malluch was Jonathan, of Sebania was Joseph, of Harim was Adna, of Meraioth was Helcai, of Iddo was Zachary, of Ginthon was Mesullam, of Abia was Sichri, of Miniamin Moadia was Pilthai, of Bilga was Sammua, of Semaia was Jonathan, of Joiarib was Mathnai, of Jedaia was Uzi, of Sallai was Callai, of Amok was Eber, of Helchias was Hasabia, of Gedaia was Nathaneell.

And in the tyme of Eliasib. Joiada, Johanan and Jaddua, were the chefe fathers amonge the Leuites, and the prestes wrytten vnder the raygne of Darius the Persian. The chyldren of Leui the pryncipall fathers were wrytten in the Cronicles, vnto the tyme of Johanan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were the chefe amonge the Leuites, Hasabia, Serebia, and Jesua the sonne of Cadmiell, & their brethren ouer against thē, to geue prayse & thākes, accordynge as Dauid ꝑ man of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Mathania, Bachuchia, Obadia, Meſullam, Talmon and Acub were porters in the watch at the tresholdes of the gates. These were in the tyme of Joiachim ꝑ sonne of Jesua ꝑ sonne of Josedec, and in the tyme of Nehemias ꝑ Dehyte, and of the prest Esdras the scrybe.

C Jnd in the dedicacyon of the wall at Jerusalem, were the Leuites sought out of all their places, that they might be brought to Jerusalem, to kepe the dedicacyon in gladnesse, with thākesgeuynges, with synging, with Cymbales, Psalteries & harpes. And the chyldren of the syngers gathered themselues together from the playne contre aboute Jerusalem, and from the villages of Nethophati, and from the house of Gilgal, and out of ꝑ felde of Gibea and Asmaueth: for the syngers had buylded them villages aboute Jerusalem. Jnd the prestes and Leuites purifyed them selues, and clensed the people, the gates, and the wall.

Jnd I caused the prynces to go vp vpō the wall, and appoynted two great queres of thākesgeuynge, which wente on ꝑ right hande of the wall towarde the Doūgate, and after them wente Hosaia, and halfe of the prynces of Juda, and Asaria, Esdras, Mesullam, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semaia, & Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes chyldrē with trompettes, namely ZacharY ꝑ sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semaia, ꝑ sōne of Mathania, the sonne of Michaia, the sonne of Sachur, the sonne of Assaph, and his brethrē, Semaia, Asareell, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathaneell, and Juda, & Hanani, with the musycall instrumētes of Dauid the man of God.

D Jnd Esdras the scrybe before them towarde the Wellgate, and they wente vp ouer agaynste them vpon the steppes of the cyte of Dauid at the goyenge vp of ꝑ wal to the house of Dauid, vnto the watergate Eastwarde.

The other quere of thākesgeuinge wēte ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wal, towarde the Fornacegate vpwarde, vntyll the brode wal, and to the porte of Ephraim and to the Oldgate, and to the Fyshgate, & to the tower of Hananeel, and to the tower of Meah, vntyll the Shepegate. Jnd in ꝑ prisongate stode they styll: & so stode ꝑ two queres of thākesgeuyng of ꝑ house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the prestes, namely Eliachim, Maesaia, Miniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, ZacharY, Hanania, with trompettes, & Maeseia, Semaia, Eleasar Usi, Johanan, Malchia Elam, and Aser. And the syngers songe loude, and Jesrahia was the ouerseyer.

Jnd the same daye were ther greate sacrifyces offred, and they reioyced: for God had geuen the great gladnesse, so that both the wyues and chylderen were ioyfull, and ꝑ myrth of Jerusalem was herde farre of. E

Jt the same tyme were ther men appoited ouer the treasure chestes (wherin were the heaueofferynges, the fyrstlynges, & the tythes) that they shulde gather them out of the feldes aboute the cytyes, to distrybute them vnto the prestes and Leuites accordynge to the lawe: for Juda was glad of ꝑ prestes, and Leuites, that they stode & wayted vpon the office of theyr God, and the offyce of the purificacyon. Jnd the syngers & porters stode after the commaundement of Dauid and of Salomon his sonne: * for 1.par. 24. and. 25.
in the tyme of Dauid and Assaph, were the cheke syngers founded, and the songes of prayse and thankesgeuynge vnto God. Jn the tyme of Zorobabel and Nehemias, dyd all Jsrael geue porcyons vnto the syngers and porters, euery daye his porcyon, & they gaue thynges halowed vnto the Leuites: and the Leuites gaue thynges ꝑ were sanctifyed, vnto the chyldren of Aaron.

The.xiii.Chapter.

am agaynst them, that he shuld curse them: Neuertheles our God turned the curse into a blessyng. Now whan they herde ꝑ law, they separated from Jsraell euery one that had mixte hymselfe therin. And before this had the prest Eliasib delyuered the chest of the house of our God vnto his kynsmā Tobia: for he had made hym a great chest, and there had they afore tyme layed ꝑ meatofferynges, frankencense, vessell, and the tythes of corne, wyne, and oyle, (accordynge to the cōmaūdement geuen to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the heaueofferynges of the prestes.

But in al this was not J at Jerusalem B for in the two and thyrtyeth yeare of Artaxerses kynge of Babylon, came J vnto the kynge, and after certayne dayes optayned

J licence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And J gat knowlege of the euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in ỹ he had made hym a chest in ỹ courte of the house of God, and it greued me sore, and J cast forth all ỹ vessels of Tobias house out of ỹ chest, and cõmaunded them to clense the chest. And thither brought J agayne the vessels of the house of God, the meatofferinge and the incense.

And J perceaued, that the porcyons of the Leuites were not geuen them, for the which cause the Leuites and syngers were fled, euery one to his londe for to worke. Then reproued J the rulers, and sayde: Why forsake we the house of God? But J gathered them together, and set thẽ in their place. Then broughte all Juda the tythes of corne, wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And J made treasurers ouer the treasure, euen Selemia ỹ preest, and Sadoc ỹ scribe: and of ỹ Leuites Pedaia, and vnder their C hande Hanan the sonne of Sachur ỹ sonne of Mathania: for they were counted faythfull, and their office was, to distrybute vnto their brethren. * Thynke vpon me O 2.Esd.5.a my God here in, and wype not out my mercy, that J haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offices therof.

At the same tyme saw J some treadyng wyne presses on the Sabbath, and bryngynge in clusters, and asses laden with wyne, grapes, fygges, and bryngynge all maner of burthes vnto Jerusalẽ, vpõ the Sabbath daye. And J rebuked them earnestly ỹ same daye that they solde ỹ vitayles. Ther dwelt men of Tyre also therin, which brought fyshe and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the children of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reproued J the rulers in Juda, and sayde vnto them: What euell thynge is this that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye? Dyd not oure fathers euen thus, and oure God broughte all this plage vpon vs and vpõ this cytye? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Jsrael, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

D And whan the portes of Jerusalẽ were drawen vp before the Sabbath, J cõmaunded to shut ỹ gates, and charged that they shuld not be opened tyl after the Sabbath: and some of my seruauntes set J at the gates, that ther shulde no burthen be brought in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chapmẽ and marchauntes once or twyce ouer nighte without Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reproued J thẽ sore, and sayde vnto thẽ: Why tarye ye all nyght about the walle? yf ye do it once agayne, J wyll laye handes vpon you. From ỹ tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath. And J sayde vnto the Leuites which were cleane, that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe ỹ Sabbath day. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concernynge this also, and spare me accordynge to thy great mercye.

And at ỹ same tyme saw J Jewes, that maryed wyues of Asdod, Ammon and of Moab, and their chyldren spake half in ỹ speache of Asdod, and coulde not speake in the Jewysh lãguage, but by ỹ tunge might a man perceaue euery people. And J reuyled them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of them, and plucte thẽ by and toke an oth of them by God: * ye shall not gene youre doughters vnto their sonnes, nother shall ye take their doughters vnto youre sonnes, or for youre selues. * Dyd not Salomon the kynge of Jsrael synne therin and yet amõge many heythen was ther no kynge lyke hym, and he was dere vnto his God, and God made hym kynge ouer all Jsrael, and yet dyd the outlandish wemen cause hym for to synne. Haue we yu herde of this, that ye do such great euell, to trespasse agaynst our God with outlandish wemen?

And one of the chyldren of Joiada ỹ sonne of Eliasib the hye preste, had made contracte with Saneballath the Horonite: but J chaced hi fro me. O my God, thynke thou vpon thẽ ỹ are quyte of the preesthode, and haue defyled the conuenaunt of ỹ preesthode and of the Leuites. Thus clensed J them from all suche as were outlandysh, and appoynted the courses of the preestes and Leuites, euery one to his office, and to offre ỹ wood at tymes appointed, and the fyrst frutes. Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best.

The fyrst Chapter.

IN the tyme of Ahasuerus which rayg ned frõ Jndia vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hũ dreth & seuen & twen tye lãdes, what tyme as he sat on his seate royall in the castel of Susan in the thyrde yeare of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes and ser uauntes, namely vnto the myghtye men of Persia and Media, to the debites & rulers of his contrees, that he myght shewe the no ble riches of his kyngdome, & the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, euen an hũdreth & foure score dayes.

And whan these dayes were expyred the kynge made a feast vnto al the people ꝑ were in the castell of Susan, both vnto greate and small seuen dayes longe, in the courte of the garden by the kynges palace: where ther hanged whyte, reed, and palowe clothes, fastened with coardes of lynnen and scarlet in syluer rynges, vpõ pylers of mar blestone.

The benches were of golde and syluer, B made vpon a pauement of grene, whyte, ya lowe and blacke marble. And the drynke was caryed in vessels of golde, & ther was euer chaũge of vessell. And ꝑ kynges wyne was much accordynge to the power of the kynge. And noman was appoynted what he shulde drynke: for the kynge had cõmaũ ded al the officers of his house, that euery one shulde do as it lyked hym. And ꝑ quene Vasthi made a feast also for ꝑ wemẽ in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth daye whan the kynge was mery of ꝑ wyne he cõmaũded Mehumã, Bisitha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Sethar and Charcas, ꝑ seuen chamberlaynes (that dyd seruice in ꝑ presence of kynge Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasthi with the crowne regall, that he myght shewe the people and princes hir kayrenesse: for she was bewtyfull. But the quene Vasthi wold not come at the kynges worde by his chamberlaynes. Thẽ was the kynge very wroth, and his indignacyon kyndled in hym.

And the kynge spake to the wyse men C that had vnderstandynge in the ordynaun ces of the lande (for ꝑ kynges matters must be handled before all suche as haue know lege of the lawe and iudgement: And the nerre vnto hym were: Charsena, Sethar, Admatha, Tharsis, Meres, Marsena and Memuchan, the seuen princes of the Persi ans, and Meedes, which sawe the kynges face, and sat aboue in the kingdome,) what lawe shulde be execute vpon the quene Va sthi, because she dyd not accordynge to the worde of the kynge by his chamberlaynes. Then sayde Memuchan before the kynge and the princes: The quene Vasthi hath not onely done euel agaynst the kynge, but also agaynst al the princes, and all the peo ple in all the landes of kynge Ahasuerus: for this dede of the quene shall come abrod vnto all wemen, so that they shall despyse theyr husbandes before theyr eyes, and shal saye: The kynge Ahasuerus commaun ded Vasthi the quene to come before hym, but she wolde not. And so shall the prin- D cesses in Persia and Media saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges princes, whan they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall ther aryse despytefulnesse and wrath ynoughe. ¶ If it please the kynge, let ther go forth a kyngly commaundement from hym, and let it be wrytten accordynge to the lawe of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, and let the kynge geue the kyngdome vnto another that is better the she.

And that this wrytynge of the kynge which shalbe made, be publyshed thorowe out all his empyre (which is great) that all wyues maye holde theyr husbandes in honoure, both amonge great and small.

This pleased the kyng and the princes: and the kynge dyd accordyng to the worde of Memuchan. The were ther letters sent forth in to all the kynges lãdes, in to euery lande accordynge to the wrytynge therof, & to euery people after theyr language, that euery mã shuld be lorde in his owne house. And this caused he to be spoken after ỹ language of his people.

The.ii. Chapter.

After these actes whan the displeasure of kynge Ahasuerus was layed, he thoughte vpon Vasthi, what she had don, and what was concluded concernynge her. Then sayd the kynges seruauntes: Let ther be layre yõge virgins soughte for the kynge, and let the kynge appoynt ouerseers in al the lãdes of his empyre, that they may brynge together all fayre yonge virgins vnto the castel of Susã to the wemens buyldynge, vnder the hande of Hegai the kynges chamberlayne, that kepeth the wemen, and let hym geue them theyr apparel. And loke which damsell pleaseth the kynge, let her be quene in Vasthis steade. This pleased the kynge, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan ther was a Iewe, whose name was Mardocheus, the sonne of Iair, the sonne of Simei, the sõne of Cis, the sõne of Iemini: whiche was caryed awaye from Ierusalem, * whan Iechonias the kynge of Juda was ledde awaye, (whome Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon caryed awaye) and he norysshed Hadassa (that is Hester) his vncles doughter: for she had nother father nor mother, and she was a fayre and bewtyfull damsel. And whan hir father and mother dyed, Mardocheus receaued her as his owne doughter.

Now whan the kynges commaundement and commyssion was publyshed, and many damsels were brought together vnto the castell of Susan vnder the hande of Hegai, Hester was taken also vnto the kynges house vnder the hande of Hegai the kepar of the wemen, and the damsell pleased hym, and she founde grace in his syghte. And he put her with hir maydens in ỹ best place of the wemens buyldynge. And Hester shewed it not vnto hir people and kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, that she shulde not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the court of the wemens buyldynge, that he myght knowe how Hester dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And whan the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came that she shulde come to the kynge Ahasuerus, after that she had ben twelfe monethes in the deckynge of the wemen (for theyr deckyng must haue so much tyme, namely sixe monethes with Balme and Myrre, and sixe monethes with good spyces, so were the wemen bewtified) then wente ther one damsell vnto the kinge, and what so euer she requyred, that must be geuẽ her to go with her out of the wemens buyldynge vnto the kynges palace. And when one came in the euenynge, the same went from hym on the morowe in to the seconde house of wemen, vnder the hande of Shasgas the kynges chamberlayne, which kept the concubynes. And she must come vnto the kynge nomore, excepte it pleased the kynge, and that he cauled her to be called by name.

Now whan the tyme came of Hester the doughter of Abihail Mardocheus vncle, (whõ he had receaued as his owne doughter) that she shulde come to the kynge, she required nothynge but what Hegai the kynges chamberlayne the kepar of the wemen sayd.

And Hester founde fauoure in the syght of all them that loked vpon her. And Hester was taken vnto kynge Ahasuerus in to the house royall, in the tenth moneth which is called Tebeth, in the seuenth yere of his reygne.

And the kynge loued Hester aboue all the wemen, and she founde grace and mercy in his syghte before all the virgins: and he set the quenes crowne vpon hir heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kynge made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruauntes (which feast was because of Hester) and let the landes in quyetnesse, and gaue royall gyftes.

And whã the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Mardocheus to the kynges gate. And as yet had not Hester shewed hir kynred and hir people, accordynge as Mardocheus had bydde her: for Hester dyd after the worde of Mardocheus, lyke as whā he was hir tutoure. At ye same tyme whyle Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes, Bigthan and Theres which kepte the dore, were wroth, and sought to laye theyr handes on the kynge Ahasuerus: Wherof Mardocheus gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certified the king therof in Mardocheus name. And whan inquisicyon was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on a tre: & it was wrytten in the Cronicles before the kynge.

The.iii. Chapter.

After these actes dyd the kynge promote Aman ye sone of Amadathai ye Agagite, & set hi hye, & set his seat aboue all ye prynces ye were wt hym. And all the kynges seruaūtes that were in the gate, bowed theyr knees, & dyd reuerēce vnto Amā: for the kynge had so cōmaūded. But Mardocheus bowed not the kne, & worshipped hym not. Thē the kynges seruaūtes which were in ye kinges gate, said vnto Mardoche us: Why trāsgressest ye the kynges cōmaūdement? And whan they spake this daylye vnto hym, & he folowed thē not, they tolde Aman, that they myght se whether Mardocheus matters wold endure: for he had told thē that he was a Jewe. And whā Aman sawe, ye Mardocheus bowed not ye kne vnto hym, nor worshipped hym, he was ful of indignacyon, & despyed ye he shuld laye hāde onely on Mardocheus (for they had shewed hym ye people of Mardocheus) but he sought to destroye the people of Mardocheus, all the Jewes that were in the whole empyre of Ahasuerus.

In the fyrst moneth ye is ye moneth * Nisan in ye twelueth yeare of kynge Ahasuerus, was ther occasyō & opportunite sought by Aman, frō one daye to another, & from ye same moneth vnto ye twelueth moneth, that is the moneth * Adar. And Aman said vnto kynge Ahasuerus: Ther is a people scattered abrode & dispersed amonge al people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & theyr lawes contrarye vnto all people, & they do not after ye kinges lawes, nother is it ye kynges profyte to suffer thē after this maner. If it please ye kyng, let hym wryte, that they may be destroyed, and so wyl I weye downe ten thousande talētes of siluer, vnder ye handes of the workmen, to be brought in to the kynges chamber. Thē toke ye kynge his ringe from his hande, and gaue it vnto Aman ye sone of Amadathai the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kynge sayd vnto Aman: Let the syluer be geuen the, & that people also, to do withall what pleaseth the.

C Then were the kynges scrybes called on the thirtenth daye of the fyrst moneth, & ther was wrytten (accordynge as Aman cō maūded) vnto the kynges princes, & to the debites euery where in the landes, & to the captaynes of euery people in the contrees on euery syde, accordynge to the wrytynge of euery nacyon, & after theyr language in the name of kynge Ahasuerus, and sealed with the kinges ringe. And the wrytynges were sent by postes in to all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes both yonge and olde, chyldren & wemen in one daye (namely vpō the thirtenth daye of ye twelfeth moneth, which is the moneth Adar) and to spoyle theyr goodes.

This was the summe of the wrytyng, ye ther shuld be a cōmaundement geuen in all landes, to be publyshed vnto all people, ye they shulde be ready agaynst the same day. And the postes wente in all the haist accordynge to ye kynges cōmaūdement. And in ye castell of Susan was the commaundemēt deuysed. And the kinge and Aman sat and dranke. But the cytie of Susan was disquieted.

The.iiii. Chapter.

A When Mardocheus perceaued all that was done, he rente his clothes, & put on a sackcloth, & asshes, & wente out in to ye myddes of the citie, and cried loude and lamentably, and came before the kynges gate: for ther myght no man entre with in the kinges gate, that had a sackcloth on. And in all landes and places, as farre as ye kynges worde and commaundement extended, ther was great lamentacyon amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wepte, mourned, and laye in sackclothes and in asshes. So Hesters damsels, and hir chamberlaynes, came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceadyngly astonnyed. And she sent rayment, that Mardocheus shulde put thē on, and laye the sackclothe from hym.

But Mardocheus wolde not take them.
Then called Hester Hathach one of the kyn ges chãberlaynes (whiche stode before her)
and gaue hym a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that he myght knowe what it were, and wherfore he dyd so. So Hathach went forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cytte, which was before the kyn ges gate.

B And Mardocheus tolde hym of al that had happened vnto hym, and of the sũme
of syluer that Aman had promysed to weye
downe in the kynges chamber because of ỹ Jewes for to destroye them, and he gaue hym the coppe of the commaundemẽt, that was deuysed at Susan to destroye them, ỹ
he myght shewe it vnto Hester, & to speake to her, & charge her, that she shulde go in to the kynge, and make hir prayer and suppli cacyon vnto hym for hir people.

And whan Hathach came in, and tolde
Hester the wordes of Mardocheus, Hester spake vnto Hathach, and cõmaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: All the kynges seruauntes, and the people in the landes of the kynge knowe, that who so euer cõmeth within the court vnto the kynge, whether it be man or woman, which is not called, ỹ commaundement is that the same shal dye immediatly, excepte the kynge holde out ỹ golden cepter vnto him, that he maye lyue.
As for me, I haue not ben called to come in to the kynge now this thyrtye dayes.

C And whan Mardocheus was certified of Hesters wordes, Mardocheus bad saye agayne vnto Hester: Thynke not to saue
thyne owne lyfe, whyle thou arte in the kyn ges house before all Jewes: for yf thou hol dest thy peace at this tyme, then shall ỹ Je-wes haue helpe and delyueraunce out of another place, and thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou arte come to the kyngdome for this tymes sake? Hester bad geue Mardocheus this answer: Go thou thy waye then,
and gather together all the Jewes that are foũde at Susan, and fast ye for me, that ye eate not and drynke not in thre dayes, nother daye nor nyghte. I and my dameselis wyll faste lykewyse, and so wyll I go in to the kynge contrarye to the commaunde-ment: yf I perysshe, I perysh. So Mardocheus wente his waye, and dyd al that Hester had commaunded hym.

The.v. Chapter.

AND on the thyrde daye put ster on hir royall apparell, and stode in the courte of ỹ kynges palace within ouer against ỹ kynges house. And the kyng sat vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer against the dore of the house. And whan the kynge sawe Hester the quene sto dynge in the courte, she founde grace in his syghte. And the kynge helde out the golden cepter in his hande toward Hester. So Hester stepte forth, and touched the toppe of ỹ cepter. Then sayd ỹ kinge vnto her: What wylt thou quene Hester? and what requy-rest thou? are euen the halfe of the empyre, it shalbe geuen the. Hester sayd: yf it plese the kynge, let the kynge & Aman come this day vnto the banket that I haue prepared.
The kynge sayde: Cause Aman to make haist, that he maye do as Hester hath sayd.

Now whã the kynge & Aman came to ỹ
the banket ỹ Hester had prepared, the kyng sayd vnto Hester whã he had dronke wyne:
Hester, what is thy peticyon? it shalbe gy-
the. And what requyrest thou? euen the half of the empyre, it shalbe done.

Then answered Hester and sayd: My pe-ticyon and desyre is, yf I haue foũde grace in the syght of the kynge, and yf it plese ỹ kynge to geue me my peticyon, and to fofyll my request, then let the kynge & Aman come to the banket that I shall prepare for them, and so wyll I do to morow as ỹ kyng hath sayd.

Then wente Aman forth the same dye toyfull and mery in his mynde. And whan
he sawe Mardocheus in the kynges gate, that he stode not vp & kneled before hym, he was full of indignacyon against Mardocheus. Neuertheles he refrayned himself, & whã he cam home, he sent & called for his frẽdes, & Seres his wyfe, & tolde them the glorye of his ryches, & the multitude of his chyldren, altogether how the kyng had promoted hym so greatly, & how that he was taken aboue the princes and seruauntes of the kynge. Aman sayd moreouer: yea Hester the quene let no man come with the kyng vnto the banket that she hath prepared, excepte me, and tomorowe I am bydden vnher also with the kynge. But in all this am I not satisfyed as longe as I se Mardocheus the Jewe syttynge in ỹ kynges gate.
Then sayd Seres his wyfe and all his fri-des vnto hym: Let them make a galowe of fyfftye cubites hye, & tomorow speake thou vnto the kynge, that Mardocheus may hanged theron, yf thou cõmest merely with the kynge vnto ỹ bancket. Aman was well content withall, and caused a galowe to be prepared.

The.vi. Chapter.

THe same nyght could not the kynge slepe, and he cõmaũded to bryng the Cronicles and storyes: which whã they were red before ỹ kynge, they happened on ỹ place where it was wrytte, how Mardocheus had tolde, that ỹ kynges two chãberlaynes (which kept ỹ tresholdes) sought to laye hãdes on kynge Ihasuerus. And ỹ kynge sayde: What worshyppe and good hane we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayd the kynges seruauntes that ministred vnto hym. There is nothynge done hym. And the kynge sayde: Who is in ỹ courte? (for Amã was gone in to the court without, before the kynges house, that he might speake vnto ỹ kynge to hange Mardocheus on ỹ tre, that he had prepared for hym.) And the kynges seruauntes sayd vnto hym: Beholde, Aman stõdeth in ỹ court. The kynge sayde: Let hym come in. And whan Aman came in, the kynge sayde vnto hym: What shall be done vnto ỹ man, whõ the kynge is disposed to bringe vnto worshyppe? But Aman thought in his harte: Whome shulde the kynge els be glad to bringe vnto worshyppe, but me? And Amã sayde vnto the kynge: Let the man vnto whome the kynge is disposed to do worshyppe, be brought hether, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes whiche the kynge vseth to weare: and ỹ horse that the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye be set vpon his heade. And let this rayment and horse be delyuered vnder the hande of one of ỹ kynges princes, that he maye araye the man withall (whom the kynge is disposed to honoure) & carye hym vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cytie & cause it to be proclamed before him: Thus shall it be done to euery man, whõ the kyng is disposed to honoure.

The kynge sayde: Make hayste, & take (as thou hast sayde) the rayment & the horse and do euen so with Mardocheus ỹ Jewe that syteth before the kynges gate, and let nothynge fayle of all that thou hast spoke. Then toke Aman the rayment and ỹ horse, and arayed hym, and broughte hym on horsbacke thorow the strete of ỹ cytye, and proclamed before hym: Euen thus shall it be done vnto euery man whome the kynge is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Amã gat hym home in all the hayst, mournynge with bare heade, and told Seres his wyfe, and all his frendes, euery thynge that had happened hym. Then sayde his wyse men and Seres his wyfe vnto hi: yf it be Mardocheus of the sede of the Jewes, before whome thou hast begonne to fall, thou cãst do nothyng vnto hym, but shalt fall before hym. Whyle they were yet talkynge with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Aman to make hayste to come vnto the bancket that Hester had prepared.

The.vii. Chapter.

AND whan the kynge & Aman came to the bancket that quene Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester on the secõde day whan he had dronken wyne: What is thy peticyon quene Hester, that it maye be geuẽ ỹ? And what requyrest thou? yee are euen halfe of the empyre, & it shall be done. Hester the quene answered & sayd: yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte (O kynge) and yf it please the kynge, then graũte me my lyfe at my desyre, and my people for my peticyons sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perysh. And wolde God we were solde to be bonde men and bondewemen, then wolde I holde my tunge, so shulde not the enemye be so hye to the kynges harme. The kynge Ahasuerus spake and sayd vnto quene Hester: What is he that? Or where is he that darre presume in his mynde to do suche a thynge after that maner? Hester sayd: The enemy & aduersary is this wycked Aman.

As for Aman, he was exceadingly afrayed before the kynge and the quene. And the kynge arose from the bancket and from the wyne in his displeasure, and wente in to ỹ palace garden. And Aman stode vp, and besought quene Hester for his lyfe: for he saw that ther was a myschaunce prepared for hym of the kynge already.

And whan the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden in to the parler where they had eaten, Aman had layed hym vpon the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then sayde ỹ kynge: wyll he force the quene also besyde me in the house? As soone as ỹ worde went out of the kynges mouth, they couered Amans face. And Harbona one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kyng, sayd:

Beholde, ther stondeth a galowe in Amãs house fyftye cubytes hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kynge. The kynge sayde: Hange hym theron. So they hanged Aman on the galowe that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath stylled.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The same daye dyd kynge Ahasuerus geue the house of Amã the Jewes enemy, vnto quene Hester. And Mardocheus came before the kyng: for Hester tolde how that he belonged vnto her. And the kynge put of his fynger ryng, whiche he had taken from Aman, and gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Hester set Mardocheus ouer ỹ house of Aman. And Hester spake yet more before the kynge, and fell downe at his fete, and besought hym, that he wold put awaye the wyckednes of Aman the Agagite, and his deuyce that he had ymagyned agaynst the Jewes. And ỹ kynge held out the golden cepter vnto Hester. Then rose Hester, and stode before the kynge, and sayde: yf it please the kynge, and yf I haue founde grace in his syght, and yf it be conuenient for the kynge, and yf I be accepted in his sight, thẽ let it be wrytte, that the letters of the deuyce of Aman the sonne of Amadathat the Agagite, maye be called agayne: which letters he wrote, to destroye ỹ Jewes in all the kynges landes. For howe can I se the euell that shall happẽ vnto my people? and howe can I loke vpon the destruccyon of my kynred.

Then sayde the kynge Ahasuerus vnto quene Hester, and to Mardocheus ỹ Jewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Hester the house of Aman, and hym haue they hanged vpon a tre, because he layed hãde vpon the Jewes. Wryte ye now therfore for the Jewes, as it lyketh you in the kynges name, and seale it with the kynges ryng (for the wrytynges that were written in the kynges name, and sealed with ỹ kynges ryng, durst no man dysanulle.) Then were the kynges scrybes called at the same tyme in ỹ thirde moneth, Mayo that is the moneth Siuan, on the thre and twentyeth daye.

¶ And it was wrytte (as Mardocheus cõmaunded) vnto the Jewes and to the prynces, to the Debtyes & captaynes in the londes from India vntyll Ethiopia, namely, an hundreth and seuẽ and twentye londes, vnto euery one accordynge to ỹ wrytynge therof, vnto euery people after their speche and to the Jewes accordynge to their tynge and language.

And it was wrytten in the kynge Assuerus name, and sealed with the kynges ryng. And by postes that rode vpon swyfte ponge Mules, sent he the wrytynges. Also in the kynge graunted the Jewes (in what cytyes so euer they were) to gather themselues together, and to stonde for their lyues, for to rote out, to slaye, & to destroye all the power of the people and londe that wold trouble them, with childre and wemẽ, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all londes of kynge Ahasuerus, namely vpon the thirtenth day of the twolueth moneth, which is the moneth Adar.

The summe of the wrytynge was, how ther was a cõmaundement geuen in all londes to be publyshed vnto al the people that the Jewes shuld be ready agaynst that day to auenge themselues on theyr enemyes. And the postes that rode vpon the mules made hayst with all spede, accordynge to the kynges worde: and the cõmaundemẽt was deuyled in the castell of Susan.

As for Mardocheus, he wente out from the kynge in ropall apparel of yalowe and whyte, and with a greate crowne of golde, beynge arayed with a garment of lynnen and purple, and the cytye of Susan reioyced and was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was come lighte & gladnesse, and ioye and worshyppe. And in all londes and cytyes, to what places so euer the kynges worde & cõmaũdemẽt reached, ther was ioye myrth, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so muche ỹ many people in the londe became of the Jewes beleue, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The. ix. Chapter.

IN the twolueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thyrtenth daye, which the kynges worde and cõmaundement had appoynted, that it shuld be done, euen vpon the same daye that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes, to haue oppressed them, it turned contrary wyse: euen that the Jewes shulde haue their enemyes. Then gathered the Jewes together in their cytyes within all the londes of kynge Ahasuerus, to laye hande on such as wolde do thẽ euell, and none could withstõde thẽ: for the feare of thẽ was come ouer al people. And al ỹ rulers in the lan-princes and Debytes, and officers of the kyng promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mardocheus came vpō them. For Mar docheus was greate in the kynges house, and the reporte of hym was noysed in all landes, how he increased and grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemy es with a sore slaughter, and slewe and destroyed, and dyd after theyr wyll vnto such as were theyr aduersaries. And at ỳ castell of Sulan slewe the Jewes and destroyed
fyue hundreth men: and slew Parsandatha Dalphon, Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Ari-datha, Parmastha, Arissai, Aridai, Vaiesatha, the ten sōnes of Aman, the sonne of Amadathai the enemy of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no hādes. At ỳ same tyme was the kynge certyfyed of the nōbre
of those that were slayne at the castel of Su
lan. And the kynge sayde vnto quene Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed
fyue hunderth men at the castell of Sulan, and the ten sonnes of Aman: What shall they do in ỳ other lōdes of the kyng? What is thy petycyon, that it maye be geuen the?
and what requyrest thou more to be done?
Hester sayde: yf it please the kynge, let hym
suffre the Jewes tomorow also to do accor dynge vnto this dayes cōmaūdement, that they maye hange Amans ten sonnes vpon the tre. And the kyng charged to do so, and the cōmaūdement was deuysed at Sulan, and Amans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered themselues together at Sulan, vpon the fourteenth daye of the moneth Adar, and slewe thre hundreth men at Sulan, but on theyr goodes they layed
no handes.

Is for the other Jewes in the kynges lō
des they came together, and stode for theyr lyues, and gat rest from theyr enemies: and slewe of theyr enemyes fyue & seuenty thousand, howbeit they layed no hādes on their goodes. This was done on the thirteenth daye of the moneth Adar, and on the fourteenth daye of the same moneth rested they,
which (daye) they ordeyned to be a daye of feastynge and gladnesse. But the Jewes at Sulan were come together both on ỳ thirteenth day, and on the fourteenth, and on the fyftenth daye they rested, and the same day ordeyned they to be a day of feastynge and gladnes. Therfore the Jewes that dwelt in the vyllages and vnwalled townes, or-deyned the fourtheenth daye of the moneth Adar, to be a day of feastynge and gladnes
and one sent gyftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, & sent ỳ wrytynges vnto all the Jewes that were in all the londe of kynge Ahasuerus, both nye and farre, that they shulde yearly receaue and holde ỳ fourteenth and fyftenth day of the moneth Adar, as ỳ dayes wherin D
the Jewes came to rest from theyr enemies and as a moneth wherin theyre payne was turned to ioye, and theyr sorowe in to prof-perite: that they shulde obserue the same as dayes of welthe and gladnesse, and one to sende giftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto the poore.

And ỳ Jewes receaued it that they had begōne to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Aman the sonne of A madathai the Agagite all the Jewes enemye, had deuysed to destroye al the Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put thē in feare, and to bringe them to naughte: and how Hester went and spake to the kynge, ỳ thorow letters his wycked deuyce (whiche he ymagyned agaynst the Jewes) might be turned vpon his owne heade, & how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this day Purim af ter ỳ name of ỳ lot, accordyng to all ỳ wor-des of this writtyng, & what they thēselues had sene, & what had happened vnto thē.

And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpō C them and theyr sede, and vpon all suche as ioyned thēselues vnto thē, that they wolde not mysse to obserue these two dayes yearly, accordynge as they were wrytten and ap poynted how that these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of chylders children amonge all kynreds in all londes and cyties. They are ỳ dayes of Purim, which are not to be ouerslypt amonge the Jewes,
and the memorialL of them ought not to pe
rysshe from theyr sede.

And quene Hester the doughter of Abi-haill and Mardocheus the Jewe, wrote vh
all auctorite, to confyrme this seconde wryt tynge of Purim, and sente the letters vnto
all the Jewes in the hundreth and seuen & twentye londes of the empyre of Ahasue-rus, with frendly and faythfull wordes, to cōfirme these days of Purim, in theyr tyme appoynted, accordynge as Mardocheus
the Jewe and Hester the quene had ordeyned, concernynge them: lyke as they vpon their soule, and vpon theyr sede had cōfirmed the actes of the * fastynges and of hit *.
cōplaynt. And Hester commaunded to sta-blysshe these actes of this Purim, and to wryte them in a boke.

The.xxii. Chapter.

THer was a mã in the londe of * Hus called Job: an innocẽt and vertuous man, such one as feared God, and eschewed euell. This man had seuen sõnes, & thre doughters. * His substaũce was, vii. M. shepe, iii. M. Camels, v. C. yock of oxen, v. C. she asses, and a verye great housholder: so that he was one of the moost pyncypal men amonge all them of the East contre. His sonnes now went on euery man, and made bandettes: one day in one house, another day in another, and sent for theyr thre systers to eate & drynke with them. So whã they had passed ouer the tyme of theyr banketting rouñd about, Job sent for them, & clensed them agayne, rose vp early, and offered for euery one a burntoffering. For Job thought thus per aduẽture my sonnes haue done some offence, & haue ben vnthankful to God in theyr hartes. And thus dyd Job euery daye.

B * Now vpon a tyme, whan the seruaũ
Job. 2. a. tes of God came and stode before ỹ LORD, Sathan came also amonge them. And ỹ LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: frõ whẽce commest thou? Sathan answered ỹ LOR
1. Pet. 5. b DE, and sayde: * I haue gone aboute the londe, and walked thorowe it.

Then sayd the LORDE vnto Sathã:
hast thou not cõsydered my seruaunt Job,
how that he is an innocent and vertuous
man: such one as feareth God, & eschueth euell, and that ther is none lyke hym in ỹ londe? Sathan answered and sayde vnto the LORDE: Doth Job feare God for naught? hast thou not preserued hym, hys house, and al hys substaũce on euery syde?
hast thou not blessed the workes of his hã des? Is not hys possession encreased in the londe? But laye thyne hande vpon hym a lytle, touche once all that he hath, and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. And ỹ LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: lo, all that he hath, be in thy power: only vpõ himself
se ỹ thou lay not thyne hond. Then wente
Sathan forth from ỹ LORDES presence.

C Now vpon a certayne daye, whan hys sonnes and doughters were eatynge, and drinkynge wyne in theyr eldeste brothers house, ther came a messaunger vnto Job,
and sayde: Whyle the oxen were a plow-ynge, and the asses goynge in the pasture beside them: the Sabees came in violent ly, and toke them, al awaye: yee they haue slayne the seruauntes with the sweard, and I onely ranne my waye, to tell the.

And whyle he was yet speakynge, ther came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, it hath consumed, & burnt vp al the shepe and seruauntes: and I onely ranne my waye, to tell the. In the meane season whyle he was yet speaking, ther came another, & sayde: The Caldees made thre armyes, and fell in vpon the camels, which they haue caried awaye, yee &
slayne the seruauntes with the sweard: &
D I only am gotten away, to tel the. Whyle
he was speakynge, ther came yet another, & sayde: Thy sonnes & doughters were ea
tynge & drinkyng wyne in theyr eldest bro thers house, & sodenly ther came a mighty great wynd out of the South, & smote the iiii. corners of the house: whiche fell vpon thy children, so that they are dead: and I am gotten awaye alone, to tel the.

Then Job stode vp, and rente hys clo thes shaued his head, fell downe vpon the ground, worshipped, and sayde: * Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, naked shal I turn thither agayn. The LORD gaue, & ỹ LORD hath take awaye (the LOR DE hath done his pleasure) now blessed be the name of the LORDE. * In all thinges dyd Job not offende, nor murmu red foolyshly agaynst God.

The.ii. Chapter.

IT * happened also vpõ a time that whan the seruauntes of God came and stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amonge them, and stode before
hym. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathã:
From whence commest thou? Sathan an swered, and sayd: * I haue gone about the
londe, and walked thorowe it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sa-than: Haste thou not consydered my ser-uaunt Job, how that he is an innocent & vertuous man, suche one as feareth God,
and eschueth euell, and that ther is none
lyke him in the londe? But thou mouedst me agaynst him, to punish him: yet is it in vayne, for he continueth styll in hys godlynesse.

Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde: Skynne for skynne, yee a man wil geue al that euer he hath, for hys life. But laye thyne hande vpon hym, touche hym once vpon the bone and flesh, and (I hold) he shall curse the to thy face. Then sayde
the LORDE vnto Sathan: lo, there hast thou him in thy power, but spare his life.

So wente Sathan forth from the LOR
DE, and smote Job with marueylous sore byles, from ỹ sole of the foote vnto hys crowne: so that he sat vpon the ground in the asshes, and scraped of the etter of his so res with a potsherde.

Then sayd hys wyfe vnto hym: * Dost thou yet continue in thy perfectnesse? curse God, and dye. But Job sayde vnto her:
Thou speakest lyke a foolysh woman.
Seyng we haue receaued prosperyte at ỹ hande of God, wherfore shulde we not be content with aduersyte also? * In al thes thynges dyd not Job synne with his lippes.

Now whã Jobs frendes herd of al yron
ble, ỹ happened vnto him, ther cam they al thre, euery one frõ his owne place: namely, Eliphas the Themanite, Baldad the Su
hite, and Sophar the Naamathite.

For they were agreed together to come,
to shew their compassion vpon hym, &

mynde hym. So whe they lyfte vp their eyes a farre of, they knewe hym not.

Then cried they, and wept: then eue ry one of them rente his clothes, & spryncke led dufte vpon theyr heades in the ayre. They sat them downe by him also vpon ꝓ grounde. vii. dayes, and. vii. nightes. No ther was ther ony of them that spake one worde vnto him, for they sawe that his payne was very greate.

The.iii. Chapter.

AFter thys opened Job hys mouth, and cursed his daye, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherin I was borne: and the night, in te which it was said: ther is a manchild conceaued. The same daye be turned to darknesse, and not regarded of God from aboue, nother he shyned vpō with lyght: but be couered with darknesse, and the shadowe of death. Let the dimme cloude fall vpō it, and let it be lapped in with sorowe. Let the darknesse ouercome that nyght, let it not be rekened amonge the dayes of the yeare, nor counted in the monethes. Desypsed be ꝓ night and discommended: let them that curse ꝓ daye, geue it theyr curse also, euen those ꝓ be ready to rayse vp Leuiathan. Let ꝓ starres be dimme thorow darknesse of it. Let it looke for lyght, but let it se none, nother ꝓ eyelyde vp of the fayre morninge: because it shut not vp the wombe that bare me, nor hyd these sorowes from myne eyes.

B Alas, why died I not in ꝓ byrth? Why dyd not I perish, as soone as I came out of my mothers wombe? Why let they me vpō theyr knees? Why gaue they me suck with theyr pappes? Then shulde I nowe haue lyen still, I shulde haue slepte, & ben at rest: lyke as the kinges & lordes of the earth, whiche buylde them selues speciall places: As the princes that haue greate substaunce of golde, and theyr houses full of syluer. O that I vtterly had no beynge or were as a thynge borne out of tyme (ꝓ is put abyde) nother as ponge chyldren, which neuer sawe the lyght. There must the wycked cease from their thanny, there such as are wery shoulde be at rest: there are those lyuers out fre, which haue ben in prison, so that they heare nomor the voyce of the oppressour. There are smal and greate: the seruaunt is he that is fre frō his master.

C Wherfore is the lyght geuen, to him ꝓ is in myserye, and lyfe vnto the, that haue heuy hartes? (Which long for death, and it commeth not: for yf they might fynde theyr graue, they wolde be marueylous glad, as those that dygge vp treasure) To the man whose waye is hyd, whiche God kepeth backe from hym.

D This is the cause, that I syghe before I eate, and my roarynges fall out lyke a water stoude. For the thynge that I feared is come vpon me: and the thynge ꝓ I was afrayed of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? Had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in reste? And now commeth such myserye vpon me.

The. iiii. Chapter.

THe answered Elyphas of Theman, and sayde vnto hym: yf we begynne to comune wt the, peraduenture thou wilt be myscontent, but who can withold hymselfe from speakynge? Beholde, thou hast ben a teacher of many, and hast comforted the weery handes.

Thy wordes haue set vp those ꝓ were fallē, thou hast refreshed the weake knees, But now that the plage is come vpon the thou shrynkest away: now ꝓ it hath touched thyselfe, thou art faynt harted. * Where is now thy feare of God, thy stedfastnesse, thy pacience, and the perfectnesse of thy lyfe? Consyder (I praye the) who euer perished, beyng an innocent? Or when were ꝓ godly destroyed? As for those that plowe wyckednesse (as I haue sene my self), * & sowe myschefe, they reape ꝓ same. For whā god bloweth vpon them, they perysshe, and are destroyed thorowe the blaste of his wrath. The roaryng of the lyon, the crieng of the lyoneesse, and the teth of the lyons whelpes are broken. The greate lyon perysheth, because he can get no praye, and the lyons whelpes are scatred abrode.

Gala. 6.a.

B Ther is spoken vnto me a thynge in counsell, whiche hath geuen a terrible sounde in myne eare * wyth a vysyon in the nyghte, whan men are fallen a slepe. Suche feare, and drede came vpon me, that all my bones shoke. And whan the wynde passed ouer by me, the heeres of my flesshe stode vpright.

Dani. 10.c

Then stode ther one before me, whose face I knewe not: an ymage ther was, and the wether was styll so that I herde this voyce: * Shall a mā be more clene then he that made him? * Behold he hath founde vnfaythfulnesse among his owne seruauntes, and proude disobedience amonge his angels.

How muche more then shall they (that dwell in houses of claye, whose fundacyō is but earth) be motheaten? They shall be destroyed from the mornyng vnto the euenynge: yee they shall perysshe or euer they be aware: and be taken awaye so cleane, that none of them shall remayne, but be dead, or euer they be aware of it.

The.v.Chapter.

C Name me one els, yf thou canst fynde ony, yee loke aboute yf vpon ony of the holy men.

As for the foolysshe man, displeasure kylleth him, and anger slayeth the ygnoraunt. * I haue sene my selfe, when the foolysh was depe roted, that his bewty was sodenly destroyed: yf his chyldren were without prosperyte or helth: that they were slayne in the dore, & no man to delyuer the: * that his harueste was eaten vp of the hongry: that the weaponed man had spoyled it, and that the thyrsty had dronke vp his ryches. It is not the earth that bryngeth forth trauayl, nother cōmeth sorowe out of the grounde: but it is man that is borne vnto mysery, lyke as the bryde for to flye.

B But now wyl I speake of the LORDE, & talke of God, which doth thynges, that are vnsearchable, & maruaylous wout nō ber: * Which geueth rayne vpon yf earth, & poureth water vpon al thynges: * which setteth vp them of lowe degre, & sendeth prosperyte to those that are in heuynesse: Whiche destroyeth the deuyces of the sotyl, so that they are not able to perfourme the thynges yf they take in honde: * which compasseth yf wyse in theyr owne craftynesse, & ouerthroweth the coūsell of yf wycked: In so much yf * they runne into darknesse by fayre day, & grope about them at the noone day, lyke as in the nyght.

* And so he delyuereth the poore from the swearde, from theyr mouth, & from the honde of the cruell, that the poore maye haue hope, and that the mouth of the oppressour may be stopped.

C * Beholde happy is yf man, whom God punysheth: therfore, despyse not thou the chastenyng of the almighty. * For though he make a wounde, he geueth a medicyne agayne: though he smyte, his honde maketh whole agayne.

He delyuereth the out of syx troubles, so that in the seuenthe there can no harme touche the. In the myddest of hunger he saueth the from deathe: & whan it is warre from the power of the swearde.

He shal kepe the from yf perilous tonge, so yf whan trouble cōmeth, thou shalt not nede to feare. In destruccyon & derth thou shalt be mery, * & shalt not be afrayde for the beastes of the earth: But yf cattell in the londe shal be cōfederate with the, and the beastes of the felde shal geue the peace.

yee thou shalt se yf thy dwellynge place shall be in rest, thou shalt beheld thy habitaūce, and be nomore punished for synne. Thou shalt se also yf thy sede shal encrease, & that thy posteryte shal be as the grasse vpon the earth. Thou shalte come to thy graue i a fayre age, like as yf corne of ayre are brought into the barne in due season. Lo, this is the matter, as we ouer selues haue proued by experience. Therfore mar yf thou hear e it, take better hede to thy sel.

The.vi.Chapter.

IOb answered & sayd: O that my misery were weyed, my punishment layed in yf balances: for then should it be poyse then the sonde of yf se. This is yf cause, yf my wordes are so swolle.

For the almyghty hath shot at me with his arowes, whose indignacyō hath dronke vp my spyrite, & the terryble feares of God fyght agaynste me. * Doth the wylde asse roare whan he hath grasse? Or crieth yf oxe whā he hath fodder ynough? May a thyng be eaten vnsealoned, or wout salte? Or what tayst hath yf whyte wtin yf yolk of an egge? The thynges that somtyme I myght not awaye withal, are now my meate for hunger sorow: O that I myght haue my petycyō that God wolde graūt me the thyng that I longe for: That he wold begyn & breake me: that he wolde let his hande go & bore me downe. Then should I haue some cōfort, yee I wolde despyse him in my payne, that he should not spare: for I wil not be ageynst the wordes of the holy one.

What power haue I to endure? Or what is myne ende, yf my soule myght be patient? Is my strength yf strength of stones? Or is my flesshe made of brasse? Am I able to helpe my selfe? Is not my strength gone fro me, lyke as yf one wolfe a good bede fro his frende, and forsoke the feare of God? Myne owne brethren passe ouer by me as perysh. Consyder ỹ pathes of Theman, & the wayes of Saba, wherin they haue put theyr trust. Confounded are they that put ony confydence in them. For whan they came to optayne the thynges that they loked for, they were brought to confusyon.

Euen so are ye also come vnto me: but now ỹ ye se my misery, ye are afrayed. Did I desyre you, to come hyther? Or to geue me ony of your substaūce? To delyuer me from the enemyes hande, or to saue me frō
the power of the myghty? Teache me & I will holde my tunge: and yf I do erre,
shewe me wherin.
Wherfore blame ye then ỹ wordes, that are wel & truely spoken? which of you can reproue them? Sayenge onely that ye are redy to check mens sayenges, & can speake
many wordes in the wynde. ye falle vpon
the fatherlesse, & go aboute to ouerthrowe your owne frende. Wherfore, loke not only vpon me, but vpon your selues, whether I lye or no. Turne in to your owne selues (I pray you) be indifferent iudges, and consyder myne vngyltynesse, whether ther be ony vnrightreousnesse in my tung,
or vayne wordes in my mouth.

The.vii.Chapter.

IS not the lyfe of man vpon earth a very battayle? Are not his dayes, like the dayes of an hyred seruaunt? For lyke as a bonde seruaūt desyreth ỹ shadowe, & as the hyrelyng wolde fayne haue an ende of his worke: Euen so haue I laboured whole monethes long (but i vain:)
and many a carefull nyght haue I tolde.
* Whā I layed me downe to slepe, I sayd:
O whā shal I ryse? Agayne, I longed sore for the nyght. Thus I am full of sorow, tyll it be darke. My flesh is clothed w̄ wor mes, fylthynes & dust, my skynne is wythe
red, & croupled together: * my dayes passe ouer more spedely, thē a weeuer can weeue out his webbe, & are gone or I am aware.
O remembre that my lyfe is but a wynde,
& that myne eye shal nomore se ỹ pleasures therof, yee & that none other mans eye shal se me ony more. For yf thou fasten thyne eyes vpō me, I come to nought as a cloud is consumed & vanyshed away, euen so he that goeth downe to hell cōmeth nomore vp, nor turneth agayne into his house, nother shall his place knowe him ony more.
Therfore I wyll not spare my mouthe, B
but wyll speake in ỹ trouble of my spyrete,
in ỹ bytternesse of my mynde wyl I talke.
Am I a see, or a whalfysh, that thou kepest me so in prison? Whan I thynke my bed shal comforte me, I shall haue some refreshyng by talkyng to my selfe vpō my couche: * Thē troublest thou me w̄ dreames, Dani. 2.a & makest me so afrayed thorowe vysions, that my soule wysheth rather to be hanged, and my bones to be dead.
I can se no remedy, I shal lyue nomore:
O spare me thē, for my days are but vayn.
What is man that thou hast him in suche
reputacion, and settest so muche by him?
* Thou takest diligent care for him, & and Mat.6.c
sodenly doest thou trye him. & Deu.2.a Why goest thou not from me, nor lettest Genes.22.a me alone, so longe tyll I swalowe downe my spetle? I haue offended, what shal I do vnto the O thou preseruer of men? Why hast thou made me to stonde in thy way, & am so heuy a burthen vnto my selfe? Why doest thou not forgeue me my synne?
Wherfore takest thou not away my wickednesse? Behold, now must I slepe in the dust: and yf thou seekest me to morow in the mornynge, I shal be gone.

The.viii.Chapter.

THē answered Baldad ỹ Suhi A te, & sayd: How lōge wylt thou talke of suche thynges? howe longe shall thy mouth speake
so proude wordes? Doth god peruerte the thyng ỹ is lawful? Or doeth
the almighty destroy the thyng ỹ is ryght?
* Whan thy sonnes synned agaynst him, Job.1.a
dyd no he punysh thē for theyr wickednes?
* yf thou woldest now resort vnto god by Deu.30.a tymes, & make thyne humble prayer to the almighty: yf thou woldest lyue a pure and a godly lyfe: shulde he not awake vp vnto
ỹ immediatly, & geue the ỹ bewty of rygh-teousnesse agayn? In so much, that wherin so euer thou haddest lytle afore, thou shuldest now haue great abundaūce. Enquere of them that haue ben before ỹ, search diligently among thy forefathers. Namely ỹ we are but of yesterday, and consyder not, shadowe. They shall shewe the, they shall tel the, yee they wil gladly confesse ỹ same.

B Maye a russhe be grene without moystnesse: maye the grasse growe without water? No: but (or euer it be shot forth, and or euer it be gathered) it wythereth, before ony other herbe. Euen so goeth it with all them, that forget God: and euen thus also shal the ypocrites hope come to naught. His confidence shalbe destroyed, for he trusteth in a spyders webbe.

He leeneth vpon his house, but he shall not stonde: he holdeth him fast by it, yet shall he not endure. Oft tymes a thing doth florish, and men thynke that it maye abyde the Sonneshine: it shooteth forth the braunches in his garden, it taketh many rotes, in so much that it is like an house of stones. But yf it be taken out of his place, euery man denieth it, sayenge: I know the not. Lo, thus is it with him, that reioyceth in his own doinges: and as for other, they growe out of the earth.

Beholde, God will not cast awaye a vertuous man, nother wil he helpe the vngodly. Thy mouth shall he fill with laughinge, and thy lippes with gladnesse. They that hate the, shalbe confounded, ād the dwellynges of the vngodly shal come to naught.

The.ix. Chapter.

A Ps.142.a Rom.3.b. Job.4.b. 33.b. 25.a. IOb answered, and sayde: As for that* I know it is so of a treuth, ỹ a man compared vnto God, can not be iustified. yf he will argue with him, he shall not be able to answere him vnto one amonge a thousande. He is wyse of harte, and mightie in strēgth. Who euer prospered, ỹ toke parte against him? He translateth ỹ mountaynes, or euer they be aware and ouerthoroweth them in his wrath. He remoueth the earth oute of hyr place, ỹ hyr pilers shake withall. He commaundeth ỹ Sonne, and it riseth not: he closeth vp the starres, as it were vnder a signet. He him self alone sprædeth out the heauens, and goeth vpon ỹ wawes of ỹ see. He maketh the waynes of heauen, the ☞ Orion, the * vii. starres and the secrete places of the south. He doth great thinges, such as are vnsearcheable, yee & wōders wout nōbre.

Orion for clere a star in ỹ south. which the hebrue cal Iacobs steffe. Amos.5.a

yf he came by me, I might not loke vpon him: yf he went his waye, I shuld not perceaue it. yf he be haysty to take ony thinge awaye, who will make him restore it againe? * Who wil say vnto him: What doest thou? He is God, whose wrath no man maye withstonde: but the proude all must stoupe vnder him. How shall I then answere him: or what wordes shall I fynde out against him? yee though I be righteous, yet will I not geue him one worde againe, but meekely submitte myself to my iudge. All be it ỹ I call vpon him, & he heare me, yet am I not sure, ỹ he hath herde my voyce: he troubleth me so with tempest, and woundeth me out of measure without a cause. He will not let my spirite be in rest, but filleth me with bitternesse.

yf men wil speake of strength, he is the strongest of al: yf men will speake of righteousnesse, who darre be my recorde? yf I will iustifie my self, mine own mouth shall condemne me: yf I will put forth my self for a perfecte man, he shal prone me a wicked doer: For that I shuld be an innocent, my cōscience knoweth it not, yee I my life am wery of my life.

This one thinge will I saye: he destroieth both the righteous and vngodly. And though he slate sodenly with the scourge, yet laugheth he at ỹ punishment of the innocent. As for the worlde, he giueth it ouer in to the power of the wicked, such as the rulers be, wherof al londes are full. Is it not so? where is ther ony, but he is suche one?

*My dayes haue ben more swifter then a runner: they are gone sodenly, and haue not sene no good thing. They are passed away as the shippes that be good vnder sayle, as the Aegle that haisteth to the praye. Whan I am purposed to forget my complaintinges to chaunge my countenaunce, and to comforte myself: then am I afraid of al my workes, for I know, thou wilt not rest not an euel doer. yf I be thē a wicked one, why haue I laboured in vayne? Though I washed myself with snow water, & made mine hādes neuer so clean, yet shuldest thou dippe me in ỹ myre, & mine owne clothes shulde defyle me. For he ỹ I must geue answer vnto, & with who I go to lawe is not a man as I am. Nother is ther ony dayes mā to reproue both the parties, or lay his hāde betwixte vs. Let him take his rod away fro me, yee let him make me more afraid of him, & then shal I answere him without ony feare. For as longe as I am in such fearfulnesse, I can make no answere: And why? it greueth my soul to liue.

Euertheleſſe, nowe will I put forth my wordes: I wil ſpeake out of the very heuineſſe of my ſoul, & wil ſaie vnto god: O do not cõdemne me, but ſhew me
ꝓ cauſe, wherfore thou iudgeſt me on this maner. Thinkeſt thou it well done, to op-preſſe me, to caſte me of (beinge a worke of thy handes) & to maintaine ꝓ councell of ꝓ vngodly? Haſt thou fleſhy eyes thẽ, or doeſt thou loke as man loketh? Are thy daies as ꝓ daies of man, & thy yeares as mans yea-res: that thou makeſt ſuch inquiſition for my wickednelle, & ſearcheſt out my ſinne:
where as (notwithſtonding) thou knoweſt
ꝓ I am no wicked perſon, & ꝓ ther is no mã able to deliuer me out of thine hãd. * Thy handes haue made me, & faſhioned me altogether round about, wilt thou then deſtroye me ſodẽly? O remẽbre (I beſeke the) how ꝓ thou madeſt me of ꝓ moulde of the earth, & wilt bringe me to earth agayne.
Haſt thou not milked me, as it were milke, & turned me to cruddes lyke cheſe?
Thou haſt couered me with ſkinne & fleſh & ioyned me together with bones, and ſinnues. Thou haſt graũted me lyfe, and done me good: & the diligent hede ꝓ thou takeſt vpon me, hath preſerued my ſpyrete.
Though thou hydeſt theſe thynges in thyne hart, yet am I ſure, that thou remẽ-breſt the all. Wherfore dyddeſt thou kepe me, whan I ſynned, and haſt not cleanſed me fro myne offence? yf I do wickedly, wo is me therfore: yf I be righteous, yet dar
I not lyft vp my heade: ſo full am I of con
fuſion, and le myne owne miſery.
Thou huntеſt me out (beinge in heyu-neſſe) as it were a Lyon, and troubleſt me out of meaſure. Thou bringeſt freſh wyt-neſſes agaynſt me, thy wrath increaſeſt thou vpon me, very many are the plages, ꝓ I am in. * Wherfore haſt thou brought me out of my mothers wombe? O that I had periſhed, & that no eye had ſene me, yf
they had caried me to my graue, as ſoone
